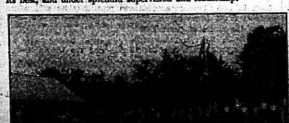
MODERN MIRACLES HIAL CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Rotarians Lead in Boys Work and in Summer Camp Health Promotion

Boys' Camp on Moira Lake Provided by Belleville Rotary Club, a Beautiful Recreation Area Where Boys Learn Lore of the Woods, How to Swim and Protect Themselves in All Emergencies—Beautiful Moira Lake, Surrounded by Miniature Mountains, Beautiful Forests and Sylvan Glades.



The members of Belleville Rotary Club have always had an interest in the Boys' Camp Work of this community.

Some fifteen years ago the club purchased a site of several acres on the shore of Moira Lake twenty-four miles north of Belleville, placed therein a plain building to be used as dining hall and turned use of the property over to the Boys' Camp Committee for use in serving the teen age boys.

Through the years the camp, directed by Y.M.C.A. men loaned to the committee, has provided that experience so richly enjoyed by youth and so beneficial in the building of character and manhood.

The old building bears the names of many who have grown up and taken a prominent place in our city. Some have gone forth to make their contribution in other towns and cities.

The camp goes on. Year after year a fresh group enjoys the fine fellowship and friendship developed in camp, close to nature at its best, and under splendid supervision and leadership.

Some four years ago the Kiwanis Club of Belleville assisted the Camp Committee greatly in providing screened sleeping cabins. The equipment at the camp has steadily improved—docks, boats, archery, handicraft, sanitation, etc.

The great need was for a better dining hall, a kitchen and administration office. Recently the members of Rotary decided to meet this requirement and at a cost of nine hundred dollars placed a fine new building on the slope overlooking the lake.

In October members of the club went out to the camp site in groups and did excellent work in aiding the contractors erect, finish and paint the building.

The building is 24 x 50 feet, and provides a kitchen, dining hall and administration office for Camp Director under the one roof.

Well built, permanent roof, with 40 ft. verandah 8 ft. wide, and screened windows, the new dining hall is a credit to the community and will be a decided improvement in the service, comfort and administration of the camp work.

The camp in turn serves the boys and girls of this community in a programme and leadership equal to the best of camps.

Its field will no doubt be now extended to serve a greater number and at greater length of time.

The Camp Committee which is representative of the Y.M.C.A., Ministerial Association, Retail Merchants, and all Service Clubs, extend sincere thanks to the members of Rotary for this splendid gift.

Never a Failure

Belleville Rotary's Proud Record of Success In Crippled Children's Work

(Written by Chas. J. Symons, Chairman Rotary Crippled Children Committee.)

Dr. W. E. Gallie, M.D., F.R.C.S., (Eng.), Professor of Surgery, University of Toronto, has said:

"There is not a doubt that the greatest contribution we could make to the cause of the crippie would be to devise means of preventing those conditions which are the cause of crippling. If we could, at a stroke, wipe out all the causes of crippling diseases, what a lift that would be to the sum total of human happiness."

The number of crippled children in any community can be conservatively estimated at 2.5 per thousand of the general population. This means that there are probably in the province of Ontario 28,000 crippled children in Canada.

It is estimated that 80 per cent of

MIRACLES OF MODERN EDUCATION

How The Deaf Child Keeps Pace in School-ing

ESTABLISHED 1870

Established in 1870, this school continues to provide a suitable education for boys and girls who are deaf, or who have insufficient hearing to enable them to make progress in a public or separate school.

Terms of Admission and Cost.

Any boy or girl in Ontario, between the ages of five and twenty-three years, who is totally or partially deaf, and who would be eligible to attend a public or separate school, if he or she were not deaf, may attend the School for the Deaf. All pupils must be free from any mental or physical defect other than deafness, that would prevent them from caring for themselves in the residence and in the school.

Parents or guardians and all cases for transportation to and from the school and buy all necessary clothing. They are also required to pay $50.00 per annum for each child to help defray the cost of food and maintenance. The cost is not more than $400.00 per annum, which is necessary to maintain a child is assumed by the Province of Ontario. If parents are financially unable to pay the fee for food and sustenance, they may submit a remission of fees form, signed by the mayor or reeve of the municipality in which they live and exemption may be granted. In such cases the municipality does not assume any financial obligation as the cost of food is borne by the province.

For the present year the average attendance is 292, the pupils coming from all parts of Ontario. Forty-five boys and girls are spending their first year at the school. Of these, seventeen were under seven years of age when admitted.

Dinner Swells Campaign Fund

Vancouver, May 1 (CP)—Citizens of Vancouver who attended the $10-a-plate pre-Coronation dinner here in aid of the British Columbia Cancer Foundation paid only 17 cents a minute for the privilege.

Guests who called for a second cup of coffee before Premier T. D. Pattullo began his speech were assessed 50 cents. Others guests who left a mushroom untouched on the plate paid a dollar and the unfortunate person—there was one—who upset a plate of chicken salad paid dearly for the waste of food.

Suffer The Children To Come Unto Me

In presenting this Special Rotary Supplement to the citizens of Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district the Belleville Rotary Club is confident that the publication will meet a cordial reception and be a worth-while contribution to the literature of this district inasmuch as it relates the work done in behalf of the sick and crippled children of Belleville and district by the Belleville Rotary Club.

Particulars of the crippled children work of Belleville Rotary Club is given herein in no spirit of boasting but with humble pride in being privileged to participate in such a wonderful work attended as it is with such rich Divine blessings.

Rotary history, international and local, is also given here in the belief that readers will find much of interest therein.

Rotary objects and many news the world over provide articles of general interest to all readers.

Over five hundred sick and crippled children have received treatment at the hands of the most skilled medical specialists of Canada through the efforts of the Belleville Rotary Club. One child has been under treatment for over two years in Toronto and others for varying lengths of time. Most of the burden of expenses has been carried by Rotarians themselves, but it is desired now to greatly extend the work, hence the doors are thrown wide open and all people of good will and kindly hearts can assist, whether members of any service club or not.

The business men of Belleville are helping materially this campaign by taking advertising space in this supplement, a substantial part of the price thereof going to the Rotary Crippled Children Fund.

Belleville Rotary Club is perfectly willing to carry on and give their time and money to the cause, but the door is open to all who may wish to assist in any way, financially or otherwise, and their co-operation will be welcomed. Just get in touch with President Joe Shortt.

The Master said: "Suffer little children to come unto me . . . for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven".

Rotary Spirit

There — the idea — of "Rotary" developed when four business men of widely vocations met for fellowship and friendly discussion in Chicago, Ill., U.S.A., thirty-two years ago. With phenomenal rapidity the Spir of Rotary has circled the world, penetrating every country, transcening all national boundaries and permeating the hearts of business and professional men with a new philosophy of life. The Rotary pirit is essentially a Spirit of Service — "Service above self" —"He profits most who serves best" demanding high standards in business ethics.

The Rotary Spirit is largely responsible for the development of:

The Luncheon Club idea.
Community Singing.
Development of Oratory and Public Speech-making.
Communit Service.

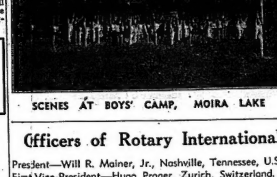
In no field is his more evident than in the work on behalf of crippled children. The Belleville club, in the seventeen years following its inception, has cared for nearly six hundred cases.

Joy and a free hope accompanied the restoration of limb or body as many of the persons were enabled to take their places in society.

Rotary, locally, fully aware of the impossibility of performing this extensive service without the aid and support of the citizens of this community. For the interest, co-operation and support we enjoy, we are deeply grateful and express our sincere appreciation and thanks.



JOE E. SHORTT, President.

DEVICE NOT EFFECTIVE

New Westminster, B.C., May 1.—A centuries-old belief of Norsemen that a cock would crow when pointing over the spot where a drowned man lay submerged was tested here and it proved ineffective.

When Jorgen Mathieson, fisherman, was drowned in the Fraser river here, members of the Norwegian colony cruised the waters in a small boat with a live cock on board. The bird remained silent. Later dragging operations located the body.

Once Hidden in Garrets By Barbaric Ancients Now Bathed in Sunshine

Ancients in Their Ignorance Were Unkind to Crippled Children — Even Killed Them

A hundred years ago, crippled children were often destroyed. Fifty years ago they were hidden in garret rooms. Today they are brought out into the sunlight and given treatment for their recovery. Most crippled children have to be sought out. Fearful or ignorant parents often hide them away. For the past few years, the Ontario Society for Crippled Children has conducted radio programs on which the public has been asked to report cases. Sixty-one cases were reported as a result of one series of broadcasts. Once discovered, children who are crippled will be brought to principal centres where the best surgical treatment awaits them.

The chief crippling diseases are Infantile Paralysis, Tuberculosis and Rickets. Four out of five crippled children owe their disability to one or more of these causes. Not more than fifteen per cent. of all cases are born crippled and this fact offers a hopeful outlook in the realm of prevention. Another encouraging feature is that the major crippling diseases have proven themselves subject to control and will eventually be eradicated altogether.

Infantile Paralysis.

If children stricken with infantile paralysis are immediately brought to the attention of an orthopaedic surgeon, there is every chance in the world that he can be materially improved. If not entirely restored it is sure that he will not have a resultant deformity. The same thing applies to other causes of crippling.

It is pointed out by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children that an adequate program in this field of work would comprise the following: prevention, discovery, clinical examination, transportation, remedial treatment, follow-up service, academic education, vocational training, employment and public education. Some of these items have already

Lakehead Girl Rises in Films

Port Arthur, Ont. May 1 (CP) — Barbara Read, pretty 19 year old Port Arthur girl, who has won recognition as a promising actress in Hollywood, expects to pay a visit to her home town this spring and her old school chums are preparing a warm welcome.

She is one of the three young ladies playing in the picture "Three Smart Girls" in which Deanna Durbin of Winnipeg played the starring role.

Good Luck and Bad Luck Recalled

GLADYS, Alta. (CP)—Good times and bad were mixed in equal measure but adversities were uppermost in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Thompson on their golden wedding anniversary in this village, 40 miles south of Calgary.

In 1889 they settled on a farm here. They had five dollars in cash after buying a team of horses, a cow, a calf, eight hens and four turkeys. They also had a pound of tea which lasted six months. It was used only for entertaining friends.

Their first grain crop was in 1892 and the Thompsons cradled and bound it by hand. The next year hail destroyed their fields of golden wheat. Crops in other years were dry and farmers were ready to give up. But the worst was yet to come. On July 20, 1894, a fire started down Mosquito Creek and burned seven days before it was brought under control.

But the Thompsons also recalled the thirteen good crop years after the fire and the prizes won for heir exhibits at the Regina Territorial Fair in 1895.

A Challenge

A Message of Inspiration and Appreciation from a Veteran Rotarian

A veteran member of the Belleville Rotary Club and one of the most enthusiastic for Rotary ideals of service is Rev. Dr. Ed. Baker, Principal Emerius of Albert College, and a Minister of the Methodist Church of Canada who has filled many important pulpits in his many years of active service for the Master. Rotarian Ed Baker pens the following message to his brother Rotarians the world over as together with all those who have the welfare of the sick and crippled children at heart, as well as undernourished and underprivileged children, all of whom come under the special care of Rotary:

"Yes—that is what Rotary is—a challenge to business and professional men, irrespective of creed, condition or nationality, to unite in fellowship with the object of helping the underprivileged, especially the underprivileged boy.

"It gives primacy to the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life. It gives a place to the material when it is enabling the person to provide for himself. THE REWARD IS SERVICE, and for service HE PROFITS MOST WHO SERVES BEST.

"The lesson of all history summarized and made concrete is just this, that there is no security for any human order, church or state, except that it shall function for the general good, and that it shall hold itself a channel by which external forces may pass in and out to bless the world.

"Belleville Rotary Club quietly but faithfully has gone on from year to year giving this great and good service.

"The Great Objective of Rotary could not be better expressed than in the following lines of which the late Rev. Percy Ainsworth was the author:

Something kindlier, higher, holier,
All for each and each for all,
Earth at last a warless world,
A single race, a single tongue.

Every tiger madness muzzled,
Every serpent passion stilled,
Every grim ravine a garden,
Every blazing desert stilled.

Robed in universal harvest,
Up to either pole she smiles;
Universal ocean softly
Washing all her peace isles.

Rotarily yours, ED BAKER.

SALVAGE OF WAR VESSEL IS PLANNED

Hospital Ship Letitia to Be Broken Up Off Halifax And Sold For Scrap Metal if Prices Continue to Advance

HALIFAX (CP)—The Great War hospital ship Letitia will be raised in parts from her grave in 80 feet of water off the mouth of Halifax harbour, if plans announced by Wm. McFatridge of Halifax, owner of the vessel, are carried out.

Work of salvaging the ship would begin late in the spring, if advances in the price of scrap metal continued, Mr. McFatridge said. The ship would be broken up under water and the iron and steel sold to British interests.

The 11,000-ton Letitia grounded near Portuguese Cove off the entrance to Halifax harbor during a dense fog in 1918. Five hundred wounded soldiers and her crew of 250 were brought safely to shore before the ship went down.

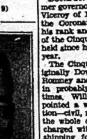
Disaster struck the gleaming white hospital craft quickly, when she had arrived almost at her destination. Guided

A New Day Dawns for the Crippled Child

CRIPPLED CHILD WORK EXAMPLE OF ROTARY HELP

Chesley R. Perry, Secretary of Rotary International Writes

PERFECT EXAMPLE



Work of Clubs Recognized As a Great Public Service

Rotary's work in connection with the crippled children movement, is a perfect exemplification of the manner in which Rotary clubs should operate in carrying out their obligations to their communities, as Paul King, Past Director of Rotary International and Secretary of the International Society for Crippled Children, said to the community service committee of Rotary International at Chicago last year. The policy of Rotary in community service provides that local Rotary clubs should survey their communities to determine needs which exist and should then undertake only such projects as are in qualified to carry on the work in the community. If one is found, the club should confer with it and determine how the Rotary club can cooperate in any and every way the work of the agency and elicit for it the united support of the community. If no suitable agency exists, the Rotary club is then free to proceed, if it so desires, to inaugurate a community project to the end that public interest may be aroused and the work thus organized, it may succeed by some independent body.

The development of the crippled children work as a Rotary activity has followed this general lines of policy. Beginning with local activities on the part of a few clubs in 1919-1 which had association with the work of the crippled children of their communities, crippled children has improved to have such a strong support that in a few years the interest had become very wide-spread. It soon became apparent that the problem of crippled children was not one which Rotary clubs could, or should attempt to solve single-handed, even in their own community. Rotary clubs began to see that their proper function was that of a propaganda agency to bring about organized public support of the work. Out of this examination grew the Ohio State Society for Crippled Children in 1919 and soon thereafter similar societies in other states of the United States and in the provinces of Canada. Two years later, in 1921, the International Society for Crippled Children was formed. Since the formation of these organizations Rotarians have played a prominent role in their activities and leaders in this work have been developed in many countries through the influence of Rotary.

By 1922, crippled children work had been undertaken by so many Rotary clubs that it became a special recognition at the Los Angeles convention that year in a resolution commending the constructive activity on the part of Rotary clubs so engaged and urging the appointment thereto of the delegates present at the convention so that their own clubs might take cognizance of the movement as offering an opportunity for service to their respective communities. Concurrent with this recognition from an international convention of Rotary International,

Summary of Crippled Children In Canada Requiring Treatment

PROMPT TREATMENT

Disease and Accidents Cause Eighty Per Cent. of Crippling

R. W. HOPPER in "The Outlook"

In Canada, as in the British Isles and in the United States, there are approximately three cripples under eighteen years of age in each population unit of 1,000 persons.

There are local variations, but generally speaking, a town of 10,000 should have 30 crippled children. A city of 100,000 people would contain 100 crippled youths.

Originally, the time-honored "cripple" meant one who was lame. Now, crippling refers to any part of the body but the work of normal movement is seriously restricted.

The medical term which covers the crippling afflictions is "orthopaedic". Of root meaning of the word is "child." The curing of cripples is often referred to as "the science of orthopaedics."

Now what can be done to help crippled children? The first place —prompt treatment. About 20 per cent of crippled youths are crippled from birth. Many of these congenital defects require immediate attention. Often, the first few months of life are of the greatest importance. "Early discovery" has become a slogan among those interested in the care of cripples.

Infantile paralysis may cause the other 80 per cent. of disabilities. Infantile paralysis is the most dreaded among the diseases. It is contracted by infection and probably there are many carriers of the disease. The prevention of infantile paralysis is one of the most difficult of the many public health problems. Early reporting of suspicious cases, use of "convalescent serum," and prompt after-care are essential.

Tuberculosis is a serious disease that causes crippling. The live germs of tuberculosis may enter into one another human being or may be carried by raw milk. Citizens should insist that the milk used in their town, their county, their province is pure and free from germs.

Rickets, another cause of crippling develops from improper feeding and lack of exercise in the winter quarter, cost liver oil.

Then there is another sore spot in the list of causes of crippling. They can be reduced by the intelligent foresight of adults and the careful training of children. Parents are responsible for many of the unhealthy habits of their children, and also for the unsafe conditions in the hazards of the home and the street.

This is our task: steady, constant, persistent attack upon the causes of crippling; early discovery of disease; then prompt treatment; and then—a program of vocational training that will give the crippled child a chance in life without leaning on anybody for aid.

ROTARY RADIO TALK HEARD IN MID-OCEAN

One appreciative listener to the radio address made by Chairman Harris of the Rotary Club of Sydney service committee of R.I., on the evening of February 25th, was Rotarian H. G. Harris, officer of the "S. S. Montreal City" and member of the Rotary Club of Kentyngton, Worcestshire, England.

Rotarian Harris was in mid-ocean when the address was heard, and immediately upon arriving at port, wrote to the Rotary Club of Sydney, stating how the address was received, expressing his deep appreciation of Chairman Phillips' message on the anniversary of Rotary.

As a ship's officer, his opportunities to attend Rotary meetings are somewhat limited, and hence the receipt of Chairman Phillips' message was permitted by Chairman Phillips over the radio made a particularly deep impression upon him.

A YOUTHFUL VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE PROGRAM

The 4,700 high school students in Utica, New York, were questioned as to their preferences in the matter of an occupation, the answers were tabulated, and then the Rotary Club of Utica presented a series of forum meetings for the students, dealing with the occupations, of the opportunities and requirements for each of the occupations.

Four or five persons experienced in each line the work made talks to the students, and at the close of the questions and answers followed. Personal interviews were given if desired.

ROTARY ACTION AROUND THE WORLD

All the leaders of the delegations at the recent Inter-American conference at Buenos Aires were guests at a special luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club of Buenos Aires. Two Argentina Ministers, Senator Leopoldo Macedo Soares emphasized the cooperation of Rotary in the work for peace, in their addresses to the assemblage.

WILL R. MANIER, JR., Nashville, Tennessee, U.S.A., President, Rotary International, 1936-37

Will R. Manier, Jr., is a lawyer of Nashville, Tennessee. He received his education at Vanderbilt University, the United States Naval Academy, and the Vanderbilt Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1908. During the World War he was commissioned as an officer of Infantry and was assigned to the Third Division, later known as the Marne Division, and received the Distinguished Service Cross.

Mr. Manier is a charter member of the Rotary Club of Nashville, which was organized in 1915, and was president of the club in 1921-22. He was a member of the extension committee of Rotary International in 1922-23, governor of the 23rd district in 1923-24, and chairman of the extension committee for the next two years.

He was chairman of the constitution and by-laws committee, member and chairman of the convention committee, chairman of the resolutions committee on four occasions, and a member of a number of other important committees of Rotary International. He was a member of the board of directors for 1933-34.

He is generally given credit for the framework of two of the most important statements of policy in Rotary literature. He was chairman of the resolutions committee at the St. Louis convention of Rotary International in 1923 which drew up the policy of Rotary toward organized peace, and which has been developed in many countries through the influence of Rotary.

By 1923, crippled children work had been undertaken by so many Rotary clubs that it became a special recognition at the Los Angeles convention that year in a resolution commending the constructive activity on the part of Rotary clubs so engaged and urging the appointment thereto of the delegates present at the convention so that their own clubs might take cognizance of the movement as offering an opportunity for service to their respective communities. "QUEEN CITY OF AZURE COAST" WILL WELCOME ROTARIANS ON THE SUNNY RIVIERA

Eight Thousand Odd Rotarians From All Parts of the World Expected to Attend Annual Convention of Rotary International in Nice, France, Beginning June 6—President Lebrun of France Will Welcome Delegates—Fourteen Ships Loaded With Rotarians and Rotary-Annes Will Sail From North American Ports.

President Albert Lebrun of France will attend the first session of the annual convention of Rotary International at Nice, France, on June 6, to present in person the greetings of France, to the eight thousand or more Rotarians of the world who are expected to be in attendance.

Fourteen ships sailing from North American ports during May will be largely filled with Rotarians and members of their families, bound for Nice and sight-seeing tours of Europe afterward.

The French Riviera, and especially Nice, the queen city of what the French call the "Azure Coast" will present some of its most brilliant fetes to entertain these delegates representing nearly 200,000 Rotarians in over 4,200 Rotary Club organizations in more than 65 different countries.

Besides the two thousand or more from North America, reservations have been made for over a thousand Rotarians from Britain and Ireland, five hundred from Italy and three hundred from Germany. The Swiss delegation is planning to bring a troupe of 35 entertainers to take part in the social affairs, and other countries are expected to make similar contributions to show the music and folk dancing of their people.

The first business session will begin Sunday, June 6, in the Municipal Casino at Nice, followed by daily business sessions through Friday. In addition there will be held each day many small informal group conferences, bringing together Rotarians from many different countries, for the discussion of various fields of Rotary activity.

One afternoon, Wednesday, will be given over to meetings of the business and professional men of each vocation, giving them an opportunity to form friendships with others in their own line of work from other parts of the world.

From these various meetings at Rotary conventions has come much of the impetus to the trade and professional association of national and international scope. Also from such meetings has come a great deal of the enthusiasm which has made the International Society for Crippled Children such a great force for rehabilitation of the physically handicapped.

The presidential address of Will R. Manier, Jr., of Nashville, Tennessee, President of Rotary International, will be the highlight of the first business session. He will give, from his observation of Rotary Club work and his travels this year as president, an inspiring picture of the growing influence of Rotary and the high standing which Rotary enjoys with leaders in public life with whom he has talked.

One of the closing day features on Friday, June 11, will be a presentation of Rotary in action in a dozen different parts of the world by men prominent in the business life of their own countries—a panorama of the effectiveness of Rotary in the economic, social and cultured life of their communities.

Among the principal speakers at the business sessions will be Jean Appleton, Paris, France; H. Roe Bartle, Kansas City, Missouri; Charles J. Burchell, K.C., Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada; Paul King, Detroit, Michigan, President of the International Society for Crippled Children; Carlos P. Romulo, Manila, Philippine Islands; G. M. Varrall Reed, London, England; Charles L. Wheeler, San Francisco, California; James A. Cayce, Nashville, Tennessee, and Franz Schneiderhan, Salzburg, Austria.

THE PROGRESS OF ROTARY

(A BRIEF HISTORY)

The Rotary movement took form, after five years of study by the founder, on the evening of Feb. 23, 1905. Paul P. Harris, a young Chicago attorney, met with three of his friends to discuss the organization of a club for business and professional men, the purpose of which would be mutual helpfulness. Within a few months the club had nineteen members, officers were chosen and the Rotary Club of Chicago began its career.

Inspired by the enthusiasm generated in this first club, the founder began efforts to organize Rotary clubs in other cities. It was three years before the second club was organized in San Francisco, but within five years, sixteen of the largest cities in the United States had Rotary clubs.

Within the Chicago Rotary Club there were developing some of the ideas and principles which were to become familiar to Rotary clubs everywhere. Paul Harris gave to the club the name "Rotary", based upon the early custom of holding the meetings in the offices of the members in rotation. The founder also devised the classification principle, restricting membership in the Rotary club to but one man in each distinct line of business or profession. Later the clubs were encouraged to include as members the junior partners or assistants

MORNING STAR FINDS JOY AND HEALTH

In Hospital For Sick Children —Little Indian Girl From North

CRIPPLED BY ACCIDENT

"I Like It Here," Said Eva—A Present From Home, Pair of Moccasins

By JAN BACON in "The Hostess"

Seven months ago Eva Morningstar had only one thought, eight-year-old Eva Morningstar, a little Indian girl, arrived at the Out-Patient Department of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, one of a party of five brought down from Blind River for treatment as a result of the splendid response to an appeal made on their behalf.

Eva had a badly dislocated hip and her operation and subsequent treatment has been a slow progress. A few days ago I visited her in the Orthopaedic Ward of the Hospital for Sick Children in Thistletown. She was very excited because she had received a present from home. In it were a pair of Indian moccasins, beautifully soft, and a tiny-tiny pair just like them, for her doll. There were two pretty Indian beaded bags, one for Eva and one for the doll.

"Mother made the moccasins. She makes them for my sister and my four brothers too. Father goes into the bush and shoots a deer, then mother makes moccasins for us from the skin. She sent me a new pair but could make them too!" she explained.

"The baskets are really for berries —but I'm keeping doll clothes in them now," she added.

Declaring that baskets were "easy to make too," Eva showed me proudly one she had made while in the hospital.

"I'm going to make one for the head nurse because she likes me—and then, I'm going home."

Not merely so shy as when I met her in Toronto, Eva was all garrulous. "I like it here in the Hospital, but I liked it in Toronto Hospital too. Out here we have fun. I know all the girls and they play with me. In the winter we have Christmas comfor that too—pointing to an empty bed at the other side of the room, "the nurse is in Muskoka."

"We get lots of drinks here. Milk and cocoa, juices and orangeade, biscuits. And at Christmas we had a big Christmas Tree and Santa Claus and presents. Would you like to see my scar?" Quick as a flash she lifted her stockings and revealed two almost unnoticeable marks. "I didn't make a bit-of-a-fuss, wasn't afraid at all," she said with great pride.

Eva's arrival at Thistletown, about 10:30 in the morning, Eva was taken to the Out-Patient Department to come out and visit with me. They have school often in the morning, but in the afternoon they have only play games, I was informed.

The Nurse-in-charge explained how came down with Eva from Blind River three little Indian girls, on the trip to be fitted for special shoes. "They were very quite and shy at first time yet—by in the meantime she smiles a beatific smile and her shyness has gone—yes we quite miss her as she says—"I like it here—we have fun!"

AN EXPERIMENT IN VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

Fifty selected college boys meet each week with representative business and professional men, under the sponsorship of the Rotary Club of Chicago, so the boys may learn what opportunities and obligations there are in science, industry and the professions.

The business and professional men explain what their specialty demands of the young men who are to follow him. The boys ask questions. There is free and full discussion.

Following this the boys are taken on an inspection trip to some typical first hand the operation of stores, factories, offices and laboratories. Supplementing the group discussions there are individual talks.

It is an experiment in vocational guidance and if successful, will be extended to larger and less carefully selected groups.

TALKS ON CAREERS

In co-operation with its local junior high school department of vocational guidance, the Rotary Club of Albany, New York, through its boys work committee, has arranged for a series of "career talks" in an effort to be of some help in aiding young men and women in choosing a vocation.

Other talks are given to classes twice a week. The president of the club selected for his subject "getting and keeping a job."

ROTARY IS GROWING

So far this year, 206 new Rotary clubs have been admitted to membership in Rotary International, of which 130 were in the United States and Canada. This brings the total, on March 30) to 4,186 Rotary clubs, with an approximate membership of 180,000 Rotarians. The goal of President Manier for this year is 250 new clubs.

PREVENTION IS KEY TO CONTROL SAYS INSPECTOR

Surveys Show 6,000 or 7,000 Cripples In Ontario

CAUSES OF CRIPPLING

How Crippling Can Be Prevented and Cured Is Defined

By JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D. (Chief Inspector of Health)

I propose to deal with the subject of crippling in children by considering:

1. The magnitude of the problem.
2. Its causes.
3. Its prevention and cure.

Doctors and others have displayed great interest in this subject. It is to their credit that much is now known of the extent of the problem. With admirable energy they have undertaken surveys and provided for hospital and surgical treatment, procured the needed appliances as well as educational and vocational training. No commendation is too great for humanitarian work of this kind; it deserves the highest praise. One difficulty, however, is lacking, that is, some means to set out the ever-increasing crop of cripples. These means will be discussed under "prevention".

(1) Magnitude of the Problem.

Surveys reveal the fact that there are in the least six or seven thousand cripples in Ontario. In addition, there are the blind, the deaf and dumb, about 3,000 each. The extent of the disabilities of crippled children and their importance are of importance. A large proportion of them require special, frequently educational and vocational training. It is to this phase of the subject that special efforts of disabled relatives have heretofore been directed. Much has been done and is being done successfully devoted to this subject, but without accomplishing anything like meeting the ever-increasing magnitude of the problem. The latter is the serious object; the problem admits of solution only through measures designed to cut off the supply of cripples.

(2) Causes of Crippling.

Crippling of children is caused chiefly by disease. The two diseases responsible for most of the cripples are:

Infantile Paralysis, also called Anterior Poliomyelitis or Spinal and Tuberculosis, which cause respectively, 40 per cent. and 30 per cent. of the deformities.

In addition to these, Congenital deformities, and injuries with a scattering of accidents and injuries account for the remaining 30 per cent.

Infantile Paralysis.

Infantile Paralysis is an infectious disease, occurring chiefly in children of tender age, under 4 years. Adults sometimes have the disease, but it is largely a childrens affection. It is an infectious disease which recurs in the summer and early fall. It appears usually in isolated epidemics. Windsor had one about 1921; Hamilton in 1928, Winnipeg in 1928, and Ottawa in 1929.

Infantile Paralysis is due to a

CHESLEY R. PERRY, Secretary, Rotary International.

Chesley Reynolds Perry of Chicago, Illinois, U.S.A., is Secretary of Rotary International, and as such is the active managing officer of the entire international organization. He joined the original Rotary Club in Chicago while it was still the only Rotary Club. He served on numerous committees of the club and in 1910 was chairman of its extension committee. With Paul Harris, he formulated a plan for a National Association of the dozen or more Rotary clubs then in existence and arranged the details of the first convention which was held in Chicago in 1910. The convention unanimously chose him as its presiding officer. After the organization of the Association and the election of Paul Harris as its president, Harris and the board of directors appointed one abe had made while in the hospital. Chesley R. Perry as secretary. The constitution and by-laws printed, the association made to function, etc. He has been secretary ever since. He created "The Rotarian", the monthly organ of Rotary, and was its editor and manager for 17 years.

He was born in Chicago, received grammar and high school education, worked as newsboy, janitor, clerk, buyer and manager in stationery and tobacco stores. He was a leader in all high school activities. For about nine years he worked at the Chicago Public Library and taught in the public evening schools. He engaged in newspaper and magazine work. He served as an officer in the U. S. Army in Cuba during the Spanish American War. At the same time he acted as "war correspondent" for the Chicago Times-Herald.

On his return to civil life he resumed his library work and school teaching and became Secretary of the School Extension Society of Chicago, an organization in favor of playgrounds, gymnasiums, etc. In response to his library and school work to take up first fraternal and then general insurance, and later was western representative of a cement-brick machinery company.

He has traveled extensively in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, the British Isles, and Continental Europe. He has attended every Rotary convention and every meeting of the Board of Directors of Rotary National and International.

WHY A ROTARY CONVENTION IN EUROPE

In all this welter of uncertainty, distrust, suspicion, lack of co-operation, it is splendid to see an organization like Rotary calmly following its steady course and arranging such a splendid demonstration of international cooperation, understanding and good will as the Rotary convention at Nice will be. And if Rotary is able to carry that demonstration to successful conclusion, it should have a steadying and inspirational effect on this old troubled continent.—Dr. Alex O. Potter, European Secretary, Rotary International.

FARTHEST NORTH ROTARY CLUB

The Rotary Club of Inuvik, Sweden, at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, is just about one degree south of the Arctic Circle. The club was admitted to membership in Rotary International on December 3.

PERPETUAL FRIENDSHIP

Past R. I. Director Milan Stojadinovic of Belgrade, Jugoslavia, is now the Prime Minister of his country. On the 24th of January, he signed, in the name of his nation, a treaty of perpetual friendship with the neighboring nation of Bulgaria.

PAUL P. HARRIS, Founder and President Emeritus of Rotary International, Chicago, Illinois.

Paul P. Harris, founder of Rotary, was born April 19, 1868, at Racine, Wisconsin. He was educated in the public schools and academy in Racine, Intervening University of Vermont, Princeton University, and the University of Iowa, receiving the degrees of Ph.B., LL.B., and LL.D.

After completing his law course in 1891, he spent the following five years in seeing the world and securing a livelihood by actual contact with them under all sorts of conditions. He worked as a reporter on daily papers in San Francisco and Denver, rode the range in the cow country, picked oranges in southern Louisiana, worked in the mines, crossed the Atlantic twice on cattle ships, and made a third trip to Europe on business.

Both Principals Dead, Tale of Quarrel is Now Told

New York, May 1.—(CP)— New light is thrown on Rudyard Kipling's feud with Beatty Balestier, his brother-in-law, by Frederic P. Van de Water, writing in Harper's Magazine. It was because of the feud, Van de Water states, that Kipling left his Vermont home, where otherwise he might have lived to the end of his days.

Kipling died Jan. 18, 1936. Beatty Balestier survived his brother-in-law by only six months. Van de Water, a resident of Vermont, knew Balestier, and has talked with a number of persons who had first-hand knowledge of the quarrel.

Kipling met Wolcott Balestier, a relative of Vermonters, in London. They lived together and collaborated in writing "The Naulahka." It was to Wolcott Balestier's sister that Kipling dedicated "Barrack Room Ballads." In 1891, Wolcott Balestier died of typhus.

A month later Kipling married Wolcott's sister, Caroline Balestier. Within another month Mr. and Mrs. Kipling were well-comed in Brattleboro, Vt., by Beatty Balestier.

Across the road from Beatty's farm, in Dummerston, Vt., Kipling bought a dozen acres, a pine-clad gloved knoll sloping down to the Connecticut River. There he built and extraordinary, six-like house, christened Naulahka, where he and Mrs. Kipling, to the wonder of the countryside but in accordance with British tradition, dressed each night for dinner, even when in charge of construction of the house.

"Beatty was most helpful," Van de Water writes. "The brother-in-law snowshoed and tramped and drove together. The Kiplings were treated like first Christmas in Beatty's home."

Origin of Story

It was in Beatty's pasture where they met on the porch of the house on Sunday that Kipling conceived "The Walting Delegate". He gave Beatty one of the early "Jungle Book" manuscripts.

But Beatty had a roisterer, with "a tongue like a skinning knife," and a "mighty thirst." Van de Water says "Beatty's conduct was wilful, intemperate, definitely unEnglish. . . There was trouble over that, and Caroline Kipling, the ardent Anglican, was bitter in her reproaches. Beatty had been punching agent for his brother-in-law. Caroline Kipling scolded and paid the bills. There was further trouble over that."

Kipling, attempting to wean Beatty from his ways, offered to support his wife and child for a year if he would go away and get a job. This offer evoked a "dazzling display of Balestier rage." Other squabbles followed.

Thus it was that on May 6, 1896, Beatty Balestier swung his team of horses across a country road. Kipling bicycling in the other direction fell to the ground. "See here," shouted Beatty, "I want to speak to you." Kipling, picking himself up, replied "If you have anything to say, say it to my lawyers."

This provoked a torrent of abuse from Beatty. Kipling later testified Beatty threatened to blow out his brains. Within a week Beatty was arrested on a warrant sworn by Kipling, which charged "assault with indecent and opprobious names and epithets, and threatening to kill."

This was Kipling's mistake. He cherished privacy; loathed scandal. But Beatty cared nothing for scandal. "Kipling," says Van de Water, "had a bear by the tail." Reporters, arrived by the dozen for the hearings. Beatty was held in bail for the grand jury and Kipling and his wife made a precipitate departure for Europe and never returned.

FARMER TO HOLD HIS OWN FUNERAL

Danville, Ind.—Wade Millman cracked 85-year-old farmer, who says his run in life has been "making money", has announced that he would conduct his funeral services Sunday afternoon at the Canaan rural church near here.

"I'll preach the sermon myself" he said, "but I won't preach. I'm just going to talk, and I will have things to say that may teach you something."

Millman's coffin, built from an old tree on his farm, is ready. Charles Monnets, woodworker at Coatsville, put the finishing touches to it last week.

"I don't want any preacher or singing at my funeral," the farmer explained, "so I decided I would take care of the thing myself and get it over with.

"I have selected six pallbearers and paid each one of them $5. I want them to put me in this coffin and I don't want an undertaker. Then I want them to place me in a farm wagon and haul me down there where I have a stone erected at my grave."

Mrs. Millman, 78, has refused to let her husband keep the coffin in their home. So it's being stored in Monnet's shop.

FURNACE REFUGE DURING STORMS

Montreal, May 1.—(CP)— The furnace is the place to go to be safe from lightning, according to K. B. McEachron, research engineer, addressing the Electrical Club here. Considering the metal, a human would be safe from a stroke of lightning and, as a rule, the only spot in the home where he, or she, could be so enclosed would be inside the furnace, he explained.

While most sound facetious," he said, "but it was the conclusion reached at a conference of electrical engineers." When automobile bodies were made of steel they too afforded safety, though, it was noted, it would be unwise to get out to change a tire. The popular notion that rubber-soled shoes served as a safeguard was unfounded. "If the lightning has enough power what does a quarter inch of rubber amount to," Mr. McEachron pointed out.

When a thunderstorm bursts the things to avoid are sitting on radiators or on the edge of a bed, he said, the point being that the human body must not be so placed as to intercept the charge in its course to conductors of electricity.

Young Beauty Loses Both Legs Under Train

Hackensack, N.J.—Miss Jessie Simpson, who two years ago was voted "Miss Hackensack" and who has represented the city in beauty pageants, fell under the wheels of an Erie Railroad train the other morning and suffered the loss of both her legs.

Miss Simpson, a slender brunette, ran across the station platform to catch the 8:11 o'clock train, which had started to pull out of the station. She caught the handrail of the next to last car, but lost her balance and fell under the trucks.

Former Mayor James Westervelt of Tenafly ran to the girl's assistance. He bound her legs with tourniquets made with his handkerchief and necktie and successfully stemmed the flow of blood. She was taken to Hackensack Hospital, where two transfusions were administered during the day.

PRAISES CANADA AS BEAUTY SPOT

Writer Finds Inspiration in Scene And Story

BY HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, May 1 (CP)—Between the green-and-white jacket of a book called "Canada Cavalcade" by Bob David, globe-girdling New York newspaperman, has concocted a grand tonic for homesick Canadians abroad—and an eye-opener for Canadians at home.

The man the New York Sun told in 1925 to cover the world and not stop "until you've seen all there is of the globe" has collected scores of articles—drawn from many years of travelling in Canada—into a book which constitutes an advertisement akin to Canadian scenery at the Empire exhibition.

Arranging his chapters as if he were leaving from coast to coast, Davis misses nothing of the breath-taking beauty of Lake Louise, the Rockies and the placid Maritimes, but all the scenery is a mere frame for his human interest stories.

Interest In People

As a matter of fact, he confides towards the end of the book, he is "more interested in people than in scenery" and that gives a pretty good idea of what his cavalcade attempts.

Sure enough, his first sketch is an account of Victoria's Brentwood Gardens, but he lets Mrs. Butchart, native of Ontario, tell the tale rather than filling pages with his own impression of the transformed quarries.

Between the gardens and his ramblings through Banff National Park are interspersed tales of British Columbia salmon-fishing and an account of Mike, the "fog dog" near Qualicum Beach—the dog of almost human intelligence who will bring the thirsty customer a bottle, the necessary opener and take the money in it to the bartender.

David calls Lake Louise the "incomparable jewel of the Canadian Rockies", instead of dilating on its beauty he interviews Tom Wilson, who in 1882 was the first white man to see the lake.

Easy on East

The prairies furnish him with tales of the mounted police, the fast journey of a silk special across the continent to New York, while in Winnipeg he hears from Ned Sparrow, former railwayman, about the ride from Manitou to Morden through a great herd of elk.

Ontario and Quebec are practically neglected. He never saw the Dionne girls but interviews someone who did. Under an Stratford date line he tells of the Duke of Windsor being criticized by two farmers who met him while he left his special train when touring the country as Prince of Wales, and offered him a "fine job" at $50 a month.

Davis finds a sea captain to tell him of the escape of the Confederate cruiser Tallahassee from Halifax Harbor one dark night during the United States Civil War.

MUSEUM GIVEN OLD DOCUMENT

Lease For Seigniory in 1696 Still Legible on Parchment

Saint John, N.B., May 1.—(CP)—The oldest legal document in existence concerning present New Brunswick territory has been added to the John Clarence Webster collection in the New Brunswick Museum.

Still legible the 240-year-old parchment is a formal lease of the Seigniory of Pereuse on the St. John river, comprising the present parishes of Maugerville, Sheffield and Canning, granted by Le Marchand House at Sheffield.

The parchment is dated Aug. 5, 1696. By it the Seignior of Frenouse, one of four Amours brothers who were large landowners in Saint John territory, leased his property to Placide Chartier, another Acadian settler.

The lease was found in Paris by Dr. W. F. Ganong, historian. Dr. W. F. Ganong, who presented it to Dr. Webster.

The Seignior was fatally wounded in October, 1696, at Fort St. Joseph on the Nashwak river when the fort was attacked by a party of New Englanders headed by Benjamin Church and Colonel Hawthorne.

KILL COCKROACH OFFICIALS URGE

He's Carrier And Results of His Travels May be Tragic to Humans

Ottawa, May 1.—(CP)— People sometimes speak jokingly of finding cockroaches in teapots and other unexpected places but department of agriculture officials say it is not funny and may be tragic.

The insect with its flattened, horny body and large spiny legs is a potential carrier of disease germs such as tuberculosis, typhoid, pathogenic streptococci and protozoa that cause dysentery. There is a real danger that tuberculosis might be spread by the cockroach, particularly in public eating places, as it feeds on human saliva. Also, cockroaches serve as the secondary hosts of parasitic nematodes or round-worms, one species of which causes a form of cancer in rats and mice.

In cases such warning should send every housewife after the pests with their extinction in mind, the department tells where and when to try to find cockroaches and how to kill them.

The common Canadian species of cockroach, the German immigrant, Blatella germanica, is prevalent in houses, hotels, restaurants and stores, where a plentiful food supply can be found. Is light-brown in colors and bears two distinct dark-brown stripes on the thorax and is about five-eighths of an inch long.

Sodium fluoride dusted lightly in places frequented by the insects and blown by means of a dust gun or insecticide puffer into the cracks and crevices will kill them more quickly and effectively than any other preparation, say authorities. They advise precautions because of the poisonous character of this insecticide.

To Rotary and Fellow-Citizens of Belleville

It is with sincere appreciation that I am privileged to address you who are particularly interested in the welfare of crippled children. It has been in the past, and will be in the future, the personal responsibility of the fathers and mothers who have the immediate care, and also of those charitably-minded citizens who, through a desire to help these unfortunate ones, are at this time asked to support an appeal for continued assistance of this worthy and commendable work.

As an Organization I am pleased to state that your outstanding activity has been one of practical charity to help those who cannot help themselves. For this purpose you have given unstintingly of your time and now in the hope of continuing your efforts are asking the support of those who are interested to the extent of contributing of their abundance.

At this season of the year when all our efforts are made as a result of our faith in a kind Providence, I feel that the seed of kindness sown in the proper spirit will receive ample reward.

I hope and pray for an abundance of success in your most worthy and charitable cause.

J. A. FAULKNER.

PROFESSIONS OPEN TO CHINESE WOMEN CUSTOMS CHANGE

Calgary-Born Chinese Girl Glad Women in China Have Modern Advantages Musical Elevation Now Possible

CALGARY—Vivacious and friendly, Mrs. Lee Yuen, the former Miss Jessie Ho Len, who was born and reared in Calgary, has returned home after two years residence in China where she was happy to find women in that country were finding more and more opportunities in the modern world.

"I felt at home there and would have stayed, and yet it was good to get back here, too," she said.

With her artist husband she went to China with the intention of remaining, but the climate was unsuitable to Mr. Yuen's health. They returned laden with beautiful teakwood and camphorwood hand-carved furniture which is being fitted into their new home.

Mr. Yuen made good use of his visit to his native land, and many of the pictures in the home are from his able brush. A water color of a typical Chinese beggar, and another of a street of crowded homes in Hong Kong have attracted particular interest.

Mrs. Yuen said her sisters in the Orient were essentially the same as women in Canada. Everywhere there was evidence of the "new" China. Bound feet and quaint hair styles were never seen at the coast, at least, and Chinese women had not been binding their feet for 40 or 50 years.

Chinese girls were finding more opportunities to develop and express their talents and personalities. Many women were being positions as colleges presidents, doctors, lawyers and in places of responsibility in the business world.

Women were interested in clothes, too, but they seemed to have settled on one becoming compromise between the east and west and to have adopted this, with only slight variations, almost exclusively. Mrs. Yuen had several of these dresses, all with high collars and simulating the Chinese gown of former years in simplicity. They are usually open down buttons and loops to form attractive trimmings. Sleeves are long or short, as desired.

Simon Lake Has Lost His Home While Searching For Sunken Treasure

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (CP)—Simon Lake, treasure-hunter and submarine inventor who believes millions lie within his grasp, has lost his home by attachment for a debt of $12,045.

The 71-year-old engineer, whose white-pillared colonial home at Milford will shortly figure in a sheriff's sale, has been searching the East River off New York for Civil War days reportedly with $4,800,000 in gold and specie aboard.

He invented a special apparatus for carrying on the hunt on the bed of the river which consists of a long tube down which divers descend from a "mother" ship. Convinced he is near the end of his year-long search, Lake admitted ruefully that so far it has yielded only a few old buttons and modern coins of small amount.

Good Actors Put Over Clever Rackets

A timely warning against the "actor" who would prey on your feelings and purse is sounded by Edward Podolsky, New York physician and author, in the current Rotarian Magazine. This type of "racketeer" is often a good psychologist. He knows that working on human sympathies is often just as productive as is working on man's perpetual desire to get a lot of money by investing a little.

"It is always well to remember," he urges, "that there are many charitable organizations to take care of the worthy poor. For those temporarily in distress the police are at all times ready and willing to lend a helping hand. If you are approached to part with money to help someone in distress, refer them to the proper authorities. The chances are that otherwise you will yourself turn out in the end to be the real victim."

But how do these sympathy racketeers take advantage of those who wish to help their fellow creatures? Dr. Podolsky cites a few examples:

The Lost Pocketbook Trick: As you are walking along the street, a woman walks up to you. Generally she looks like a widow or a respectable housekeeper. She is past middle age and conservatively dressed. There is a terribly worried expression in her face. She asks if she may speak to you for a moment. You consent. She tells you in a tone of distress she has lost her pocketbook. She lives somewhere in the suburbs. She hasn't the least idea how she is to get home; she hasn't a penny with her. "I wonder if it would be asking, too much," she says, "if I asked you to lend me my fare home. I'll return the money the moment I get home. Here's my address." She certainly looks respectable. They always do. That is part of their racket.

If you are kind-hearted, you will advance her the dollar or two. But that is the last you will ever see of your money. A little later this lady in distress will work the same trick on some other kind-hearted gentleman.

Helping the Poor: Mr. Lee has been knocked down by an automobile and has sustained severe injuries. He is taken to the hospital, and as soon as he is discharged he is visited at home by a glib-talking individual who says that he represents a firm of lawyers who act for some society or other organization who are particularly interested in the poor. This man has fully investigated Mr. Lee's case and it is his belief that he can collect damages. His firm will be glad to put in a claim on Mr. Lee's behalf. Of course Mr. Lee is grateful and gives the case to the lawyer. If the man responsible for the accident pays the claim, the lawyers deduct 10 percent or more of the sum and in addition send Mr. Lee their bill for costs. If the case comes into court and Mr. Lee loses, Mr. Lee has to pay the costs of the trial. The society is of course nonexistent.

Selling Merchandise to the Dead: Mr. Krasnow is dead. A notice of his death has been published in the local papers. A few days later a man appears at his widow's home who shows her a watch and tells her that her late husband had paid $10 deposit on it. He asks what she wants to do about the balance of $20. Of course, Mrs. Krasnow reves the memory of her dead husband and she pays the remainder. Later she learns that her late husband paid no deposit on any watch, and further that the watch she bought is made of tin and worth less than a dollar. There are various forms of this racket of playing on a person's bereavement. Sometimes a $5-cent fountain pen is sent to the deceased with a $3 C.O.D. charge attached The relatives often accept the pen, thinking that the ordering of the merchandise was the last act of the deceased.

NO OSTENTATION

Ilford, England (CP) — George Church, ex-alderman of the borough, requested in his will "a plain deal coffin, if possible, to be taken to the cemetery by a laundry van." He died the other day and his wishes were carried out.

OX-CART TRAILS OF EARLY DAYS INDELIBLY CUT

"Old Bull Trail" Linking Fort Walsh and Medicine Hat Still Clearly Visible After the Passage of Years; Grooves Wide and Deep

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — Swaying wagons drawn by sturdy bullock teams have left an indelible trail, reminder of the trails of early days to one of the west's first outposts. Though much ground has been ploughed up deep grooves of "Old Bull Trail" are still clearly visible in many places between Medicine Hat and the site of historic old Fort Walsh.

The 70-mile journey was travelled by the ox-carts from Fort Benton, Montana, before the arrival of the railway in the 70's. With a guide one can follow the old trail from here to the place where Fort Walsh stood.

Ruts in the trail are from six to 10 inches deep and very wide. United States wagons were wider in gauge than the Canadian vehicles, and in shallow spots from five to 15 puts, made in wet weather when wheels straddled the grooves, can be counted.

In was in 1875 that Major James Morrow Walsh built a government police post at Cypress Hills, in south west Saskatchewan, at that time the hub of all roads leading to and from Fort Benton, 125 miles to the south. Two miles away was the scene of the Indian massacre of May 1873, when 17 drunken whisky-traders killed 40 Indian of Indians, wiping out an entire tribe.

J. St. Leger McGunn, fur trader and freighter of half a century ago said his firm alone freighted about 2,000 cartloads northward over the "Old Bull Trail" from Fort Benton every year.

When the railway came the police moved from Fort Walsh to Maple Creek. Cypress Hills valley was considered "No Man's Land." Ravines and plateaus covered with trees afforded excellent shelter for the outlaw and renegade. Today nothing remains of Fort Walsh but the cellars dug into the prairie.

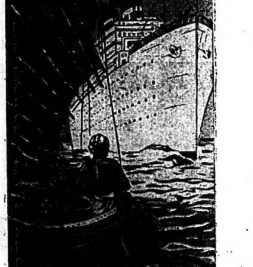
FUR CLEANING

NEW 1937-38 STYLES

Every year more people are sending their Furs to Woodley's for Storage. In 1936 Woodley's had the largest number of coats in Storage in the history of the firm. THERE MUST BE A REASON. We think it is the unexcelled personal attention every garment is given. It will be a pleasure to add your name to our list.



With the price of furs advancing so rapidly, it is more essential than ever that you keep your Furs in good repair. Every fur coat needs more or less attention after a season's wear. Our Repair Dept. is equipped to give you "Finest Workmanship at Low Summer Prices". Let us give you an estimate.

Woodley's "Polarized" method of fur cleaning renews both the Fur and Lining. All dirt, grime and grease is removed and the result is a much improved and renewed fur coat. Let Woodley's "Polarize" your Fur Coat this year.

We invite your inspection of the new 1937-38 fur coat styles. Budget Payments and Free Storage make the early selection of your fur coat a wise investment. A fair allowance on your worn fur coat.

YOUNG ELIZABETH POPULAR FIGURE FOR CORONATION

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 1 (CP)—Outside of the King and Queen themselves, it is doubtful if any of the great personages will attract more attention of the Coronation crowds than the little girl who is next in line for the throne.

Princess Elizabeth has just passed her 11th birthday, celebrated at Windsor with a make-believe coronation in which a patient nurse played the role of the congregation. She received a special birthday salute at the colorful changing of the guard.

The elder of the two little princesses is becoming used to public appearances and she will be keeping an eye on six-year-old Margaret Rose during busy weeks in May. In July the two little girls will accompany the King and Queen to Holyroodhouse, Edinburgh, and may also visit Wales with their parents immediately afterwards.

In a comfortable but not pretentious house in Burton Street the child, destined for so exalted a station, was born April 21, 1926. The sidewalk across the street was thronged for days with feminine optimists hopeful of getting a glimpse of the small white bundle which held the fourth lady in the land.

She was only eight months old when her parents embarked on the Australasian tour and it is doubtful if returning parents ever brought a child such an extraordinary collection of gifts—canaries, squawking parrots, and three tons of toys. The care of the baby was undertaken affectionately during their absence by Queen Mary.

Queen Mary desired that her infant grand-daughter should be reared on the simplest lines possible and it was unfortunate in this respect that from her babyhood the interest displayed in little Elizabeth's personality should thwart these aims. London was captivated by the baby with the blue eyes and golden hair; excursions in the pram to Kensington Gardens had to be abandoned because of the crowds of admirers.

On Aug. 21, 1930, a sister was born to Elizabeth, at Glamis Castle, the chief home of Queen Elizabeth's parents. To Margaret Rose, called "the most perfect of her playthings," Elizabeth has always been the most affectionate and protective elder sister imaginable.

To be Home-Trained

The princess will be brought up at home and although the King and Queen have now moved into Buckingham Palace from 145 Piccadilly arrangements have been made for the continuance there of the same daily life of the small princesses. The larger grounds, of course, give opportunities for pony-riding and other such diversions on an extensive scale. As for book-learning there is no set pattern. The child herself will be encouraged to follow their instinctive leanings, within reasonable limits.

So far the little girls have received most of their teaching direct from their mother. In languages, it is understood Elizabeth has made rapid progress—her mother could speak French as readily as English when she was only nine—but in music or drawing they are not particularly talented.

Both children are intensely fond of domestic animals, Elizabeth's special pets being two Welsh corgis named Jane and Dookie. They have their own kennels and like any other children get a great deal of satisfaction in looking after it. Princess Elizabeth has also shown special aptitude for a camera.

20- 39% loss of hearing.. 11 pupils
Less than 20% loss hearing 2 pupils

The school is organized into three sections, namely: Junior, Intermediate and Senior.

The Junior School.

In the junior school boys and girls between the approximate ages of five and eleven are grouped in regular grades of twelve pupils to a class, each in charge of a class teacher. Instruction is given in language, lip-reading, and oral speech as well as in the fundamentals of silent reading, writing, spelling, composition, arithmetic, and other fundamental subjects.

The Intermediate School.

Pupils between the approximate ages of eleven and fifteen are housed in the intermediate school. Instead of being divided into grades, each under a class teacher, the intermediate school is arranged into eight rotating groups, which moves from room to room or shop.

The academic work is in charge of five special teachers who conduct departments in arithmetic, reading and literature, English language and compositical geography and nature study, history and civics. These groups are likewise taught art, manual training, household science, speech and rhythm, in special rooms in charge of special teachers.

In the intermediate school courses are given also in vocational guidance, and vocational training. Once or twice a week each rotating group visits the vocational guidance instructor and studies with him the various lines of employment which may be profitably pursued by non-hearing people.

Once each day over a period of six weeks, the boys go to one or other of the vocational instructors in woodwork, printing, shoemaking and shoe repairing, agriculture, cleaning and pressing, business, and commercial art, and the girls go one or other vocational instructors in dressmaking, beauty parlor work, laundry, business, and commercial art. At the end of each six weeks period the rotating vocational groups change instructors, completing the full round in the year.

The Senior School.

The senior school, comprising pupils from fifteen to twenty-one years of age, is likewise divided into eight rotating groups. Four of these groups during the morning and four during the afternoon session visit each of the special academic classes in the social sciences (geography, history, and civics), arithmetic and grammar, reading and literature, English language and composition. There are also special classes for speech and speech-reading. During one or two periods per week each group receives instruction in art, rhythm, and business practice.

Intensive and specialized instruction is given in the senior school. Courses in carpenter work, shoemaking and shoe-repairing, printing, baking, cleaning and pressing, barbering, caretaking, business, commercial art and farming are provided for the boys. Courses in dressmaking, fancy sewing, beauty parlor work, laundry work, cooking, general housework, business, and commercial art are provided for the girls. The four groups which spend their mornings in the academic rooms spend their afternoons in shop practice, while the four afternoon academic groups attend the various shops during their morning periods.

At the present time there are 133 pupils in the junior department, 87 in the intermediate department and 73 in the senior department.

Several pupils receive high school entrance certificates every year and during the succeeding year follow a course of study similar to work taken during the first year in a high school.

ONCE HIDDEN

been organized and have been carried on a fairly extensive basis. Others have been almost entirely neglected. The work which has been conducted by service clubs all over the province, under the direction and with the co-operation of the society, has been restricted by reason of lack of funds. With additional funds, however, it is hoped that every crippled child in the province will be able to have immediate treatment.

Prompt Action Necessary.

The first thing that must be done is to discover every one of these helpless children whose bodies are crippled and the people of Ontario must be educated to the fact that the sooner in life that these children are brought to hospitals and clinics for examination and treatment, the more chance there is for a complete restoration.

There are in Ontario some 8,000 crippled children who are maimed with all sorts of defects of legs and body. It is the duty of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and the existing service clubs and organizations to locate these children and see that they are brought to the hospitals and clinics for examination. This is best done by a comprehensive survey of the territory which is being covered by the local service club. Following the survey a clinic is held at which one of the most able orthopaedic surgeons of the province is at the disposal of the children. It is then the duty of the service organization to follow up the recommendations of the surgeon so far as funds will permit.

The surgeons, by their generous expenditure of time and energy make this work possible.

They go willingly to clinics at considerable loss of time from their practice. Therefore, we would urge the people of this district, when learning of a crippled child who has not received adequate care or treatment to get in touch with the Rotary Club of Belleville.

this army of crippled children should never have been crippled. The deformities of most of them come from diseases which should not exist and in spite of this fact the funds and human sympathy which is at last being tapped to the end that the crippled children problem may be dealt with has been utilized largely only to alleviate the suffering which already exists rather than to work out ways and means whereby crippling may be as far as possible banished from the face of the earth.

The fact of the cripple is everywhere everywhere. The cause of the cripple has not yet been eliminated by medical science nor safety-first campaigns; therefore, the problem of the cripple is unescapable.

A cripple is a person to whom something untoward has happened. They may have been smitten by a smouldering microbe, or a mismanaged motor, car or an unguarded machine—but that is not all—their hopes of independence are blighted. What must be done? The surest way to help these poor unfortunates is to mend their bodies.

That is what the Belleville Rotary Club has been doing for years with wonderful success—case after case reveals the splendid work that is being carried on for the benefit of crippled children; showing the willingness of this club to accept the initiative of this work for the community.

Over Five Hundred Cases.

It may be of interest to know that among the many cases, numbering well over five hundred—that we have had the privilege of assisting, there are included children who have shown exceptional brilliance in their school work and who, given every promise of a successful life once their physical handicaps have been overcome.

The Rotary Club of Belleville is second to no club in Ontario for work done for the crippled child, and while they have handled over five hundred children, many of these children have been on their hands for several years.

Three Years in Hospital.

One boy was in Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto for 1,141 days. Others have been in bed for 720 days at a time, others have been in casts for as long as 217 days.

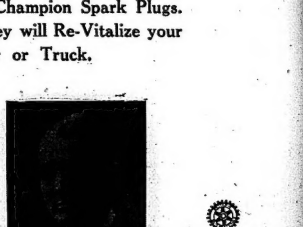
It is estimated that 7,000 children are under the care of Rotary Clubs at all times. This may seem a large number, but when you stop to think that we have over 800,000 cripples on the North American continent alone and about 30,000 added to that number every year, this work is only commencing.

Principal causes: 38 per cent. Injury; 21 per cent. rickets; 16.5 per cent. infantile paralysis; 9.5 per cent. amputations; 8 per cent. tuberculosis; 8 per cent. malformation.

Sixty-three per cent (63) of these unfortunates are crippled before they reach the age of 16 years.

Fifty per cent (50) are boys.

Seventy-five per cent (75) can be made self-supporting.



Eighteen per cent (18) have to remain in a hospital for any length of time.

Never a Failure.

The Belleville Rotary Club are happy to state that they have had many one hundred per cent cures, several 90 per cent, and have always helped a great deal every child we took on. We are more than pleased to state that we have never had a failure.

Too much praise cannot be given to the doctors and nurses for the great service rendered by them to our crippled children, but what we think more than anything else today is a greater understanding of the problem as a whole—the co-operation of all agencies, clubs, public, private and profession—working to a common end—of bringing these children back to health and happiness.

This work is not a charity; but it is an opportunity of which thousands of Rotarians are availing themselves. Why not YOU?

CROWNING GIVES CANADIAN WOMEN PLACE IN ABBEY

Coming Ceremony Will Reflect Progress of Gentler Sex in Affairs of the British Empire

By MOLLY McGEE
Canadian Press Correspondent

LONDON (CP)—Beautifully gowned women may be outnumbered by brilliantly-uniformed men in the great congregation in Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day, but among those in the scintillating crimson, scarlet and blue, will be women whose presence emphasizes recent historical development and the changing status of women in a changing world.

Canadian, Australian and South African-born women who have married into the peerage, will sit with those whose lineage dates back to the Norman conquest. Among newcomers to Canadian birth are the Countess of Minto and Countess of Cardigan, daughters of C. W. Cook of Montreal; Lady Harding, formerly Margot Fleming of Montana; the Marchioness of Dufferin, who was Violet Twining of Halifax; Lady de Rosenbach, the French-Canadian; Lady Congleton, sister of the Countess of Strathcona; and the two Lady Shaughnessys.

For the first time in British history women may attend the Coronation as members of parliament. A procession of such parties, the countess Astor, Eleanor Rathbone, Wedgwood, Duchess of Atholl, Florence Horsbrugh, Ellen Wilkinson and Mrs. R. B. Tate, as elected representatives of the people, may claim their privilege of seeing the King receive his crown. Incidentally, he will be crowned in the chair which the suffragettes tried to destroy with a bomb shortly after the last Coronation, in 1911.

Two women appear on the long list of representatives of British possessions and foreign countries and they, too, may be said to represent the romance of history and progress.

The Most Noble, Mary Scilicerai D'Amico Ingnacca, Baroness of Diar-el-Binet, Bukana and Castel Cicciano, is the senior member of the Maltese nobility and of the three Maltese representatives. About 70 years of age, she is 20th baroness of the title created in 1350. Small in stature and a famous hostess, she entertained King Edward VII when he visited Malta. Her title comes from the Castel Diar-el-Binet given her ancestor by Louis of Aragon, Serene King of Sicily in 1350. The Barony of Castel Cicciano was gained by profitable mediaeval marriages.

Another woman representative, the Ranee of Sarawak, was born in Ireland of English parents and now is spending her life in London while her son reigns as Rajah over his domain, half the island of Borneo.

The title has a strange history. Early in the 19th century, the native Rajah of Sarawak found his people were getting too much for him, so he called on an Englishman to help him out. In gratitude he left the Englishman the kingdom when he died.

The late Charles Brooke, second Rajah of Sarawak, was the nephew and heir to the adventurous Englishman. The present Ranee is his wife, who writes, is musical and lives in London. Her son, now Rajah who succeeded in 1917, is famous for fighting head-hunters.

Crowning Finds Dominions Now Have Altered Status

Revised King's Oath And Statute of Westminster Reflect New Setup Since Last Coronation—New Relations Between Crown And Dominions

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON (CP)—The new relations between Crown and Dominions have come into being for this Coronation. The Statute of Westminster; the abdication of Edward VIII; the new Coronation Oath, are milestones along an unexplored highway. Constitutional experts, statesmen at law are frankly baffled by unexpected turns in events.

The changed wording of the Oath to be taken by George VI on May 12 is tangible evidence of the new status of the Dominions and their altered relations with the Crown since the coronation of George V. in 1911.

The Statute of Westminster passed in 1931 gave legislative effect to resolutions on the status of Great Britain and the Dominions passed by the Imperial Conference of 1926. These resolutions recognized their mutual relations as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

But, in one particular, the Statute of Westminster lays down that "any alteration in the law touching the succession to the Throne or the Royal Style and titles shall hereafter require the assent of the Parliaments of all the Dominions as well as of the Parliament of the United Kingdom."

It was under this provision that the Dominions played so important a role in the abdication of Edward VIII, a role which no one foresaw when the Statute of Westminster came before the British Parliament for approval.

Agreed on Policy

To make his projected marriage with Mrs. Wallis Simpson legal, Edward needed no consent from any authority. He could marry whom he wished, but his wife, whoever she was, would immediately become Queen. Special legislation was necessary however to permit Edward to contract a morganatic marriage with Mrs. Simpson. Under such legislation Mrs. Simpson would have been his legal wife but she would not have been Queen.

Edward wished to have such legislation established in parliament. The Baldwin government declined to submit this legislation, taking the ground there was no prospect of parliament accepting it. Acting under the Statute of Westminster, Mr. Baldwin consulted the Dominion Prime Ministers with the exception of the Irish Free State, agreed with the British government; President de Valera merely refrained from expressing an opinion.

Thus, for the first time in history the Dominions in effect joined with the British government in expressing disagreement with the King as to the policy that should be pursued.

Looking Backward With Rotary

A Brief Review of Belleville Rotary Club History

Written by Past President
O. H. Scott

The Belleville Rotary Club came into existence at the beginning of 1930, and was the sixth club formed in Ontario. Its charter number is 646. The organizing club was the Toronto Rotary Club, and the organizing Chairman was Norman Lovell. He gathered about him W. B. Deacon, E. Gus Porter, Gordon Moffatt, Sandy Burrows and Bill Doyle.

After several conferences at which the idea was explained a meeting was held in the Hotel Quinte at which twenty-four invited citizens expressed their desire to be members of such an organization.

First President

E. Gus Porter, K.C., M.P., was elected President and he also started on its way to strive to attain the high ideals of the organization and adapt their individual lives to the Rotary Ethics governing business and social life.

The Belleville Rotary Club early in its history started the work of organizing other clubs, and fathered clubs in Peterboro, Trenton and Campbellford, as well as assisting in the formation of the Lindsay Club.

Rotary Boys' Camp

The first major activity undertaken by the Belleville Rotary Club was for Boys' Work and the purchase of a camp site at Moira Lake in 1931 was the beginning of a camp which has been of great benefit to many Belleville boys. This year the members of the club were active in improving the conditions at the camp.

As there were other organizations for taking care of the boys the Belleville Rotary Club early decided that the major activity would be Crippled Children Work. This meant the raising of considerable money and various ways have been tried to obtain the necessary funds. The first method tried was the Minstrel Show which proved very successful for a few years. Two years ago a Rotarab show was put on but in spite of a splendid performance it did not get large houses. In addition there have been many concert, etc., when the musical talent of Belleville assisted to raise funds for the worthy cause.

Taxing the Raffalee

The Belleville Rotarians have always been anxious to keep Belleville in the forefront and arrange meetings with other clubs and sent out members to address other clubs. An outstanding meeting was held by the Belleville Rotary Club at Deseronto in 1934 at the time of the District Conference. The Belleville Rotary Club had charge of the luncheon on the second day of the Conference and they had as guest speakers, Col. W. N. Ponton and as guest soloist Rotarian Knight McGregor, of New York, assisted by Belleville talent. The program was broadcast and was the first occasion for Belleville to go on the air. The meeting put Belleville "on the map" and the members brought back with them a bell which was won as the attendance prize and which has been used by the presiding officer at the Belleville meetings since.

Across the Water

Meetings were held at Carthage and Watertown, N.Y. State, which did much to make a friendly feeling between Belleville and these centres.

It has been the custom of the New York Rotary Club to present a flag of their country to Clubs in other countries. In 1924 when Mr. W. B. Deacon was visiting the New York Rotary Club he received on behalf of the Belleville Rotary Club a lovely silk Stars and Stripes which the Club uses whenever the occasion permits.

The members of the Belleville Rotary Club have given their services to nearly every organization in Belleville. They have also taken office on various committees of Rotary International. In looking over the list of the speakers who have been brought to the city by the Rotary Club one is struck by the breadth of their experience and the wide variety of subjects spoken on. These include M. Governors, Premiers Cabinet Ministers, Clergy, Doctors, Lawyers, Professors, Industrialists as well as all the local speaking talent.

STAGE PREVIEW OF DIVERSIONS

Attractions For Coronation Guests Tried Out in Miniature

London, May 1.—(CP)—A preview of what can be expected in the way of amusement park diversions and decorative illumination during the Coronation period is shown at the National Amusement Caterers, Showman and Allied Trades' Exhibition. The illuminations include royal monograms, crowns and Union Jack set-pieces besides flashing colored circles and hexagons, shields and garlands.

An ingeniously - contrived large working model of the Coronation procession, the mechanical parts of which are bicycle parts, presents a view of the procession passing from Westminster Abbey through Parliament Square.

The flags and banners used to decorate the models were cut from cigarette cards, and pieces of bath sponge, colored green, give a realistic impression of the foliage of trees. Including the troops, spectators on stands, and crowds on the pavements, the model contains more than 3,000 figures. The movement of the procession is electrically controlled.

M. P.'s May Attend As Individuals

London, May 1—(CP)—Members of the House of Commons need not attend the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey as a body but may go individually.

Home Secretary Sir John Simon told the House: "His Majesty has been graciously pleased to signify his desire that at his Majesty's Coronation this House should be represented by Mr. Speaker (Captain E. A. Fitzroy).

"This intimation of his Majesty's pleasure means that the House will dispense with going to the Abbey in its corporate capacity, and honorable members, therefore, will be free to go to the Abbey in the manner most convenient to themselves."

The House promptly carried his motion authorizing Captain Fitzroy to r presentit at the ceremony.

PREVENTION IS KEY TO CONTROL SAYS INSPECTOR

germ so small that it cannot be seen through the most powerful microscope; it appears to be what is known as an ultra-microscopic virus, which will pass through any sort of filter. In this respect it resembles the causative agent of measles and perhaps influenza. This virus attacks the cells in the front of the spinal cord; the cells whose business it is to make the nerves move. These cells are attacked only after the disease has been operating for several days.

Some patients escape the paralytic stage altogether. They have a trifling illness which may not be recognized as infantile paralysis at all. If the infection reaches these spinal cells it kills many of them and damages the function of others. As a result the muscles dependent upon these cells are deprived of their natural impulse of movement and paralysis results. If the toxine goes on, if the disease has not too severe effect on the cells, or most of them, if not too severely damaged, may recover, and the muscles may regain their power of movement. Those cells which are killed never recover, and the muscles supplied by them are permanently crippled. The higher up the cord the infection locates itself, the more dangerous to life.

A typical case of infantile paralysis passes through an acute illness, often not very severe, of a few days' duration, followed by paralysis in some case. After a length of time the paralysis clears up, but usually some remains. The permanent paralysis of certain of the muscles results in unequal pull, say on the extremities, and this, continued over a long time, causes distortion of the face and limb. A child suffering of the victim of infantile paralysis is due first, to the paralysis itself, and secondly, to this unequal pull of the unhurt against the paralyzed muscles.

Infantile Paralysis is an ancient disease. There is in existence a portrait showing the very characteristic appearances of a chronic case of paralysis in the case, in an Egyptian Prince of the 18th Dynasty. Ancient tombs, primeval burying-places, paintings and sculptures of early times prove that infantile paralysis is anything but a modern disease.

Symptoms.

All infectious diseases have an incubation period, that is, the time between the receipt of the infective agent and the appearance of symptoms. In Infantile Paralysis the incubation period is from 6 to 18 days, or on an average from 7 to 14 days.

The early signs are headache, fever, vomiting, constipation or diarrhoea, and not infrequently, a congestion of the throat. There is a good deal of variation in the early signs and the symptoms are also attacks of stomach and intestinal disorders of children that an early diagnosis is not readily made.

The most pointed signs are fever, soreness to touch especially over the spine, and along the nerve trunks, extreme drowsiness and irritability on being awakened. Usually there are early meningeal symptoms. These are important in diagnosis. They are stiffness of the neck and back and disinclusion of the reflexes. If paralysis occurs it usually develops on the third day. There are all great variations in the symptoms in different cases. Some are so severe that the patient succumbs. Others get well with a moderate degree of paralysis or none at all; still others have a severe paralysis which may or may not improve as time goes on. The final degree of paralysis remaining, apart from successful treatment, determines the extent of the crippling. Some outbreaks are notably mild, others severe.

There are three types of infantile paralysis:

(1) A previously healthy child awakens in the morning with paralysis, say of a leg.

(2) Another and more common type is where the child is sick for a day or two with something like a gastro-intestinal complaint, or with pain and fever like the grippe. After this the child appears better for a couple of days or so, when the early symptoms recur and paralysis appear.

(3) The most common type is that in which the original symptoms progress steadily to be followed by paralysis.

Treatment.

Treatment is especially directed in the early stages of paralysis to prevent the crippling of the weakened muscles and shortening of the opposing normal ones and thus to secure a good position of the limb. Rest is essential in the early period of convalescence. There must be no active treatment such as by electricity, massage or manipulation. Unfortunate results always follow too early active treatment. This attitude on the part of the conscientious physician is often difficult to maintain in the face of the anxiety of parents "that something be done". Parents must be impressed to use electricity, massage or manipulation, or the parents may call in the aid of a so-called drugless healer or Christian Scientist, to the injury of the child. Too early active treatment of this nature before all soreness of muscles is gone is disastrous to the best results.

After the acute period is past, mild exercise of the muscles is begun. Heat, massage and especially exercise in the warm bath are of great value. If the best results are to be obtained, treatment should continue for 1½ to 2 years under the direction of a competent physician skilled in orthopedic work. No case is ever benefited except by skilled surgical treatment.

Prevention.

Cases should be quarantined for three weeks. This will lessen the number of carriers of the disease. During epidemics children should not be allowed to crowd together. Children should be kept in the best possible health by good food, rest, air and sunshine.

Immunization or active prevention is accomplished by the use of convalescent serum. This is obtained from the blood of persons who have had infantile paralysis. Donors of blood have to be paid. They are comparatively few in number.

Health departments and interested societies should combine to find and the provision of serum. Its use has been tried in many instances and such success as to warrant its further use.

Tuberculosis.

The second great cause of crippling is tuberculosis. There are two forms of tuberculosis, which affect children:

(1) Bovine tuberculosis which comes from the milk of infected cows.

(2) The human type which is acquired by close contact, as from a tuberculous mother.

In children under 5, about one-third of the cases infected are of the bovine type, but taking all ages together 80 per cent of tuberculous children is of the human type.

Affections of bones and joints appear in such forms as hiplock or other joint inflammation which, if not fatal, result in lameness and stiff joints, or in the disfiguring Pott's disease of the spine, which, if recovered from, leave the deformity of hunch-back.

A large proportion of domestic cattle are infected with tuberculosis perhaps as high as 50 per cent. In Switzerland, the proportion is 40 per cent. In Scotland it is still higher and there it is particularly virulent. The effective remedy is the testing of the cattle with tuberculin and destruction of the reactors. It is an expensive business and many years must elapse before bovine tuberculosis will be weeded out.

Bovine tuberculosis may be prevented by the use of milk from tuberculin tested cattle or more readily and cheaply by the universal pasteurization of milk.

Human tuberculosis is spread by infected milk and more especially by close contact.

Tuberculosis is a disease gained in childhood from close association with an open case of tuberculosis. In the families of persons in Canada is about 81 per cent show tuberculosis in some member of the family. Contact with the mother is the closest of all family contacts and the tuberculous mother is the most dangerous agent in the spread of tuberculosis among her children. If a mother or other member of a family has tuberculosis, the safety of the children depends on removal of the infected person from the midst of the family. It is the most short-sighted of municipal economies to neglect this precaution. Many of these cases must depend on municipal aid. If the source of infection is not removed, there will eventually be, not one, but several indigent tuberculous cases to be cared for. The two great preventive measures in tuberculosis are pasteurization and the prevention of crippling of children from the cause are:

(1) Pasteurization of milk.

(2) Removal of sources of infection or removal of contacts, with tuberculin testing and proper care.

Pasteurization of Milk.

This is heating of milk to 142 to 145 degrees F., holding at this temperature for 20 minutes and immediate cooling to 40 to 50 degrees F. until used. Pasteurization kills the tuberculosis germs as well as the germs of other infectious diseases found in milk without injuring the qualities of the milk.

It is only the larger centres of population that have complete pasteurization of milk. It is in such centres that there is a total absence of bovine tuberculosis. The City of Toronto, for example, with pasteurization since 1915, has been free from bovine cases of bovine tuberculosis since that date.

The provision of pasteurization of milk is dependent on the whim of municipal councils. It could be controlled as public water supplies are controlled, that is, by the Department of Health. Such control of public water supplies has served, in the period since 1910, practically to wipe out water-borne typhoid fever in Ontario. I count this as one of the major claims I have to credit to public health work in this province.

Rickets.

Rickets is another disease forming one of the minor causes of crippling. It is a disease of the bone, which begins in intra-uterine life if the mother lacks the bone-forming qualities in her food. It is caused and aggravated in infant life by the absence of the ultra-violet rays of sunlight so that babies born in the autumn and winter, when there is less sunshine, are more liable to rickets than babies born in early spring with the summer ahead of them.

Rickets is prevented and cured by the ultra-violet light, by the use of cod liver oil and of irradiated foods. Bow-legs and knock-knees are the important deformities from this cause in children.

Prevention.

Prevention is the keynote in the control of the diseases which cause crippling in children. If we are content to go on in the endeavor to cure or alleviate the cases of infantile paralysis and tuberculosis as they arise, we shall be faced with an intolerable expense which, sooner or later will be beyond our means. The simpler solution is to lessen, as far as possible, the supply of cripples.

The number of cripples is about 2½ per 1000 of the population. There are probably not less than 20,000 crippled children in Canada. To repair the damage as far as possible would cost at least $13,000,000. About 80 per cent. could be prevented.

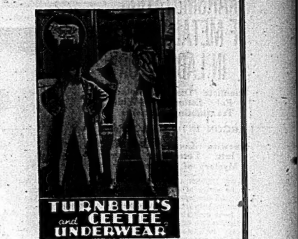
there came such great activity by Rotary clubs in this work that many sinners Rotarians and crippled children workers became concerned lest the crippled children movement swallow up the Rotary movement. This led to the adoption at the St. Louis convention in 1923 of a resolution defining Rotary's policy in community service—the policy remaining unchanged, which, while not prescribing direct corporate activity by a Rotary club, does advise careful consideration of the possibility of cooperation with other agencies in any community work before setting up new machinery to undertake a needed activity.

This policy, though considered restrictive by some, has not prevented the taking of direct action on the part of the Rotary clubs in crippled children work. Any number of them have conducted crippled children surveys of their communities, have established clinics for the examination of cases, have undertaken the work of operations and appliances, but, in general, such services of Rotary clubs have been directed towards a definite goal—the awakening of a community consciousness of its responsibility. It eventually result in a permanent local organization which success will be insured by the united support of the community. It should be clearly understood that Rotary's policy in community service does not prohibit a Rotary club's taking direct action in crippled children work or any other line of worthy endeavor in community service. Quite the contrary! It always did allow for such action and, through a clarifying amendment adopted at the Atlantic City convention in 1926, it definitely encouraged Rotary clubs to adopt some specific community service project as a club activity, not only for the sake of the immediate good to be accomplished for the community but also for the sake of the club itself to give its members and the community as a whole an object lesson in service.

The manner in which Rotarians spread their enthusiasm for projects which they take up and thus obtain outside support for them was well demonstrated last year in New Zealand when Lord Nuffield, a prominent English industrialist who was visiting that country, was so impressed with the splendid work begun there by the local Rotary clubs in the interest of crippled children that he donated the sum of £50,000 toward the work. Later, when Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wilson of Auckland, New Zealand, gave a home with thirteen acres of land to be used as a hospital for crippled children, Lord Nuffield supplemented his original donation with another £10,000 as a personal endowment for such home. The Rotarians of New Zealand would of course be embarrassed if they were given credit for Lord Nuffield's generosity, but it does seem fair to say that his splendid gifts might not have been forthcoming if the Rotarians of New Zealand had not, with the zeal and thoroughness characteristic of New Zealanders, inaugurated a crippled children activity in their country which attracted the attention of their distinguished visitor with such happy results for the afflicted children of New Zealand.

There is neither space nor need for attempting to list here the activities of individual Rotary clubs for the aid of crippled children, but a few examples to indicate the general trend of the movement throughout Rotary might not be amiss. In the state of Colorado for example, where there had been no special state appropriation for crippled children's work until recently, the Rotarians of the Seventh Rotary District comprising Colorado, Wyoming and part of New Mexico and Nebraska are co-operating with the Beth El Hospital at Colorado Springs by means of a per capita contribution of ten cents per month. The funds thus gathered are used exclusively for X-ray, medicine and direct application to the special expenses of cases sent in by Rotary clubs. Other amounts received from clubs and individuals are designated for special equipment, the furnishing of certain rooms, etc. Reports from the district indicate that a state board with the assistance of governmental funds will soon to take over the major burden of this work so that the Rotary funds will be available for relief and the service to extreme cases.

It is interesting to observe that in some communities, where adequate facilities now exist for the care of the crippled, Rotary clubs are turning their attention toward related problems. In Orlando, Florida, for instance, where the local crippled children committee found crippled children work well in hand, they recently lent their efforts toward securing the hard of hearing and succeeded in organizing classes in lip reading under a trained teacher, bought the necessary equipment and paid tuition for several young people in lip reading courses with the result that some of them were able to find employment and help to support their families. Moreover, one of the members of the committee, a theatre manager, seeing an opportunity to be of additional service as an individual, installed some thirty special phones in his theatre. These have proved a great boon to the local hard of hearing and no extra charge is made for their use.



Another interesting outgrowth of Rotary's crippled children activity is the work being done by the Rotary clubs of Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi through the Tri-State Association for Cripples which has a Hospital for Crippled Adults at Memphis, Tennessee. Space does not permit the telling of the work being done there but those who wish to know more about it will find the whole story told by Rotarian F. W. Palmer, President of the Tri-State Association, in the December, 1936, issue of "The Rotarian."

It would be difficult to find a more fascinating story than that of the spread of the crippled children movement throughout the world. Readers of The Crippled Child are doubtless familiar with that story. They know how the movement which began in the United States and Canada has "caught on" and has been established in the establishment of crippled children societies in some of the European countries, in Australia, New Zealand and recently in Mexico.

Rotary looks with satisfaction upon the contribution which has been made toward this extension of the crippled children movement through the crippled children committees held in connection with Rotary's international conventions. The one at Ostend in 1927 initiated the idea of having world conference for the crippled in Europe. Following the Ostend convention a most successful conference of crippled children workers was held at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1929. Representatives of ten nations came together in that conference, and succeeded in breaking down the idea that it was impossible to discuss crippled children work as an international conference because of differences of language, manners, customs, laws and institutions. So successful was this conference that a second was called two years later, in 1931 at The Hague, Netherlands. There another illusion was dispelled—the illusion that there were three systems of meeting the problem: the voluntary system as in the United States and other English speaking countries; the governmental system as in force in Germany; and a combination of the two as found in the Scandinavian countries. After five days of earnest discussion, it became apparent that there is much of the governmental in the voluntary and so mue hof the voluntary in the governmental that there is really only one system, namely, a combination of the two.

The crippled children assembly at the Mexico City Convention in 1935 also marked a forward step in the crippled children movement. The most tangible result was the formation of the Mexico Association of Friends of Crippled Children immediately following the convention, but there is no way to record the indirect results which will emanate from the inspiration which many Latin American Rotarians received at that assembly. We can record, however, the fact that shortly after the Mexico City convention it became necessary for Rotary International to print a Spanish edition of its pamphlet on crippled children work to meet a demand for guidance in this work on the part of Spanish speaking Rotarians.

Those who have attended the crippled children assemblies of Rotary conventions know the thrill of hearing Rotarians from lands far away from ours tell how they are in their countries are coping with local aspects of the universal problem of the crippled child. At the crippled children assembly in Atlantic City last June, a report from Dublin evoked much applause with his account of how he and another Rotarian who attended the Rotary convention at Cleveland in 1935 were there so inspired with possibilities of crippled children work that they went back to Dublin and initiated through the Rotary club an activity which has resulted in a vast increase in discovery and cure of the crippled throughout all of Ireland and as a result great personal public support of this work. Other Rotarians present told what Rotary is doing in crippled children work in Czechoslovakia, in England, and in Australia, all giving evidence of the manner in which this work has through its fundamentally human appeal, made discovery in various parts of the world and has achieved great service to mankind. Rotary continues its growth throughout the world and as Rotarians from many and more sections of the globe are instilled with the Rotary ideal of service through attendance at international conventions and through the programs of their local clubs, it is not too much to hope that interest in crippled children work and other worthy community endeavors will continue to increase as it has in the past and bring about the establishment of needed agencies to cope with local problems.

TRANSMUTATION OF METALS SEEN IN LABORATORY

Scientists Discover Method For Estimating While Transmuting Elements

ARGON INTO CALCIUM

Likewise Convert Chlorine Into Potassium Solve Mystery of Radioactivity

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—In another of the series of successful experiments on the transmutation of elements in Yale laboratories, chlorine has been converted into potassium and argon into calcium. During the process the Yale scientists developed a method whereby the size of the nucleus of any atom may be estimated and solved a "chemical mystery" which has baffled investigators for many years.

These contributions, the work of Dr. Ernest C. Pollard of the Department of Physics and two graduate students, Howard L. Schultz of Cassadaga, N.Y., and D. Gordon Brubaker of Nelson, Neb., were announced by the university.

Chlorine, a gas characterized by a penetrating acrid odor, was transmuted into a radioactive form of potassium. This form is very rare in nature, non-radioactive potassium being found 10,000 times more frequently. The Yale scientists have thus been able to achieve, in effect, a synthesis of a naturally radioactive body from chlorine gas. The synthesis is the first of its kind.

The transmutations were affected by bombarding argon and chlorine with helium nuclei which moved with a speed one-tenth as fast as that of light and with the energy of 8,000,000 volts. In this work the transmutations are detected by an extremely sensitive apparatus in which the effect of a single nuclear particle may be observed.

"Freak" in Nature Explained.

In both these cases neutrons, or particles having neither a positive nor negative electric charge, were ejected from the nuclei and the transmutation from one element to another was brought about.

A "freak" in nature gave rise to the "chemical mystery" which has now been solved at Yale.

"Why potassium, with its low atomic weight, should be radioactive since other elements such as radium and uranium which possess this characteristic have very high atomic weights, has long puzzled physicists," Dr. Pollard said. "With its low weight this metal should emit its nuclear particles very rapidly. But contrary to theory, radioactive potassium disintegrates very slowly, so slowly it requires some millions of years for it to convert itself into calcium. Almost every other element in the same range of weight which might have been radioactive changed itself so long ago that there is left only the heavier elements have disintegrated slowly enough to remain in the long time the earth has been here, but radioactive potassium has survived since the earth was first formed more than 1,000,000,000 years ago.

"During the course of our experiments we found that the potassium nucleus formed from chlorine appeared smaller in volume. Measurement showed however that they were both of the same volume, but the nucleus of potassium was spinning around at such a terrific rate that it gave the appearance of a smaller body.

Emission of Particles Deterred.

"This speed has acted as a deterrent to the emission of particles from the nucleus and has thus conserved the radioactive character of potassium to the present time, when other elements of the same comparative atomic weight have long ceased to show any such activity."

Attempts to determine the size of the nucleus of the atom have been in progress since the field of atomic physics was opened. The nucleus, almost unimaginably small, has only recently yielded to estimates of its volume. It is known that the atom consists of a positively charged nucleus which plays the role of the sun as the center of the atomic solar system, the planets being electrons, or negatively charged particles.

The Yale investigators found in measuring the volume of the argon nucleus that methods of calculation now in use are not completely accurate. The nucleus of argon, according to estimates here, has a volume of 4.4 by 10-37 cubic centimeters, which translated into arithmetical terms is a decimal point followed by thirty-six zeros preceding the figures.

"Small as this is, it is of considerable scientific interest because it is larger by a factor of two than was predicted by the prevailing ideas of nuclear size," the announcement stated.

All Forces Seen At Olympia

London, May 1—(CP)— The Coronation Tournament will be opened in Olympia May 27 by the King who will be accompanied by the Queen and the two princesses.

The Royal Navy, the Army and Royal Air Force will each furnish a guard of honor in the arena with colors and the bands of the Royal Marines, a guards regiment and Royal Air Force.

This triple guard will be supplemented by others mounted in the corridor from the Royal Marines and territorial army so that all five main branches of the defence forces will be represented on opening day to honor the new King.

In the program itself all branches of the armed forces will be represented as well as school officers' training corps and a special feature will be a ceremonial parade of the Honorable Artillery Company in the pageantry of old uniforms. The H.A.C. is 400 years old this year and when the regiment marches past the King May 27, it will be the opening event of a series of celebrations being held this summer to mark the anniversary.

The navy will return to the program this year with the famous inter-port field gun display and the air force will be seen in a fast physical training turn, while the marines will march and drill with the ceremonial procession for which the corps is famous.

Brigadier-Gen., Austin Soldier-Author Dies

Bournemouth, Hampshire, April 27 (CP)—Brigadier-General Henry Herbert Austin, 68, soldier and author, died here today.

General Austin served with distinction with the British forces in India and Africa, and won many honors. He did notable survey work in the building of the Kabul River and Zhob Valley Railways in India and the Uganda Railway in Africa, and at the turn of the century headed two survey expeditions along the western borders of Ethiopia, particularly in the Lake Tana region.

In 1909 he was engaged in the suppression of gun-running in the Persian Gulf, and later wrote a book on his adventures in this work.

Citizens Advise G-Men on Job 'Invent' Two-Way Automobiles

WASHINGTON — Officials of the Federal Bureau of Investigation wearily surveyed today an accumulation of criminal-catching inventions offered by the public, including two-way automobiles, gangster-eradicating chemicals and knife-edge license plates.

The suggestions have flowed into the bureau in a growing stream since the "G-men" ascended to fame.

"We can hardly keep up with them," one official said. "Inventors offer cures for everything except bank robberies committed by small, left-handed men wearing green glasses, but almost always there is a 'catch' somewhere. Take that chap who told us how to catch law-breakers with a chemical."

He told how the inventor notified the Buffalo office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that he had a certain way of eradicating criminals. The agent in charge artistically assigned a man to interview the citizen.

"Well, I'll tell you," the inventor said, "all you have to do is spray a powdered chemical on everybody in the world. If the chemical is made right, it instantly will kill all criminals, but will not harm a hair on the head of any law-abiding citizen."

Federal Agent M. J. Cassidy took off a deep breath.

"That's fine," he said. "How do you make this chemical?"

"Oh, I thought up the idea; it is up to you to make the chemical," the inventor replied.

The two-way automobile was suggested by an Oklahoman.

"The car should be so constructed that it would run one way as good and as fast as the other," he wrote. "This would save turning the car around and gaining speed many times in a close call."

The knife-edge automobile license plates were proposed for detecting hit-and-run drivers.

"If license plates were balanced in such a way as to topple off and fall flat it would run one a bad collision," their inventor wrote, "all that federal agents would have to do to learn the identity of a hit-and-run driver would be to go out in the street and pick up his automobile tags."

DUKE'S PICTURE FOR NEW YORK ARMORY

NEW YORK — The last official portrait of the Duke of Windsor as King Edward VIII has been presented to the Seventh Regiment, New York National Guard.

Executed in oils by Thomas E. Stephens, the portrait depicts the former king in his uniform as colonel-in-chief of the Welsh Guards. It was the gift of Col. Ralph C. Tobin, commanding officer of the regiment who commissioned Stephens, and it will hang in the field and staff room of the regiment's armory.

As Prince of Wales, the Duke of Windsor was entertained by the Seventh Regiment at a ball in the armory in 1919 on the occasion of his first visit to the United States.

Soldiers From Dominions Have Invitations All Over Britain

LONDON (CP)—Entertainment of the Dominion and Colonial troops comprising the Coronation contingents will be provided with $30,000, left over from a fund which served a similar purpose at the last two coronations.

The Duke of Abercorn started the fund for the Coronation of King Edward VII. There was another appeal in 1911 when George V. was crowned. The bulk of the money will be spent for transportation, the visiting troops having received invitations to various parts of the country.

ROTARY APPEAL

REMEMBER THE CRIPPLED CHILD

JOIN THE ARMY OF GIVERS

You can't name any other investment that will pay such large returns as that of supporting this Rotary Campaign.

It is gratifying to a firm in business over thirty-seven years, in your city, upon whom present day responsibilities rest, to know we still have the confidence, and a fair share of patronage from the Public.

With the cycle of trade up and down and varied experiences, we make this appeal, and hope all will look forward with consideration for the welfare and future success of our boys and girls, who in many cases, through no fault of their own, will be maimed for life, unless placed in the care of medical specialists.

Rotary's work with your assistance, is to look after the Crippled Child.

RIGHT OF RITES REMAINS SOLELY FOR ONE CHURCH

Anglican Clergymen Only Have Part in Crowning of King and Queen in Abbey by Law and Honored Custom

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

LONDON—While the ever-changing scene is reflected in some aspects of the Coronation, particularly in the Oath and the status of the Dominions, the conduct of the religious ceremonies in the Abbey remains, as it has for many crownings, in the hands of the Church of England exclusively.

In the earlier stages of preparations for the event some discussion arose concerning the appropriateness of ministers representing the other churches of denominations being assigned a definite role in the solemnities of the Coronation service.

The subject never came into very great prominence, for those "free" churchmen readily recognized the difficulties of such a proposal. Many of them, indeed, maintained that for nonconformity to be actively associated with the coronation service would be tantamount to a denial of one of its main principles, since existence of nonconformity is a protest against a state-established church.

It was also recognized that on historical and constitutional grounds it was requisite the ceremony be conducted "according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England. Only Anglican worship is legal in Westminster Abbey. The sovereign must be by statute an Anglican communicant. Neither the Established (Presbyterian) Church of Scotland nor the Catholic Church in England has ever performed any part in the Abbey service.

It is true that the Archbishop of Birmingham, Dr. Barnes, put forward a suggestion that the coronation service should be so altered as to allow nonconformist participation. He was answered by Dr. Blunt, Bishop of Bradford, who declared: "The coronation is one function in which the Church of England quite definitely acts as the established church of the realm. The responsibility in this respect is can neither delegate nor share.

"The service is not one of prayer or exhortation in which any Christian or any denomination might be invited to take part," Dr. Blunt continued. "It is a solemn sacramental rite, linked up as an integral part in the service of the Holy Communion.

"In my opinion the only way in which the Church of England could accede to such a proposal would be if it were one item in its own wholesale disestablishment. . . It would be quite illegitimate to hand over a part in the administration of such a rite to any who do not share our belief as to the nature, efficacy and primacy of sacramental ordinances in church worship."

It was rumored at one time that a cardinal might be present at the coronation, especially in view of the fact that the British government now has a minister plenipotentiary at the Vatican. Nothing more was heard of this, but a mission from the Pope will come to England to present its congratulations to the King.

VETERAN FIGHTER JEWELS' KEEPER IS 77 YEARS OLD

Coronation Relics Once in Care of Abbots Will Issue From Tower For The Double Crowning May 12

BY THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Among the historic officers of state to whom the Coronation of George VI. and Queen Elizabeth on May 12 brings new duties and responsibilities is the Keeper of the Jewel House in the Tower of London, now Major-General Sir George Younghusband.

General Younghusband, who has held this post for the last twenty years, first saw fighting in the Afghan War of 1878, and took part in nearly all of Great Britain's "little wars" which followed one another briefly rapidly in the 80's. He was severely wounded in South Africa and in the Great War was mentioned in despatches more than once. He now is 77 years of age.

In olden days the Crown Jewels, entrusted to the care of the Abbot and monks of Westminster, but in more nearly seven centuries they were sent for safe-keeping to the Tower of London. The Jewel House there is visited yearly by'tens of thousands of people from all over the world. It lies in what is known as the Wakefield Tower, and its priceless contents are enclosed in heavily-barred circular iron cage, which enables the beefeater to walk around the exhibit and inspect it from all angles.

Many of the emblems have not been removed from the Tower since George IV's coronation in 1811.

In addition to the actual regalia, the Jewel House contains a number of valuable relics. There is an altar dish and flagon, for instance, presented to the Tower by William and Mary of Orange on condition they were used three times yearly in the chapel of St. Peter and Vincula within the Tower. In this way these articles would replace temporarily the altar plate used in the time of Charles II.

Was Political Gesture

At the time the province was probably a mild political gesture to show the Stuarts were no more, but though there is now naturally no political significance in the observance the custom is still followed, and the William and Mary plate replaces the silver-gilt Queen Anne plate on three church festivals.

Near to these articles in the Tower are the maces carried by the Serjeant-at-Arms in different reigns. There are eight of them, their weights ranging from 34 to 80 pounds. Similar relics used at the coronation, the maces are carried on such special occasions as when peace was declared in 1918, when the Heralds proclaimed the gilded tidings at various points in London. Another interesting exhibit in General Younghusband's care is the wine fountain presented to Charles II. by the city of Plymouth.

Committee Must Be Thus to do Subject Justice, Says Simon

HAVE OPEN MIND ..

LONDON—Consideration of the "birching" of children on magistrate's orders will be made by a small departmental committee, it was announced in the House of Commons by Sir John Simon, home secretary. Sir John said 184 cases of this type of punishment had been ordered in juvenile courts in 1936 and 218 cases in 1935. If the report of the committee was to be of value they must approach the subject with an open mind.

"Will the right honorable gentleman call the attention of the committee to the wisdom of Solomon—that if you spank the kid you spoil the child?" asked an M.P. "Who was Solomon's father?" queried another.

WILLIAM J. CAIRNS,
Toronto, Canada,
Director of Rotary International, 1936-37

William J. Cairns is division manager of the Bell Telephone Company at Toronto, Ontario, Canada. He was born in Prescott, Ontario. After finishing school, he entered the employ of the Bell Telephone Company and has been connected with that company ever since.

Mr. Cairns became a member of the Rotary Club of Ottawa in 1918 and is a past president of that club. In 1921-22 he served as a member of the Boys' Work Committee of Rotary International, in 1922-23 as Governor of the 20th district and in 1923-24 as chairman of the Canadian Advisory Committee. He was transferred in 1923 from Ottawa to Montreal where he joined the Rotary Club, later serving as a director.

He served as a member of the Constitution and By-laws Committee of Rotary International in 1924-25. A few years later he was transferred to Toronto where he soon joined the Rotary Club of Toronto of which he was president in 1929-30. In 1931-32 he was again a member of the Boys' Work Committee and in 1932-33 served as chairman of that committee and also as a member of the Community Service Committee. At the Atlantic City convention he was elected a member of the Board of Directors of Rotary International for 1936-37.

Mr. Cairns was a resident of Belleville for some time, being manager of the Bell Telephone Co. branch here.

PAUL P. HARRIS

In 1896 he felt he had gained sufficient practical knowledge to be of service to his clients and opened a law office in Chicago. He had neither friends nor relatives in that city. He had much time for reflection and pondered much on conditions of life and business in a large city. In 1905, as a result of his studies and reflections, Paul had formulated a definite philosophy of business relations. Calling together three of his friends, each of whom was engaged in a different line of business, he expounded his theory to them. This group was the nucleus of the Rotary Club of Chicago. Through the propaganda of Paul Harris, this novel organization soon had counter-parts in other cities in the United States. In this extension work the acquaintances made in college and in his travels were of material assistance to him in the establishment of new clubs.

After a few years the necessity for some organization to bind these different clubs together became apparent. Thereupon Paul Harris, Chesley Perry and others organized the National Association of Rotary Clubs in America in 1910. Later through the extension of the movement into Canada and Great Britain, the International Association of Rotary Clubs was formed. This later was renamed Rotary International. Paul was the first President of the National Association and the First President of the International Association of Rotary Clubs and is President-Emeritus of Rotary International.

Paul was married to Miss Jean Thomson of Edinburgh, Scotland, on July 2nd, 1910, who, during the last twenty-five years, has assisted Paul in entertaining scores of Rotary friends from throughout the world at their suburban home, "Comely Bank". His friendship garden is one of the features of "Comely Bank".

While Paul has devoted much of his time to Rotary, he has also tried to do his full part in civic and professional work. He is honorary vice president of the International Society for Crippled Children and has served as chairman of the Committee on Professional Ethics and member of the board of managers of the Chicago Bar Association and representative of the Chicago Bar Association at the International Congress of Law at the Hague. He has also served as a member of the International Committee of the American Bar Association. He was one of the two recipients in 1934 of the Silver Buffalo Award of the Boy Scouts of America.

WILL R. MANIER

1935-36. He was unanimously elected president at the Atlantic City convention.

During a trip of six weeks on the European continent, and two weeks in England, in September and October, 1936, President Manier visited 22 Rotary clubs in 11 countries and at these meetings there were Rotarians present from nearly a hundred other Rotary clubs.

The receptions and audiences accorded the president of Rotary International by heads of state and government officials in various countries are an indication of the high esteem in which Rotary is held in those countries.

In Italy President Manier was received in audience by H. M. King Victor Emanuel, who is honorary governor of the 46th district of R.I. The reception took place at the King's summer residence near Pisa, where the president of R.I. also had the honor of lunching with the King.

At Rome he was received and had a long conversation with H. E. Benito Mussolini, head of the Italian Government. Il Duce reiterated his great interest in Rotary and was anxious to receive further information concerning Rotary activities.

Among those who greeted President Manier at Milano was Count Franco Ratti (member of the Rotary Club of Milano) a nephew of H. H. Pope Pius XI and at present President of the Council of Ministers of the Vatican State.

At Beograd the president of R.I. was welcomed by Dr. Stojadinovic, past director of R.I. and now the Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs of Jugoslavia.

At Sofia, in the absence of the King and Prime Minister, the president of R.I. was received by the Minister of Education, Prof. Dr. Michaikoff.

At Budapest he was received by the Secretary of State, Dr. Laslo Tahy, and at Vienna he was received by President Miklas of the Austrian Republic, Chancellor Schuschnigg and Minister Perster.

CHIANG RELATES BASIS OF FAITH

In Message to Methodists Leader Tells How It Aided Him in Captivity

COMFORT IN BIBLE

Missive Reveals the Lesson Learned from Christ Led Him to Forget

BOSTON, Mass. — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's deep belief in Christianity is shown in a document received from Nanking by the Methodist American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

In a series of articles written by China's leader and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, printed in The New York Times they told how their Christian faith had buoyed them in the critical days last December when the Generalissimo was held captive by Sian. On Good Friday he sent a message to the Eastern Asia Conference of Methodists, at Nanking, in which he told further of his faith.

"I have now been a Christian for nearly ten years and during that time I have been a constant reader of the Bible," he wrote. "Never before has this sacred book been so interesting to me as during my two weeks' captivity in Sian. I found myself placed under deep devotion, without being a single article belonging.

"From my captors I asked but one thing, a copy of the Bible. In my solitude I had ample opportunity for reading and meditation. The greatness and love of Christ burst upon me with new inspiration, increasing my strength to struggle against evil, to overcome temptation and to uphold righteousness.

"I am, indeed, grateful to all my fellow Christians who continually conferred prayers on my behalf. I was deeply conscious of a strong spiritual support, for which I extend my hearty thanks to all Christians, and to which, before you all today, I testify that the name of God may be glorified.

"The many virtues of Christ I cannot possibly enumerate. Today, being Good Friday, I merely wish to explain some of the lessons I have derived from the trials of Christ. His utterances from the cross are our spiritual inheritance. Entreating forgiveness for his enemies, He cried: 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.' Truly great is the love of Christ. In all my meditations I found these thoughts recurring and providing me with rich spiritual sustenance.

"In this strange predicament I distinctly recalled the forty days and nights Christ passed in the wilderness withstanding temptation. His prayers in the garden of Gethsamane and the indignities heaped upon Him at His trial.

"The prayers He offered for His enemies upon the cross were ever in my thoughts.

"Following the settlement of the Sian affair, the revolt, knowing their unwise and treasonable actions were naturally afraid. Remembering that Christ enjoined us to forgive those who sin against us until seventy times seven and upon their repentance, I felt that they should be allowed to start life anew. At the same time I was greatly humbled that my own faith had not been of such quality as to influence my followers and to restrain them.

"The life of Christ reveals a long record of affliction and constant persecution. His spirit of forbearance, His love and His benevolence shine through it all. No more valuable lesson has yet come to me out of my Christian experiences.

"Dr. Sun Yat-sen was a Christian and the greatest thing he received from Christ was love—love for the emancipation of the weaker races and for the welfare of the oppressed people. This spirit remains with us and reaches to the skies."

Airways Boom For Crowning

London, May 1—(CP)—It is recorded the Coronation ceremonies in early English history attracted visitors by all "highways and byways." This year thousands will come to London by still another way—the airways.

Air officials estimate the coronation will provoke more air travel than any event of any kind in history. European services will be quadrupled to meet the demand, and private planes are being pressed into service by the transport companies.

Schedules from Australia, New Zealand, India and Africa are said to be almost fully booked by prospective coronation visitors and from Continental points the business is proving too heavy to cope with in many places, even with the aid of supplementary machines.

SIMPSON HOME OPEN TO PUBLIC

150 Pay 50-cent Fee to View Girlhood Household

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore home of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, fiancee of the Duke of Windsor was opened to the public here this week.

Despite a cold, driving northeast rain, more than 150 persons paid the 50 cents admission fee and were escorted through the rooms by five guides. They signed a register.

Several months ago the property at 213 East Biddle Street, where Wallis Warfield spent the days of her girlhood, was bought by a company of Baltimoreans under the corporate name of Two Twelve East Biddle Street. It was announced that the three-storey house, located in a once-fashionable district, would be transformed into a museum in honor of Mrs. Simpson.

Few of the original furnishings of the house remain, but the promoters of the venture have placed in the rooms on the first and second floors miniature reproductions of events in the life of Mrs. Simpson.

Among these are a reproduction of Fort Belvidere and Johnson Hall, Mrs. Simpson and the Duke of Windsor. The late King George V, and Queen Mary are shown in miniature with Mrs. Simpson being presented at court.

A bedroom on the third floor, furnished almost exactly as it was when it was occupied by Wallis Warfield in her childhood and early teens, is roped off, but can be seen through the open door.

Some of the original furnishings of the kitchen are to be seen, including a coal-burning cook stove, iron pots, a coffee grinder and blue dinner plates.

In other rooms are miniatures of former King Edward VIII, one of which shows him at a microphone making his broadcast to the world in which he renounced the British throne.

One room is devoted to newspaper clippings in many languages from all parts of the world. There are many paintings and cartoons.

BOY'S STOMACH WAS WRONG WAY

NEW YORK—An operation for "upside-down stomach"—diaphragmatic hernia—has been performed on an 11-year-old boy and is believed to have been successful.

The boy, Joseph Daly, Jr., underwent two operations at short intervals, one to reverse the stomach and the other on the left lung which had been collapsed by pressure on the misplaced organ. Laced inquiries at the hospital elicited the response that his condition was "quite good." The malformation was found when the boy felt a sudden pain in the chest while running.

True Story is Told of Boy Who was Saved from Paralysis

Emphasizes Work of Rotary Club in Interest of Those Children Not so Fortuna te—Rotary's Great Work For Crippled Chil dren is Necessary

"What's the matter, Doc?" a bright-eyed youngster inquired at his chum one day about five years ago while they were playing baseball on an impromptu diamond on the outskirts of a village a few miles away from this city.

"I don't know," replied the youngster, for he was only six years of age, "I have a funny feeling in the back of my head. I think I will go home and see mama."

That afternoon, young Don developed a high temperature. All night long he tossed feverishly in his bed while an anxious mother watched by his side. Early in the morning the family physician was called in. He made a thorough examination of the little body, then slowly shook his head.

"I am afraid to tell you what I think it is in case I may be wrong. With your permission I will call in another doctor," he added.

At the subsequent consultation and examination of the youngster, a murmured something about "a pain in my back" decided the physicians.

They whispered something about polio-myelitis. A few minutes later a high-powered automobile dashed along country roads with an anxious father at the wheel. Life and possible death was the prize of that fateful decision. In the dim light of the dawn a door softly opened. A doctor emerged, his face drawn with long hours of watchfulness and strain. "It is as I thought" he said. "The boy has contracted infantile paralysis, and, while I think we have saved his life, it will be a day or so before we know the extent of the paralysis."

He was right. The dread poliomyelitis had got in its dread work. The bright little fellow, the pride of his ball team, was hopelessly paralyzed from his waist down. But medical skill and science had not yet acknowledged defeat. More serum was injected into that now wasted frame.

One of the country's foremost authorities on the disease was brought in. He shook his head. "There is a small chance that the boy will recover the use of his limbs," he said, "and that rests on the time of injection of the first serum."

He was right. Those few precious minutes gained by the fortunate intervention of a highway traffic officer, and his subsequent escort on that eventful homeward journey represented the difference between a lifetime paralysis and health. The months rolled by and gradually life and movement came to wasted limbs. The best care obtainable was given the boy, and today he again enjoys the reputation of being the best player on his baseball team.

But some children throught the country have not been so fortunate. There are those who after paralysis has set in, could enjoy life in better brighter settings if they were obtainable. And it is to this end that Rotary has pledged itself in their Crippled Children Campaign. There is not a holiday work being done under God's blue heaven than what is being done by this splendid service organization. The alleviation of pain and hardship, and the creation of surroundings for the betterment and possible cure of these little victims of dread paralyzing diseases is an aim that the best and worst of us should take pride in assisting.

FAMOUS SOLDIER HITLER'S ENVOY FOR CORONATION

Von Blomberg was First Nazi Minister of Defence Prince Friedrich Attends in Private Capacity.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal von Blomberg, Germany's Minister of Defence, will represent Herr Hitler at the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

He comes of a distinguished military family. He has perfect command of the English language and in his bearing is as far removed as possible from the usual conception of the Prussian martinet.

Frederic von Blomberg, now 58, became a second lieutenant exactly 40 years ago, a first lieutenant in 1897 and captain in 1911. He served in various capacities on nearly all fronts during the Great War and after 1926 his promotion was rapid.

In 1928 he became major-general, lieutenant-general a year later, and full general in 1930, becoming the first minister of defence under the Nazi regime. Three years ago he was raised to the rank of colonel-general, the highest rank except field-marshal in the German army. In 1930 he took a trip to the United States.

Although he has known Adolf Hitler intimately only since 1933 his devotion to the chancellor is intense. His appointment as minister of defence came about through Hadrey of Muller, then a military chaplain in the civilian under Blomberg's command. Muller, intimate with Hitler, recommended Blomberg for the office and as a reward the clergyman was made Reichsbishop of the Protestant Church in Germany.

Admiral Otto Schuler, another member of the German delegation to the Coronation, has been commander of the North Sea station since 1935. As a midshipman commander he sank a British cruiser in 1916 in the Baltic Sea.

Major-General Hans Stumpff, the third representative of the Reich, has been chief of the staff department of the German Air Ministry since April of last year. He was wounded at Mons in the early weeks of the war.

Prince Friedrich of Prussia, the youngest grandson of the ex-Kaiser, will attend the Coronation in a private capacity on the personal invitation of Queen Mary. Last year he attended the funeral of King George V. as the personal representative of the present exile of Doorn.

Of charming personality, the young prince, who is 26 years of age, has frequently been mistaken for the Duke of Kent during his frequent visits to England.

WILL USE LINERS AS GRAND STANDS

Many Big Ships and Small Craft to arry Spectators

LONDON (CP)—The Coronation Naval Review at Spithead May 20-21, will be witnessed by tens of thousands of spectators from hundreds of vessels. Thirty-three merchantile powers have been asked to take part in the review and each is expected to send a warship.

Passenger liners have been chartered to moor along the Solent to witness the movements, the merchant navy and fishing fleets will be represented and small private craft, as numerous as they will be varied, will scurry to and fro for vantage points.

Liners to serve as "grand stands" will include the Aquitania, Strathmore, Windsor, Arandora, Ranchi, Cameronia, Lancastria, Aranders, Star, Vandyck, City of Simla and Nerissa. It is understood 33 ships will be so employed under fixed moorage while a great number of channel steamers and ferries will be pressed into service. The Admiralty has issued traffic regulations warning that ships must be stopped during the period immediately prior to the review.

The King's invitation to the merchant navy and fishing fleets to send representatives to the review will bring all classes of ships from luxury liners to coastal tramps and trawlers. The yacht clubs have also been awarded berths, both for sailboats and steam.

Show Baby Snaps For Tea Monies

New York, May 1—(CP)— Members of the Hunter College faculty consented to endure that nightmare of the sensitive adult—a public exhibition of their baby pictures for the benefit of the tea fund—in shots of boys in sailor suits, of girls in pinafores and of juveniles of either sex in even more infantile garments that were drawn on them to the delight of upper-class students.

The audience paid five cents each to enter a darkened room during the lunch hour, and each got her money's worth. The receipts will be used for committee teas. The exhibition was a free-for-all guessing game. As each picture was thrown on the screen the operator of the projector called out the department in which the subject was teaching. Sometimes identification was instantaneous and unanimous.

TRY HOME TREES FOR CORONATION

Species for Smokey Cities and Open Gardens Advised

LONDON (CP)—Bearing in mind great trees now flouting their parts in the Empire from saplings planted in at bygone coronations, forestry experts look for a world-wide wave of planting in commemoration of the crowning of George VI. on May 13 and are offering advice accordingly.

It is pointed out by R. St. Barbe Baker, founder of the "Men of the Trees Society," that trees native to the locality and climate, rather than "fancy variegated" imports, should be used in Coronation tree plantings. He suggested first of all the soil and situation should be considered. Then tree-planters must discover if the chosen tree would thrive in the local conditions.

Dealing with trees in smoky cities, Mr. Baker calls attention to London's plan. "The catalpa, or Indian bean, may be grown in smoky localities. The sim, though not generally considered ornamental, will also withstand smoke."

Speaking generally, the oak, ash, sycamore, beech and walnut were all trees of long life, while the poplar grew outwards more rapidly but did not live so long. In England the fig would flourish in cities and the cherry was adaptable to streets.

The hardy willow would grow well by the sea, also the ash, bay, elm, hawthorn, laburnum, lime, sycamore, pines, firs and spruce.

Pyrus, mountain ash, quince, pear and apple were recommended for the English garden and weeping willow for the lakeside.

Drink Husbands In Isle of Man

Montreal, MAY 1—(CP)—Manxland is becoming more an "Isle of Women" than the Isle of Man, according to Captain Curtis Galt in an address before members of the Mechanics Institute. It was an outstanding attraction, he said, as yet unnoted in the guide books.

"More engagements take place and more marriages result from visits to the "isle of Man," Captain Galt said, "than to any other spot in the world." How much the renowned Isolde Wishing Well on Maughold Head, had to do with the situation, he could not say, "but the girl who drinks of its waters will be a radiant bride within 12 months," according to local tradition."

Men, the speaker advised, should drink less deeply, or not at all, of the enchanted waters for the favors were promised to be bride-to-be only.

KEEP WELL-FED

TO BE AMIABLE

New York (CP)—If this is a world of phobias and ferocity, with one nation casting vicious looks at another, it is because too many cooks are preparing too much food badly, says Ford Madox Ford.

"People cannot be amiable with their fellows if they are not properly fed," the author told members of the Gourmet Society.

NOTED MINISTER TO LEAD FRENCH AT WESTMINSTER

Eminent Delegation of Six Members Attending Coronation Will be Headed by Foreign Secretary Yvon Delbos

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)— Yvon Delbos, minister of foreign affairs who heads France's delegation to the Coronation, is well known as an outspoken friend of Great Britain.

He came into prominence slightly more than a year ago when he attacked former Premier Laval's Rhineplan policy, charging him with the dissension of British opinion from France.

During a recent foreign affairs debate in the Chamber of Deputies he described the Franco-British friendship as the keystone of European peace and pledged the use of all French forces, land, sea and air, for the defence of Britain if she were victim of an unprovoked assault.

Aged 51, blunt, unsophisticated in manner, with a familiar close-clipped moustache, Delbos was content to remain in the background of politics for a long time, exerting his influence as a politician rather than as an active politician.

He was marked for distinction after his attack on Laval, and entered the cabinet of Albert Sarraut as minister of justice. He has also been chairman of the Radical party deputies in the Chamber and vice-president of the Radical party at large—the Radicals in France are rather conservative. He is an enthusiastic fan of the French Foreign office.

The prominent continental representative in more senses than one will be Crown Prince Paul of Greece, who, like Delbos, will wear a frock coat. He represented the King of Greece at the Coronation last year.

TUNICS GO WEIGHTY

LONDON (CP)—Looms are turning out 3,600 yards of gold braid to embellish the uniforms of the British forces taking part in the Coronation procession. For the state trumpeters 78 tunics have been ordered, covered with gold braid each tunic weighing eight pounds and costing $375.

SMUTS STRESSES DEFENCE VALUE

Urges South African Union to Look Out For Itself

Port Elizabeth, South Africa (C.P. Reuters)—South Africans had learned from the recent seven tests in which the League of Nations had been subjected that they must look after themselves rather than rely on the support of others might or might not give, General Jan Smuts, minister of justice declared in stressing the importance of the country's defences.

The increase of armaments in Europe might, instead of producing war, produce peace for a number of years. Then it might be possible for the nations to get together again and prepare peace on a better basis.

RECORD DOG SPEED

Arctic Red River, N.W.T. (CP)—Thirty-two mile "mush" this winter by Andrew Johni's dog team in three hours was reported to be the fastest trip ever made over the route from here to Mcpherson. A record for the North West Territories was claimed by John who drove his team to Pierre Creek from Arctic Red River, a distance of seven miles, in 18 minutes. Arctic Red River is about 1,950 air miles northwest of Edmonton.

RHODES HOUSE TO BE MEMORIAL

Capetown City Council Will Take Small Cottage Into Museum

CAPE TOWN (CP)—A small cottage, badly in need of repair, has been taken over by the Cape Town city council and will be turned into a museum. It was in the little house that the Empire-builder, Cecil Rhodes, died.

Today the only indication that Rhodes ever occupied the Muizenberg house is a stone slab near the front door bearing the inscription: "In this cottage Cecil John Rhodes died 26th March, 1902." When restored it will be a national memorial to the man who played such a conspicuous part in the extension of British rule in South Africa.

It is very different to what it was originally when Rhodes used to leave the Groote Schnur slopes of Table Mountain in a Cape cart to spend his leisure hours in the little stone and clay bungalow with the rickety stoop.

There is little to connect it with the past. In the room where Rhodes died is a washstand and an iron bedstead. But in other rooms have been preserved pictures of the Victoria Falls, the Matapos, the De Beers diamond mine and Groote Schuur, all recalling a life of achievement and high endeavour.

After Rev Rhodes died the cottage was taken over by the Northern Rhodesian government, and later by the Rhodes trustees. The original furniture, all of the old Dutch style, as the story goes, was taken over by Tony, who was valet to Rhodes, and was afterwards obtained at an exorbitant figure at a second-hand dealer in the suburbs.

But the furniture was not restored to the Muizenberg cottage. Years after the death of the instance of Sir Abe Bailey, South African mining magnate, the face of the cottage was changed. A thatched roof took the place of the original sheet iron, the stoep was widened.

And then a garden was laid down with a stone frontage wall and a high hedge, while towards the rear, where the large fir trees, there is a sort of cutlery, leading into the caretaker's three-roomed cottage which is also the home of a fisherman's hut.

"Very few people call today," said Miss Whyte, the caretaker. "Most of those who ask to look over the cottage are Rhodesians on holiday."

Miss Whyte, who lives with her brother in the little cottage next door, has been the caretaker for 18 years. She is hoping the city council will retain her services. Her father worked for Cecil Rhodes at Groote Schnur for 35 years.

DOORS WILL OPEN TO EMPIRE FOLK FOR CORONATION

Revised List of Attractions Gives Overseas Visitors a Three-Month Round of Lavish Entertainment

LONDON (CP)—Canadians and other Empire visitors will be invited guests at many of the functions of the most brilliant London season of the century. A schedule of events has been prepared that leaves the reader a little breathless, while hundreds of hostesses have requested the various Dominions and Colonies offices for lists of visitors to be included with their guests.

More than 4,000 requests for seats to view the coronation procession have poured into Canada House. Eight thousand Canadians are expected in London and there will be invitations to take part in everything from the balls at Buckingham Palace to the dinner at the Zoo.

So overwhelming has been the hospitality offered, a special Coronation Hospitality Committee has been formed to co-ordinate efforts, with representatives from Dominion secretariats, the Government Hospitality Committee, the Overseas League, the Royal Society and others. The president is Sir Samuel Wilson of the Foreign Office.

Official Canada will be entertained by the British Government Hospitality Committee, and nearly everyday Mr. John Cannot and his wife will also have an opportunity of seeing how London does things on special occasions.

The revised program and detail of events follows:

QUEEN BESS MADE PECULIAR RIGHTS FOR ABBEY DEANS

Westminster Reports to Bishop And Has Special Duties to King, as Church Head at Coronation

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Special functions fall to the Dean of Westminster at the Coronation service on May 12. The Deanery of Westminster is what is known as a "Royal Peculiar", meaning that the Dean is responsible to the King alone, and does not acknowledge jurisdiction of any Bishop over himself or the other clergy of Westminster Abbey.

For ten years following the dissolution of the monasteries, Westminster Abbey was the "cathedral" of a Bishop of Westminster but Queen Elizabeth finally placed it under an independent Dean and Chapter, whose successors rule today. The endowments, incidentally, of this bishopric were diverted to St. Paul's Cathedral—hence the old saying "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Following the anointing and the presentations to the King of various pieces of the regalia it will be the Dean's duty to vest the King with the Armill and Royal Robe. "Armill" really means a bracelet, an ornament which has been specifically associated with monarch from time immemorial. King Saul was wearing one when he was slain in battle. Nowadays "Armill" is a kind of stole. The royal robe corresponds to a chasuble or cope, and is ornamented with golden eagles symbolical of the sovereign's imperial authority.

It is the Dean's duty also to bear the crown when the Archbishop of Canterbury moves from the High Altar to King Edward's Chair, where the Archbishop "reverently puts it upon the King's head."

World Improves Abbey

The present Dean of Westminster, Rev. W. Foxley Norris, was appointed in 1925, and for seven years previously had been Dean of York. Before that he was Archdeacon of Halifax for 11 years.

Since he came to Westminster, Dr. Norris has striven hard to create an artistic opinion which would allow certain additions to be built to the Abbey and so furnish what he considers would provide adequate facilities for the arranging of processions the storing of vestments and so on. So far the Dean's efforts in that direction have met with little success.

CORONATION DAY MARKS FEAST OF ST. JOAN OF ARC

Coronations Take Place Only on Specified 'Holy Days' And French Now Honored

LONDON—The order of the Coronation of the Kings and Queens of England, as it will be used for the crowning of George VI and Elizabeth May 12, has been in use for more than 900 years and is believed the oldest of such rites in Christendom.

The church has undergone a Reformation, and the state many revolutionary changes, yet the chief guide to the Coronation ceremonies is still the "Liber Regalis", which the Benedictine monks of Westminster composed in the days when many a crusading knight and baron still trod the earth.

In former times the kings, either before or after the ceremony in the Abbey, made a progress in state through the City of London, attended by the Lord Mayor. For many years it was the practice of the sovereign to spend the night before the coronation in the Tower of London and proceed thence by barge along the river to Westminster.

Every sovereign between William Rufus (William II) and Queen Elizabeth was crowned on a Sunday. There is precedent though, for the holding of the coronation on any day of the week and in any month of the year with the exception of March, within the Lenten season.

By tradition coronations may take place only on "holy days" specified in the Liber Regalis. Selection of May 12 for the coronation this year is, indirectly at least, a compliment to the French nation, for it is the Feast Day of St. Joan of Arc.

CLUBS WELCOMING OVERSEAS GUESTS

LONDON (CP)—Most of the great clubs of London are making special arrangements for accepting overseas visitors as temporary members. The Marlborough Club, which is just opposite the gates of Marlborough House, and where many Canadians have been entertained will for the first time in its history admit women on Coronation Day.

Most of the historic city companies such as the Carpenters the Haberdashers the Mercers and the Grocers are holding receptions to enable overseas visitors to inspect their halls and plate of London of many centuries back.

STITCH! STITCH! ON LOVELY WORK FOR CORONATION

Historic School of Needlework Works Long Hours on Decorative Designs For Gowns and Upholstery.

LONDON — My Lord Chancellor may have to go without a new purse for the great seal of England as the coronation. He left his order as lair the Royal School of Needlework that not promise it in time for the ceremony May 12.

Excelling in tapestries and heraldic embroidery this institution was founded by Princess Charlotte 68 years ago. In their great workrooms in Kensington, 120 women needlewomen are working the longest possible hours to finish those which are stretched important work for the coronation.

Chief of their tasks, perhaps, is the Queen's purple velvet train, six yards long and 16 feet wide, then there is the crimson satin for ascending the thrones. The chairs will bear their own coats of arms, each son velvet for the upholstery of the thrones to be surrounded with the arms of England, and the satin for the chairs of the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Kent and the Duke of Connaught, decorated with their arms.

It was by wish of his Majesty that the chairs of Coronation were covered with satin and not with velvet. He lengthingly remarked his velvet desk might catch on velvet upholstery and he might not be able to stay.

Gold Canopy.

One of the most beautiful pieces of work, now in the hands of the needlewomen, is the gold canopy to be held by four Knights of the Garter over the King while he is anointed and over the Queen and her four Duchesses. The cloth of gold is to be decorated with 18 embroidered silver eagles.

The canopy is six feet long, four feet wide and four inches deep. It will be finished with silver fringe and lined with white damask. The four poles of the canopy and silver, were designed by the court jeweller and are masterpieces of fine craftsmanship. The use of such a canopy dates back to the time of Edward the Confessor.

The Queen's train of purple velvet specially woven in Kent and made by the royal robemaker, is to bear a design of raised gold embroidery that includes emblems of every country in the empire. The high commendations of each dominion urged the school with copies of their emblems which met with their approval.

Wave Dominion Emblem.

The formal rose of England occupies the unusual design at the end of the circular train. Above it are entwined the two Ws which Queen Elizabeth has always used as her monogram. Above them again is a great royal crown. Around the King Hak rose and interlaced in a border design the fern of New Zealand, the maple leaf of Canada, the protea lily of South Africa and the lotus of India.

The look of Wales with leafy fronds and tiny roots appears on either side. The wattle blossom of Australia with minute flowers in lovely sprays finishes the top. Interspersed at intervals are acorns, seed of the oak representing the war to less colonies.

Six girls, thrilled with their tasks are busy at work on the gleaming embroidery of the train. Two others—some who have worked at the Royal Needlework School for 60 years—are embossing the satin and velvet of the chair covers in heraldic designs of heavy gold in heraldic colors. The Queen's new coat of arms is being used for her chairs. It embodies the arms of England and bows and lions—an heraldic pun on her maiden name of Bowes-Lyon. This is the first occasion on which this particular coat of arms has appeared.

MAKES CABBAGE FIT FOR KINGS

An American Hostess in Ottawa Reveals Catchy Receipts

OTTAWA (CP)—During her travels in foreign lands Mrs. Ely Elliot Palmer, wife of the counsellor of the United States legation here, collected a variety of recipes designed to tempt the most jaded spring appetite.

For the homely cabbage Mrs. Palmer has one from Roumania that continues where the walrus ended in his "talk, oh, talk about cabbage." Here it is:

"Select a fine, firm head of cabbage. Scald with boiling water and let stand for one half hour. Drain and dry with a soft cloth. Take two teaspoons of rice, one-half pound of cooked meat, a little chopped onion and parsley and mix well.

"Open the centre of the cabbage and carefully put in a spoonful of the mixture between the leaves until each layer is stuffed. Press together, tie in a cheese-cloth bag. Put in salted boiling water and boil for two hours. Serve hot with cream sauce and garnish with fried sausage."

From Spain she has a new dress for the cauliflower:

"Take one pound of cauliflower, cook well in salted water (cold), drain and wash by plunging into a cup of peas, one-half cup of butter, two whites of eggs well beaten. Grease mold, add bread, bake in oven on one-half hour. Serve with white sauce to which has been added cream, grated cheese and an egg yolk."

Ramadan month in Palestine, somewhat similar to Lent, is a time of real hardship for the Arab says Mrs. Palmer. From dawn to dusk he cannot take even a glass of water and that on a hot summer day in Palestine (for this month varies according to the full-moon period) is no joke.

At dawn and at dusk, he can distinguish a hair from a thread up to the sky the Arab can breakfast and indulge in a meal.

For eight people, Mrs. Palmer explained, the Arabs will roast perhaps 30 pounds of sheep and put it on a huge platter piled high with rice. The eight sit around and pluck the desired portions with their hands. Then spiced meat-balls of cabbage meat might be served. "Top it off with a mixture of pastry filled with honey and chopped nuts and then a large slice of watermelon as a digestive and you feel that you cannot possibly eat any more ever."

As a close to her list of recipes Mrs. Palmer has a sweet Papanasi by name, from Roumania: "One pound of cottage cheese, one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of sugar, one egg whole beaten and the yellow of one more. Make into cakes. Roll in flour, fry and serve with cream."

Quaint Heralds Prepare Nation for Royal Fete

Language of Middle Ages Marked Proclamation Heralded Throughout Realm Late at Ceremonies For May 12

LONDON—Crowning of the King and Queen at Westminster Abbey May 12 will be the culmination of intensive preparation officially started with the loyal Proclamation concerning "his Majesty's will and pleasure touching his royal Coronation and the solemnity thereof."

Mediaeval history would have to be ransacked, perhaps in vain, to find the origin of this document, which in its essentials is as old as the realm itself. Very lengthy, in substance it authorizes, "as in times precedent," a "Commission of Privy Councillors "to receive, hear and determine causes which shall be exhibited by any of our loving subjects" to perform services at the Coronation.

The opening sections of the proclamation run:

"Whereas we have received by the Favor and Blessing of Almighty God to celebrate the Solemnity of Our Royal Coronation in Westminster upon Wednesday the 12th day of May next, and forasmuch as by ancient Customs and Usages of this Realm, as also in regard of divers Tenures or assignments of Manors, Lands and other Hereditaments many of our Loving Subjects do claim and are bounden to do and perform divers Services on the said Day, and at the Time of the Coronation as in Times precedent their Ancestors and those from whom they claim have done and performed at the Coronations of Our Royal Progenitors and Predecessors Kings and Queens of this Realm.

We, therefore, of our Princely Care for the Preservation of the lawful Rights and Inheritances of Our loving Subjects whom it may concern have thought fit to give Notice and Publish our Resolution therein, and do hereby give notice of and publish the same accordingly."

The proclamation, in the same quaint terms, goes on to name the privy councillors from whose number the court of claims is to be constituted. The Archbishop of Canterbury is described as "Our right trusty and right entirely beloved Councellor (the Most Reverend Father in God)." The Lord Chancellor is spoken of as "our right trusty and well beloved cousin," and terms as agreeable if archaic are applied to many other qualified personages.

When the court of claims eventually assembled only some half dozen claims adjudicated. The court was not hard worked, for most of the claims had been definitely established either at the coronation of Richard VII or of George V.

It was not open at the court which sat at the time Edward VII acceded, for the long reign of Victoria had naturally led to certain questions upon hereditary rights falling into a dangerous category.

Two days after George VI's accession, Dec. 12, the great officers of the College of Arms, clad in their picturesque garb, which likened them to the court cards in a pack, mounted the battlements of St. James's Palace to hear the first proclamation was here read for the first time. Then the quaint cavalcade proceeded to Charing Cross and close to the statue of Charles I, the heralds came down Whitehall to the place where he suffered at the block, the proclamation was read for the third time. The third time was near the site of Temple Bar in the Strand, and the fourth and final proclamation was made on the steps of the Royal Exchange.

Ancient Thames Regains Glamor for May 12th Event

His Majesty's, Fighting Ships Will Ride The Tides And People of High Degree Travel By Waters

LONDON (CP)—Recalling centuries of British history when the Thames was the highway of travel through London for the barges of both great and humble, the sturdy old river will bear heavy traffic Coronation Day in accordance with established customs of the crowning.

Several peers and other officials of state are preparing to make the journey to Westminster by way of the Thames, hiring launches to convey them from up-river points to Westminster Pier, which lies almost about 300 yards from the Abbey.

This practice was followed by several peers and others at the coronations of King George V. and King Edward VII., and incidentally they appeared to themselves to drive through the crowded streets, with the chance of being obliged to take a much extended route.

Peers and peeresses will wear their coronation robes when they make the journey by water. On landing at Westminster Pier they will proceed through the subway which leads directly to the Houses of Parliament. From the House of Lords it is only a few steps across the road to the Abbey.

Launch owners are making arrangements to take parties along the Thames during the principal days of the coronation festivities, thus enabling them to obtain a view of the illuminations and decorations from an unaccustomed angle. Buildings along waterfront from Westminster to that part of the river below London Bridge known as the Pool will be floodlit.

Of special interest to many Londoners and their visitors will be the opportunity which is to be afforded of viewing the 30 warships of the Home Fleet to anchor in the Thames on coronation week. The vessels will stretch from "the Pool" to practically the mouth of the river.

The cruiser Southampton, flagship of the 2nd. Cruiser Squadron, the cruiser Newcastle and the destroyer will be seen off Gravesend. The Newcastle and Southampton are the latest additions to British cruiser strength, and will be making their first public appearance. Three submarines will be at Tilbury and Gravesend, three craft at Greenhithe, Erith, Woolwich and Greenwich.

Berthing for the "floating hotels" of the lines and steamship upon which several thousands of visitors will be accommodated during coronation week—has already been worked out by the Port of London Authority. Most of the larger vessels will lie in Gravesend Reach, and probably the guests will also make their way towards the West End of London by river smallcraft.

WARDERS GUARD COACH OF KING CORONATION DAY

Yeomen From Town Are Charged With Duty of Escorting King to Crown ing at Westminster

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Surrounding the royal coach on Coronation Day will be those historic guardians of his Majesty known as the Yeomen of the Guard.

The section of the Yeomen permanently stationed at the Tower, and who are usually drawn upon for high ceremonial duties, are known as Yeomen Warders, and these their "fellowships" back to a period as old almost as the Tower itself.

They are selected from sergeants of the Army of long and distinguished service, and are sergeant-majors with warrant rank. They are taken impartially from every branch of the Service, and are appointed by the Constable of the Tower.

The only dignitary amongst the Yeomen Warders is the Chief Warder, who for many centuries was known as the Yeoman Porter, for it still remains his duty to lock the gates of the Tower every night.

At 10 o'clock the Chief Warder approaches the main guard and demands an escort. This is detailed by the Officer of the Guard, and consists of one non-commissioned officer and four men under arms and one in addition, generally a bugler, carrying a lantern. The escort with the Chief Warder carrying the keys, marches off to lock the gates.

All the gates of the Tower are locked and barred, the soldiers on the escort turning inwards and presenting arms. Then the keys and escort march towards the Bloody Tower, but are brought up sharp by a sentry who, lowering his bayonet, challenges:

"Halt, who goes there?" "The Keys," replies the Chief Warder. "Whose keys?" demands the sentry. "King George's keys," answers the Chief Warder. "Pass, King George's keys. All's well," and the sentry then lifts his bayonet and allows the procession to pass.

An Ancient Ceremony

Arrived opposite the main guard the Chief Warder with his escort find the Guard already turned out to receive them. "Guard and escort, present arms," the order given by the officer of the Main Guard.

"God preserve King George!" to which the Guard and escort in chorus reply, "Amen."

A slight pause and then the massed buglers play the nightly "Last Post." For more than 600 years this ceremony has been performed nightly at the Tower of London.

Time and the tides of business during the past half century have proven the soundness of the principles employed in building the London Life.

Foremost among these principles has been "security for policyholders." Strict adherence to this rule has placed the London Life in a position of unexcelled financial strength and enables it to furnish life insurance at low net cost.

It pays to consult a London Life representative. May we serve you?

TALK AFTER-CARE OF T.B. PATIENTS

LONDON—Recognizing the problem of "after-care" arising when the tuberculous patient, cleared of tubercular infection, is discharged from the sanitorium, the Coronation period will be the time for which the invitations, has been taken as opportune for an Empire-wide conference on the subject.

Under the auspices of the Overseas League and the Pepys Memorial Settlement, the conference will be held in London May 3-5, under the presidency of the Marquess of Willingdon, former governor-general of Canada. The announced theme is "The Care and After-care of Tubercular."

The conference will provide a unique occasion for the exchange of views from all parts of the Empire. Speakers will include a number of distinguished medical men including Sir Kingsley Wood, minister of health; Professor R. Lee Dickinson, Lord Dawson of Penn, Lord Horder and Sir Percival Warren. Leaders in these lines will be added others from overseas.

Visitors will be enabled to inspect the Papworth settlement which is rapidly becoming a self-sustaining village. Former tubercular patients go there for care immediately after being discharged from sanitoria. They are given employment for a short period daily under medical supervision, and as occasion offers, returned to regular occupations and normal living.

THE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

A white faced, low headed young-ster lay on the bed in a hospital ward, his wide, deep blue eyes resting upon the ceiling in a dreamy, unfeeling, unconcerned fashion as to what was going on about him.

"Johnny, guess—what!" a happy voice said, and he turned towards a white capped, cheery nurse standing at the foot of his bed.

A cloud passed over the boy's face and then suddenly he burst into tears.

At this unexpected outburst, the nurse quickly stooped down beside him and gathered his frail body in her arms to console him, he continued to weep as if his heart would break.

"Johnny, you shouldn't cry—you ought to be happy—tell me about it —maybe I can help you."

Between fits of crying the nurse gathered the story of the cause of Johnny's outburst. He didn't want to go home—he would be all alone—his mama worked in a bakery all day and his father was a mechanic in a garage.

He had to stay at home, clean the house, make the beds, wash the dishes and prepare the evening meal.

The other boys on the block wouldn't play with him, for Johnny had paralysis of the right leg, caused by a meningitis plague which had swept over the country. He wanted to play Baseball, swim and run with the other boys, but he was only a cripple. The people were nice to him though—the landlady would help him down to her basement home and they would talk for hours, Johnny helping her peel potatoes, string the beans or read the paper to her. The little Flanagan girl used to come over to see Johnny to play with him, but playing with dolls is all-together different from playing baseball—and he, Johnny, was a real boy and wanted to do the things boys do even if he was a cripple.

The nurse listened to Johnny's story and finally, with promises of ice cream, she managed to console him.

"Johnny, I'm going to put your bed closer to Rudolph's as you can talk to him."

After a few minutes of shifting the beds, Rudolph and Johnny began talking.

"Johnny, I am going to camp this summer—here is the application. My papa is going to sign it this afternoon. Here it is—red it —baseball, swimming and everything."

Johnny read it—his little body all thrilled and his eyes sparkling. This is what he read:—"Camp Cheerful, Rotary Club of New York, Sallaire, Yvre Island."

"Gee, I bet it's going to be lots of fun, but how can you play baseball and swim—you're crippled like I am."

Thrifty answered, "The other boys out there are crippled too—but they don't look you do—everything you went out. "Attention Salutes!" The bugle played retreat and as the flag came slowly down the mast, Johnny felt a thrill of pride pass through his body—it was the first experience at retreat. It made him feel a greater pride for the stars and stripes, his country's flag.

After retreat the boys went to the dining hall. It was a white table that he heard someone call. "Johnny!" He turned around and there at another table, was Rudolph, his chum of the hospital days.

UNPOPULAR JOHN SNUBBED CLERGY AT CORONATION

Insisted on Placing Crown on His Own Head But Brought to Time Later on With Magna Charta

LONDON—May is not a popular month for British Coronations and the only previous one of record in the merry month is that of King John in 1199.

John was greatly impressed with his importance and proceeded to exemplify the doctrine of the absolute monarchy. His over-emphasis of the "divine right" of kings led to the historic Magna Charta.

Highly unpopular from the start, as the coronation he seized the crown from the Holy Table and placed it on his head himself, as a sign he held it from God alone. This was one of many incidents by which the king precipitated trouble with his barons. One barons' land war another until he was finally cornered at Runnymede and forced to sign the great charter of public rights.

King John was the youngest son of Henry II, and was granted the kingship of England in 1177, when he was 30 years of age. When he was sent to govern Ireland he returned after a few months' trouble with disgrace, having alienated the loyal chiefs by his arrogance and failing to defend settlers from the hostile Celts. He then remained at his father's side but secretly joined with his brother Richard and the French King Philip Augustus in the great conspiracy of 1189. The discovery of his treason broke the heart of the old King.

Richard on his accession confirmed John's possessions, but excluded him from any share in the regency appointed to govern England during Richard's third crusade. Soon after Richard's departure for the Holy Land it became known he had designated not John but his nephew Arthur of Brittany as his successor and John at once began to intrigue against the regents with the aim of securing England for himself. He succeeded in expelling the unpopular chancellor, William Longchamp, and struck a bargain with Philip Augustus.

When Richard was captured by Leopold, Duke of Austria, in 1192, John and Philip Augustus endeavored to prevent his release, but Richard returned to England in 1194 and pardoned his brother, and on his death-bed caused his barons to swear loyalty to John, whose title was recognized after some hesitation by England and Normandy.

Continental Royal Families To Attend Great Royal Event

Score of Princes and Princesses Among Foreign Notables Expected For Coronation of British King on May 12

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Forty- three nations will be represented at the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth next month and the foreign representatives will include a score of princes and princesses.

Holland sends an interesting couple, Princess Juliana and her husband, Prince Bernhard von Lippe-Biesterfeld. Their marriage only a few months ago aroused world-wide interest. The Princess is 28 years of age and is well known in England, her last visit being made in the summer of 1934.

Rumania's chief representative will be the 18 year old Prince Michael, heir to the throne of King Carol. The young prince, whose official title is Grand Voevod of Alba Julia, underwent a critical operation a few weeks ago. He has been in England before but this will be the first occasion on which he has figured as his country's representative in any great London function. Like his father his skill with a sporting gun is remarkable. His intellectual interests are also in good order, and his pleasant bearing makes him a general favorite.

Norway will be represented by the Crown Prince and Princess, whose official probably knows England better than any member of a foreign royal house.

His father, the 54 year old King Haakon, married Princess Maud, youngest daughter of Edward VII in 1896, and during their early married life this country spent much time in England. Crown Prince Olaf was born at Sandringham 24 years ago. In 1929 he married Princess Martha of Sweden and they have two daughters. Like his father, Olaf is extremely popular in his own land and the Crown Prince and Princess have many friends in England. The Queen of Norway maintains a home on the Sandringham estate and spends a good deal of time here.

Crown Prince Frederik of Denmark, who will be accompanied by the Crown Princess, was born in 1899. The German Princess—they were married in 1935—was formerly Princess Ingrid, daughter of the Crown Prince of Sweden. This royal couple are not particularly well known in London but King Christian of Denmark received a warm welcome here just before the Great War, when the late George V. bestowed upon him the Order of the Garter.

Prince from Siam

Far-away Siam will be represented by Prince Chula Chakrabongse, nephew of the ex-King who has lived in England nearly twenty years and has been out in the host of Princely Callers, Cambridge at the Coronation he represents his cousin, the boy-king Ananda. With another cousin, Prince Birn, well-known as a racing motorist, Prince Chula resides in South Kensington.

Prince Felix of Luxemburg attends for the Grand Duchy, the little principality bounded by Germany, France and Belgium, with a population of 300,000. He is prince in his own right as one of the Parma branch of the Bourbons, and by his Consort to the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxemburg. Prince Felix married the Grand Duchess in 1919, when Luxemburg was freed from Germany by the Versailles Treaty. He is a brother of the ex-empress Zita of Austria.

BISHOPS CLAIM THEIR DUTIES TO GUARD KING

Prelates of Durham And Bath Will Support George VI at Coronation According to Ancient Rule

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

LONDON — Among the prelates with special privileges at the Coronation on May 12 will be the Bishops of Durham, and the Bishop of Bath and Wells.

Their claim to "support his Majesty" was one he had accepted and conceded without question. Support for their claims lay in the fact they are recognized in Liber Regalis, the great authority for all matters concerned with English Coronations which was drawn up for the coronation of Richard II. This book is still preserved in Westminster Abbey.

For the coronation of Jeanne II the claims were justified by a specific note: "The Bishops of Durham and of Bath and Wells have from time to time enjoyed ye claim before ye Councillors of Estate, setting forth that their predecessors in these Sees, from time immemorial were wont allwaies to support ye King of England (ye first on his right hand and ye second on his left) in ye solemn procession and during ye whole service, through out on ye day of ye Coronation."

The Bishop of Durham holds fifth place in the Anglican hierarchy, the two Archbishops and the Bishops of London and Winchester only being senior to him. These sees are known as primary sees, the holders always being members of the House of Lords, whereas other bishops become members according to the order of their consecration.

The present Bishop of Durham, Rt. Rev. Hensley Henson, who was appointed in 1920 after several years as Bishop of Hereford, is a forceful figure in Anglicanism. He advocates disestablishment, but is against the admission of women to the ministry. Dr. Henson is 73.

Is Schoolmaster Bishop.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells, Rt. Rev. J. B. Wynne Willson, has just announced he will resign in November on account of ill-health. He is 68, and not prominent in church affairs at large. Wells is one of the most beautiful of English rural cities and the cathedral has many gracious features. The Bishop's Palace is surrounded by a moat, and is perhaps the finest decree of its kind remaining in this country.

The Bishop belongs to the line of "schoolmaster bishops", for he was Master of Haileybury for six years and of Marlborough for five.

Colonial Empire Sends Delegates to Crowning

LONDON (CP)—From the non-self-governing portions of the British Empire a huge number of representatives is coming to London for the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth next month. This colonial contingent shows in striking fashion the diversified character of the peoples who live under the Union Jack.

The Emir of Trans-Jordan is a member of the Sherifian family which has played so vital a part in the recent history of the Middle East. His Highness Abdullah ibn Hussein, now 55 years of age, is the second son of King Hussein of the Hedjaz and was appointed Emir of Trans-Jordan in 1921.

The Emir's territory is under the same mandate as Palestine, which it adjoins, and has a population of not more than 300,000, with an area that is unknown because its boundaries are not yet definitely determined.

The Sultan of Johore is noted for his magnificent contributions to imperial defence. Johore is in the Malay Peninsula, a rich producer of rubber, cocoanuts and pineapples, along with tin and iron ore. His Highness, Sir Abrahim, succeeded his father as Sultan in 1895 and now is 63 years of age.

Also among the royal guests are the sultans of Zanzibar, of Pahang and of Trengnan.

Altogether about 80 representatives of the non-selfgoverning colonies, dependencies, and of the mandated territories of Palestine and Tanganyika, have been nominated. Governors of such dependencies, for the most part, will be present in their own territories and conduct the local celebrations. A few, however, will be on hand in London and present at Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day.

In the Coronation procession will be a colonial military contingent. Not since Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897 has so colorful a military body passed through London's streets.

The group will include members of the Royal West African Force, The King's African Rifles, the Northern Rhodesia Regiment, the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force and the Malay Regiment. Mounted officers from these forces will form the King's Colonial Escort in the great procession.

PROBLEMS CLING IN UPSET WORLD

'Empire Has Changed Since Last Coronation in Year 1911

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Empire problems this Coronation year are vastly different from those when George V. was crowned June 22 1911, yet in many respects they offer a menacing similarity.

It is in the world outlook that the parallel with 1911 deepens. Then, the menace of a heavily-armed Germany was already discussed in chancelleries of Europe. "It will be difficult to keep the peace for another five years," Viscount Grey, British foreign secretary, wrote despairingly in 1911. Four years later the Empire was at war with Germany.

The League of Nations, introducing the principle of collective security, arose from the slaughter of war. As a vital force in international affairs collective security is already in the shadows. Once more the nations are arming to the teeth. One by one, continental countries have fallen under the sway of dictatorships or their parliamentary systems have been diluted almost out of existence.

TRADITIONS SET HISTORIC ROUTES OF KING'S DRIVES

Every Mile and Turn of London in Line of Coronation Procession Yields Stories of Fact or Legend.

BY THOMAS T. CHAMPION

LONDON—Steeped in history is the route the Coronation procession will follow when George VI and Queen Elizabeth ride, Wednesday May 12. The great Victoria Memorial, the Mall, Trafalgar Square, Whitehall, Piccadilly and other locations that have seen great events in years gone by and the eight miles of historic highway in the heart of the Empire's capital that will be thronged with spectators of the stately cortege.

When the procession emerges from the forecourt of Buckingham Palace it will find pass on the western side of the Victoria Memorial. This massive pile of masonry was unveiled by George V soon after the opening of his own reign, one of the spectators being Wilhelm, then Kronprinz of Germany. One recalls how this former monarch, look up a position on the steps of the Memorial, arrayed in shining armor. On Armistice Day scra of the space neighboring the spot where the Kaiser had looked-on at events beyond his command.

Thereafter the Coronation cavalcade will proceed into The Mall. This spacious tree-lined avenue, runs straight for three-quarters of a mile between Buckingham Palace and the Admiralty Arch. Designed by Sir Aston Webb, the Arch really forms part of the Victoria Memorial, and incudes a house of some pretentions which is the official residence of the First Sea Lord. From the top of the Arch the late Earl Balfour was in the habit of watching airraids during the war.

Trafalgar Square, across which the procession will then proceed, is described as the finest site in Europe. It is exactly a century since the square was laid out. The Nelson Column, 145 feet high, is perhaps the most familiar of all the public memorials in London. For years there existed a demand that a statue of coins lay in the crown of Nelson's hat, but when the column was decorated to the very top for the Nelson Centenary the story proved to be baseless. Canada House looms on one side of the Square, and South Africa House fills another corner.

Among Modern Buildings.

Whitehall and Parliament Square comprise a succession of stately roadway along which the King and Queen will pass. Most of the government buildings which flank each side are modern, as things modern go in this country. Nevertheless King George and Queen Elizabeth will be able to catch a glimpse of the Banqueting Hall of the James I. Kings, a superb creation of Inigo Jones, built as a proposed reconstruction of the old Palace of Westminster. From one of the windows of this still-existing hall King Charles the First stepped to his execution in 1649. The hall is used nowadays as the Museum and Offices of the Royal United Services Institution.

From here the procession will move into Broad Sanctuary. As the name implies, it denotes those precincts of the Abbey where, in the olden days, refugees from the civil power sought sanctuary. A previous King Edward (the fifth) was born here in 1470. The privilege of Sanctuary was abolished at the end of the Tudor period.

This will bring the procession to the Abbey. The return route will for a short time follow the same Hora as that of the approach; until it reaches the Victoria Embankment. Erected upon the left bank of the Thames some 70 years back, it covered up the unsightly expanse of mud such as is still to be seen on the other side of the river. The embankment sidewalks are now flanked by several war memorials, and by less ambitious monuments to distinguished London citizens.

Northumberland Avenue was cut through from the Embankment to Trafalgar Square when the last town house of the Dukes of Northumberland, with its gardens stretching from the Strand to the river, was broken up in 1874. This acreage then became the site for several famous hotels, but most of these have disappeared since the war.

Cockspur street is so-called because a cockpit was once on the site. Nowadays it is mainly notable as housing the West End offices of most of the principal steamship companies.

Pall Mall, like the Mall already alluded to, derives its name from the old-time game of Pall-Mall, which seems to have been an embryonic form of tennis and lacrosse.

Pall Mall nowadays is the heart of London's clubland. One of the handsomest of these buildings is the Athenaeum, devoted to eminent divines, literary lights and other profound folk. St. James street also houses many historic clubs, many of which are directly descended from the famous coffee-houses of the 18th century, in which tit wits and poets were wont to assemble.

The name of Piccadilly remains a puzzle for the historians. Some two centuries back St. James's Church was the ultra-fashionable place of worship in London, and its rectors have yielded at least three Archbishops of Canterbury. The present Archbishop of York, Dr. Temple, was rector for a short time.

Regent Street was originally laid out as an approach to a villa which the Prince Regent, afterwards King George IV, intended to build. Old-timers will remember the symmetrical line of buildings which flanked each side of the street. The destruction of this design some thirty years ago created considerable controversy. The whole length of the street is Crown property, and it is understood that as it is the principal store-section of London and the world, forfeits "a : ture to dignity and gross grandeur and to craftsmanship in fabric. The coronation," he says, "should stimulate advances of art in mass production and increase the beauty in machine-made fabrics."

As if to confirm this view, beautiful materials of heavy silk and rayon have been appearing in London alloy wigged, tailored with spectacular silver and gold designs in luxurious profusion, rich effects that have hitherto only been possible by the use of handwork.

Fine handwork on dress clothes is bound to become more in vogue. Peeresses attended 11 for the Abbey and Lady Smith-Dorrien, trusted friend of Queen Mary and director of the Royal School of Needlework where the royal robes for the ceremony were made, is most optimistic in her outlook: "Needlework has become more and more popular during the last 15 years and all the exquisite embroidery which will go a long way towards making the Abbey ceremony the magnificent pageant which it will unquestionably be, will do much to revive interest in this most enchanting of all pastimes."

Jewellers who have been busy designing on designs for ornaments and coronets, declare "quality fear" will come back into style. "There is no splash to the Coronation, it is all a matter of quality in everything. People begin to ask for 'the best' again."

CROWNS FOR DOTS TO EVERY WOMAN FROM CORONATION

London Trend in Fashions Is Likely For Some Time to Come With Desire For Better Workmanship.

LONDON—Speaking of the Coronation influence, a United States fashion expert has come out frankly with the statement that London would dictate fashions for at least two years. Put the question to the fashion trade in London; they smile and shrug their shoulders.

Out on Canada's prairies, up the veld in South Africa, in the bush lands in Australia, women are going to buy cotton prints for summer dresses printed with crowns, shields and even lions and unicorns instead of just plain-shaped dots, because heraldic designs are being used at a King's crowning.

Hitherto popular bright colors have been toned down to becoming shades to harmonize with vivid scarlet uniforms. Dresses are slim and because of this design some thirty best into the 18 inches allowed for seating each peeress in the Abbey.

Edward H. Symonds, managing director of a great dressmaking house, designer to queens and the nobility, foretells "a : ture to dignity and gross grandeur and to craftsmanship in fabric. The coronation," he says, "should stimulate advances of art in mass production and increase the beauty in machine-made fabrics."

As if to confirm this view, beautiful materials of heavy silk and rayon have been appearing in London alloy wigged, tailored with spectacular silver and gold designs in luxurious profusion, rich effects that have hitherto only been possible by the use of handwork.

Fine handwork on dress clothes is bound to become more in vogue. SPLENDOR MARKED IN ABBEY EVENTS DURING 50 YEARS

Victorian Jubilee And Two Previous Crownings With-in Historic Walls in Past Half Century

BY THOMAS T. CHAMPION

LONDON—The commanding place in English history of Westminster Abbey, scene of next month's coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth, is well known, but it is doubtful if ever its long span of years has seen such a parade of splendor as in the past half-century.

It is just 50 years ago this summer that the Abbey resounded with notes of praise and thanksgiving for Queen Victoria's jubilee. The good Queen had reigned a half century. Before that, it was many years since the Abbey had held a royal festival of marked importance, for the Queen during her long widowhood rarely resided in London except for a few days at a time, and weddings of members of the royal family during her reign were solemnized either at Windsor or at the Chapel Royal in St. James's.

On Jubilee Day (June 20, 1887) the Queen, surrounded by her sons and daughters and grandchildren, once more sat in the historic chair of Edward, and with Lord Salisbury, prime minister of that era, William Ewart Gladstone, leader of the Liberal opposition, and representatives of all estates of the realm, returned thanks for the blessings of a reign of 50 years.

Ten years after there was the silver jubilee of Edward's uncle, but the Abbey was not the centre of attraction on that occasion. The thanksgiving taking the form of an open-air service outside St. Paul's Cathedral. The Queen's carriage, surrounded by a cavalcade drawn from every quarter of the Empire, was placed before the great west font, offering a spectacle of a character even London has never seen before or since.

The Abbey has seen two coronations since then, King Edward VII in 1902 and King George V in 1911. It has also been the church of marriage for most of the members of the royal family of the last generations and as in former centuries it has continued as the last resting place of many to whom the nation wished to give highest honors.

During the last few years the Dean of Westminster, Rev. Dr. Foxley Norris, has been diligent in trying to clear the Abbey of certain monuments to persons who have been found to have no enduring place in history, whatever their eminence at the time of death.

KING'S KINDNESS MARKS CROWNING OF "PEACEMAKER"

LONDON—Strange and even cruel happenings associated with past coronations are scattered so frequently in the roll of English history that the coronation of Edward VII in 1902 stands out by reason of a very kindly incident.

The aged Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Frederick Temple, father of the present Archbishop of York, knelt to do homage to the sovereign but was unable to rise again to his feet.

Edward thereupon left the chair for a moment and gently assisted the stricken primate to his feet. "God bless you, sir, God bless you," murmured the Archbishop. It was on account of Dr. Temple's infirmities that the Archbishop of York, then Dr. Maclagan, crowned Queen Alexandra.

Edward and his Queen, Alexandra, were beloved. Edward having achieved a warm place in the affections of England through his diligent services as Prince of Wales during the latter years of the reign of Victoria. It was the especial distinction of Edward to have been a substantial support of the throne before he was called upon to occupy it. His was exemplary in the discharge of his public duties and in his scrupulous detachment from party politics.

His coronation was postponed by the long drawn-out war in South Africa. Fixed first for June 26, 1902, another postponement was necessary, the King suffering from perityphlitis, which necessitated an operation.

The king's recovery was rapid and the coronation took place Aug. 9. Though shorn of much magnificence which would have been added to it if three months before by the presence of foreign royalties, the ceremony was performed in Westminster Abbey amid great rejoicings.

POLICEMAN'S LONG SWIM

LONDON — Unsuccessfully trying to recover the body of a child, Police Sgt. Patterson swam in darkness through a 250-yard conduit flooded to within six inches of the top, and was warmly commended.

NO INJURIES, OPERATION NEED

CALCUTTA—Private Burke was only slightly hurt when knocked down by a motor car but an operation was necessary to remove his dental plate, which stuck in his throat.

MOUNT GUARD FOR TWO WEEKS

Famous Military Duty of London Will be Daily Feature.

LONDON (CP)—The brilliant military spectacle of mounting the King's Guard from the Horse Guards Parade, will be afforded Coronation visitors daily for two weeks starting May 18.

More than 500 troops will participate in the ceremony which will last three-quarters of an hour. The troops will be drawn from what are known as the West End battalions of the Guards, two of which are stationed at Chelsea barracks and two at Wellington barracks. They will share the duty in rotation. Each day they will march from the barracks to the parade ground, where they will be drawn up facing the Horse Guards. After the band has marched, the escort will "troop the color" down the line, first to slow and then quick time.

Big Price Suggested For Anyone With Feasible Plan For Disposing of Great Pile Atop Toronto's Ridge

By TED FARAH

TORONTO—The thing in Toronto today which, more than anything else, is forcing civic officials closer and ever closer to the fringe of bankruptcy is a huge feudal chateau with a smacking of French, Italian, Scottish and English styles of architecture—and a Spanish name.

The trouble is that the city, involuntarily, finds itself lord and master of the chateau's estate and doesn't know what to do about it. In fact, the city for some years has been in a considerable frenzy not knowing what to do about it. They got it for arrears of taxes in February, 1924.

Quarter of a century old, the behemoth chateau originally was called "Casa Loma", which in Spanish means "the house on the hill". What it has been called since has brought on one libel action and has divided people into two opposing ideological blocs, just like communism and fascism. Only there doesn't seem to be any middle-of-the-road on this question.

First there is the group who write poems and letters to the newspapers praising the picturesque glory of the turrets, towers and battlements of Casa Loma. Among the in arms at one man when city council proposed to wreck the building because it is too big, too expensive to maintain and cannot be put to any immediate practical use. Then the newspapers are flooded with purplish poems and letters which bristle with righteous indignation and Elizabethan eloquence.

There is also the anti-Casa Loma party. When its members are not feeling too bitter they refer to the building as Chateau Built, after Sir Henry Pellatt who built it just before the war at a cost of $1,700,000 and spent another million furnishing it.

But they have other words and phrases for the house on the hill. For example, here are some of the names a casual glance over the records shows: A medieval monument, an anachronism, a romantic affectation, a freak, a throwback to the days of pouring hot lead and boiling oil, a fake, a phony, Calamity House and many another.

Cost Fortune to Run.

During his years of tenancy, Sir Henry Pellatt, who once took a regiment to England at his own expense to participate in the royal manoeuvres, paid $8,000 a year for coal, $10,000 in property taxes and $20,000 for servants. He moved out in 1923. After that there were unsuccessful attempts to operate the place as an apartment hotel and as a revue club. The depression spoiled both after another couple of million dollars had been spent. Then chaos.

After he moved out and suffered some financial reverses, Sir Henry in 1927 sued the London Evening Standard for libel in an article which referred to Casa Loma as "Pellatt's Folly". The paper published an apology. The million-dollar collection of furniture and art objects he purchased for Casa Loma has been scattered over the earth, result of an auction sale. The dream house has turned into a nightmare.

Sir Henry himself hoped Casa Loma should some day become a military institute or a public museum, possibly a war museum. In the course of its history, Casa Loma has been recommended for transformation into a hospital, a military barracks, a war veterans home, a hostel for the unemployed, an art gallery, a pension home for aged artists, writers and musicians, and a railway station. It also has been recommended for oblivion.

Sir R. Wyly Grier, the portrait painter has suggested that a prize of $10,000 be offered to anyone who can lay down a sensible proposal for making some use of Casa Loma.

Latest brain wave for putting the chateau on a paying basis was that of Alderman Percy Quinn, cop fancier and sportsman. Quinn proposed that the Dionne quintuplets be brought down to Toronto from their nursery at Callander and installed at Casa Loma. Then other sections of the baronial structure, with controlled half a city block long, could be rented to concessionaires and the place would become a tourist attraction. The plan would have brought together six of Canada's most astonishing creations—five being the quints. Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician guardian of the quints, did not take kindly to the idea and it since has gone overboard.

So Casa Loma still sits on a hill overlooking a head factory, being of no use to anyone except sweethearts who like to meet in the romantic shadow of its turrets on spring and summer nights.

SYLVAN GLORY FOR TOWER HILL

Structure Surrounding Historic London Pile to be Demolished

LONDON—After years of rubbing shoulders with a bramble of shoddy tenements and obsolete buildings, the Tower of London is to be once more bathed with greenery. Recently Queen Mary inspected the area where it is proposed to demolish buildings at a cost of the public improvement committee of about $434,000.

One huge warehouse which overshadows Tower Hill will give way to a cleared site resembling in old time of King's Green. Trinity Square Gardens will be opened up and replanned and buildings east of the Tower Hill will be removed for another open space.

When the dust of demolition has settled and the area has begun to sprout again the finest remaining portion of the old London Wall, foundations of which were built in 37 A.D. will be exposed to view. The wall stands 35 feet high.

Already an attack on the old buildings has been launched and with further support of the public and authorities in money and cooperation the project can be completed within a reasonable time, it is said.

ARTISTS TOPS AS SPAIN FIGHTS

Life And Custom In War-Torn Country Undergo Many Changes

VALENCIA (U.P.-Reuters) — There are some people who are enjoying the war in Spain. They are the artists.

War posters are everywhere. Many of them, illustrating raiding bombers, huge guns manned by workers and defending soldiers "All the ready," are works of art that would not be out of place in a London or Paris salon.

The artists are men who before the civil war were unable to get into the public eye. Now they are famous, and at a premium. The war has not only transformed bookings but also habits.

Senorita had abandoned the prewar beret or tam o'shanter and now goes hatless. A fad has, in fact, become so conspicuous on a girl that people stop and look round at her. The men are more conservative. They have plenty of time to grow. The popularity of the beret may even be said to have increased, as foreigners and Spanish alike generally succumb to its "all round" appeal.

The Spaniard, formerly very "up conscious" has now become aware of his dignity. Neither porters nor waiters will accept "the crumbs from the rich man's table." "Equality for all" is the cry and "Camarada" the universal greeting. It is the first word uttered when men meet and "adios Camarada" is the good-bye.

Only two things seem conspicuously lacking to the foreigners in Republican Valencia: they are peace and good military bands.

DOMINIONS POUR THEIR GOODS IN FOR CORONATION

Canada's Lumber, Needles and Pins Help to Boost Nation's Imports to Mother Country in Bumper Year.

LONDON—Canada is well up in the list of British dominions and colonies showing increase in imports to England directly as the result of the Coronation with its festivities and great influx of tourist-traffic.

It is estimated 90,000 Coronation visitors will view the procession from stands with planking and seats of British Columbia fir. About 4,500 tons of timber were imported for the purpose in three-inch planks. It said and to end that would be 900 miles of timber—90 miles of seat alone.

Imports of needles and pins from Canada have also increased. Engand bought $500,000 worth last year when dressmakers first got in their stocks for coronation dressmaking. Hair stockings, spark plugs, tennis shoes and canned lobster, to say nothing of $1,700,000 worth of canned fruits are on the list of increased imports from Canada to a land preparing for holiday making.

There is also a big up-trend in importation of Canadian food-stuffs to feed the multitude, an increase stimulated by the "Canada Calling" campaign in British cities. The Dominion is doing well in coronation business to boost its growing trade. In 1931 exports to Great Britain totalled $107,320,000; in 1936, $209,800,000 according to trade commissioner's figures. Other Dominions report trade increases.

Demand For Wool.

Greater demand for wool than had been expected is reported by the Australian trade commissioner's office. Much of this will be woven into material for large flags and into the new wool laces and wool and silk fabrics that are recognized "coronation fashions".

All available dried fruits and tinned fruits are being shipped from Australia to fill Britain's large orders, arriving in ships packed to capacity with tourists and food.

Mangoes from India may not seem a coronation requirement, but the Indian trade commissioner is keen to make them so. He is aiding Indian growers with their problems of transportation, so that displays may be arranged during May and England become "mango-minded".

From India come thousands of dozens of penny flags, made of cheap Indian cotton by women mostly in houses and be waved by school children. Bright cotton hunting and shirting silks are Indian coronation imports much in demand.

Foods From Seats.

South Africa's representatives speak with pride of a recent 10-day period when 700,000 cases of delicious fruit—grapes, peaches, pears, and other such products of their country, were unpacked from refrigerator ships at British docks, a volume that equals the whole total of similar South African importation of 1914, a record year. Peaches at "suppence," large purple grapes at sixpence a pound will be the South African coronation contribution.

Gold and diamonds are matters of government and syndicate control but Bond street jewellers report revival.

Rhodesia's trade officers mention of an increase in English interests of silver and chromium for plating such as is used on souvenir, in cigarettes and tobacco but more especially a large jump in the orders for orange and grapefruit to be delivered in May.

TREK YEARLY TO VIMY RIDGE

Belgian Legion Make Annual Pilgrimages in Remembrance

BRUSSELS—The Canadian Legion of Belgium has announced it would make annual pilgrimages to Vimy Ridge, the date for the first one being provisionally fixed for Sunday, July 26.

The legion is composed of Canadian ex-servicemen living in Belgium. Besides working on behalf of its members, the legion has been instrumental in keeping alive a memory of Canada in a country where so many Canadians lost their lives during the great war. The little band of Canadians parade with their flag on Remembrance Days and like occasions.

The legion is anticipating being accompanied on its first pilgrimage by a number of Canadians in England and also Canadians and United States citizens who happen to be in Brussels at the time.

Arrangements are being made by the legion for the purchase and laying of flowers and wreaths on Canadian graves in response to any requests received from Canada.

WITH KNOWLEDGE MYSTERY PASSES

Wonders of Voltage Simplified in Understanding, Inventor Says

DETROIT (CP)—Denying there was any mystery in the world, Chas. F. Kettering, vice-president of research for General Motors, fried an experimental omelet in the midst auditorium of the company's building, declaring the necessary heat from an electric coil buried beneath a tray of ice cubes and a folded newspaper. The Detroit News says:

With only a casual reference to his own contributions to the accepted conveniences of this age of the machine, Kettering traced the development of three major industries—telegraph and telephone, electric lighting and motion picture—pausing momentarily to operate one of the numerous gadgets arranged on the stage.

Among the most sensational of his exhibits were demonstrations of the stroboscope by which a light flickering 1,700 times a minute made a conveyor model engine turning over at the same speed appear to stand still; of an ultra-violet ray lamp which revealed brilliant colors in otherwise drab-appearing cook; an oscillograph which pictured the sonal vibrations of speech and music; and a 1,000-cycle electro-magnet which produced an inverse effect on an aluminum ring, projecting it high into the air.

And for his crowning touch, Kettering combined two colorless liquids into a large test tube to produce a brilliantly glowing solium of bluish liquid light which bubbled over onto the floor in a shimmering cascade.

Conceding that "various scientific experiments are fascinating, Kettering maintained that each one is basically simple.

"Modern progress does not depend on mystery or complicated apparatus for advancement," he said. Most of these things are developed quite accidentally—but (and this was a very big but) they wouldn't have been stimulated if some one hadn't been walking around where these things were.

"There isn't any mystery in the world. Everything is simple provided you have the proper understanding.

THE PROGRESS OF ROTARY

(A BRIEF HISTORY)

of their members as "additional active members" in the club.

When the Chicago Club grew too large to meet in members' offices, it was proposed to meet at luncheon, or occasionally at dinner. From the name "Rotary" and the thought of rotation among one's friends, came the inspiration for the Rotary emblem which was designed as a simple wheel, in 1905, and after passing through various stages evolved as a cog wheel which was officially adopted in 1924.

In an address at the Rotary convention in Portland, Oregon, 1911, the late Arthur Frederick Sheldon, one of the early members of the Rotary Club of Chicago, used the expression: "He profits most who serves best", and this was adopted as the best expression of the principles of Rotary. Some years later the phrase "Service Above Self" was coined and the two expressions were united in 1916 to form the Rotary motto of today.

When there were sixteen clubs in the United States, the founder felt that there should be some co-operation between them. The chairman of the committee on extension in the Rotary Club of Chicago was Chesley R. Perry, young librarian and teacher. These two brought together in Chicago the representatives of the sixteen clubs in August, 1910, and the National Association of Rotary Clubs was founded. Paul Harris was the first president and Chesley R. Perry, chairman of that convention, was persuaded to do the secretarial work.

In January of 1911, Secretary Perry published part of a lengthy article on Rotary written by Paul Harris as the first issue of a magazine named "THE ROTARIAN". Six months later a second issue of the magazine was published, and at the Portland convention (1911) authority was given to make the magazine a regular monthly publication. There was still a need for a more specific statement concerning Rotary. Rotarian Guy Gundaker of Philadelphia already known as the author of codes of standards of correct business practice for trade associations, prepared "A Talking Knowledge of Rotary" which was the first of a series of pamphlets on Rotary's purposes and activities.

Soon after the formation of the National Association of Rotary Clubs, Rotary took root in Winnipeg, Canada. On visits to London and Dublin, American Rotarians launched the Rotary clubs there and at the convention in 1912, the name International Association of Rotary Clubs was adopted. This was shortened to Rotary International in 1922.

Cuba was the first non-English speaking country to welcome Rotary. The Havana Rotary Club was chartered in April, 1916. On the continent of Europe, the first club was founded at Madrid, Spain, in 1921. In South America, the first club was formed at Montevideo, Uruguay, in 1919. In Australia, the first club was formed at Melbourne in 1921. In Asia, the first club was formed at Shanghai, China, in 1919.

This extension of Rotary brought increasingly difficult problems. The 1920 convention at Atlantic City authorized a committee to draw up a new constitution, but the preliminary draft was rejected by the next convention, at Edinburgh, Scotland, and a new committee of thirty-one Rotarians was authorized. This group met in Chicago in November, 1921, and after seven days of deliberation drafted the constitution which was adopted at Los Angeles in 1922. At the same time, the committee revised and re-worded the objects of Rotary into six objects. At the Mexico City convention these were re-worded to form four objects relating generally to club service, community service, vocational service, and international service.

One of the earliest activities of the Rotary Club of Chicago, and doubtless of most other Rotary clubs, was a share in community service. Some began to think that Rotary was growing into a benevolent movement and appeals for assistance sometimes became uncomfortable pressing. At last there came a time when the leaders saw the danger that Rotary might become merely another philanthropic organization and at the St. Louis convention in 1923 there was adopted for the guidance of Rotarians and Rotary clubs, a statement of the Policy of Rotary toward Community Service. Without fixing limitations upon Rotary club activities in community service, this statement asserted that the primary objective of the Rotary club is to train its members in service.

By this time there were innumerable essays and addresses on Rotary and its purposes. There were viewpoints as different as the customs of the fifty countries in which Rotary clubs had then been established. Club activities and objectives had gradually been centered under the categories of club service, vocational service, and community service. Later international service was added. There was possible a lack of harmony between these four branches of service, and a lack of coordination which might result in over-emphasis upon one or more to the neglect of another. To meet this need, the Aims and Objects Plan was created and tried out for a year among the clubs of Great Britain. It provided for an aims and objects committee which should keep the club program carefully balanced between the four forms of activity. The Ostend convention in 1927 adopted this plan, which has since become effective in almost all Rotary clubs.

Thus Rotary has developed in its 1st quarter century, finding spokesmen and leaders as the need arose, receiving guidance along its original course as viewpoints varied, gaining strength and recognition in country after country until it can truly be said that Rotary encircles the world.

It was the founder's purpose to bring together some of his friends and their friends in a club designed primarily to encourage fellowship among the leading business and professional men of a community. Rotary in all its growth and expansion has held steadily true to these fundamentals. Leaders set an example of business and professional standards. Leaders set an example in improving their communities, commercially and socially. Leaders guide the thought of their fellow citizens toward a better international understanding. These are the obligations of a Rotarian.

Rotary begins with the individual and his responsibility in his own vocation which is the subject of greatest concern to every man. Outside his vocation, a Rotarian has his duties as a good neighbor and citizen. Beyond this, the Rotarian develops the international viewpoint. Nations are but such close neighbors, their daily life is so closely woven together through dependence upon each other's products, goods and services, that the international mind is one of the most important characteristics of a leader in business and the professions. War is not prevented by some spectacular effort at the eleventh hour but by a gradual education of the people and their statesmen.

There is today a chain of over 4,100 Rotary clubs encircling the world. In each of them the Rotarian visitor is greeted with a friendly handclasp. There are more than 175,000 Rotarians in these clubs, each of them extending his influence in his own small circle, each inspired by the thought of "service above self".

QUEEN ESCORTED BY TITLED FOLK FOR CORONATION

Her Majesty's Arrival in Abbey May 12 Will be One of Most Impressive Parts of Pageant

LONDON (CP)—Fifteen women of noble rank will accompany Queen Elizabeth during her procession into Westminster Abbey on the morning of Coronation, expected to be one of the most impressive and spectacular moments of the entire pageant.

Before the Queen's company enters, other processions precede her; the royal representatives of other countries; visiting princes and princes and princess of the royal blood; Abbey beadle leading the chaplains and clergy of Westminster; officers of the orders of knighthood; standard bearers of the Dominions with their standards; standard of England and the royal standard; the prime minister of the United Kingdom and the prime ministers of the Dominions.

The keeper of the jewel house will walk directly ahead of the Queen's regimus, bearing on a cushion two ruby rings and a sword for the offering. Behind him follow the Herald of York, the Herald of Windsor with a herald extraordinary appointed for the occasion in the picturesque talaraid.

Next will come two peers bearing the Queen's regalia the Ivory rod with the Dove and the Sceptre with the Cross. Between these noblemen will be the lord chamberlain of her Majesty's household the Earl of Airlie.

The Queen's crown will be carried directly in front of her by the Duke of Portland accompanied by two sergeants-at-arms and a page. Her Majesty will be supported by two bishops, one walking on either side. She will wear a plain gold circlet on her head and have her six-yard purple velvet and ermine train carried by her maids of honor or trainbearers, dressed alike.

They will be: Lady Iris Mountbatten, 17 year old daughter of the Marquess of Carisbrooke, cousin of the King and one of the bridesmaids to the Duchess of Kent; Lady Ursula Manners, 20 year old daughter of the Duchess of Rutland and keen rider to the hounds; Lady Elizabeth Pagel, daughter of the Marquess and Marchioness of Anglesey, who is also 20; Lady Elizabeth Percy, 21, an elder sister of the Duke of Northumberland; Lady Margaret Cavendish-Bentinck, grand-daughter of the Duke of Portland who is just 19 and Lady Diana Legge, third daughter of the Earl of Dartmouth, former lord great chamberlain.

Queen Elizabeth is following the precedent set by Queen Mary, who had six ladies as trainbearers. Queen Alexandra's train was carried by pages. The mistress of the robes, the Duchess of Northumberland, an old friend of the royal family, will follow.

Bows Before King

After the Queen has been anointed and crowned she will walk slowly towards the King's throne and make an obeisance before him. As she does so, the mistress of the robes and the six trainbearers bow with her and then range themselves behind the Queen as she takes her place on the throne.

During the anointing a golden canopy is held over her Majesty's head by four duchesses dressed alike. These will be: the Duchess of Norfolk, a recent bride; the Duchess of Buccleuch, sister-in-law of the Duchess of Gloucester; the Duchess of Rutland and the Duchess of Roxburghe.

Following the mistress of the robes will walk the ladies of the bedchamber—Countess Spencer, Viscountess Halifax, Viscountess Hambledon, Lady Nunburnholme. They are followed by the women of the bedchamber, Lady Helen Graham, Lady Katharine Seymour, Lady Hyde, Hon. Mrs. Geoffrey Bowlby and Lady Victoria Wemyss.

If any additional maids of honor are appointed they will walk after this group and ahead of the treasurer to the Queen, Rear-Admiral Sir Basil Vernon Brooke, who is 61 and instructed King George VI. in seamanship.

RANKS OF RICH GROW IN BRITAIN

Surtax Assessments Show Millionaires Increase by 49

LONDON (CP)—After steadily declining for some years there were 46 more millionaires in Great Britain and Ireland last year and 2,030 more persons with annual incomes exceeding $10,000, while the aggregate incomes of all such persons increased by $85,875,950.

The full figures, which are based on surtax assessments made at Sept. 30 last on 1934-35 incomes, are included in the report of the commissioners of inland revenue for the year March 31 last. The number assessed was 25,449, with an income of $2,151,897,520.

Those with annual incomes exceeding $150,000 or the millionaire class, number 234, compared with 775 the previous year. There were 60 persons last year with incomes ranging from $375,000 to $500,000 and 69 with incomes exceeding $500,000.

In the previous year the numbers were 80 and 64 respectively.

FILM ACTORS' INFLUENCE GREAT

Greater Than That of Religious Leaders Says Chaplin

LONDON (CP)—A conversation in which Charlie Chaplin agreed that film stars had more influence in the world than archbishops was related here recently by Viscount Stedidico at a meeting presided over by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Lord Stedidico explained the conversation took place some years ago when he was the guest of the famous movie comedian at Hollywood. Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks were also present.

The viscount had said: "I suppose you people have more influence in the world than even our most eminent archbishops?" and Chaplin replied: "Haven't I said so, Doug, before!"

When the viscount asked them what they were doing to improve the tone of films, Chaplin answered: "You cannot supply the public with what the public does not want. However, what we want more than anything else is an improved demand and better taste on the part of our customers."

SCOTLAND AGOG FOR HIGH SPOT IN CORONATION

Full Evening Court at Holyrood With Special Celebration in Honor of Queen's Northern Birth.

EDINBURGH—The Scottish capital is planning a season of festivity on a scale unknown in the northern country since the crowning of King George V in 1911.

Chief among the high events in Scotland's celebration of the Coronation of George VI and Queen Elizabeth will be the evening court at the Palace of Holyrood House in July. Such a function has not taken place at Holyrood since the war though in other years when King George and Queen Mary visited Edinburgh they held afternoon drawing rooms when the presentations by the king's command, were considered equivalent to presentation at court.

That the Court at Holyrood on this occasion is to be an evening Court is taken as possibly due to the fact the Queen is a Scotswoman, and is desirous to grant her countrywomen in enabling them to have the Court at Edinburgh modelled on the same lines as those of London.

When Edward VII and Queen Alexandra made the only Court they held at Holyrood an afternoon affair. It was ever afterwards referred to as "The Bonnet Court". King George and Queen Mary held one full-dress Court in the old Stuart Palace at the beginning of their reign, but for some reason their Court in Edinburgh were afterwards always held in the afternoon.

In any event the Scottish Court will differ from those of London in several details. The Royal Company of Archers, the King's bodyguard of Scotland will be on duty in the State Rooms in their uniforms of green cloth embroidered with golden lace, kilts and cocked hats of black silk with a plume of green cocktail feathers.

The two Pages of Honor who attend the King and Queen will wear different dress, too, with single-breasted frocks of green poplin and three-cornered hats trimmed with green feathering.

Edinburgh is planning her scheme of exterior decoration after an examination of the carnival methods of several continental towns. In place of bunting and other artificial ornaments, Princes Street is likely to be garlanded with millions of real flowers. Triumphal arches will be placed at several points both the Princes and other streets.

It is hoped their Majesties will make a State entry into the capital with an escort of Life Guards, and that the King will receive the city boys actually on the road, instead of at the railway station as in previous royal visits.

On Coronation Day a special service will be held in St. Giles' Cathedral, followed by a distribution of gifts to scholars and the aged poor. Entertainments are also to be arranged for the Mission Halls of the Dominions, and for troops from overseas who are expected to visit Edinburgh.

As recently as last December—within a fortnight of their accession—their Majesties visited Edinburgh. The Duke of York as he then was attended a luncheon to Grand Lodge Masonic delegates, and the Provost of Edinburgh was conferred upon the Duchess. The reconstructed Deconess Hospital was opened by the Duchess.

FEAST FOR GODS WINS BIG PRIZE

Columbus Woman Takes National Honors With Bill-of-Fare

NEW YORK (CP)—A pleasant woman from Columbus, O., named Mrs. Hugo P. Angell gained some advice on how to have a happy home. It ran like this:

Crisp celery hearts, ripe olives, whole shrimp dipped in mayonnaise on toast rounds, barbecued young chicken, browned cauliflower with cheese, hubbard squash, buttered peas, pineapple-grapefruit-apricot salad with French dressing, icebox whole wheat rolls and gooseberry and currant tart with whipped cream.

That was the menu by which she was declared winner of the cookery competition of the Women's National Exposition of Arts and Industries. Contestants chosen from all over the United States took part. The dinners were rated on the following points: Fifty per cent. on nutritional balance, 30 per cent. on appearance, 10 per cent. on seasoning and flavor and 10 per cent. on cookery technique.

It was worth $500 to Mrs. Angell to win. It was worth practically any figure to be one of the judges.

REGALIA CENTRES IN THREE CROWNS MADE SINCE 1660

Canadian Peeress Sees Good Omen in Princess as Heir-Presumptive

LONDON (CP)—Much of the priceless regalia to be used at the coronation of the King and Queen May 12 is fairly modern. The troublous times of the Commonwealth (1646-60) caused a considerable amount of the sacred crown jewels to be dissipated, although with the Restoration of Charles II, some of the old monarchial luster was restored and used ever since.

The three crowns used in the Coronation service are all comparatively new, as English history goes. St. Edward's crown, with which King George will actually be crowned, was made for the coronation of Charles II. It received its name because of a supposed resemblance to that worn by Edward the Confessor, as well as by Alfred the Great.

The surrounding arches of this crown at first bulge outwards and then curve back to form a summit slightly depressed at the centre. Upon its rim are four Maltese crosses, denoting the sovereign's religious headship, alternating with four fleurs-de-lis—a survival of England's one-time dominion in France.

This crown is quite heavy, weighing nearly five pounds of gold covered with jewels. At the coronation it is placed upon the sovereign's head by the Archbishop of Canterbury, but it will be replaced almost immediately by the state crown.

The imperial state crown in contrast weighs not more than 39 oz. It is the one used when King opens parliament. It was made for Queen Victoria, the stones being taken from older crowns. More than 6000 gems are contained in this crown, the most striking being the ruby of the Black Prince. This great gem is set in the front. It is uncut and as big as a hen's egg. The ruby was worn by Henry V, in his crocodile helmet at the Battle of Agincourt.

Of gold and richly-jewelled, the crown of state has surmounting arches rising sharply from their bases to an elevated summit. This is actually the crown made for Queen Victoria in 1838, when it contained nearly 2,800 diamonds, 277 pearls, 17 sapphires, 11 emeralds and five rubies. It was refashioned out of gold for a girl in her teens, being refitted for King Edward VII and George V.

The third is the Queen Consort's crown, with which Queen Elizabeth will be crowned. This is very similar to St. Edward's crown, being of gold set with jewels.

Only diamonds are used in the Queen Consort's crown, and the half arches are detachable, leaving an open circlet which the Queen wears on state occasions. In front of the crown is the famous Koh-i-noor.

SAW ILL OMENS AT CORONATION OF CHARLES 1ST

Sceptre Was Broken And Bishop's Address at Crowning Ceremony Drew Unfavorable Criticism

LONDON (CP)—Of all the prophetic incidents associated with English Coronations, one of the best known is that of the crowning of Charles I, in 1626, when the left wing of the dove on the sceptre broke off during the ceremony. It was hardly surprising that in this mishap the superstitious saw an omen of the King's fate at the block 22 years later.

This was perhaps the most dismal coronation ceremony in English history.

Everything seemed to go wrong and each unfortunate event was taken as a warning of coming disaster.

At first there could be no coronation because of the Great Plague in London. Then the King's barge was run aground. There was a feud raging within the Chapel of Westminster, an unseemly struggle between Archbishop Laud and Dean Williams as to who would officiate, the former carrying the day.

When the wing of the dove on the Confessor's sceptre was broken another of gold was substituted in its room by the King, and this was the first infringement of the old regalia.

The text selected by the Bishop of Carlisle who preached the Coronation sermon—he died soon afterwards of jaundice—was regarded by many as more appropriate for a funeral. "I will give thee a crown of life." The critics of the day had much to say about it.

During the solemnity of the coronation earthquake shocks were felt. Finally the King changed the royal mantle of cloth of gold for one of white satin, which carried him the title of the "white King." But it was not according to form.

Charles I had been created Prince of Wales about his 16th birthday in 1616, and his coronation shortly followed his accession to the throne on the death of his father, James I, 1626.

Two civil wars, bitter religious strife and fatal parliamentary disputes between King and parliament ended in the beheading of the ill-fated monarch January 30, 1649, and the inauguration of the Commonwealth under Oliver Cromwell.

HUMOR VISITORS, CANADIAN URGES

Coronation Hosts Advised Not to be Too Heedful of Criticism

LONDON — Under the heading "Our Canadian Visitors", the Morning Post publishes on its editorial page the following observations by an editor in the London Bureau of The Canadian Press:

By I. NORMAN SMITH

(A Canadian Journalist In London)

Much is being said and done to make Coronation visitors from overseas feel at home. The plans vary in scope and method, but to a Canadian "three cheers green" it seems the fundamental object should be to assure the visitors a peep behind the flags and bunting.

Pomp and ceremony there will be, and rightly, but that's pretty heavy as a steady diet. Let them alone to find your England; and they'll go home wagging their tails behind them.

What will they find? Probably just what they came to see, according to their nature. The ruling downs, the ahipyards; the thatched roof, the coalmine; the mad Metropolis, the village green; the quaint, the novel and the well-worn.

Let them mingle, let them wander. They'll be critical, but don't be too heedful. It seems to be the insidiously right if very visitors tell England what's the matter with England. They'll damn you for your inconsistencies, and then return home and exclaim with pride that England has retained her personality. They'll mock your tea hours and long week-ends, but jealously confide to their friends that England knows how to live.

Whatever you do, don't be eternally asking them what their country thought of the abdication, or will they go to war for Britain, or do they find times are better? The generalities and stock questions discussed between chance acquaintances are the bane of the thoughtful traveller, though offered for conversation with the best best intentions.

Why not tell them about your flowers, what you read, where you go for holidays, and why you prefer cheese to sweets? Then, if you find they're serious, and want to talk objectively, meet them half-way.

It would be kinder not to tell them even confuse Glasgow with Dublin; but before you reply in smug condescension, see that you know the capital of Saskatchewan and the location of Tasmania. Nor would it be wise to introduce your visitor around your club as a Colonial curio, for quite possibly he's not the rube he looks.

On the other hand, they'll exasperate you by everlastingly making comparisons. "At home we do this better . . ." has been worn so ragged as to warrant a poster at all ports advising members of the home lovers' club to stay on board. They may be rude about your coffee, sigh at the sight of another spruce, and shiver in your damp home. And if you regret that the Englishman likes fresh air and cold baths, the visitor may ask you why in the name of English cleanliness and hardiness you don't take a shower bath after a round of golf, as do all self-respecting Canadians.

But enough of this "everlastingly making comparisons."

Yet it may be that a generous understanding will more genuinely please your Coronation visitor than painstaking kindness. Respect begets respect.

LOOK FOR TREND TO FAMILY LIFE

LONDON—Prominent London women discussing Coronation influences deeper than those of fashion and trade predict a resultant trend towards "return to family life". Virtues almost forgotten will become smart, these prophets predict.

The Canadian-born Marchioness of Donegal (Violet Twining of Halifax) active chairman of the Canadian Women's Club in London, expresses this point of view: "This simple and happy home life of our King and Queen and their two little daughters will endear them to all air and cold baths, the visitor may and create a special bond throughout the Empire. That the heir to the throne should be a princess is a good augury. The reigns of Queens have been great periods in our history and we should, therefore, look forward confidently to the future."

RUNS FROM OPERATION

VRYHEID, South Africa—Frightened at the prospect of an operation, a 50-year-old girl escaped from hospital clad in a nightgown, running several miles before she was caught and returned to the institution.

TWINS SURVIVE

Drumheller, Alta. (CP) — Stanley Frank and Hugh Cecil Parker, tiny twins born Jan. 8 are now out of their rude apple-box incubator and on their way to lusty health, due to the care of doctors and nurses at the Municipal Hospital.

TOO OLD TO DRIVE

LONDON—Charged with careless driving, a 68-year-old taxi driver was told he was too old to drive in London streets. The defendant, fined $18.25, had been driving twenty-five years.

CIRCUS IS HOST TO 14 THOUSAND

They Are Children Who Prove to be Ideal Audience at New York

New York—The band went through its motions at a special performance of the Ringling Barnum and Bailey Circus, but it was unable to make much noise. There were too many mouth whistling.

For the circus troupe was putting on one of its favorite performances —before 14,000 of New York's underprivileged children (plus an unknown number of "ringers"). Adults were kept to a minimum, just the supervisors, teachers and guardians of the children, from 6 to 16, who came from 250 welfare institutions and crowded into Madison Square Garden to form the "big top's" ideal audience.

They arrived by bus, patrols car and subway, clamoring to get in and be seated as early as 8 a.m. (the circus started at 2.30). Most of them never had seen a circus before. Among them were 200 crippled children, some wearing braces and others on stretchers. As they were carried in to the arena borne by uniformed ushers, their smiles and those of seventy-five blind children from the New York Association for the Blind were as bright in anticipation as the happy looks of their more fortunate friends.

Whistling and peanut eating started immediately, and within an hour the ushers seemed to be walking ankle-deep in peanut shells. When the circus started the whistling began in earnest, drowning out everything but some resounding cheers and never letting up.

For two hours the performers put on almost their complete show. Wild applause greeted every act, but the greatest action went to Colonel Tim McCoy and his horse, familiar figure to the children who seen movie goes. Second in popularity was the high-wire act that closed the show. Gasping as the antics of the tight-rope clown and his fellow artists, the children gave them thundering approval.

Seated in a box on the yard was Edward, beaming like the father of the flock was Edwin M. Hydeman, who was responsible for the big event. Mr. Hydeman, a retired merchant, spends his time obtaining free tickets for children for circuses, baseball games, hockey matches and other forms of entertainment and sports.

He has done his "labor of love" for twelve years, co-operating with him were the circus authorities and Colonel John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation. Mr. Hydeman said there were 80,000 applications for tickets to the circus party.

GOWN FOR QUEEN IS ALL BRITISH

Her Majesty Drives to Abbey Unveiled and Returns Wearing Crown

London, May 1—(CP)—All-British materials are being used in the making of the Coronation gown of Queen Elizabeth, which will be much on the lines of that worn by Queen Mary at her own Coronation in 1911.

The latter gown now hangs in the Ontario Museum at Toronto, cut on the same lines, with short sleeves, finishing above the elbow, and a little chemisette of lace.

Symbolic embroidery, combining the emblems of Great Britain and Empire, will decorate the dress back and front. Oak leaves and acorns, the Tudor rose, the thistle, shamrock and Star of India, and the lotus lily, all figure in Queen Mary's gown of 1911.

Elizabeth's crown will be worn banded by the imperial robe of purple royal velvet specially woven for the occasion. White shoes will match the gown.

Queen Elizabeth will not wear a veil when she drives to Westminster Abbey, and a striking contrast will be provided by the simplicity of her uncovered head on the outward journey, and the glittering crown and rich velvet robes which she will wear on the return drive to Buckingham Palace.

GLAMIS TO FETE CORONATION DAY

Scottish Home of Queen Will Celebrate Crowning in One Way

Edinburgh, May 1—(CP)—What of Glamis, Scottish home of Queen Elizabeth, and the villagers of Glamis on Coronation Day? They have not been forgotten in preparations.

Indeed, it was in this village that the present King was initiated by the former village blacksmith and postman as a freemason. In the Masonic Hall there a caddy to tea, with pictures of their Majesties stamped on it, will be given to old ladies of the village, with tobacco for the old men—children over six will receive a souvenir silver spoon.

A dance in the Masonic Hall and a bonfire on Hunter's Hill will be part of the celebration for the daughter of Glamis crowned as a Queen.

The Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Scotland and Glamis Castle attract a royal trio

Scotland—and Glamis Castle—which have loomed so large in the life of King George and Queen Elizabeth and their daughters, is again the setting for this charming picture.

Following the custom set up by his father, who, whenever his ours was resident in Scotland adopted the kilts and tartan of the country, King George is attired as a real Scotsman. With her parents in this obviously enjoyable visit to the ancestral home of the Queen of Margaret Rose, Scotland's own little royal sweetheart.

Princess Margaret Rose was born at Glamis in 1930 an incident which created deep satisfaction of Scotsmen and linked the royal family and particularly the then Duke and Duchess of York, very closely to the hearts of Scottish people. No royal princess had been born in the country for many centuries, and when the name Margaret was chosen for the infant, it was a daughter, the Queen.

Shaw Ready to Let WPA Put On His Plays, But—

New York—If the Federal Theatre Project wants to produce any or all of George Bernard Shaw's thirty three full-length plays and fifteen short ones. Mr. Shaw is "quite ready to entertain a proposal" to that effect. He has so informed the Theatre Guild, which the Federal Theatre is consulting regarding the possibility of some WPA-Shavian productions.

But Mr. Shaw has a condition or two to make. The top price for admission must be 50 cents, and he reserves the right "to suspend the license in the case of any particular play for a few months occasionally, if necessary, and to discontinue the whole arrangement at any time after due notice if I found it unsatisfactory."

"I presume the P. T. is a genuine public enterprise with State credit at its back," he added.

YOUNG MAN ASKS DIFFICULT QUESTION

Montreal—Asked if he had anything to say before he was sent for trial on a theft charge, a youth startled the preliminary inquiry into the other morning by asking: "Can't we pay for the things we can't return?"

Henri Trudel and Lucien Primeau, who gave their respective ages as 2220 Harbour Street and 2070 Harmony Street, were arrested and arraigned on the charge of theft of a bicycle and other goods valued at $50, property of Joseph A. Desrosiers. In a shed in the rear of 2518 Sherbrooke street east.

They were unrepresented by counsel when they appeared for preliminary inquiry. The request for permission to pay for some of the missing articles was made by Trudel just before they were ordered to voluntary statement on May 5. There was no reply from the Court, direct tribute to the Scottish people and their ancient royal line.

Visits of the family to Scotland and to Glamis have been as frequent as it has been possible to make them, sandwiched as they must be, between the tasks which the now king's position has imposed, and it is a foregone conclusion that once the coronation is over and his majesty can find time for a holiday, that Scotland will see him again.

Indication of the continued interest in Scotland came when it was announced that one of the royal courts that will follow the coronation, will be held in Holyrood palace, scene of many a historic gathering in the past, but which has not seen a royal court for many years. It is expected that this year's revival will be one of the most brilliant pageants of the season, apart from the ceremonial itself, and Scotland will be waiting to welcome its king and its native daughter, the Queen.

SAYS CHILDREN LIKE DISCIPLINE

Educator Says Parents Are Admired When Take Decided Stand

Boston, May 1—(CP)—Dr. W. Linwood Chase, well-known educationist, lecturer and author, thinks children like disciplines. "They like the security that comes from parents who take responsibility and make demands upon them. They may object vigorously at the time, and vociferously, but they like parents who take decided stands," he said.

Dr. Chase has little patience with the kind of schooling that segregates or the kind or discipline that countenances unwise freedom, for he thinks that the boy must then suffer the inevitable consequences of such treatment.

If a child's behavior irritates an adult, it may only be the symptom of a real conflict that the child himself is engaged in when he tries to do what is expected of him. Until this conflict is understood, little can be accomplished in setting the child on the path of adjustment to things about him.

Dr. Chase also believes a happy school atmosphere is essential.

OLD ORDNANCE BUILDING RAZED

Historic Structure at Halifax Declared Unsafe

Halifax, May 1—(CP)— Built during the dark days of the Anglo-American war, when Halifax was the key position in the struggle between Britain and the fledgling United States, the old "A" storehouse on Ordnance wharf, Upper Water Street, has been razed.

Following an official inspection some time ago, the building was declared condemned, and the 126-year old structure was torn down. Only the clock tower, in which is Halifax's famous military clock has been saved.

Because of crumbling walls and settling foundations, it would have been impossible to save the building without a total renovation, the Department of National Defence, to whom it belonged, declared.

Although batteries were placed near the site of the building as early as 1799, when Halifax was already 50 years old, the storehouse dates back only to about 1812. In the century and a quarter which have elapsed since then, Halifax has played an important part in many events which, were of wide importance; the war of 1812, the struggle for responsible government, the Crimean war, the Boer war. In Halifax are buried many victims of the Titanic's sinking.

Then the cataclysmic disaster of the World War, another responsible for the greatest single toll which accident has ever exacted in Canada's history. Haligonians will never forget the blinding, searing, rumbling chaos of the Halifax explosion in which nearly 1,900 people were known to be killed. Even today, twenty years after, the queerly old garrison city bears scars of the explosion, and the holocaust which followed.

Then, the Armistice, and the gradual rebuilding of the city which had been laid low in the folly of war. Through all this the old Ordnance storehouse stood, and emerged unscathed, only to meet its end at the hands of the wreckers' gang.

HATS OFF ORDERED AS WOMEN IN BAR

A man who keeps his hat on in the presence of women in a bar and grill is a potential disturber of the peace and therefore is guilty of disorderly conduct, Magistrate Michael A. Ford ruled yesterday in suspending sentence on James Phillips, 5 years old, of 443 East Seventy-second Street.

James was alleged to have endangered the peace and quiet of Rudy's Rall, 946 Second Avenue, early yesterday morning by kneeing his hat on his head while seated at a table with his brother Thomas, who is two years younger and who uncovered when he sat down. There were women at another table, John J. Price, manager of the grill testified.

Price said he asked James to remove his hat but the young man refused to do so. Thomas offered to settle the issue with fisticuffs so the manager called a policeman.

"In my opinion it constitutes disorderly conduct when a diner refuses to remove his hat in a restaurant or any other place where ladies are present," the magistrate commented. "Not only is it bad manners and bad taste, but it is such a provocative act as to bring about a breach of the peace."

'CORONATION DAY'

A poem in honour of the Coronation by Dorothy Sproule of Montreal has been given a musical setting by Clarence P. Keene and is to be sung at the Canadian Club Coronation Ball and Banquet in Boston, Mrs. Sproule's ode is:

Today, our Empire crowns King George the Sixth,
With far-flung banners compassing the world,
The proudest crown of earth is his today,
For him the flags of Empire are unfurled.
He holds the trust his Kingly father left
To build a fairer world than we have known,
A leader—matching mild acclaims of earth,
Princely successor to the British throne.
And at his side there blooms a Scottish Rose,
Elizabeth—his help-mate and his Queen,
All hearts proclaim her loveliness and charm,
Regnant in glory.—modesty in mien.
—Dorothy Sproule.

OLD SALLY PORT IS PRESERVED IN PEN SKETCHES

Ontario Artist Presents Group of Pen-and-Ink Pictures of Nova Scotia to Provincial Archives at Halifax

By HAROLD E. FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—Even if time does not deal favorably with them, many of Nova Scotia's historic landmarks will live for years to come through a collection of pen-and-ink drawings in the Nova Scotia Archives here.

The old Ordnance Building of Halifax is there, with its Freedom's walls and famous clock-tower just as they existed from 1810 until the building was condemned as unsafe and torn down recently. The sketch is one of the group of originals presented to the Archives by Windsor Lawson, M. Asrch., of Leaside, Ont.

Other forts play a prominent part in the collection. One sketch shows the old Sally Port of Fort Anne at Annapolis Royal, with the officers' mess visible through the archway as it was visible to early settlers in 1796.

There is old Martello Tower in Point Pleasant Park, Halifax; that squat un-English structure unique in Canadian fortifications a low circular building built in 1796, exceedingly heavy in detail and medieval in appearance. There is Windsor blockhouse, last of its kind in the province, erected in 1795, and now becoming commandingly over the town of Windsor.

But not all the sketches of forts, for not all the historic places in the province are connected with military activity. The Old Meeting House at Barrington has been depicted with all the simplicity that marked the straightforward and unassuming character of the settlers who made it the first church in Nova Scotia back in 1764.

There is the house of Captain Silvanus Cobb at Liverpool, built in 1760 of materials brought from Plymouth, New England; the pen drawing of this, one of the oldest houses in the province, reveals it as a fine example of the simpler type of Colonial Architecture.

A group of Nova Scotian sketches would be incomplete without pictures of the sea and of things pertaining to the sea. The collection includes a view of Louisburg Lighthouse as it stands today guarding the rugged and picturesque coast of that part of the province. Beside it is the piled remains of what was the first lighthouse in British North America.

Another sketch shows Cape Smokey in characteristic mood, surrounded by the low-lying clouds that gave it its name. Lunenburg harbor is depicted, with its schooners' masts in the rows and spars and the "picturesque confusion" of house straggling back from the waterfront. Arichat, too, is there, with the sketch showing a typical portion of the wharves, the church on the hill, and the road winding away into the distance.

St. Peter's Canal is shown, connecting the Bras d'Or Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean, with its four sets of gates made necessary by the change of flow in the water as the tide rises and falls. Another scenic picture is of Oransy Island and the entrance to Canso harbor.

Two other sketches of Halifax shows historic St. Paul's, oldest Protestant church in Canada, and a group of old houses on Hollis St. with their great chimneys and typically Nova Scotian dormer windows.

ANOTHER INVENTION

Winnipeg (CP)—A new airplane defrosting system, piping hot water through conduits in the wings, alerons and other parts of the plane to melt ice formations has been invented by Walter J. Birch of Fort William, and patented by his brother, Don Birch of Winnipeg. The defrosting system would be extended to the propeller.

Gold Rush Pioneers Of 1849 Take Part

San Francisco—The last rivet, wrought by the gold that was the precious lodestone of California's pioneer days has been placed in the $33,000,000 bridge which spans the Golden Gate.

Arching 4,200 feet across the harbor entrance, the new bridge is the greatest single suspension span yet built. With its approaches the structure links 8,000 feet in length. It links the Redwood Highway and the North to San Francisco and the South.

Pioneers of the old West Coast joined in ceremony, including Joseph M. Graham, 94, sole survivor of the pioneers corps which completed the first transcontinental railroad sixty-eight years ago. Gregory Van Gordon, 92, last member of the barky group that trekked to California from Missouri in 1846, and J. H. P. Gedge, 94, who, in the gold-rush year of 1849, sailed through the Golden Gate on the bark Cagney from Tamaulipas.

The great bridge, for which the ground was broken Feb. 26, 1933, will be open to traffic May 27th. Late next month the entire Pacific fleet, now engaged in war maneuvers, will steam under its lofty span into San Francisco harbor.

The bridge is the second of two new spans to be built over San Francisco waters. Last November the $75,000,000 trans-Bay Bridge was opened, more than eight miles long, it links San Francisco with Oakland and other east-bay cities.

LIVE AGAIN GOOD OLD DAYS OF 70'S

School Boys of Horse And Buggy Era Gather And Swap Yarns

WINNIPEG (CP)—Many years were bridged as 200 of Winnipeg's schoolboys, class of '70 to '80, gathered here in a reunion banquet to renew friendships and swap yarns of the days of horse cars and Red River carts.

The "kids" many of them prominent in the business and civic life of Winnipeg, turned out in full force to extend a warm welcome to those that came from farther afield. Prominent in the throng was Mayor Judge H. A. Wallis, John Cory and J. Kerrigan all of the county court bench of Manitoba.

Remnants of long disbanded hockey teams that once blazed their way into the sports annals grouped such notables as W. R. Bawlf, G. M. Black, Charles Dodds, Tony Grinyas, C. W. Johnstone, Dr. Fred Cadham, Jack Frash, C. M. Taylor and C. G. Robinson as former members of the old Victorias, the Winnipegs and the Rowing Club.

Cameron, track teams and snowshoe clubs all had their representatives, including R. H. "Dolphie" Graham, holder of the Dominion snowshoe title for many years, and A. R. Logan, who ran him a close second in several classic competitions in the early '90's.

Claiming indisputable seniority as the "youngest kid" present, cheery, full-bearded little Father Elie R. Rocan, who explained he "doted back" to 1877, when he was boarding as an orphan at the old St. Mary's school on Notre Dame avenue.

The perennial parental expostulation—"How when I was a child"—received solid backing as the oldtimers revived memories of the winters in the late 70's and early 80's. Horse cars running on Portage avenue had to be disconnected and stored, to be replaced by sleighs and later by tobogganing. One old timer claimed the snow was so deep that he had to snowshoe through the city to school.

MOOSE JAW MAN IN SPANISH WAR

Moose Jaw (CP)—A Moose Jaw resident fighting with government forces in Spain is in "mixed company" according to a letter from Thomas Bailey, former travelling salesman.

The International Brigade, he said, was made up largely of Americans, Germans, Czechoslovakians, Yugoslavians and Italians. The commander is an Albanian, the adjutant a Hungarian, and commands are given in French, the language most generally understood.

CLEVER WOMAN IS PROVINCIAL DRAMA DIRECTOR

EDMONTON (CP) — Somehow finding time apart from the care of her home and two children, Mrs. Elizabeth Haynes, of this city, as the only woman provincial drama director in Canada, ministers to the Thespian needs of all Alberta.

While mainly occupied with her work as director of Dramatics in the University Fine Arts department, Mrs. Haynes has instituted regional drama schools in many small towns throughout the province.

Mrs. Haynes is perhaps best pleased with the part she played in developing the drama "Relief" the Saskatchewan entry now entered in the Dominion finals at Ottawa.

Two years ago Mrs. Fred Bicknell, the author, and her husband drove to the Banff School of the Theatre their shabby car to show the skeleton manuscript of their play to Mrs. Haynes. Mrs. Haynes at that time was working with Theodore Cohen teaching an unexpectedly large enrollment of 300 students.

There the play was polished, changed somewhat and staged by the students, with the result that after one year of enforced idleness due to lack of production funds, the Bicknells won first prize in Regina and now are competing in Ottawa.

"Mrs. Bicknell, herself was the first one to write to Mr. Cohen and to the Banff school thanking them for everything," Mrs. Haynes said. As a direct result of the training received in Mrs. Haynes regional schools, the little village of Clive, southeast of Edmonton, won third standing in the recent Alberta drama festival.

"People come to these regional schools in trucks, wagons and cars, often travelling long distances," said Mrs. Haynes. "Their ages vary from five to 75, and the men are just as interested as the women."

When asked just what she taught that filled her students with such enthusiasm for the theatre, Mrs. Haynes smilingly said that her lesson ranged from "slacking-out" teeth to portraying the subtler emotions.

In the past 5 years, Mrs. Haynes has visited over 50 Alberta communities, often under bad travelling conditions, advising choice of plays, instructing in stage design and lighting and clearing up problems of voice, costume and casting.

Remainder of Mrs. Haynes program includes reading and answering hundreds of appeals for advice, teaching five hours a week at the University, assisting other teachers with new dramatic courses, editing the theatre page for the university radio station, and generally making the theatre live for thousands of Albertans.

SAYS GLASS SHIRTS EXPECTED SHORTLY

Montreal—Glass shirts, aluminum dresses and pinless diapers for the baby will be introduced to the public by textile manufacturers in the near future, Charles E. Lewis, manager Lewis Brothers Enterprises, Truro, N.S., told members of the Advertising Club the other day.

Speaking on "Manufacturing and Modern Merchandising" at the club's weekly luncheon at the Mount Royal Hotel, Mr. Lewis reviewed the changes in the textile industry during the past ten years and the steps taken by the modern manufacturer to meet them.

Classing the automobile as the textile industry's greatest competitor from the point of view of sales dollars, Mr. Lewis said that manufacturers were experimenting in an effort to increase the use of their products. Glass and aluminum were being spun in threadlike wire for the manufacture of a cloth superior to cotton or wool. He also said that the firm with which he is connected is experimenting with a pinless diaper for the baby which would soon be placed on the market.

IN CIVIL WAR DIES AT AGE 93

Thrilling Early Days of Addison Patillo Youngblood

New York, May 1—Addison Patillo Youngblood, Confederate veteran, died this week at his home here. He was 93 years old and, according to the New York Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, he was the last surviving Confederate veteran in the metropolitan area.

Mr. Youngblood was one of the oldest members of the New York Produce Exchange, an active flour broker until his retirement four years ago. He took his last walk on April 1 with his daughter, Mrs. W. S. Moore, with whom he lived. During the walk he suffered a heart attack.

At the age of 18 Mr. Youngblood joined the Dixie Eagles, a company recruited in Union Springs, Ala., where his father, Philemon Head Youngblood, owned a large plantation. The lad went with the Dixie Eagles in the Confederate capital, Richmond, and fought with the Confederate Army in the Battle of Seven Pines, May 30 to June 1, 1862, seven miles east of the capital. Then he got the measles.

His father, who had been reluctant to have the boy enlist, heard of his illness, came to Richmond, got him out of the army by buying another man into his place and took him home to Union Springs by train and covered wagon. When young Youngblood had recovered he was sent to Marion College in the hope that he would be safe from conscription. When it was found he was liable to conscription even there, his father removed him to the University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa.

There he remained for two years. But his forces of the North grew stronger and those of the South weaker, he decided he could not stay out of the war any longer. Accordingly, in the Winter of 1864-65, he raised a cavalry company of sixty-five cadets, and became their commander. He led the company to the Confederate army and placed it under the command of General Nathan Bedford Forrest.

After the war, Mr. Youngblood attended the University of Virginia, and was graduated in law. He never practiced law, went to Atlanta and became a merchant of flour, coffee and produce. Later he moved to New York City, where he owned the Tri-State Milling Co.

Pershing's Attire Not to be Fancy

New York, May 1—General John J. Pershing, former commander-in-chief of the A. E. F., arrived the other day on the President Harding or the United States from London as an official delegate of the United States to the coronation. When he left the ship, where the reporters were waiting the General appeared to be suffering from a grievance which he explained at once by saying:

"That story about my selection in a morning newspaper was grossly exaggerated. The truth is that I was sent a modification of the full dress uniform of a brigadier general . . . I'm not that, you know. The only change I have made in it is the insignia."

General Pershing said the uniform was a deep blue and that with it he wore a helmet and sword.

When a reporter asked, "Will you wear your medals ?" the general glared and said:

"Those pants with uniform? Young man, you should be in the OCC camp and learn about uniforms."

General Pershing declined at first to pose for photographers, but was afterward persuaded to do so by Basil Harris, vice president of the I. M. M. an old friend.

A photographer's flashlight burst with a loud report within three feet of the general's face, but the army veterans did not flinch. After brushing the fragments of powder from his grey suit, the general smiled and let the photographers take three more pictures.

Asked how the work on his memoirs was progressing, he shook his head and replied: "Slowly, slowly."

Il Duce Plants Pines On 1941 Fair Site

Rome, May 1—Premier Mussolini under a heavy rain started work on the 1941 world exhibition to be held in Rome by planting three pines on its site, and then inaugurated a new film city destined to become the Italian Hollywood, which is now ready to begin production.

A feature of the 1941 exhibition is that it will be composed entirely of permanent buildings that will later become a new quarter of the city of Rome. It will rise about five miles from the center of the city on either side of a new motor highway 130 feet wide linking Rome to the seaside resort of Ostia, and will occupy an area of 20,000,000 square feet. It will contain a number of magnificent plazas, one of which will have as its principal ornament an obelisk taken from the sacred Ethiopian city of Axum.

The film city is intended to give a powerful impetus to the revival of the Italian film industry. It is considered the last word in technical and artistic perfection.

"I have gained in weight and have more color in my face!"

NORMAL WEIGHT and a good complexion are very closely related to health. Loss of health usually leads to loss of weight and a poor complexion. All beauty specialists agree on this point and many women have learned by experience how important health is to beauty and weight. Miss May W——— of Toronto, for instance, says:

"Four months ago I was pale and underweight. I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have done me a world of good. Now I have gained in weight and have more color in my face. Friends tell me how much healthier I am looking."

One of the chief causes of a pale face and thin body is improper nourishment. The blood, glands and vital organs of your body must be nourished with mineral iron and cannot function properly without it.

If you are underweight, pale or nervous and rarely feel rested or really well, strike at the root of your trouble. Build up your health and vitality with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They will supply the iron you need and thereby help you back to normal weight, better health and improved complexion. Price 50c.

Refuse Dr. Williams' Pink Pills right here for a while; and if you don't feel better, stronger and healthier, your money will be returned to you.

Airlines to Push Tests With Blind Landing System

Experiments to be Made This Week With Improved Lorenz Ultra-Short Wave Landing

New York, May 1.—The recently improved Lorenz ultra-short wave blind landing system, now in use on ten of the leading airlines of Europe, will be tested at Indianapolis by American Airlines this week, it was revealed yesterday by the officials of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, 67 Broad Street.

Dr. Ernst Kramar, electrical expert and engineering director in ultra-short wave apparatus, left last night for the Municipal Airport at Indianapolis, where the necessary ground and receiving installations and arrangements have been made with three major airlines using the airport.

The revelation that such progress had been made came as a surprise to many who have followed the development of blind landing systems. The Lorenz system was first experimented with in this country in 1932 under supervision of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, and later abandoned in favor of another system now being tested at Oakland, Calif.

Where It Is Used Abroad

Since then, Dr. Kramar reported yesterday, the system has been installed at twenty-two airports in Europe, one in Capetown, South Africa, one in Tokyo, Japan, and another on the military field outside Buenos Aires, Argentina. In all more than 200 commercial airplanes that fly the routes of the European airlines have been equipped with the receiving apparatus and during the past eight years of operation have equipped their air forces with the ground and operational necessary to use the system, he said.

In addition to the list of American Airlines, Eastern Air Lines and Transcontinental & Western Air, would make the system almost universal in its application, the only remaining is the early elimination of the hazards of blind flying near airports, according to Dr. Kramar, Page of International Telephone and Telegraph.

The Lorenz system differs from the Hagenberger system for the blind landing of airplanes in it uses only wave lengths which are not subject to static and long wave interference. The procedure of landing has been simplified to the property, and I'll counter."

How the System Works

The system works from three sources of ultra short wave power at the airport field, just outside its boundaries. With suitable receiving sets weighing forty pounds in the pilot, the pilot approaches the field. Twenty-five miles from the field he picks up a vertical beam and follows it until he gets the signal to circle the "outer marker." He then begins his letdown and continues until he gets the broadcast "inner beam signal. Then he follows over the "inner marker," shuts off his power and glides to within 100 feet of the ground above the runway. The system has been used by hundreds of transport pilots abroad without a single mishap, Dr. Kramar said. In practice flights the plane is piloted by two men, one under the hood doing the flying, while the other corrects by the use of his sight, if occasion demands.

The airlines of this country have no desire to make blind landings except when absolutely necessary for safety, spokesmen for the line said yesterday, but a thorough knowledge of existing approaches is essential if emergencies arise.

It is expected that the tests at Indianapolis will cause American airline operator to ask the Bureau of Air Commerce to supervise additional tests and recommend the adoption of a uniform code of procedure in blind flying and landing technique, such as is in international effect in Europe.

TALL OLD POPLAR TRIED FOR LIFE

Brooklyn Neighbors Sue Over 70-Foot Tree in Back-Yard — Danger of Falling at Issue

New York, May 1—A seventy-foot Carolina poplar tree, which has become very unpopular with the neighbors, was the subject of litigation in Flatbush Magistrates Court.

The tree is the last of a long line of poplars that divided the old Lefferts Farm. It stands in the backyard of the home of Frank and Lillian Marcoch, brother and sister, at 260 Midwood Street, Brooklyn.

To Mr. Marcoch it is "a wonderful tree," a symbol of the past and a breath of shimmery freshness after the confinement of business (he is a restaurant owner).

But to Mrs. Minnie Salerno, who lives directly through the block at 261 Rutland Road, it is a menace, a giant towering over the backyard in which her children play, ready at the least gust of wind to crash down on them. And so, suit by suit of Brom.

As such, she insists it should be cut down. And so, backed by Dr. Ernest Hagerman, city Department of Health official and sister of Supreme Court Justice Edward Hagerman, and by eight or two other neighbors, she brought suit. Dr. Hagerman lives at 276 Rutland Road, next door to Mrs. Salerno. In what is called the "safety section" of Brom." She is doubly fearful because three years ago a poplar across from her made her garage, causing $1,000 damage.

Both sides assert they have had the tree examined by experts, who, in each case upheld the owner's views. The Salernos say a Park Department inspector condemned the tree, and the Marcochs produce a Botanical Gardens arboriculturepronounced it sound and healthy.

Several attempts to serve summonses on the Marcochs for maintaining a nuisance have failed. Mr. Marcoch said yesterday he had instructed his sister not to accept service except "from the proper authorities."

He said the tree is covered by $1,000 damage insurance and added that he was glad to hear it was the Salernos who were suing, because "their garage is two feet over my Magistrate Mark Sudich, in the absence of the defendants in court put the case over until May 4, when Mr. Marcoch promised to appear.

Meanwhile the poplar, heedless of the storm about its head, is opening buds at the approach of sparrows chirping in its branches.

GROUP IS READY TO WAR ON CRIME

Scientific Methods to be Used in Combatting Lawlessness

New York, May 1—After many months of careful study, the Citizens Committee on the Control of Crime in New York, Inc., announced that it had completed detailed plans for assisting in the more efficient administration of justice in this city.

Harry F. Guggenheim, who at the request of Mayor La Guardia took the lead in organizing the committee last Summer after the first extraordinary grand jury in the Dewey investigation had urged the establishment of such a permanent group, said that for the present its work would fall into two main categories.

One will consist of co-operation with Thomas E. Dewey, special prosecutor of rackets, whose record of sixty convictions from his first sixty indictments Mr. Guggenheim praised warmly. The other will be co-operation with the police, the regular prosecutors and the criminal courts.

Mr. Guggenheim, who is president of the committee, announced at the same time a campaign for members and for the public subscription of $200,000 to finance the work of the committee for its first three years. Arthur W. Gates is president of the New York Trust Company, will serve as chairman of the participating fund, which will go to pay for the committee.

Observers to Gather Data

Special observers will be maintained by the committee at Police Headquarters, at the office of the District Attorneys of New York, Bronx, Kings and Queens Counties, at the Magistrates' Courts in these counties and at the office of the chief city magistrate. They will transmit essential facts to the clerks of the General Sessions, County and Special Sessions Courts. Daily reports will be made by these observers to the committee's headquarters, which have been established at 30 Lafayette Square. The material will be there compiled and subjected to analytical study to determine trends in crime and law administration.

TOMCAT MOLLY WEARS PAJAMAS

Cat's Meow Means Something Aboard Freighter

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — Molly, male despite the name, is quite a favorite aboard the freighter that paraded the decks of the S.S. Pilliga by T. Dodge, Atlantic coaster by the ship's clerk mascot total more than 80.

Molly wears a dainty collar with tiny bells and an engraved plate. Everywhere that Molly goes the bells are sure to tinkle. But his pride is the cat's pyjamas—literally. Carefully tailored and comfortable, they give Molly's tall a 360-degree leeway.

He has a pillow in the captain's bunk and things equitable to slip. Molly once also owned a pair of spectacles and hat for formal occasions. Framed photographs of the mascot adorn the captain's desk. Molly likes the radio, as a ladder was built from the floor to the top of the cabin.

The freighter T. Dodge is the only foreign-going freighter registered at Saint John last year. Now Molly was nearing another birthday, subject of annual observation aboard the ship.

It's a common sight to see the mascot following the skipper and pacing the bridge. Molly once left the ship at Three Rivers, Que., and the entire crew as well as 130 stevedores scurried over the waterfront in search of him just before sailing time. Only the port doctor could wheedle him back aboard.

PEERESS OUSTS SPRING BRIDES IN STYLE SHOW

Coronation Brings Titled Women to Forefront in Fashions as London Designers Show Creations

By MOLLIE McGEE

Canadian Press Correspondent

LONDON (CP) — Though five brides paraded at a Coronation fashion show in London, when ten foremost English designers held a joint display for the first time, they were not the important last item on the program. After the last bride had gathered up her train and left the long runway, the spotlights were turned full on and two mannequins showed the gowns, kirtles and robes peeresses will wear Coronation Day, with suitable jewelry, tiaras and coronets.

Just now London dressmakers regard peeresses as more important than brides. Many orders for Coronation dresses have been received by cable.

The Duchess of Northumberland, Mistress of the Robes and Princess Beatrice, Queen Victoria's youngest child who was celebrating her 80th birthday, attended the show, which made dressmaker history in London.

Prestige gained by the making of Coronation finery for important people has been hard fought for by the recognized old firms who resent the implication they are "stodgy" and by the younger new houses which equally object to being called "too new and spectacular." However, each of the ten houses brought out their newest and best and the result was a magnificent display, which actually brought from one table of Parisian designers enthusiastic acclamation and admiration.

Blue predominated and the "Duchess of York" blue, the pale delphinium shade, which the Queen when Duchess of York preferred for summer wear, was extensively used with the new royal blue—even sapphire's feather coat of blue being worn over a tailored lighter blue for dress. Another group of models for this rare occasion were trailing dresses and huge flat hats as well as "talleurs" of silk with lace trimming. Decolletage was remarkably low for day wear.

Evening gowns and dinner dresses directly followed the Coronation gown inspiration, svelte with flares and billowy below the knee. All had slight trains and were more spectacular in ornamentation than any seen in the last fifty years.

Sequins in Moonlit

Gold lame, soft as silk, finely pleated, was used for two dresses with Grecian design, with wide jewelled belts. One dress was completely covered with large round sequins in all sizes, red, pink, blue and green in a Persian mosaic pattern. Another white satin and velvet gown was embroidered in gold and silver and sprinkled with rhinestones that caught the light like frosted snow. Long chiffon capes in lovely pastel shades were used in harmony or contrast with the dresses they accompanied.

"Maple Leaf" was one outstanding classic model in off white satin with sprays of gold maple leaves and draperies from shoulder to waist with gold. "Mist" another off white gown was almost covered with fine gold embroidery and diamonds.

Lace and "broideries anglaise" were shown both for garden party and evening wear. Accessories matched and were in contrast to the dress. Purple hat, bag and long gloves were worn with pale blue.

The whole affair was no mere fashion parade, but an attempt to demonstrate the recognized stides made by British designers through incentive of the Coronation. As one authority put it, "The whole effect of a dress-show there never had been before and probably will not be again, when all the rivals (and their mannequins) appeared under the same roof."

OCTOGENARIAN PLANS DANCE

Scot Aged 89 Sails For Visit to Native Country And Belies Years

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — A. F. MacLean, 89, of Victoria, B.C., sailed from here planning to dance the Highland fling in Scotland in the annual Great Highland Gathering where, 68 years ago, he finished second in a two-mile race against keen competition.

Since his retirement as a locomotive engineer when 65 Mr. MacLean has made a hobby of travel. He had passed his 80th year when he rode a camel and climbed a pyramid.

The octogenarian, with snow-white hair and short-clipped beard, rosy cheeks and eyes twinkling with enthusiasm, appeared as sprightly as a boy. He had no particular reason to offer for his fine physical condition, unless in a man nearing 90.

The young-old traveller wears a scarf of the MacLean plaid, and talks with a soft Gaelic burr. He was in Queen Victoria turn a tap inaugurating Glasgow's water system remembered when the Lauder government came into power in Canada and was in the Klondyke during gold rush days.

His wife having died many years ago, he travels alone.

Maid With College Degree Defends Kitchen Livelihood

Trained as Landscape Gardener, She Tells of Dignity of Household Work

New York, May 1—When a holder of a college degree takes a job in a kitchen, says one who did, there's no reason to be self-conscious, about a stigma of social inferiority attached to housework as a means of livelihood. Her attitude toward her job was fluently expressed yesterday by one "Mary Brown" of Philadelphia before a conference of domestics and their employers, intent on a possible solution of the long-standing servant problem.

"I've never felt that way," she told an audience of more than a hundred women in the auditorium of The New York Herald Tribune Building. "It seems to me that when you send the younger generation out each morning, well dressed and happy, you are contributing something real to the world. That when a business man leaves for his office feeling that last night's party was a success and ready to him socially, and that his home is smoothly and satisfactorily run, no apology is needed for the person who made it so."

She overcame the depression for herself by applying her skills to domestic routines in other people's homes, Miss Brown told the assembly, when her training as a landscape architect proved unwanted. Her services are always in demand on her own terms, which include a living wage, a clear understanding of the duties expected of her before she accepts a job and the right to live her own life after the eight-hour stint each day is finished.

Says Hours Are Too Long

"Tests have shown that the average household worker's hours are too long to sustain an efficient schedule of work," she declared. "This is partly the fault of the girls, I think, because they have not demanded a better arrangement. One of the basic factors that keeps girls out of household is that so few employers have had any business training themselves."

Both the morning and the afternoon sessions emphasized that working standards and hours should be established as a basic method of improving conditions, for the employes and "training the satisfaction of the employers.

Miss Mary V. Robinson of Washington, member of the Women's Bureau, summarized the research for preference of girls and women to enter the field. They include, she said, the fact that no safeguards have ever been set up for women in housework, as in other occupations; that there is more disorganization; that regular hours can be expected in a factory office or store, but that work in the home is never done and that a trained even unhealthy, factory jobs are preferred to constant supervision and standards by employers in the homes.

The revolt of women from household work has been accelerated by the depression," she added "The insistence of employers that servants come and be thankful to work only for board and room, simply because they are on relief, has been a tremendous factor. To absorb the unemployed, such work must be made more attractive and conditions better."

Mention of the advantage of union organization for household workers, to assist in raising standards of work and to assure employers or a responsible group with which to deal, sent one agitated householder to her feet to cry:

"But won't that mean they will strike and picket our houses?"

Discussion of this topic threatened to become involved and was curtailed by the schedule after Miss Robinson had advanced considerable doubt of a crisis arising.

Medical Tests Discussed

Medical examination, demanded of domestic workers under city ordinances in Newark, N. J., and Knoxville, Tenn., were endorsed as good, in principle, by the group which included Junior League members from New York and New Jersey, students from Bank Street College older women and experts in social welfare and sociology.

It was unanimously conceded, however, that the protection demanded for the sake of a family, especially with small children, should apply equally to the domestic workers, and that if a doctor's certificate were required, it should be made to cover the employers as well. Incidents in which girls have been sent into homes where contagious diseases exist, without being warned by the employers, have been reported as much as two days later, one member of a panel discussion group revealed.

Participants included Mrs. Maria Brasford, director of the Philadelphia Institute of Household Occupations, which is training selected girls for housework as a career; Mrs. Paul Revere Reynolds of the National Committee on Household Employment; Dr. Anney E. Watson of Haverford, Pa., of the Pennsylvania Committee on Public Assistance; Mrs. Harriet Dennis of the Intake and Placement Household Training Centre here; Mrs. Wayne Babcock of the Philadelphia Committee on Household Occupations; Mrs. George D. Smith, president of the Newark Junior League, and Mrs. Edith R. Fields of the New York State Employment Service.

SOME BUSY BUSINESS PEOPLE

Just a Few Observations Supposedly Humorous

SEE OURSELF'S

Saga of Seven Children And Berliner Tageblatt

(From The Ringside)

The Rotary Club here, as elsewhere, has a membership that has been recruited largely from the city's leading business and professional men. The club contains some very big men, and like most clubs, some lighter weights too. As a matter of fact the biggest man there, a man who can write his figure any day in millions (although the Bank would not pay him a million), is only 27. All classes of the community are represented, so in discussing them, the average business man of Belleville is included.

Business Men may be divided into three classes, The Pseudo Business Man, The Hard Boiled and The Genuine. All have their place in this world unfortunately, and as a result, that some of them will have a place reserved for them in the next. The Pseudo business man is the kind who is always busy attending conferences directors' meetings, or maybe both customers have arrived in the store at once. He is always on hand but he never gets anything done, and when it is canvassing for the Church, the Y.M.C.A. or the Chamber of Commerce, he will be the only scoops his quota of calls, but he will never finish them. He is a sort of public nuisance, but his intentions are good, and of course he is good to say he is pained with those things.

Song in G Flat

The Hard Boiled variety is always busy when it comes to giving to or doing anything for the community. He laughs at the men who give their time or money to building up the community, and sits back watching the cash register, the only song he knows is the one about "I never done nothing for nobody, no time, and I ain't got it well, although it sounds rather flat. In this class we have the Light Weights, but fortunately not many of them. These fellows would tip the scales—if they ever tip anything or anybody—at round 110. They are opposed to nearly everything including One Hour Parking and Daylight Saving. To the former housing they believe that the way to encourage business is to have their door step cluttered up with cars belonging to the offices upstairs. To the latter became store and office clerks and domestic children would have an hour's sunshine and fresh air, and be able to play games.

Saga of Seven Children

The Genuine business man, fortunately is in the majority. He is really busy because he looks after his business properly and is willing to do his share of the community work. Give him some canvassing to do and the calls are promptly made and a full report handed in, in a business like manner. He is the mainstay of the Church, the Y.M.C.A. and other local organizations and is never too busy to lend a hand in a good cause. This is the kind of men who have made Belleville "the city beautiful" and who will make it busier and more beautiful. After all the men who is terribly busy, is in reality a bad manager. If his business is any good he will be able to employ help to run it for him. If it is not any good, he is a fool to be doing himself all day for nothing. J. P. Morgan, Mitch Hepburn and Adolf Davis are all very busy men, but they find time to eat three meals a day, get eight hours sleep, and sometimes talk—or listen—to their wives for hours. This idea of being busy is purely mental. Many a mother can take care of seven children much better than the seven children—when they grow up can take care of her.

The past twenty years have amply demonstrated that there are no supermen. Whether it be Belleville, Toronto, New York or London, you will find busy men and unemployed everywhere are much alike. We have been looking for six months for some super man to show us the way out of the depression, but none has appeared. As each one's memoirs are written, we find that he and his contemporaries were wooden men. No less an authority than Theodor Wolff, editor of the great "Berliner Tageblatt" tells that when the leaders of Germany finally found themselves into the war, they had not the foggiest notion what to do about it. Somewhat it appears o be in much the same position today.

Let the real business men of Belleville continue to work together, as they have done during the past fifteen years, and we will one day have as pretty and pleasant a city as there is to be found in the same anywhere in the world.

ART COLLECTION AT MOOSE JAW

Valuable Paintings in Oils And Watercolors Presented

Moose Jaw (CP)—The famous Grayson art collection has been presented to the city of Moose Jaw on the understanding a suitable gallery for their exhibition will be provided. There are 130 paintings in oils and water colors, numerous etchings from famous galleries in Great Britain and the continent in the William Grayson collection. They represent the life work of the late founder, a member of one of Moose Jaw's first families.

Mr. Grayson, who died here in 1926, bought his first paintings 63 years ago when he was 18. They were a group of three water colors by the Canadian artist W. L. Judson.

Included in the collection is an original by Paul Peel, first Canadian artist to attain international recognition. His "After the Bath" purchased by the Austrian government for $30,000, later was brought back to Canada.

There are sunsets from the brushes of Sidney Cooper, founder of Canterbury Art Gallery; Benjamin Leader, who won awards at the Paris Exhibition in 1889; Sir Alfred East, Anderson Hague, Sir John Gilbert, Lucy Kemp-Welsh, Thomas Westwood and Roberts, Hugh Carter and Josef Israels.

Suitable accommodation for the collection will be discussed by the city council soon. The offer was announced by C. D. Grayson, executor of his father's estate.

ISLAND TUNNEL PLAN RECALLED BY NEW GRANT

Cost of $12,000,000 Proved to be Stumbling Block to Closer Link Between Island And Mainland

By THOMAS L. GUY

Charlottetown, May 1 (CP)—Appropriation of $200,000 by the Dominion government for harbor facilities at Wood Islands, P.E.I., as part of a proposed ferry service to Pictou point near Caribou, Nova Scotia, has recalled to some of the older residents the late Senator Howlan's advocacy of more than 30 years ago to have a subway connecting Prince Edward Island with the mainland.

The subway, $12,000,000 "connection" was the subject of public meetings throughout the island and was even discussed in the session of 1885, but the cost proved to be the stumbling block.

When the island became part of the Dominion, one of the terms was it should have regular communication, summer and winter. Senator Howlan claimed during public meetings, a line of steamers maintained by the Dominion government operated in the summer months but ice prevented their use in the winter and mails were carried by ice-boats between Tignish, P.E.I., and Cape Tormentine, N.B., which was dangerous for passengers.

Both New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island railways were planning to extend operations to the Capes which would tend to throw a large part of the trade between the island and mainland across the Straits. The distance between the Capes was eight and a half miles.

Claimed Saving.

Completion of such a subway would save the government a considerable amount in maintaining communication as it then was, declare Howlan claimed and would provide better and more regular service all the year round.

Surveys were conducted and plans drawn up. Today, blueprints of the subway, which was revived a few years later, are reposing on the wall of the Charlottetown Board of Trade rooms. Although dating from either "shore, the length of the subway would be about four miles.

Estimates were made by Walter Smith, Ottawa, who pronounced the subway "perfectly feasible". "As for my own views," Walter Shanley, the Montreal engineer, said, "all I can say is that I fail to detect any apparent reason why the idea should not come to be classed among feasible projects of the engineering world." C. Light, Quebec, civil engineer and Professor R. H. Bull of New York, were others whose opinions formed the project.

Construction of the subway was to have taken place in 1890 and junctions with the metal tube 16 feet in diameter allowing room for standard gauge railway. Prince Edward Island used the narrow gauge in those days and completion of the standard took place about 10 years ago.

Built in Pieces.

The subway was to have been built in five segments of a circle, plates being three inches thick, except where segments met making four inches. A strip called "shrinkage strip", six inches thick, would allow for contraction of tube. Each segment would be fitted together with two and a half inch bolts. Each 10 feet of the metal tube would weigh 26 tons, capable of bearing a crushing weight of 400 tons.

Metal used in the construction was to be and corrosive and lined with one foot of concrete inside. On the outside the concrete would be two feet, eight inches, in which ties would be imbedded for the railway. When completed each foot of the tube would weigh six and a half tons. The course was to be dredged so that the tube would be just level with the bottom of the straits to prevent any possible injury from contact with ice.

A moveable caisson, made of three-inch iron, shaped like a snow plough, 27 feet long, 26 feet wide and 32 feet high, would be fitted to the tube to prevent entering of water during the construction. The caisson could be floated at any depth and kept on the bottom by means of ballast. A gunnel, 15 feet in diameter and extending 15 feet above the water line, would supply ventilation and a portion of the light.

Hydraulic Jacks.

The main workshop would be fitted with 1,000 horse-power hydraulic jacks, 12 horse-power air engines, four hydraulic lifting cranes and all necessary tools of a mechanical workshop.

Ventilation of the subway would be made by two automatic air pumps placed in the tube at each end, 100 yards from where it left the piers. As soon as air in the subway became bad the pumps, driven by steam which would necessitate the burning of 800 pounds of coal a day, would automatically start.

Engineers said it would take two years to complete the project construction of which would only take place during the summer months due to the ice conditions of winter.

'TOUGH KIDS' COOKING EXPERTS

New York East Side Members Turn Out Mulligan Stew

New York, May 1.—Some of the rugged juveniles of the gas-house district on the East Side put aside their boxing gloves and donned white aprons with pot-holders, so that they could enter a cooking contest at the Madison Square Boys Club, when the seventh annual Boys Week is being observed.

With a minimum of delay, the youngsters rolled up their sleeves so that muscles could be seen bulging and rushed to the cooking stoves three mulligan stews ("a la' bobo") each of which cost 15 cents. There was enough in each stew for five persons. "If they are hungry, that is."

But that was not all the boys prepared.

There were two "whipped-cream layer cakes," cookies and fudge, and to mention three "5-hour steaks" fried with potatoes while a director of the club stood near with a fire extinguisher.

Oscar Tsohirky, Oscar of the Waldorf, was the judge.

Rosemary Awarded One.

When informed that the boys had prepared the three stew at a total cost of 54 cents (and that included the outlay for the turnips, the carrots, tomatoes, potatoes, shoulder of lamb and pepper and salt.) Oscar lifted his eyebrows, and said: "We couldn't do that at my house."

The boys defending their perfect-to-the-bone policy, agreed with Oscar but pointed out that he had an overhead at the hotel. Oscar merely chuckled at this comment, and went about the gymnasium nibbling at cookies, tasting fudge and sipping soup while the youngsters held their fingers crossed awaiting his selections.

Eddie, who believes that "too many cooks spoil the soup," peppered his stew alone, while the other pots were made by teams of two boys each. Besides, Eddie thought that he had experience in the art of stew-making. Often, he said, he cuts the vegetables for his mother at home.

He displayed slender fingers with little marks to prove his point. Undismayed, he will go right on with his stewing lessons until next year, he said, adding that he wouldn't forget about baseball, "wrestling," basketball and boxing.

HOPING TO SOLVE CORONA MYSTERY

Mount Wilson Scientist Sails Hoping to Identify Spectrum Lines

Pasadena, Calif., May 1—A trip half way around the earth for a four-minute view of a solar eclipse has been started by Dr. Theodore Dunham Jr., Mount Wilson Observatory astronomer. "This duration is greater than for most eclipses," he said before leaving, "and will permit the use of more powerful equipment than can be used ordinarily."

He is one of a group of scientists in an expedition sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the navy, going to the Phoenix Islands to observe the eclipse May 9.

Dr. Dunham's special equipment will include a powerful spectrograph with a motion picture camera which will make one photograph, a second.

"We on the earth are fortunate in having the moon at just the right distance to blot out the sun itself completely," he said. "This makes it possible for us to study the corona, a halo of light which extends out at least 1,000,000 miles from the sun's surface.

"The solar corona remains a mystery despite recent rapid progress made in most fields of astronomy and physics. The light of stars behind it shines through with little obscuration, indicating it is composed of material of very low density. Most of the corona's light is sunlight reflected by minute particles.

"In the corona's spectrum are at least twenty bright lines which have never been produced in any laboratory."

In fact, he said, the lines have never been found anywhere else in nature, with the exception of the "exploding" star R. S. Ophiuchi, which in 1933 flared up until it was 600 times as bright as before, then faded.

Aged Couple May Share in Estate

Three Rills, Alta. (CP) —Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sanderman, who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary last summer and are over 90 years of age, are wondering if they will share in the $20,000,000 estate left by Christofer Shaeffer in Iowa.

Executors in Philadelphia asked for any papers the couple might have which would establish relationship. Mrs. Sanderman's maiden name was Lena Shaeffer and thinks the estate may have been left by her father's younger brother, Christofer.

They have sent what papers they have to their eldest son, Carl, who lives near Philadelphia.

Beautiful Formosa, Japan's Treasure Isle

Oldest and richest of Japan's colonies, Formosa may well be called the Empire's Treasure Island.

In the furious international argument that is raging around the question whether colonies do or do not pay, Formosa is an eloquent witness for the affirmative.

In no country that I have visited, with the possible exception of Malaya, are the material benefits to the ruling power so obvious and the cost of defense and policing on the other side of the balance sheet so light. And Formosa gives the impression of being more intensively developed than Malaya in many ways, from providing the last available job for deserving Japanese to extracting the maximum of agricultural wealth from its rich soil. Japan's pressure of population and scanty colonial possessions doubtless help to account for this difference.

Still Most Question

Of course the fact that Formosa has been a profitable colonial venture for Japan does not in any way settle the question as to whether colonies, in general, are profitable. It would be easy to find other colonies whose possession, which bear liabilities, not assets from the standpoint of the national economy.

Balanced judgment on the dividends about the value of colonies must reckon with the fact that there is a very wide divergence among the colonial possessions of the world, in such vitally important factors as natural wealth, cost of administration and exposure to foreign attack. What is true of one colony may be conspicuously untrue of another.

Japan has made Formosa pay. This is no proof that she can make Manchoukuo pay.

I came to Formosa from Fukien, the Chinese coastal province from which most of the Formosans originally came. In such matters as municipal cleanliness and sanitation, communication facilities, hygienic measures, freedom from banditism and piracy, the contrasts were striking and were overwhelmingly in favor of Japanese rule in Formosa. As between imperialistic and as will be shown subsequently, has not been characterized by any very sentimental consideration for the feelings of the native inhabitants. But Japanese imperialism has not been parasitic. It has been of the hard-working, efficient type, which, however it may be criticised on some points, has brought with it incidental benefits in the shape of better roads, schools, and greater safety of life and property.

Three Days Sail Away

Formosa, or, as the Japanese call it, Taiwan, lies southwest of the main group of islands which make the Empire and is about three days' sail from Japan's chief port of Kobe. It faces Fukien Province in China, to the West, and on a clear day the northernmost of the Philippines can be seen from the southern promontory of Formosa. The island, with an area of about 13,000 square miles, is about 250 miles long and a little less than a hundred miles wide at its broadest point.

Like all the larger Japanese Islands Formosa is very mountainous. Its highest peak, Mount Niitaka, exceeding Fujiyama in height or over thirteen thousand feet. The east coast is ruggedly precipitous; it is along the level and undulating stretches of the west coast that one finds the larger towns, the main lines of communication and the farms and plantations of Formosa's two principal crops, sugar-cane and rice. Formosa, which enjoys a mild and equable climate and fertile soil, is also adapted for the cultivation of bananas, pineapples, citrus fruits and tea, and is the world's largest producer of natural camphor.

Japan's main police pre-occupation since that time has been with the warlike aborigines in the mountains. It is estimated that about 7,000 Japanese lost their lives in conflicts with these tribesmen during the four decades of the occupation. At the present time, however, the aborigines seem to have settled down to peaceful life, with Japanese policemen in their villages as their mentors and school teachers.

The island raised 13,000,000 pounds of bananas in 1936. Its rice crop in future had risen to about 380,000,000 pounds.

Formosan economy fits very smoothly into that of Japan proper, which offers an assured market for practically all its sugar and fruits and also absorbs about half of its rice, which is produced much more cheaply than rice in Japan. Total Japanese investment in the "treasure island" is in the neighborhood of 400,000,000 yen (about 115,000,000 American dollars) of which 250,000,000 yen is in the sugar industry.

Free Trade.

Formosa is part of Japan, so far as tariffs are concerned. The existing free trade arrangement with Japan, combined with the natural foreign goods, has made Formosa an economic appendage of Japan, just as the Philippines, for the same reason, have become an economic appendage of the United States. During 1936 Japan received over 90 per cent. of Formosa's exports and supplied over 80 per cent of the island's imports.

With agricultural development approaching its limit, the government is now promoting industrial enterprises in Formosa. An aluminum factory using bauxite ore from the Dutch East Indies has been set in operation in Takao. There are a number of fruit canneries, together with paper, cement and chemical plants. There is a plan to manufacture alloy steel at Keelung. The main port in Northern Formosa. The Taiwan Electric Power Company, which floated a loan in America several years ago, has a big hydro-electric power plant of 100,000 kilowatts capacity, on Lake Candidius, in the central part of the island; this capacity will be increased by 60,000 kilowatts when three new generators from Germany arrive. This electrical power is expected to be the source of further industrialization.

Whatever may have been the original cost of the occupation and policing of Formosa, there seems to be little doubt that the island today should be reckoned as a distinctly profitable item in Japan's balance sheet. Not only does the island pay its own administrative expenses, but it made a contribution of 3,260,000 yen to the Japanese budget.

There are several economic advantages which Japan derives from the possession of Formosa, which it would not enjoy, at least in the same measure, if the island had remained under Chinese rule or had passed under the sovereignty of another power. Over a quarter of a million Japanese make a living in Formosa, mostly as officials, government employees and in Japanese industries and commercial enterprises. Only a fraction of these could have hoped for employment if Formosa were under some other sovereignty.

Some valuable items in the Japanese diet—sugar, bananas, pineapples citrus fruits—are largely or entirely supplied from Formosa, without imposing any strain on the country's limited stock of foreign exchange. An advocate of free trade might argue that Japan could buy these products elsewhere and that the production cost of Jaya sugar is lower than that of the Formosan product. But Japan has the best reason to know, from practical experience, that we are not living in a free trade world. Wherever her are the fire engines, hitherto red, but own flag does not fly her goods are now to be painted green.

Japi to encounter tariff and quota barriers. Japan, in return, grants such obstacles in Formosa, with the result that Japanese textiles and cheap manufactured goods can be exchanged without limitation for Formosan sugar and bananas.

Employment for Japanese

The economic development of the island has provided a good deal of direct and indirect employment for Japanese factories, firms and shipping companies. If Formosa had remained under Chinese rule the scope of the development, in all probability, would have been much smaller. If Great Britain, France or the Netherlands had taken over the island, Japan could not have played such a prominent role in exploiting its resources.

Finally and this is a point of capital importance, Formosa does not require any great defense expenditure. Half of one division of troops is garrisoned there. It is questionable whether the additional military strength is any greater because of possession of the island.

This immediately marks a sharp distinction between Formosa and Manchoukuo, whose very heavy overhead cost is necessary for guarding the long border with the Soviet Union.—By William Henry Chamberlin in Christian Science Monitor.

Native Soil Carried Into Exile By Rumanian Prince Nicholas

Vienna, May 1.—Former Prince Nicholas of Rumania, arrived by plane from Bucharest to begin a new chapter in his turbulent career with exile for the second time in five years.

The ex-Prince—now plain M. Nicholas Brana—was banished and his rank stripped from him by his brother, King Carol II, because Carol objected to Nicholas' marriage to the present Mrs. Brana, a lawyer's daughter.

Mrs. Brana accompanied the 34-year-old exile. She chatted gaily, but Nicholas, tall and wearing a camel-hair coat, was glum and silent.

Members of the Rumanian legation met the couple at the Austrian airdrome. Their four-year-old son, whom Nicholas reportedly wanted to establish as heir to the Rumanian throne—the incident for which he was banished—was not with them.

One report said Nicholas might go to Italy.

It was understood Nicholas' hand-bags contained a bottle of water, a small case of salt, and a case of Rumanian soil given to him by the Iron Guards when he left.

Exploded Theories

By Jamieson Bone.

We often hear of gasoline exploding, or sewer gas or something of that nature. As a matter of fact the word "gasoline" itself blew up some years ago from "gasolene" in England, to "gasoline" here. Something like "ALUMINUM" here which becomes "ALUMINIUM" in England, but the worst explosion of all is when the name "Marjoribanks" is pronounced—they tell me over there—"Beecham." Of course, one can easily trace the connection between Marjory and Beech and those of us who are compelled frequently to interview the bank manager—an easy bank manager—can easily see the relation between "Mank" and "ham."

Sewer gas explosions are comparatively rare hereabouts but nevertheless many a palatial centre board sailing punt has been destroyed by a lighted match or cigarette carelessly tossed overboard into the Bay of Quinte especially near Victoria Park.

A theory however, does not explode with a bang like sewer gas, although many of them are no better. Take the Abelgart theories in Alberta for instance. Of course, when I say "take them" I know you won't, nobody will, but the theory of "something for nothing" is the hardest of all to detonate. People of all sorts keep trying it year after year, and in a hundred different ways. The Irish sweepstakes get a lot of hard earned money and so does the stock market. The market explodes in the speculator's face about once a year but he has learned to like it, and frequently he makes money, at least on paper. Seldom does he cash in while the cashing is good and if he does, he soon cashes out again.

The theory of "Daylight-Saving" is an exploded one in Belleville, but not in other places. "Summer Time" came into force in Belgium and France this year on April 4th and in Britain on April 18th. Of course, these countries have only a combined population of about 100 million people, and we are certainly not going to follow their lead. Only 14,000 people know better, and we like the dark. One cannot play golf or tennis very well by moon light, but there are other games, they say. However, two million Canadians go on advanced time about the end of April, including all the surrounding towns, and it looks as though we would be drawn into the vortex sooner or later. We are not going to be rushed into this thing unduly though. We took our time thinking over the Bay Bridge Proposition, we backed up on Zwicky Island, the River Esplanade, Pinnacle St. Railway, etc., etc., and true to our traditions we will be the very last place to adopt any new-fangled time change.

A Clock Strike

If the City Council had any courage at all they would make the change without consulting anybody, because they must know that the people are for it by a large majority. The last vote taken was in error from the municipal list and hundreds of young citizens were disfranchised thereby. It was a fraud like we should put on a clock or clock strike.

Another exploded theory is the one to the effect that "Education makes the Nation." What does it make the nation? It makes us a nation of bond speculators for one thing because we cannot pay the bills. It makes us move out of homes into flats, and it makes the children stay at school until they are 40. No boy of 40 should be at school. The explosion here has not been very loud yet, but it will be heard. When people realize that all the fun they get out of life is taking, so that the children can stay at school for ever and get nowhere, they will rebel. They should rebel now except that thinking for one's self has gone out of date and is now obsolete. Besides education is such fun.

Fears Feared Fatalities

"Honesty is the best Policy" is not an exploded theory, and only occasionally is honesty seen in every day life one would think that it was. The theory of "Hell and Eternal Damnation" is definitely exploded and all the ashes of "fear" theories will follow suit in due course, probably in another hundred years. Not even one kind or another probably will more people annually than heart disease, maybe the one induces the other. One does not mention that the Bible itself has exploded in spots, because people are fanatical and today without reason when it comes to religion or politics. That is why, and the only reason Of why, religion and politics are not discussed more. Both need fumigating though.

"The Munro Doctrine" always was a rather nebulous theory, but during the past two generations, which will probably be known in history as "The Roaring and Roll of the United States" it has definitely evaporated. Even the U.S. Navy cannot even protect themselves against themselves, and are too proud to fight, except with one another. The word "decadent" is no longer mentioned when they refer to "Merrie England" and "Gone With the Wind" is not as I had suspected, a book on indigestion. The first half is interesting even if rubbish, but the second half is certainly no aid to digestion.

Jews Liked Christians

The Theory of Evolution and the Nebular Theory have been denied in spots, but not very seriously yet. As far back as our Archaeologists can go, and that is many thousands of years B.C., man seems to have been much the same sort of animal that he now is. We have read of the lynchings down south, and how the spectators love it, one can easily see that the Romans, feeding Christians to the lions, were no worse. If you have ever tried to collect funds for any Christian church from Christians, you have no doubt often thought that the Romans were right. The lawyers of ancient civilizations were nothing compared to the brutalities of the comparatively recent Inquisition, and the wars in Babylonia were just as decent as the Spanish or Russian or Italian wars. The old tale of the Good Samaritan and the bad holdup man is repeated daily on this continent, except the part about the Good Samaritan. So taken all around we are not progressing so very much.

The Nebular Theory is beyond the scope of this article or writer, but the theory that the world and the whole cosmos (not Cosmos Imperial) were always there and shall always be there, seems just as reasonable as the theory that we came from nothing and someday must evaporate again. Things it even but don't think too hard because Kingston's facilities are taxed to the limit now, and we would rather have you here.

ROTARY SPIRIT

Red roses for the living, and handclasps warm and true,
A heart that's tuned to giving, and strength to dare and do;
The sound of honest laughter, the joy of honest toil;
For those that follow after, to leave a finer soil.
All this has been and ever will be the Rotary plan,
A man's sincere endeavour to serve his fellowman.

A little less self seeking, a little more for men,
Less bitter in our speaking, more kindly with the pen;
A little less of swerving from paths of truth and right,
A little more of serving and less of dollar might.
More peaceful with our neighbours, and a launcher to our friends,
For this all Rotary labors, on this its hope depends.

To smooth the way for others, to make of life the quest,
To make the phrase "our brother" mean more than idle boast;
To praise sincere endeavour, when praise will spur it on,
Withholding kind words never until the friend is gone;
This is the Rotary spirit, this is the Rotary dream,
God grant that we may near it, before we cross the stream.

HEART THROBS REVEALED IN LETTERS

Her First Earned Dollar Given to Rotary

A THANKFUL HEART

Just a Glimpse Into The Heart of Rotary Through Thankful Letters

Interesting sidelights upon the work for Crippled Children done by Belleville Rotary Club are contained in a sheaf of letters from parents, children, clergymen, doctors, and others expressing appreciation for Rotary efforts in behalf of sick and crippled children. Here are some samples, the originals of which are on file with Mr. Chas. J. Symons, Chairman of the Rotary Crippled Children Committee:

A letter from a mother, dated November 10, 1930, at Toronto, said: "I should have written you before but have been very busy so please excuse me this time. Joe is coming fine. His boots cost $7.50. I gave them five dollars ,was that all right? I will send you the receipt that Miss Drury gave me. Joe is going to school and likes it fine. I am to call at the Hospital for Sick Children in six months time, and after by the Belleville Rotary Club, if you decide to give it attention. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. ——. The child is around two years old and the poor foot is not right. Hoping to hear from you as to what may be done.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Kenneth Bateman.

This call from the north was answered favorably at once, and the child given the best medical attention with favorable results.

Her First Dollar

Here's a letter that expressed in marked degree the value of the Rotary work for crippled children and the appreciation of those who have directly benefited. It is a letter from a little young girl, who was saved by Rotary from a lifetime of misery through a defective foot. She was given medical specialist treatment, the most skilful that could be obtained, and the cost in dollars and cents not counted—the result a complete cure and the happiest girl in the world. Here's her letter:

Dear Sir—It has always been my intention to donate my first earned dollar to the Rotary Club Crippled Children's Fund, as I feel I owe to the club and its members my life today. I have not easily forgotten what they have done for me and how I love them all. I am working at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Centreville, and will, as long as I can, donate to the Crippled Children's Fund. Enclosed my little savings will do for some poor child what the Rotary Fund has done for me.

Faithfully yours,
Your Little Friend.

Sixty-Two Miles Away

Dear Sir— I would be grateful if you would kindly help me to procure assistance for a poor family here who have a bright little boy who is suffering from enlarged tonsils and adenoids very severely. His parents are quite unable to pay hard-working people and really have not the means to pay for this operation on their child. If you could help me . . . both I and the parents would be grateful.

Rev. J. Woods,

This case was attended to at once.

Helping a Student

Rotary does not pick and choose, wherever there is a want brought to its attention which does not seem to fit into the field of other organizations, Rotary usually manages to glad up take hold and help to the best of its ability. A recent letter received from the head of an educational institution in this province was the occasion of Rotary work by the Belleville Rotary Club was only too glad to lend a hand and help a deserving young man over the hard places and the hurdles of circumstances to pay for the case but have consented to take a look-up later by the Belleville Rotary Club, if you decide to give it attention. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. ——. The child is around two years old and the poor foot is not right. Hoping to hear from you as to what may be done.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Kenneth Bateman.

ROTARY HELP SOUR CASES?
Would it, provided they deemed it worthy after investigation?
Sincerely,

Belleville Rotary Club was only too glad to extend all the assistance required to meet this case.

The above are but examples of many letters received and are printed to show the wide range of work undertaken by Belleville Rotary Club. Neither distance nor expense is considered when the call comes, and if the case is under investigation it turns out to be in the Rotary jurisdiction, the work of no other organization being invaded, Rotary will do its best to solve the difficulty where honest need is concerned.

Dogs, Cats, Mice Die in Smoky Blaze

New York, May 1.—Fourteen dogs, twelve cats and seventy white mice, scheduled to die in the interests of scientific research, were suffocated one day this week in a smoky fire that raged for nearly three-quarters of an hour, on the top floor of New York University's Loomis Research Building, a five-storey structure at 100 West Twenty-sixth Street, opposite Bellevue Hospital.

Most of the rabbits that were kept in cages on the top floor with the dogs, cats, rats and mice appeared to be smoke-eaters, for they survived the flames. However, a few rabbit and some cats, rats and dogs had to be treated for smoke inhalation by a hypodermic needle in taking the place of an oxygen inhalator.

None of the patients in Bellevue was disturbed by the fire, the four pieces of apparatus that answered the alarm going to the scene with muffled bells and sirens. The building is on the block between First Avenue and the East River, and, as is customary when a fire is near the riverfront, a fireboat was sent, but its help was not needed.

The first floor of the building is vacant. The second houses a gymnasium used by Bellevue nurses and internes. The third and fourth floors are given over to laboratories and the top floor houses the animals destined for examination by knife, lens and chemical on the operating table.

A man on his way to visit a friend in Bellevue saw smoke coming from the top floor at 5.25 p.m. and telephoned an alarm. The blaze was the fire was undetermined. The property damage was slight.

TOOK PEARLS TO DEATH

Plymouth, England, May 1 (CP)—Disappearing from a cruise liner at sea, Mrs. Maudie Fairclough, 63, wrote she had no interest in life and added: "I am taking my pearls with me, they hold such wonderful memories."

Dionne Quints on Way to Wealth

Canada's butchers and bakers and candlestick makers have poured a stream of gold into the laps of five baby girls who have yet to celebrate their third birthday. From producers of lollypops and tooth paste, movies and soap flakes, oatmeal and clothes, and a wide variety of other articles, the Dionne Quintuplets have received through their guardians tribute for the use of their name and likenesses that will near the $1 million level within a few years.

The net wealth of the Quintuplets at the start of this year was $535,423 and the total of their actual and potential assets, including guaranteed future payments under unexpired contracts, was $822,606. Both amounts include the capitalized cost ($57,854) of the Quints' modern hospital-home at Callander, Ont., as well as net residual revenues from sale of motion picture photo, advertising and manufacturing-selling rights.

Gross revenue from such contracts, but not including the value of gifts of clothing, food, equipment and supplies, has amounted to $573,764, according to a return tabled in the Ontario Legislature on receipts and expenditures under the Dionne guardianship established by statute in 1935. Included in the figures given by Hon. David A. Croll, welfare minister, are receipts of $30,560 taken in by the former guardians and not renewed.

The babies are assured of minimum additional gross during the next three to five years of $287,361, in amounts unpaid under stated-sum contracts or under percentage and royalty contracts with a minimum guarantee provision. Thus the gross actual and potential revenue has reached a total of $861,147, with every assurance that the gross revenue actually received by the time the quints are eight years old (five years from now) will have reached a sum substantially in excess of this figure.

Total expenditures in behalf of the quintuplets since they were brought under protection of the Guardianship Act in May, 1935, amounted to $288,996. Of this, $97,-854 was the cost of hospital and other building construction, equipment, furnishing supplies, and this amount was capitalized and the hospital listed as an asset. The adjustment left the net amount of general expenses a $38,341 for a period of 21 months.

Quints Cost of Living.

The general expenditure included items for the pay of nurses, police officers and other members of the staff of the hospital; supplies, equipment and general maintenance of the hospital; legal expenses in connection with contracts and guardianship; telephone and telegram costs; fuel, bank charges, freight charges and customs duty on donated shipments of soy bean milk and clothing ($720); fire insurance and surety bond premiums.

During the period covered by the report, payments included one of $4,060 as the professional salary of Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the quints's physician; plus $287 for this office expenses and supplies and $1,223 for Dr. Dafoe's secretary from April, 1936, to January 31, 1937. To the quintuplets' parents, Oliva and Elzire Dionne, was paid a total of $3,250, including $2,100 as their allowance from the babies' revenues, $1,000 as a birthday present from the quints last May, and a special allowance of $150 to Papa Dionne to cover the loss of some cows.

An item of $1,800 covers salary and travelling expenses of an auditor. A contribution of $200 as a church offering was made.

No Income Tax

Curiosity is whether the quintuplets are assessed for income tax and it appears to be answered in the return, which shows no outlay for income tax (either provincial or federal) over the 21-months period. It is possible, however, that there may be income tax deductions from the revenue accruing from interest yields on the bonds in which was invested most of the residual revenue of the children.

Of the gross revenue received from contracts for advertising, manufacturing and picture exploitation, the major portion came and is coming from still picture and motion picture rights. More than half of the total gross revenue has come from the Twentieth Century-Fox Films, which firm has paid in $300,000 for the right to star the quints in four feature length movies, two yet to be produced.

LASHES FOR WIFE KILLED

Outdaberri, South Africa, May 1 (CP) — Saying there was far too much killing of wives, Justice Sutton sentenced Elias Booyse, colored, to three years imprisonment and eight lashes, on being found guilty of culpable homicide, his wife dying after a beating.

CONSIDER'S FUPEL'S ABILITY

London, May 1 (CP)—The Board of Education has altered its "Book of Suggestion" with a tendency toward giving instruction according to the pupil's ability to receive, rather than massing into classes whether or not they are ready for it.

No Inferiority Complex For Girls of England

For years I had read the legend—for legend it has become—of how English girls lack poise, chic, dress-sense and what not, and for years I believed it and felt rather down-in-the-mouth about it, writes Betty Stockfeld, the British film star. And I suppose that thousands of English girls must have had the same experience.

Then I began to travel extensively on the continent; my work it films took me more and more frequently to France until I found that I was spending a third of the year and more abroad. I became acclimatised to Paris, found eventually, that I could speak French as fluently as English and could even think in French as easily and naturally. Gradually I got to the stage when I could make myself see things as it were from the French point of view; I discovered that just as English girls envied their French cousins, so the French girls cast envious eyes across the Channel. Frenchmen ecstasised to me about the freshness and chic of the English girls—and I don't think it was just their well-known gallantry towards the fair sex that led them to do it.

An You Need.

And so it came about that I came to my senses, and this coming-to did me a world of good. Coming back to England after a stay abroad I wandered about the West End finding constant corroboration of my discovery. English girls were smart, chic, dressed with taste and imagination. If they lacked anything at all it was assurance. And that assurance was lacking because we had been swallowing wholesale everything that has been said about us for years.

What's to be done about it?

Go to Paris and watch the Frenchwomen. They walk as though the streets belong to them; they talk to their best friends as though they are surprised that they are not on their knees before them. Is that the secret? It certainly is.

It isn't the clothes they wear; it isn't the make-up they put on; it isn't what they do to keep their figures slim; it isn't what they do to their faces to keep their complexions fresh. All these things we know how to do and do in just the same way. If we could but learn how to place ourselves on pedestals as they do, we should soon let the legend that has been built around us fade into the obscurity it deserves.

London Is Fashion Centre.

London today is fast becoming Europe's fashion centre. Visiting Americans buy their clothes in London when before they made Paris their goal. The models created by great English designers are imitated the world over. Hollywood imports British talent for their major films.

Hollywood, in its endless search for new film stars keeps (so I am told) more talent scouts in London than anywhere else. Merle Oberon, Elizabeth Allan, Margot Grahame and Pat Paterson (to name only four of the British girls who have made good over the other side) are typically English girls. Do they lack glamour, poise and chic?

Of course there are dowdy girls here just as there are in every country—girls who do not bother about their appearance—who could, with a little care and attention, be as smart as any of their more ambitious friends. But is it fair to judge the nation by the few? It reminds me of the old story of the two Arabs who were discussing a camel. One said that it had two humps in his neck; the other said it had three. While they were arguing the point the camel turned round and remarked: "What part of me is straight that you should criticise my neck?" Why pick on the unimportant part of the whole?

A scene of my latest film is supposed to take place in a crowded fashionable continental restaurant. Now I have been to a good many restaurants of this kind, yet I can assure you I have rarely seen in one of them so many beautiful girls gathered together. Who are they? Just our extras—ex-typists, ex-students, ex-waitresses, ex-anything, who have aspirations to act on the screen and who are thus serving their apprenticeship. I have noticed equal good looks off the studio floor, too—among the secretaries and typists that I see in the corridors. And the astonishing thing is that they all seem so well dressed—although several of them to whom I have chatted have confided in me how little it costs them.

Il Ne Faut Pas Souffrir.

The old phrase "Il faut souffrir pour etre belle" no longer applies. It is a relic of those days when waists had to be squeezed willy-nilly into confines too small for them, when smiles had to be worn though whalebones pierced one's flesh, when legs were straddled into long boots. Indeed when women were allowed to call legs legs, and not limbs, the phrase began to lose its meaning.

The modern girl has no need to suffer to keep up a smart appearance. She need not deny herself food for the exercise she takes (women should take, if she doesn't!) is sufficient to keep her figure slim; she need not deny herself money for other things for clothes are cheap to buy; and there's no need whatsoever to indulge in ghoulish experiments with quack inventions to keep a good complexion. My own formula, which I hand on gratis to any girl who wants to try it is plenty of walking, buttermilk to drink, plenty of fresh fruit every day, and an occasional application of oatmeal on the face for the complexion. You will agree that not one of these items is an expensive one, nor does it necessitate much bother. Except possibly the walking; that can be a bother if you don't like it. I happen to like it very much.

Please don't think that I am insular and narrowminded because I have insisted so much in this article on the fact that the English girl today can hold her head high among her contemporaries. I am not a bit insular, really, and I have the greatest admiration for continental women—particularly the French, because I know them best, and because I have so many friends among them. But I believe in giving credit where credit is due—and in this case it has been long overdue!—Montreal Star.

Elopers Suicided

London, May 1 (CP)—A 19-year-old hospital nurse who two weeks previously had eloped with a married merchant, was found dead with him in a gas-filled room.

MARRIED SIXTY YEARS AGO AT OLD FORT WALSH

Ceremony Performed by Mounted Police Commissioner With Members of Force in Attendance; Lived at Fort Until it was Abandoned

Maple Creek, Sask. (CP)— Fort Walsh has been demolished but the old headquarters of the Royal North West Mounted Police was vivid in the memories of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Quesnelle when they celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary here.

The sprightly old couple recalled their marriage at the fort, 45 miles south of here. The ceremony was performed by Major F. Walsh and attendants were Captain Jack Allen, Dr. E. Kitson and other members of the force.

Jules was born in Wyoming state Dec. 24, 1855. With his father he visited Fort Walsh in 1875, remained to organize a freight system to transport supplies from Fort Benson to Fort Walsh.

There the 21 year old young man wooed and won Rachel MacKay, 17 year old daughter of Hudson Bay factor. The couple lived at the fort until 1883 when the force was transferred.

Roosevelt Gets Good Sleep by Ruse

Washington, May 1—President Roosevelt resorted to a ruse the other night to prevent his sleep from being disturbed.

His special train for the South did not leave Union Station until 6 o'clock this morning, although the White House had issued an officially itinerary giving the departure time as 1 o'clock.

The reason, it was explained at the White House, was that the President wanted a good sleep and feared that if the 5 a.m. time were revealed newspaper men, and other members of the party would be arriving at the station all through the night and disturbing his slumber.

All were on board before 1 o'clock.

From Powder Horn to Cartridge

Firing a gun today is a simple operation—so simple, in fact, that most sportsmen talk it as a matter of course, remarks Clifford Wilson in the C-I-L Oval. They know that they have only to insert a cartridge or shotshell in the breech, close it, take aim, and pull the trigger, and, provided the aim is good, the bullet or shot will hit just where it was meant to hit. A child can do it—and frequently does. Yet how many of today's sportsmen realize the centuries of trial and error it has taken to evolve that simple operation?

Not quite 300 years ago a battle was fought at a place called Wittenweiher, near the Rhine, and it was considered remarkable that, during the course of the nine-hour engagement, "even the lastest musketeers discharged their guns six or seven times."

If you figure that out you will find that once every 75 to 90 minutes was a passable rate for such a battle. And you can't be altogether surprised when you consider what the musketeer of those days had to carry, in order to keep his gun working properly.

To begin with, if the weapon was a heavy one he had to tote around a forked rest about five feet long to support it on when firing. From his belt over his left shoulder, he wore a bandolier from which were suspended a dozen leathercovered capsules, each containing a measured charge of powder. At his side hung a pouch containing about thirty musket balls. And draped around other portions of his person were: a large flask of ordinary powder from which to refill the capsules; a small flask of priming-powder mixed with sulphur; a binder-box; a long coil of slow-burning match-cord; a gun scraper; a ramrod; some greased patches; some wiping rags; and a needle to clear the vent, or touch-hole.

In order to fire the gun, he would empty one of his powder-capsules down the muzzle, ram down a wad on top of the charge, ram down a ball or two on top of that, pour a little priming powder on to the flash-pan at the side of the barrel, turn the musket slightly on one side and tap it so that the priming powder would fill the vent, and finally aim the gun and touch off the powder in the pan. The ignited priming powder would then fire the main charge inside the barrel, via the vent and the gun would be discharged—that is, it would if the powder wasn't wet, or of poor quality, or the vent didn't get clogged up in the process.

The way the priming-powder was touched off depended, of course, on the type of firearm, whether match-lock, wheel-lock, or flint-lock. In the early match-locks, invented about 1400, the mechanism was of the simplest, consisting of an S-shaped "serpentine" pivoting on the side of the stock, and holding the glowing match-cord in its jaws. The primer was ignited by lifting the tail of the serpentine so that the head would descend into the pan. Later the snapping match-lock was invented, in which the serpentine worked on a spring, released by pulling the trigger.

The wheel-lock, invented about 1515, was the principal sporting weapon during most of the 16th Century, and was in use on this continent until the middle of the 17th. It was more mechanical in its action than the match-lock, and did away with that tiresome and cumbrous article, the coil of slow-match. It consisted of a toothed wheel that was wound up with a key and released by the trigger. As it unwound, it grated against a fixed piece of iron pyrites and projected the resultant sparks into the flash pan.

Next came the flint-lock, in which the pyrites or flint was held in the hammer and struck against a fixed piece of steel when the trigger was pulled. This type of firearm, which lasted until comparatively recently, was developed rapidly in England (possibly owing to its superior performance in the rain) during the early part of the 17th Century.

It was not until later, however, that the combined steel-and-pan-cover was invented, whereby the flash pan remained covered by the hinged steel until the latter was struck by the flint and knocked backward to expose the primer to the sparks. By this means a musket of 1775 could be loaded and fired every fifteen seconds.

The next important advance was the percussion lock, the greatest single improvement in firearms ever conceived. It was invented in 1805 by a sporting Scottish minister, and did away with all the tiresome business of flint and steel. Finally, in the 1860's the needle gun was introduced to the shooting public.

As for the range of these old-time arms: In the sixteenth century a Spanish arquebus could send a ball 250 yards; but the gun itself was a young cannon, weighing 15 to 20 pounds. A century later, a much lighter Swedish musket could fire a one-ounce ball about the same distance, while about 1760 the range of a standard musket was still computed at about 260 yards. Good execution, however, could be done by the latter at 360 yards by elevating the muzzle a few degrees, besides which, its accuracy was doubtless greater than that of the older muskets. Gradually, by improving both the rifling and the ammunition, the ranges of firearms were stepped up until to-day even a boy's .22 can fire a standard bullet over one mile.

Cartridges, as an alternative to the capsule method of loading, were used quite early, but only in cases of emergency. At first they were simply measured charges of powder wrapped in paper, but later the ball and powder were combined by binding the bullet into the neck of the cartridge case. King Gustavus Adolphus introduced them into Sweden as early as the first part of the 17th Century, but little improvement was made in them during the next two hundred years, and the British Army was still using paper cartridges as late as the 1850's.

The method of loading with these was to twist or bite off the end of the cartridge, pour the powder down the muzzle, and then ram home the bullet with its greased portion of cartridge case. Not until breech-loaders came into general use was the modern type of cartridge evolved.

Today its manufacture has become highly specialized, owing to the varied makes and calibres of rifles and shot guns now in use, and the different types of powder and bullets and cartridge cases in demand. At Bowmanville, P.Q., Canada's only sporting - ammunition factory, as many as twenty-eight varieties of rim-fire metal cartridges are made, and no less than ninety-three varieties of centre-fire—to say nothing of almost a hundred different kinds of shot-shell loads.

And what a vast difference these handy little packets of powder and lead have made to the ease of carrying ammunition and loading, and to the speed and accuracy of firing. Imagine the open-mouthed astonishment of a sportsman of the match-lock era, if he could watch a modern marksman fill up the magazine of his rifle with metal cartridges and discharge them in rapid succession, sending the bullets smashing into a bullseye a thousand yards away with unerring regularity. Or see him load up his double-barrelled shot gun in the pouring rain, with waterproofed shot-shells and cartridges, and bring a brace down on the wing in as many seconds. He would probably conclude that the age of miracles has definitely arrived. And yet, to the Canadian sportsman of today, it is all a matter of course. Why? Because through experience he knows that in all weathers, he can rely on the accuracy of his gun and the dependability of his ammunition.

100,000 SOUTH ENGLAND BUSMEN STRIKE

TRAFFIC SNARLED AS BUSMEN IN LONDON STRIKE

25,000 Drivers And Conductors Refuse To Move Vehicles

CITY PARALYZED

800,000 Coal Miners May Go Out on May 22nd

London, May 1 (CP) — Britain, with its capital today in the grip of a vast surface transportation strike, faced the prospect of more than 800,000 coal miners leaving work in three weeks.

With the coronation less than two weeks away and the city overflowing with visitors and with soccer enthusiasts for this afternoon's cup final, London's buses did not stir out of their garages.

Drivers numbering 12,500 and 12,700 conductors began their strike at midnight to obtain from the passenger transport board a 1½-hour day in place of the present eight hours, and a slowing up in what they describe as "killing" schedules.

The city's traffic snarl was duplicated in practically all the areas of England where more than 100,000 drivers and conductors went on strike simultaneously.

Busmen asserted the strike was 100 per cent effective in the districts they are. The familiar red buses were absent from city streets for the first time since the great general strike of May 1926, when 2,500,000 striking workers paralyzed the nation.

Thousands of Londoners wheeled out their bicycles some of them tandems — and pedaled to work. Many sympathetic motorists gave pedestrians lifts.

Streetcars and subways were jammed during the morning rush hour. Frequently passengers were forced to wait for hours for a ride in front before they could find standing room.

At all bus garages, strong lines of picked, heavily armed police guards stood in an orderly manner under the watchful eyes of police.

There was a possibility the subway men would further confound the situation later by quitting work but the tram-men declared they would not take the bus-men's action as a sympathetic strike.

The garden calendar! May of course is the busiest time for plant and all danger of frost is over except in the Prairie Provinces and Minnesota. In the North ins tead of the month to sow tender annuals, such as asters, balsams, cosmos, Zinnias, Sweet Sultan, Ageratum, Flowering Tobacco, Portulaca, Kochia, eggplant and pepper plants may safely now be safely set out at the end of the month in the extreme north and earlier farther south. In the South, continue sowing beans, beets and carrots for succesive crops. Celery may be set out now for a big crop. Set out sweet potatoes near the end of the month.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—A shallow trough of low pressure over the Great Lakes region moved eastward to the Gulf of Mexico. A ridge of high pressure from the western provinces and Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic and the north of the Great Lakes eastward to Newfoundland. Showers and thunderstorms in southern districts of Manitoba while in Ontario and Quebec the weather has been fair.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh easterly winds; partly cloudy tonight and Sunday; probably some showers.

Manitoba—Mostly cloudy tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Fair and mild today and Sunday.

Sunderland Defeats Preston N. E. in English Cup Final by 3 to 1

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Camden, S.C., May 1 (CP) — Arthur Clark, stamp clerk at the postoffice here, forecasts weather free of charge.

"I can always tell whether it is going to rain," he said" today. "It's simple. If the stamps in the sheets in the cabinet curl at the edge you can bet it is going to rain right or in 24 hours. If the stamps stay flat, it will remain clear."

Galt, Ont., May 1 (CP)—George Rand had the job of hailing approaching summer yesterday when he flew a straw hat, first seen here this year. Mr. Rand, who usually waits until May 1 to start the season, said he couldn't waste such a warm day but just the same kept his overcoat handy. He has been the first Galt man to wear summer headgear here for six years.

Omaha, Neb., May 1 (AP)—Egg eaters vary in their preferences for yolk colors, but not for texture, the milkiest motion of the American Chemical Society learned today.

Dr. Paul E. Howe of the U.S. Agricultural Research Service, who has looked into the matter said he found differences between eggs.

The New Yorker and Boston-ian, for example, think the light yellow yolks look as well as taste best. The Georgian will take the dark yellow. In the corn belt, Nebraska and Iowa specifically, the yellow-red yolk is top.

Incidentally, the chemist also found a hen produces 1-4 hours to manufacture an egg, regardless of yolk color.

HITLER THREATENS WITHDRAWALS

Lashes at Opposition, Catholic And Other-wise

Berlin, May 1 (AP)—Hitler threatened bluntly today to "withdraw the German people" from any attempt to "disturb our community spirit."

He lashed out at opposition Catholic and otherwise—in a speech at the Langemarck Hall for 20,000 workers.

"If anybody tries through encyclicals, sermons, or other religious measures to disturb our community spirit, we will absolutely withdraw the clergymen's license from such," Hitler said. "We will not do for certain circles to criticize our morals when they have the greatest reason to be concerned about morals in their own ranks."

Hitler's speech provided further repercussions to the fight between Reich and Vatican. Nazis have been accused by Pope Pius, in an earlier encyclical, of violating the 1933 German-Vatican concordat, setting up separate spheres of influence in the Reich. Official comment recently sentenced three Catholic chaplains to long prison terms on charges of aiding a united Catholic-Communist front against Nazism. Several Catholic brothers received sentences on immorality charges.

'Grandma' Martha Weeks at 109 Wishes to go Shopping

Cheque For $7.50 Cashed And Spent in Five And Ten Cent Store

SMOKES CORNCOB PIPE

Tampa, Fla., May 1 (AP) — "Grandma" Martha Weeks, who is 109 sprightly and 100-years-old, showed Tampa her new corncob pipe and flashlight today while she chuckled about all the fuss the city folk made over her natural longevity secret.

For Grandma Weeks went to town yesterday and cashed the $7.50 cheque—"more cash money than I've had in years"—that was the first semi-monthly payment on her county welfare pension.

Puffing her old corn cob pipe, she indicated a desire to "go shopping" when county welfare office force took her in hand. Mrs. Marion Mickler, county welfare director, was hostess at an item of Tampa's largest hotels.

"This is one of the finest boards' houses I ever did see," Mrs. Weeks commented, while an orchestra played. "I'm glad I came down here, she had one yearning—strawberry ice cream. She got it.

Then she set out on the shopping tour. It was mostly to the five and ten and the grey centenarian chatted with everyone.

"My coffee pot leaks," she confided to counter girls. "Been using it 34 years." So she picked out another.

Did she want a new dress?

"Well, I haven't had one in ten years." And made a selection marked at $1 50 cents.

Back at the welfare office, she cast aside her old corn cob pipe, filled the new one, and lighted up again.

"Grandma" Weeks was born, she related, in St. Augustine Aug. 4, 1827, There's a certified copy of an old family Bible on file in the welfare office to prove it. She came to Tampa, "about 94 years ago," and has lived in this vicinity ever since.

ORDER POLICE TO PROTECT WORKERS IN QUEBEC STRIKE

Premier Duplessis Orders Arrest of Two Strike Organizers

ORGANIZERS NOT FOUND

Complicated Negotiations Become More In-volved

Montreal, May 1 (CP)—Authorized to swear-in special officers if necessary, Quebec Provincial Police have been instructed to provide protection for members of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union who wish to abandon their three-week-old strikes and return to work pending further negotiations.

The instructions were reported to have come from Quebec last night at the same time Premier Maurice Duplessis ordered the arrest of union organizer Bernard Shane and strike committee chairman Raoul Trepanier. In his capacity as attorney general, Mr. Duplessis said the two officials would be charged with conspiracy against public order, and they were to be held without bail.

Organizers Disappear.

But before the instructions reached provincial police, Shane and Trepanier had left strike headquarters. Police officials declined to discuss the matter but there was no indication today that the warrants had been served.

Explanation of the charges against the two men whose union is affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, was not made by the premier who declared "we will not stand for any Communistic influences."

The premier's move, made after long conferences in his department had warned strike authorities to get the workers back to the plants, where about 2,000 of the 5,000 original strikers have returned. was met with the declaration "the strike must and will go on".

Negotiations Involved.

Meanwhile, the complicated negotiations in the labor department had involved. First, the employers split into two factions, one willing to meet the demands of the workers. Under these terms less than half the 5,000 workers returned to the shops. Then the I.L.G.W.U. representatives differed with the employers and the National Catholic Syndicates over the terms of the agreement.

Premier Duplessis at yesterday's long conference there should be arrested and charged with conspiracy each of the leaders disagreed over methods by which the workers would be permitted to choose membership in the respective unions.

Following the conference, Hon. Antonio Elie, Minister of the Provincial Labor Department, who presided at the conference, said after its conclusion, that Labor Minister William Tremblay had been requested to grant an immediate interview "to discuss the whole matter more fully".

N. Y. Strip Tease Theatres Refused Renewal of Licenses

New York, May 1—(AP)—License Commissioner Paul Moss, dramatic head today flatly refused to renew the licenses of 14 theatres where strip tease artists are practising their art.

Strip teasers and male comics, too, more than a little alarmed in the past week by the gales of protest raging around them, left their dressing rooms in a body last minute and tried to temper their shows.

But the Commissioner took heed of the organized complaints from Catholic, Protestant and Jewish organizations and turned down the applications of the theatre managers for renewal.

Patrick Cardinal Hayes was one of those who wrote the city fathers several days ago that the burlesque shows of the city were "disgraceful and scandalous."

UMPIRE ENDS HOLDOUT

New York, May 1 (AP)—Albert (Dolly) Stark ended his famous hold-out today by signing a one-year contract to umpire in the National League. He will fill the vacancy caused by the illness of Cy Pfirman. Ford Frick, League President, said Stark, who was out of baseball all through the 1936 season, would report for duty either Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

PRESIDENT GETULIO VARGAS

With all railroads and telegraph lines in the state of Rio Grande in possession of General Flores Cunha, governor of the state, President Getulio Vargas of Brazil (left) is taking steps to crush at its source the uprising that threatens to precipitate the entire country into a bloody civil war. President Vargas has mobilized 40,000 troops to take the field against the reported army of 30,000 with which General De

OUST MINISTER IF HE FAILS TO RESIGN POSITION

Aberhart Will Use Order-in-Council to Take Chant Out of Gov't.

D. B. MULLIN CHOSEN

New Minister of Agriculture is Native of Peterborough

Edmonton, May 1 (CP) — D. B. Mullen, Social Credit member of the Alberta legislature for Edmonton, will be sworn in at 11 a.m. (one p.m. E.D.T.) today as a Minister of Agriculture to succeed Hon. W. N. Chant.

If Mr. Chant, Minister of Agriculture since the government took office Sept. 3, 1935, refused to resign in compliance with the demand of Premier William Aberhart, he will be ousted by order-in-council, it was announced by the premier.

It would be the second time in Alberta's history a cabinet minister had been retired by the Lieutenant-Governor.

In reply to Premier Aberhart's demand that he vacate his post, Mr. Chant refused—temporarily at least—to resign on the request, and asked for "more definite reasons" for the premier's action.

Request, Definite Reason.

"In any event it could hardly be considered as a reasonable request to ask a responsible minister of the crown to vacate his office upon short notice without giving a definite reason," said the member for Camrose.

When Mr. Aberhart asked for Mr. Chant's resignation, he declared he had felt for some time there was need of more aggressiveness and higher efficiency in the Department of Agriculture—of which you are the minister."

Providing Mr. Chant fails to resign, the premier said he will call a Lieutenant-Governor, J. C. Bowen, to cancel his appointment. In 1911 after Premier Charles Stewart had received no reply to two requests to Attorney-General C. W. Cross that he resign, the minister was retired by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Born In Peterborough.

Appointment of Mr. Mullen as Minister of Agriculture will give Edmonton representation in the cabinet for the first time since the Social Credit government went into power. One of Edmonton's two Social Credit members of the legislature, he was first appointed when the caucus last summer, being the other—Mr. Mullen was born in Peterborough, Ont., 49 years ago.

Proprietor of the D. B. Mullen Co., Limited, bag manufacturing company, he has been active for many years in marketing and other organization activities. He is also been a feeder of ranch cattle from Southern Alberta ranges, and served as president of the Edmonton Live-stock Exchange.

5,000 Children to be Rescued 9 British Captains Defy Rebels

Will Evacuate Children With or Without Franco's Consent

WARSHIPS STAND BY

London, May 1 (AP) — British merchantmen, aided by British warships, will carry out the evacuation of British refugee children with or without the consent of Insurgent General Francisco Franco, informed sources said today.

No government official, however, would discuss reports that Franco had announced refusal to respect ships flying Republican flags with the besieged Basque capital. Instead, it was stated the government "assumes Franco will assent" for the moment.

Protect Refugee Ships.

British warships have been ordered to protect ships bearing refugees outside the Spanish three-mile limit. The men-of-war will not, however, enter Spanish land waters.

Authorized spokesmen said Franco never before had interfered with ships leaving Spanish government ports, but only those seeking to enter the blockade.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 1 (AP)—Captains of nine British merchantmen, ignoring Spanish insurgent refusal to permit departure, sailed today inside their Bay of Biscay "blockade", agreed today to evacuate many children as possible from Bilbao.

The captains of the nine ships, which already have reached Bilbao and Santander, informed the insurgents said they hoped to be able to remove about 4,000 out of 5,000 children in St. Jean de Luz, around the bend of the Bay of Biscay in France.

They announced their plan after a conference with the British consul at Bilbao, R. C. Stevenson.

The ships, which reached their destination under Navy Service Flag, relieve the food crisis of the war-swollen population last week, are the Portelet, Hazelwood, Thurston, Shear Field, Mavia, Beachwood, Blackhill, Thorpehall and Comeik.

INCENDIARISM BELIEVED CAUSE

19th Fire in Recent Weeks Occurs on Sarnia Water Front

Sarnia, Ont., May 1 (CP)—A waterfront fire, the nineteenth in recent weeks damaged the freight sheds of the Lake Navigation Company and an apartment above the sheds during the night. Occupants of the apartment, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Maldman and three children escaped before the flames reached their premises. The blaze was believed to be of incendiary origin.

The amount of the loss, which included a quantity of freight, has not been estimated. Firemen fought the blaze for nearly four hours before they got it under control.

The Provincial Fire Marshall's Department recently posted a reward of $200 for the arrest or information leading to the arrest of the incendiarist here.

BAIL INCREASED TO SIX THOUSAND

Charge of Manslaughter in Death of Player is Laid Over

Hamilton, Ont., May 1.—(CP)—At Assizes at Crown Attorney George Bellard, the case of Gordon C. Nichol, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Steve Conick, Hamilton and Sudbury Hockey Star, was laid over for eight days in Magistrate's Court today.

Bail, set yesterday at $2,000, was increased to two sureties of $3,000 each.

C. W. Bell, K.C., appeared for Nichol, together with Crown Solicitor, and requested a delay for the reason he had just been called in and had had no opportunity for a conference. Later, when the Crown contended the previous bail was insufficient, Mr. Bell declared that the Nichols were not "fly by night" operators and were not afraid of the accused attempting to remove himself from jurisdiction.

SISTER ALSO DIES, VICTIM OF CRASH

Port Arthur, May 1 (CP)—Miss Ruth Moore, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Moore of Schreiber, Ont., died in hospital here last night from injuries received Thursday in an automobile crash at Schreiber in which her brother Lorne, 14, was killed.

The girl was a passenger in the car her brother was driving when it collided with a truck driven by John St. Jean of Schreiber. St. Jean, a well known amateur hockey player, lost his arm as a result of the accident.

WINNERS SCORE THREE GOALS IN SECOND PERIOD

Preston Has 1-0 Lead in First Half on Tally by O'Donnell

KING, QUEEN PRESENT

Nervous Players Give Ragged Exhibition in First Period

Wembley Stadium, London, May 1—(CP Cable)—Running from behind in a terrific second-half effort Sunderland captured England's football cup honors for the first time today with a 3-1 decision over Preston North End. Frank O'Donnell gave Preston a 1-0 first-half lead but goals by Gurney, Carter and Burbanks swept the favorites to victory before the second period was half over.

King Prescnts Cup

After the victory the King, who with the Queen and King Farouk of Egypt had watched the encounter from a flower-embowered royal box, presented the cup and medals to the victors.

An estimated 91,000 spectators, who had found their way to the great enclosure despite a strike involving 5,000 busmen, watched a tussle that developed from mediocrity into a thrilling battle between two well-matched squads.

The twenty-two nervous players put up a ragged exhibition for most of the first half in which Frank O'Donnell, brilliant Scottish International centre-forward, sent Preston into the lead after 17 minutes.

From that point on the standard of play improved as Sunderland, "the team of all talents" settled down to its customary methodical, match-winning game. In the second half the power of the Roker Park attack carried all before it for most of the 45 minutes.

Tallies Come Fast

Six minutes elapsed when Gurney headed from a corner placed accurately by Burbanks left-winger. After 71 flnutes of play Gurney passed to Carter following English International inside-right and Captain who sank a sizzling left-

MANY MOTOR BOATS PLACED IN WATER

Motor boat row in the upper harbor is gradually filling up with moored craft now being shipped from their winter's rest into the water. Boat repair men and carpenters have been among the busiest of the city's craftsmen making extensive repairs to numerous craft still on the ways or in boat houses.

WHITE CABBAGE MOTH MAKES APPEARANCE

Hovering over the heads of five o'clock shoppers in the downtown section yesterday afternoon a white cabbage moth which fluttered along the length of Front street lent emphasis to the summery weather and bright sunshine. It is the first butterfly or moth reported in the open so far this season.

LOCK MACHINERY IN THE BARNS

Taking a warning from repeated thefts of property and machinery during the past several days by scrap iron seekers, farmers of the Shannonville section have been forced to remove all tools and machinery from the fields overnight and lock them securely in their barns. One of the latest reports concerned the theft of shares of a plow, taken from the machine left directly at the rear of the home.

MAY OPEN TOURIST CAMP NEXT WEEK

Though no definite date has been set as yet for the official opening of the city tourist camp, it is expected that the gates will be available for the first of the season's tourists to shoot the bridge of the river. The opening of the camp will follow directly the opening of the Bay of Quinte Tourist Information Bureau, chaired by Vernon Orr, which will be shifted this year from its former position on Victoria Park entrance to the entrance of the Dundas street camp.

37,000 YEARLING TROUT PLACED

Seventeen streams in Northumberland County have been supplied with 37,000 yearling trout from the Codrington hatcheries, according to reports coming from this district.

The creeks mentioned are: Robins, Cobbler's, Hamilton's, Brady's, Ingrams, Black's, Pipers, Duncan's, Vallean's, Burnley, Taylor's, Hickling's, Dartford, Sandy Flat and Cole's Creek.

The Department of Game and Fisheries have adopted the policy of getting every trout stream in order, that the trout be not food for those fish which thrive on the younger spawn.

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW AN INCREASE

Customs and excise returns showed a decided increase in April over the corresponding month of last year, in April 1937 the amount returned was $108,234.74 and in April 1936, $84,849.41. In March 1937 the amount was $86,581.15.

GOOD GUESSER WINS THE LOUNGE CHAIR

At the Kinsmen Motor Show and Fashion Festival a very fine display of furniture was made by the New Percival Furniture Company, showing scenes of the very latest designs in furniture for home adornment and comfort. A feature of this exhibit which attracted much attention was a handsome lounge chair to determine the price of a Kroehler chesterfield suite. Many guesses, were made and the nearest to the correct figure was guessed by Mrs. Harry Alford, 44 William Street, who came within twenty cents of the correct price. The prize was a beautiful lounge chair and ottoman.

FORMER RESIDENT OF BOGART LOSES ARM

Employed with the Consolidated Copper and Sulphur Mine at Belleville, Quebec, for some time past, Phillips Warren, former resident of Bogart, narrowly escaped death this week while engaged in work in one of the mine shafts. He was when a large rock fell from the roof a distance of some 30 feet, knocking him to the ground and fracturing his arm so badly that amputation was necessary at St. Vincent De Paul Hospital, Sherbrooks. His mother, Mrs. William Rivers, will operate the store at Bogart was advised in a communication.

DEER IS TRAPPED IN WIRE FENCE

Trapped in a wire fence on No. 7 Highway just west of Marmora this week, a small red deer lawn was released by fish and game overseer J. A. Shannon of Marmora. Mr. Shannon had been advised of the fact by a motorist, a travelling salesman first to notice the captive deer; both legs and shoulder of the fawn were badly injured in its attempt to free itself from the tangled strands, and following its release, the animal is believed to have set on the farm of Mr. Jos. Shannon.

LARGE DEPOSITS OF CALCIUM UNCOVERED

Engaged on experimental work on a marble deposit on the Mr. McCrimmon property near Malone, Fred Bonner of Marmora, this week uncovered large deposits of calcium rock of a quality suitable for use in the manufacture of wood pulp for paper. Two car loads will be shipped for testing purposes and if satisfactory the property will be developed.

CROW SHOOTERS GIVEN OFFICIAL BLESSING

Crow shooters of this and other districts of the Province have been given an official blessing by the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries, in an announcement by Deputy Minister J. D. Taylor favoring the system being used by gun clubs of western provinces where regular appropriations are made for the destruction of the birds. "Few sportsmen miss taking a shot at a crow when the opportunity presents itself," stated the Deputy Minister.

R.C.A.F. MEMBERS HURT IN CRASH

Five members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, were injured, two being removed to the Belleville General Hospital, when the automobile in which they were riding, driven by Calvert, took off four guard rail posts and turned over four times on the north side road of Shelburville late last night. The men, Frank Cobb, driver, John Simmons, G. W. Willard, Wilfred Roberge and James Myers were all members of the R.C.A.F. as instructors, police stated.

Cobb the driver and Simmons were the two to receive severe facial lacerations and injuries that necessitated their being removed to the Belleville General Hospital where their injuries were treated by Dr. G. H. Stotts and Dr. C. Bronson. "They were badly shaken up and received a very severe and painful lacerations" stated Dr. Stotts today.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable William McBrien who found the wrecked car turned over on its top and partially buried in the mud along the bank of a small stream east of Shelburville. The other three occupants of the car sustained cuts and were badly shaken up, however, it was stated this is a complete track, police say.

With everything from his investigations Constable McBrien apprehended two police back lighting and snaring fish along the bay shore. Charges of illegal fishing will follow.

Grand Chapter Officers Assist In Installation

Brilliantly decorated in the coral-carnation colors of red, white and blue; flags, banners and bunting and further enhanced in color with a profusion of cut and potted flowers, Johnstone's Academy last evening was the scene of one of the gayest gatherings of the year in this city when members of Belleville Chapter No. 84 of the Order of the Eastern Star were hosts to fellow members from points throughout the Province at the annual Installation of officers and local chapter.

Members of the Order, which included nine Grand Chapter officers, were present from points as remote as Cobalt on the north, Ottawa on the east, London and other cities from the western district. It was one of the most successful gatherings in the history of this local chapter.

Opening the installation ceremony, Mrs. Thelma Liddle, Worthy Matron, and her assisting officers, Master, extended a hearty welcome to all, and introduced to the assembly the several presiding Matrons and Patrons, District Deputy Grand Matrons, members of the Grand Executive, Grand Trustee, and the following Grand Chapter Officers: Mrs. Viola McClung, Worthy Grand Matron, Brantford; Mr. Quinlin Boyd, Worthy Grand Patron, Belleville; Mrs. Anna G. Boyd, Past Matron, Worthy Grand Chaplain, Belleville; Mrs. Lucy Thompson, Grand Chaplain, Ottawa; Mrs. Gladys McColl, Sk. Williams, Ont.; Mrs. Marie Johnston, Tweed, Grand Organist; Mrs. Ethel Hamilton, Grand Adah, Belleville; Mrs. Catherine Bosworth, Grand Martha, Belleville; Mrs. Florence Folmie, Grand Electa, Cobalt.

Seldom indeed, does a subordinate chapter have the honor to have in its Grand Matron and Grand Patron attendance, but such was the case last night when Mr. Quinlin Boyd, Grand Patron, acting as chief installing officer, with Mrs. Viola McClung, Grand Matron, Mrs. Viola McClung, Brantford, Grand Matron, officiated. The favorable comments heard on the efficient manner in which these officers carried out the impressive and intricate beauties of the ritual, made for beauty and solemnity. Mrs. Essie Nayler, District Deputy Grand Matron, and Mr. W. M. Barlow, P.P., assisted in the investiture.

Mrs. Thelma Liddle acted as Grand Chaplain; Mrs. Anna Boyd, Grand Marshal; Mrs. Lucy Thompson, Grand Organist; Mrs. Blanche Weddell, Grand Soloist; and the following held other positions: Conductress—Mrs. Matron—Mrs. Grace Madgwin. Asso. Matron—Mrs. Ella Sager. Asso. Matron—Phyllis Barlow. Asso. Patron—George Adams. Secretary—Mary Carmichael. Treasurer—Flossie Smith. Conductress—Lillian Law. Asso. Conductress—Maud Elliott. Chaplain—Jessie Harrison. Marshal—Elsie Hoist. Organist—Bernice Grills.

Ruth—Phyllis May.
Esther—Ada McConnell.
Esther—Clara McEwen.
Martha—Mary Newman.
Electa—Dorothy McGlashon.
Warder—Mae Sharp.
Sentinel—Dorothy McDonald.

At the close of the installation impressive refreshments were served to the 400 present, followed by dancing to the excellent music supplied by Jack Austin and his Bell Hops Orchestra.

Reginald Stewart, Noted Pianist, Heard in Masterly Interpretation

Master of Piano Plays Memorable Program in Belleville

Reginald Stewart, pianist and conductor, whose name is known everywhere in the music world, appeared on the final program of the season of the Canadian Concert Association at the Collegiate auditorium on Friday evening, to substantiate the high reputation he has won through a life devoted to music and to with fresh laurels. A large audience of music-loving public of Belleville and the district were loath to have the concert conclude and the distinguished musician was called upon for an encore to the stage. At the end of every number his interpretation was greeted with warmest applause.

One of the supreme artists of the pianoforte, Mr. Stewart proved himself master last evening in a program beginning with the great classical Grand Sonata, the various schools to one of the ultra-modern English composer, Cyril Scott, closing on the latter but gave encores from the undying works of Chopin, the perfect poetic of romance, melody and color, whose poetic imagery was translated into the 20th century from the time Chopin composed and played his unique music in all the realm of music to the present evening before the Belleville audience. Reginald Stewart, a master of masters of the local association will never forget.

Supreme Artist

Playing supreme music and himself a supreme artist, Mr. Stewart naturally pleased his hearers. He began with "Toccata and Fugue in D. Minor" by Bach, in his own arrangement. This great composition of the "master of masters" wherein Bach demonstrates the last final word of beauty of musical form, was one of the finest performances of Mr. Stewart. His command of the pianoforte was instinctively felt with the first bars of this number, so rich in its harmonies and its intellectual grasp. Here the pianist demonstrated his ability to make great music understood even by all those whose practical knowledge of music is not so extensive and he made the father of modern music understood because he understood and missed the audience. Enthusiastic Everyone recognized the art and the artist instantly.

His Chopin Numbers

From the Bach number he went to Chopin for his second, "Sonata in B. Minor". Here that peculiar color of the Polish genius composer gave Mr. Stewart the opportunity to revel in the glorious melody and romance of Chopin. Every note he struck was a jewel, every bar was a work of art. Every note was one in that music which he made alive, every movement playing its portion in the entire creation, the interpretation by Mr. Stewart. The artist's conception in this number, his warmth of tone, his technical command, his sensitive ear seeking the ultima thule of expression, that was what he revealed in the Sonata and the other numbers on the program. In the four parts of the Sonata, merging in the musical ideal of the composer, Mr. Stewart was always master. His touch was sure, for he attains that in tone which is his great. He played with amazing sympathy. In the entire program the lyric quality was manifest, but also always the depth and warmth which he was able to win from the chords, together with grasp of musical comprehension.

Other Numbers

His unfailing sense of lyric beauty and command of rhythm, was included in the Gluck number "Gavotte" from Orpheus, here he caught the spirit of the age of Louis XV and rendered to it that musical and melodic touch it required. One of his most inspiring numbers was the Wagner encore "Liebes Tod" of Man's Destiny", the choral prelude by Bach. Here, as in the master's work so in the artist's performance everything that is in the composer's conception was fully expressed. The subdued majesty of this number with the perfect tonal quality, the mastery of rhythm and the intellectual and emotional grasp, mark Reginald Stewart's conception as supremely great.

Other numbers included "Capriccio in B. Minor" by Brahms, then a Rachmaninoff encore, the Schumann "Toccata, Opus 7" three beautiful numbers by Debussy wherein he caught the Gallic flavor, "Les Jardins Sous La Pluie", "Reverie" and "Danse", and a Scarlatti valse.

Serenity of Artistry

Mr. Stewart is serene in his art. He depends on no melodramatic gestures, rather does he appear to be the soul of musical expression. It was a rich, warm, manly complete performance and yet marked with all the gentleness and sympathy of a great performer. To the piano last night he brought that same art as he brings to the orchestra as those know who have heard him be his Promenade Symphony Orchestra concerts in Toronto, except that last night, he was not only the conductor but the performing artist as well for the piano was the pianoforte.

The piano has truly an inspired exponent and interpreter in this Scottish-Canadian artist who is doing so much to raise the love of music in the hearts of Canadians and to give Canadian, as a high place in the interpretation of music throughout the world.

At the close of the program the members of the Belleville Concert Association, through their head, Mr. F. C. MacLaurin, head of the local society introduced the last evening's program.

VISITOR SEES MANY CHANGES

E. O. Weston, Sergeant-at-Arms of Ontario Legislative Assembly

"Twenty-seven years bring many changes in a community" said E. O. Weston, sergeant-at-arms of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, Toronto, as he visited the Ellis-Allen Office of the Ontario Intelligencer on Friday on his way home from a business trip to Montreal. Mr. Weston fifty years ago next September picked as his life companion, Miss Rebecca J. Spear of Sidney Township and during that short stay in the district has been a guest of Mr. Tom McKenzie of Sidney Township as well as visiting a Marmora friend, Mr. Frankford. Mrs. Weston will be coming east for the 50th anniversary of the wedding. Mr. Weston informed the reporter he carried insurance for he along too providing there is no occasion of the Legislature."

Mr. Weston has spent many years on the coast and has been a resident of Victoria, B.C. for the past twenty-eight years. When I left the Ilkas were in bloom and the business conditions were showing signs of the rise after a long period of depression. Mr. Weston left after the election in June in British Columbia with Mr. Pattullo again heading the Liberal party.

CENTRAL FACTORY OPENS FOR YEAR

Demonstration Held Under Direction of C. F. Linn, Instructor

Central Cheese Factory opened for the season on Saturday when all the makers in the group under instruction of C. F. Linn in attendance. Mrs. Dorothy Cook of the factory was placed in charge of the cheese, demonstration assisted by Instructor Linn. The visiting makers remained for lunch at noon and Mr. Jas. Cook & Son of Belleville furnished cheese made in Central factory at their "get together" in April 1936.

Following lunch a program of short talks was arranged by Morris Cook as chairman for the group. Jas. Cook spoke briefly of the value of uniform quality and finish and the great educational value of the cheese exhibition held last year. He said he hoped every maker would exhibit at the 1937 exhibition.

Mr. J. L. Irwin, Federal Dairy Grader gave an interesting informal talk on Cheese Grading and the reasons for greater care in keeping both the Make Room and Curing Room warm in cold weather. He especially commented upon criticism received at his office through makers grading cheese and strongly advised that the curd be not carried from one day to the next and advised the makers to make extra curd into flats which could be shipped two or more in a box.

Mr. F. H. Mallory explained the plans for the 1937 cheese exhibition and asked the makers to give their full support to keep "Central Ontario in its premier place in the cheese world.

Mr. C. F. Linn Dairy Instructor was confident the makers would keep up the reputation of his district but pleaded that they not rest on their laurels but make greater efforts for 1937.

A resolution was passed endorsing the payment of five cents per box on one week's shipment of cheese and carried unanimously. Many expressions of delight were expressed to Morris Rose for the fine appearance of his factory and the good way in which he had conducted the "get-together" demonstrations.

Thirty Years on Police Force for Sergeant Harman

"I have seen many changes in Belleville and I'm a city and also a department personnel," stated Sergeant Arthur Harman today as he looked back over the past 30 years spent as a member of the Belleville Police Department. "Thirty years ago today, I joined the Belleville police force under the late Chief John Newton. That was a few months after they reorganized the department. I replaced Constable Hawkins, who left to join the Toronto Fire Department," added Sergeant Harman with a reminiscing today.

After joining the department in 1907, Sergeant Harman was elevated to his present post four years later when the police station moved from its former position on the City Hall building to its present site on the Market Square. "When I joined the department back in 1907 the late Chief Newton was in charge and we only had one sergeant, Patrick Hayes. We answered calls on foot, but a few years later we procured bicycles, which made progress much faster of course. Then about 1914 the department got its first automobile, a Ford and the car advanced until today we have police cars with all up-to-date equipment. Of course I have seen many changes in Belleville. In the old days we knew practically everyone so when a stranger came to town we had a chance to keep on him, if he looked at all suspicious," explained Sergeant Harman in reviewing some of the city's past incidents of those old days.

Sergeant Harman arrived in Belleville on July 1st 1906, joined the police force on May 1st 1907 and was married to Miss Yorke, his wife of today a few months later. They were regretfully getting off the train at Belleville from the 30th anniversary as a complete stranger," confided Sergeant Harman as he carried on his duties during the 30th anniversary as a member of the Belleville Police Department.

GIANTS HALTED WIN STREAK OF TORONTO LEAFS

Veteran Ben Cantwell Kept Things Well Under Control

LEAFS STILL ON TOP

Baltimore Orioles Thrown For Sixth Loss by Syracuse

If Bill Terry wasn't so well supplied with pitchers on his New York Giants he might be seen casting furtive eyes across the Hudson River where the veteran Ben Cantwell seems to be enjoying a new lease on life with Jersey City's little Giants in the International League.

Sold down the river last January by the Boston Bees after completing a 10-year stay in the National League, the 33-year-old curve ball artist appears to have found himself in the commodious surroundings of the new Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City.

Cantwell, who once played for the Varsity Giants himself, followed up his four-hit performance of last Friday with his second winning effort in as many starts yesterday as the Little Giants slopped the victory over Toronto's wonder "kids" in a 4-1 decision.

Cantwell Fans 10 Hits.

The veteran was touched for ten hits, but except for the fifth inning when four of them got together for singles, and a pass to score their lone run, managed to keep things under control.

Despite their loss, the Leafs remained in first place as the Buffalo Bisons trimmed the second place Newark Bears 4 to 3. Tronto Bearcat won a pitching duel from Vito Tamulis when Colin Carnegie belted a triple with Sewell and Johnny Tyler on base in the eighth.

Pecord by Irvine Jeffries' three-run homer, Bobbit Marsnville's Montgomery defeated Baltimore 5-3 for their third straight victory and the Orioles sixth consecutive loss. Mill Gray belted a four-baser for the Birds.

Syracuse's Chiefs were forced to eleven innings before they amazed their second straight win over the Rochester Red Wings 3-2.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by GEO. E. WATKIN

Once again we are on the air for the summer—just three more weeks and away we go.

It was decided at a meeting of the executive recently to add thirty-five new members this year. We have now sixteen greens and are in a position to increase our membership to that extent.

Oak team reports twenty-two new members in two days. It begins to look like a waiting list.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Association was held in Belleville last week when tournament dates and other matters were dealt with.

The provincial games will be played on Campbellford this year instead of Belleville.

Our dates are: July 16, doubles; July 26th, mixed rinks; and our annual doubles on Labor Day.

Fred Kindle and Fred Harper represented our club and gave a good account of themselves.

Our greens have all been revived and should give better light this year.

Fred Kindle and his committee are arranging a big progress for the season. There will be lots of games for everyone.

A team of forty-five South African bowlers will be visiting this district in July. The games will be played in Kingston. Each club will be asked to send their allotment of players.

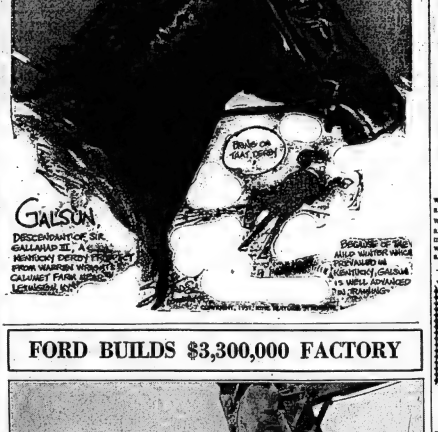
Shrinks in Stature



In September, 1920, Joseph Vienna of Bela, Clara, Calif., was 5 feet 4 inches and weighed 136 pounds. Now his height is 4 feet 10 1-4 inches, and he weighs 100 1-2 pounds. Some physicians say shrinking is known as "Strumpell-Marie's disease," which causes its victim to shink in stature. Cause of the disease is unknown; and it is believed to be due to hereditary factors, but in Vienna's case the shrinking started soon after he was badly hurt in an automobile accident.

'Perfect Couple' Planning Divorce

"An ideal couple" everyone said when Gene Markey, screen-writer, and Joan Bennett, screen star, were married five years ago. They are pictured here while their romance still was ideal. But it's that way no more for Miss Bennett had announced that a divorce will be filed in Los Angeles as soon as she completes the picture on which she now is engaged. It will be the "ideal divorce", the couple parting, a La Hollywood. The very best of friends with permission for Miss Bennett to keep Diana, daughter of her former marriage, and Melinda, 3 child of the present.

AT THE BELLE

"Waikiki Wedding"

The hit trio of "Rhythm on the Range", Bing Crosby, Bob Burns and Martha Raye, are teamed and selected by Shirley Ross and a supporting cast of two hundred and fifty dancers, musicians and specialty performers, are now on the Belle screen in the comedy hit, "Waikiki Wedding".

"Waikiki Wedding" is a gay and robust comedy, garnished with splendid music, both instrumental and vocal, of the romance between a publicity agent and a contest winner, played respectively by Crosby and Miss Ross. Miss Ross wins a trip to Waikiki in a world-wide contest organized by Crosby to find a new pineapple recipe. She doesn't find the place nearly as glamorous as she thought it was and prepares to leave.

Realizing this would ruin his campaign, Crosby takes it upon himself to make Waikiki glamorous. This he does with a vengeance. He falls in love with Miss Ross in the process and when she discovers that Crosby has tricked her, she is heartbroken. Then Crosby has to win her back all over again and the way in which he does it furnishes some genuine high comedy in the guido bracket. A second romance between Burns and Miss Raye, also runs through the picture and is also responsible for uproarious fun.

Included in the laborite cast are George Barbier, Leif Erikson, Mirl Hoffman, Thalthian Gardner, and the Hawaiian "sister" team of Kuulei and Nalanin De Clerq.

"Waikiki Wedding" will be presented at the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily, along with a smart tuneful Revue, the Belle News of the Day, and a funny comedy cartoon. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.10. "Waikiki Wedding" starts daily at 2.00, 7.40 and 9.45 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Theodora Goes Wild"

"Theodora Goes Wild" starring Irene Dunne in her first major role as a comedienne is shown at the Capitol for the last times today matinee and evening.

For the first time in a career studded with such dramatic gems as "Cimarron", "Back Street," "Magnificent Obsession" and "Showboat" Miss Dunne turns to the gay, light side of life, with gratifying results.

In "Theodora Goes Wild", Miss Dunne is seen as a small town "nobody" who becomes famous as the author of sophisticated novels. When she falls in love with Douglas's whose estranged wife refuses to give him a divorce, she takes a page from her own novel — and launches a campaign of wild escapades to gain her objective.

Theatre Closing

Commencing on Monday, May 3rd, the Capitol theatre will be closed for a short period owing to renovation and redecorating of the theatre. Watch the local papers for grand opening date.

THE 'MERRIE' MONTH OF MAY

May is the 'merrie' month of the well-living Elizabethans, to us all it is the month of unusual growth when the leaves appear, spring flowers appear and the foundation work is done for the summer's growth.

The month is believed to be named after the goddess Maia, the Roman divinity of spring. To us it possesses all of those finest qualities which are associated with that season. After the April of spongy rains, comes the leafy growing month. Grass is just beginning to grow, it begins to wear its freshness in all the glory of which the sward is capable.

It is the month when spring moves outdoors. Festivities of the woodland and the lawn and the open spaces have been associated with this month and particularly with the first day of the month. Romans of old held their processions in honor of Flora, goddess of flowers, between April 28 and May 3 and it may be that the beautiful festivals of England of the middle ages had such origin. Every one knows of the May pole centre of the dancing with flower-decked children on the village green. Such a custom has so much to commend it as no mechanical invention can approach this in its beauty of inspiration and its brightening of human lives.

BUSINESS AND YOUNG MEN'S IDEALS

Can a young man become a businessman and keep his ideals? Are there places in business for those who are not "hard-boiled"? These are questions which face many a graduate this Spring. Edgar L. Heermance, author and economist, answers them in the Rotarian Magazine:

"Not only is there a place for idealism in business, provided it is of the practical, intelligent type," says Mr. Heermance, "but also there is not much place for anything else. The hard-boiled rule-of-thumb type is giving way to the engineering type. The demand is for management, and management in its various aspects is about the most idealistic calling I know of. The man who thinks only in terms of profit or salary will make a very poor businessman.

"Thirty years ago," he reflects, "the answer probably would have been 'No.' Business and idealism were kept in separate compartments. The typical businessman drove a sharp bargain. A competitor was an enemy. Customers were victims to be plucked. Men did things in business they would not have thought of doing in private life. There is the story of the old deacon who called down to his clerk; 'Sam, have you watered the vinegar?' 'Yes, sir.' 'Have you wet down the prunes?' 'Yes, sir.' 'Well, then come up to prayers.'

"But a change has been coming—a change that is well nigh revolutionary. It is not only the rapid advance in technology. Our world has come of age, as Siegfried said. We are no longer living under frontier conditions. The old individualism has given way to organized groups with a sense of common interest.

"There have evolved group standards of fair practice, enforced by public opinion. Good ethics is recognized as good business. The underlying philosophy has changed. A satisfied customer is a firm's greatest asset. Instead of its being true that in a business transaction one man gains what the other man loses, no transaction is considered legitimate unless both gain.

"Businessmen no longer are ashamed of their vocation. They take a pride in the particular economic service they render to society. The weekly service-club meetings reflect the new spirit. They may have produced their Babbitts, but they have also prodduced men with the courage of their ideals."

APPEAL FOR FLOOD RELIEF

A nationwide appeal by the Red Cross for relief and re-establishment of two thousand families who lost, many of them, a great share if not all of their belongings in this week's floods which covered an area seventy five miles in length has been made by Mr. Norman Sommerville, Chairman of the Canadian Red Cross. The objective is $250,000, contributions to be sent through any Red Cross office or bank branch.

Canadians who have been generous in all such appeals for the sake of a suffering humanity in any part of the world will not fail down in this plan to give immediate help and assist in the ultimate re-establishment of those who suffered heavy losses into something like their former position.

"GOD BLESS ROTARY" SAYS ANOTHER TINY TIM

My legs were crooked—born that way
I couldn't move around;
I'd never stood or walked. Sometimes
I'd crawl upon the ground.

They called it "Act of Providence,"
Which has to be endured,
And, anyway, the neighbors said,
Such cases can't be cured.

But not my mal She used to say
That rich folks found a way
To straighten crippled children's legs,
So they could run and play.

"I don't seem fair that there's no hope."
She'd say, for boys like me
"When folks are poor" And then one day,
She heard about the Rotary.

The Rotary doctor saw my legs.
He didn't shake his head
Like most folks did. "We'll fix you up
As good as new," he said.

"We're awful poor," my mother cried.
"It's hard
To pay for food and rent."
"Give us that boy," the doctor said,
"It won't cost you one cent."

He didn't ask about what church
We went to or if any
Or if we had some Rotary kin,
His opponent's wasn't many.
They took me in. And then one day,
"The doctor said, "Sir, son,
Let's try those new straight legs of yours,
And see how well you've done."

I don't know how they did it—
I'm not much on doctor's talk,
I only know that I walked
And now! See! I can walk!
I wonder why my mother cried
When it seems so see;
But through her tears I heard her say:
"God bless the Rotary."

"TINY TIM" THE CHEERFUL LITTLE CRIPPLED BOY OF CHARLES DICKENS' immortal Christmas tale of "Old Scrooge", will personify for all time the woes and joys of the crippled child, facing the world under a terrible handicap which would seem to admit but little hope of joy in a life of suffering and disappointment. The above poem, written by a member of a Rotary Club in New York State, represents a true life story and reflects the happiness which comes from hopes fulfilled and health restored to crippled limbs—the joy of being able to run and leap and rejoice with normal boys and girls aglow with the surge of perfect health coursing through the veins, and the golden promise of a future aglow with health and happiness. "God Bless us all every one," said Tim, and all Modern Tiny Tim cries "GOD BLESS ROTARY

THE FOURTH OBJECT OF ROTARY IS WORLD PEACE, and in more than seventy countries Rotarians are spreading the gospel of Good Fellowship and the futility and absurdity of war, relic as it is of barbarism and ignorance. International peace, permanent and perfect, alike for the little peoples as for the powerful nations, is the goal of Rotary, and this glad gospel of friendship, love and truth is being preached in many languages and practised in many lands. Rotary clubs are established in more than 4,000 cities throughout the world, with membership of approximately 175,000, a mighty force for good, this band of keen, progressive business men, realizing the horrors and waste of war and the blessings of world peace and security. Rotary symbolizes SERVICE ABOVE SELF and the principal objects of Rotary are:

To, encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise and, in particular, to encourage and foster:—

(1) The development of acquaintance as an opportunity to service;

(2) High ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations; and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

(3) The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business, and community life.

(4) The advancement of international understanding, goodwill, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

The program of Rotary based on these objects brings together in an atmosphere of personal friendship men of every race and of all religious faiths and political beliefs. Its bond is fellowship toward a common end despite all individual differences regarding means to that end. Each Rotarian is expected to be faithful to his religion and loyal in his citizenship.

Stray Bits

SHIPS THAT GO TO SEA—

Belleville, too, has its quota of the wistful-eyed to whom the spell of the sea and open water, the flying spray and strange lands have power if only for the fleeting moments snatched from the daily monotonous grind of work bench or desk. Daily you see them, attracted magnet-like, to the waterfront meeting with the rocking echo of a steamboat whistle to quicken the pulse and make them desert temporarily the job in hand to see the ships come in. By car or on foot they gather there, while bulky oil tankers, almost at times, seem to ride across the placid surface of the bay, ruled by the foam-splashing propeller which threatens half-speed behind. And, from land-shod eyes, the progress is marked as foot by foot the carrier edges by her berth, nudged tightly finally to the niggerheads which put their heavy bulk from the concrete dock. A line is thrown from the clanking winches, a growl from the depths of their cavernous hold—the ship is finally docked. No Spanish galleon of old, with gaudy canvas set to the rippling breeze of the trade winds, beating her way by long, patient tacks, ever more filled, holds more appeal than the modern-day, steel-hulled steamer making her way to port, while steam gleaming from her whistle is the herald for an even more crowded life. Doctors and merchants and lawyers and grocers, dock laborers and housewives and old-time sailor men are there to meet the ship when it first breaks the monotony of the day's work if only for a moment or so when, with lines cast ashore, the ship's You come to recognize the type.... you see them almost daily, and even when ships arrive. But even when the bay is silent, rolling in its monotonous swell under a gentle wind, they come to sit and gaze across the open water stretching to the white gulls soar gleefully aloft. To them the water is a boundless realm of adventure from which the smoke and soot of city streets have been swept away, and from it, in the far away era comes visions of other lands and other climes.... a rock-bound wind-swept sea, its crested waves rolling onward to the land of Far Beyond. For them it is escape, if but a temporary one, from the daily tedium which holds them in its thrall.

WHEN DARKNESS FALLS—

At night when pearl drake has shaded impressionistic pink velvet darkness and the bay rolls its oily, leaden swell in gentle wake over the sand, concentration changes. Gone are the dockside day-dreamers, the ship's lights, carefully tons, poles on shoulder and worn blankets and equipment almost disappear, the "drifters" fishermen of the night is in command. Out of sight of fish, the mud eels and perch and eels, is a setline bobbing, cork by the line in the shifting currents above, cuts through the waters, and in the nearby swamp the bullfrog voices his mellow croak to the spring. A stray wave plays against the dock face and the faraway purr of a motor boat, along the line of the bridge road drums across the silent void. The night-hawk, flits against the blanket-swathed against the chill of night, pallidly casting, like a ghost, its shadow on the earth below. A cigarette glows in the blackness, and the line is given slip to hand in hurried snatches and the low murmur of voices of the fishermen is stilled in the evening. Fleeting is a quiet, peaceful hour, when one may philosophically-minded in their escape from mundane cares, and when the bay is at rest, ready for the speeding, growing motor boats to tear the surface to foam in the coming evening with their blasting exhaust and too often, the noisy, disturbing parties of fishermen and despoilers of the idyllic scene, to venture abroad and spend the night on the waters in the night. Peace and quietness yet reigns, and the fisherman, on a night still slumbering in its swaddling clothes of Spring.

When Television Comes

In the current Atlantic Monthly Mr. Gilbert Seldes points out that radio and scouring finger at the bathtub still encircle the radio program sponsored by the advertiser and at Hollywood's release of sound on the screen. Why should it make the same mistakes? The question is pertinent because it will be certainly drawn on the experience of radio and the film in the early stages of the perfection as a means of expression.

So the advertiser is to pay the bill of television—a bill many times larger than that now presented by the broadcasting industry—and he will do well to study the response of motion-picture audiences, where the cheapest houses ever dared to throw on the screen their boldest announcement of his vast stock of tools and cutlery. There are certain limits of taste narrowed this field to exhibitions of fitness and of figuration, combined with commercial possibilities—this because both are news. Propaganda and politics are well tolerated on the screen, but not advertising. We will listen to a brief lecture on vitamins in general, but not on the vitamins that impart miraculous properties to a particular brand of corn-drops. Will the advertising questions of television programs boldly hold up their fountain pens, pajamas and lawn mowers to our gaze or will they be subtly and indirectly and insistently as they now do with talk shows? If so, Mr. Seldes predicts rebellion and therefore failure.

Home Improvement Plan Explained by Harry Muir Chairman for this District

States Plan so Far Has Met With Marked Success

PLAN CAMPAIGN

Many Questions on Plan Answered by Mr. Muir

Enthusiasm and optimism breathed a significant note for the future of the newly formed Home Improvement Plan at a representative gathering of the business and professional men of Belleville sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce and Mr. J. O. Herity recently appointed local Chairman of the National Employment Commission, following a banquet held in Dickens restaurant last night, at which Mr. Harry Muir, of Kingston, District Chairman of the Commission gave a valuable insight into the origin organization, construction, aims and policies of the Home Improvement Plan.

The first job of the newly formed National Employment Commission under the chairmanship of Mr. A. B. Purvis," said Mr. Muir in explaining the origin of the Home Improvement Plan, "was to conduct a careful Dominion-wide analysis of the unemployment problem. In British Columbia they discovered that 48 percent of the unemployed were wholly employable, with the majority of these belonging to the building trades. Three years had passed by the depression. These trades, the Commission decided, were the ones which should be legitimately rehabilitated, and as quickly as possible.

"Looking abroad they discovered, that a Home Improvement Plan was successful in some European countries, with the result, that it was recommended to our Government, which promptly accepted it.

"Last year", continued Mr. Muir, "Great Britain led in new housing but the U.S.A. set the pace in Home Improvements. In two years the U.S. government loaned one half billion dollars for this purpose, but at a cost of 80 percent. Higher than our proposed plan. Public enthusiasm was aroused and the next year an additional 1 1-2 billions were loaned, and the loss to the government was 1-3 percent."

Banks Co-operating

With the banks co-operating to the fullest extent, the Canadian plan has met with surprising success so far, declared the speaker. Even with no organized publicity over $376,000 had been borrowed by the end of November, and during the Christmas festivities over $200,000 was borrowed under the plan.

"Many new homes and improvements were the direct results," he said. "And the fact that when claimed that it was reasonable to conceive that over $200,000,000 would be borrowed under the H.I.P.

"The fact has a tremendous grip that we are creating employment," Mr. Muir declared in outlining the purpose of the H.I.P. "It is the general tendency of the public to delay building," he said, and if we can urge them to build now we will be helping jobs for the men who need them. But we must work, we cannot afford to stop, Mackenzie-like, and wait for something to turn up." "By doing this we would start the wheels of hundreds of thousands of tons of raw material. This means increased production and haulage of this product which in itself would provide labor for thousands. And bear this in mind 75 cents in every dollar spent under this plan goes for labor."

Systematic organization of local groups was explained in full detail by the speaker, using with organization as an example, the Mayor, Newspaper Publishers, Bankers, Presidents of service clubs and the Chamber of Commerce constituted the General Committee, by-laws. Representatives of the building trades, those who employ labor could were invited to form groups, appoint their own chairman and conduct their own business. Then the plan was explained to them in full.

"Now," the speaker declared, "these groups are meeting by themselves and are forming a definite promotion campaign." They have discovered that by bringing their work to the public notice, they are establishing a forerunner of more business to work through the H.I.P.

Many Questions Asked

Many questions were asked the speaker by some of those present, at his request. Some of the questions follow:

Q.—"I understand you have a keyman in the division. Does he get the groups together?"

A.—"He does see personally and asked them to get together. They did and are still doing so."

Q.—"Does this plan apply to tenants?"

A.—"No. It applies to homeowners only. He must show, that his taxes are paid and other financial matters in good order. But he must be a home owner."

Q.—"Is the work on a home which calls for various jobs done through a main contractor?"

A.—"Out of the first $900,000 loaned the average loan was $400.00. This did not call for many mixed jobs. But the general practice now is that a contractor who has the major part of the work, usually has charge of the minor contractors."

Mr. Muir was ably introduced prior to his address by Mr. K. V. Ellery. As the chairman in his remarks the appreciation of those present was conveyed by Mr. Fred Hinchey, Q.C. "I hope he said "that we might call this a Prosperity Committee, for when the building lines get going then everything starts to move".

A vote of thanks was conveyed to the speaker by Chairman Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn

New Type of Plane Built To Fly in Substratosphere

U. S. Army Will Soon Test Out Special Device as Laboratory

Washington, May 1.—A special type plane for the Air Corps, which has been built at the Lockheed plant at Burbank, Calif., for experimental operation in the substratosphere will soon be submitted to acceptance tests as an experimental laboratory for experiments in high altitude operation of military and commercial aircraft. The tests will be conducted first at Burbank and then at Wright Field in Dayton.

"This airplane," the War Department said, "is intended to furnish a necessary contribution to science —the reduction to practice of many of the new items of equipment, accessories and structural and mechanical features which enter into the technique of high altitude operation.

"The pressure cabin is equipped to maintain within it atmospheric pressures corresponding to fairly low altitudes while the airplane is cruising at very high altitudes. Safe and consistent operation at such altitudes always involves encountering great temperature differences and frequently entails passing through heavy icing conditions and cloud formations.

Fuselage Walls Are Thick

"To these must be added the fact that the crew is enclosed in a pressure tight envelope and must control the airplane, maintain ventilation and air pressure, keep ice and fog off of windows, and otherwise perform the complete functions of an operating crew just as effectively as in a normal airplane at lower altitudes."

The plane is of semi-monocoque type, the fuselage being circular in cross section. The fuselage wall is of conventional aluminum alloy construction but of somewhat greater thickness than that of the standard Lockheed airplane and designed to withstand a proof test of fifteen pounds a square inch pressure differential.

It is sealed to maintain at all altitudes an internal pressure equivalent to that found at 12,000 feet. Allowance has been provided for expansion and contraction as the plane will encounter external temperature differences between 54 degrees below zero and 100 degrees above zero Fahrenheit.

Provision is made in the fuselage for a crew of six, consisting of one pilot, one co-pilot, one cradle and pressure compartment operator and three pressure compartment observers.

"The operator's station will be immediately to the rear of the pilots, centrally located," said the War Department. "Beside him is the operating table which contains within arm's reach all the controls for regulating and conditioning the cabin atmosphere.

"There are the hot and cold air supply—it is not intended that the interior of the fuselage be allowed to get colder than 50 degrees or warmer than 70 degrees Fahrenheit—humidity control, cabin pressure regulator valve and oxygen supply with manually and automatically regulated valves.

"A discharge pressure valve provides that the change in cabin pressure shall not be more than 5 per cent of the barometric pressure at altitudes greater than 15,000 feet. There is provision for ventilation at any operating altitude."

RECALL ORIGIN OF NOTED POEM

Dartmouth, N.S., May 1 (CP) Thoughts of Dartmouth residents, this month, turn back 85 years to the time when the death of two children of the Preston district inspired the poem "Babes in the Woods".

On a warm April day, 55 years ago, the two girls, aged four and six years, slipped gaily from the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Meagher, on Westphal Road.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Meagher became worried because the children had never been away so long. Neighbors were called out and a search was begun. It was not until the sixth day after their disappearance that searching parties found their bodies in the woods not far from their home. While the neighborhood was being combed, the children had died of hunger and exposure.

The two girls were found where they had attempted to keep warm, by covering themselves up with a blanket of leaves.

News of the tragic happening was reported widely in the newspapers of the continent, and the now-famous poem was inspired.

Today one can still read on the weather-beaten tomb-stones the following inscription:

"BABES IN THE WOODS"
JANE ELIZABETH
and
MARGARET MEAGHER
Aged 6 and 4 years.
Who were lost at Preston
April 11, 1842.

FRANKFORD

Frankford, May 1. — Mrs. Jessie Bowen, Frankford's grand old lady, celebrated her 95th birthday recently. All day long she received callers from the village and nearby places who came to bring good wishes. Numerous cards and letters as well as gifts were received from friends here and in other parts of Canada and the U.S.A.

Mrs. Bowen is enjoying fairly good health and takes a keen interest in the happenings of the day as well as the work of the United Church. She has been a member of the Women's Association of that church since its formation over 50 years ago.

A daughter, Miss Margaret, lives at home while her son Marc resides in New York City. Just a few years ago Mrs. Bowen and Margaret motored over and spent the summer with him.

SHANNONVILLE

Shannonville, May 1.—Shannon-Hawks who are an entry into the South Hastings League expect to field a very strong team this year. The team will open the season under new management. Jack Bell, formerly catcher, was chosen captain succeeding Bert Liddles. Coach Bell said today that Ken Juby, Shannonville's reliable pitcher, would be back on the mound this year but outside of that he would only say, "we will have some surprises on opening day".

Mrs. Edward Kent has moved into the home formerly occupied by Mr. Fish.

A large crowd attended the Coronation dinner and dance held in the Orange Hall on Thursday evening. The event was sponsored by the Women's Guild of the Anglican Church.

Mrs. Earl Vivian left for Toronto on Wednesday where she will take up residence.

The Fair Board, by-l their annual meeting on Wednesday evening and decided to hold the fair on Saturday, September 18. It was also decided to hold their annual field day on Thursday, July 1.

Little Benny's Note Book

After school I went around to Hirshouse to taxt to Mr. Riley and the hookerladder driver, and he said, Did I ever tell you about the time he had a magician as a member of this fire company?

No sir, I said, and he said, it was one of old Captain Snooker's ideas, he was a grate one for thinking up ways to improve efficiency and it seems he saw this magician in a vawderville show. Professor Misto was his name and his big specialty was swallowing flames and then making them leep out of his mouth and ears and even his scalp, I believe, Well, Captain Snooker figured a man with a talent like that ought to be a hardy sort of chap in a fire company, so after the show he offered him a job, Mr Riley said.

G, did he except it? I said, and Mr Riley said, Yes he did. He was a sort of an idealist and claimed he'd always wanted to use his genius for the good of his fellowmen instead of just their entertainment. So he reported for duty and on the way to his first and only fire he amused the rest of the hookern-laoser crew by taking rabbits out of their helmets and the like of that, and we'd no more got to the fire when he waved his hands 3 times and sang out, as near as I can remember, Down the chimney, up the spout, flame scream, flam scram, fire's out, Mr. Riley said.

And was it? I said, and he said, By jinks it was just like magic, and we went cheering back to the firehouse only to be greeted by another alarm. That fire had started up again the moment Professor Misto turned his back, and Captain Snooker nearly got demoted for having left the scene without even unfurling a hose or unhooking a ladder, so naturally that was the last of Professor Misto's career as a fireman, and now I've got a little polishing to do, Mr. Riley said.

People of Grenfell

A short time ago a book was written with title "Rough Passage," by Commander R. D. Graham. It describes his voyage from Poole, England, to St. John's, Newfoundland, thence north to Hamilton Inlet, thence by way of St. John's to Bermuda. From the last named place he returned to England by way of the Azores. Commander Graham sailed single-handed until he left Bermuda for the return voyage. At Bermuda he secured a companion. He dashed his vessel as a cutter-rigged yacht of seventeen Thames measurement, thirty feet over all, twenty-five on the water-line, with a beam of eight feet six inches and a draught of five feet.

In his book, Commander Graham describes the coast-line of Labrador as much broken and generally fringed by a chain of rocky islands.

He says, "To some extent one is reminded of the west coast of Scotland; but in Labrador, at least in the southern part which I visited, the hills are much lower and more rounded, generally rising to only 400 or 500 feet.

The country is entirely unchanged by man. There are, perhaps, 2,000 permanent settlers of European extraction, mostly descendants of the Hudson's Bay Company, who remained in the country after their period of service had expired. A few hundred Eskimos live in settlements northward from Hamilton Inlet. Some scattered tribes of Indians roam the interior, coming out to the coast once a year to barter their furs.

The permanent settlers, (Liveyers as they are called, "because they live 'ere") have winter quarters at the head of the bays, from which the men go some hundred miles into the interior trapping furs. In the spring the river mouths are netted for salmon and later they move to the outer coasts for the cod fishery. The Liveyers are all deeply in debt to the merchants.

In former days there were no doctors, schools, nor other social services. In 1892 Dr. Grenfell (now Sir Wilfred) visited Labrador in a ship belonging to the mission of the Deep-sea Fishermen. He was so shocked by the hardships under which the people lived and by the terrible suffering caused by the lack of medical attention, that he devoted his life to remedying the conditions under which the people lived. He has largely succeeded and the work of the International Grenfell Association is well known. I do not feel competent to give an adequate account of the mission and its work and it would be presumption on my part to attempt to portray this great man, but walking through the wards of the hospital at St. Anthony one is very conscious of the immense amount of sheer physical suffering that Grenfell has been instrumental in relieving. Along the coast one is constantly struck by personal devotion which he has inspired among the common folk."—Peterborough Examiner.

Tendency to Rule by Appeal To Emotions Held War Peril

"It is no easy task to govern a democracy where acute social and economic problems have to be dealt with. It is not surprising that political leaders should seek conditions which will permit them to rule by the easy methods of emotional appeal.

"We cannot fail to recognize that it is such situations which constitute an imminent threat to peace in that through such methods emotional energies can be and are fused to an abnormal pitch."

Remarks of this nature are contained in the annual address of Dr. Robert Kelly, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, delivered at the annual meeting of the trustees of the endowment in Washington. Dr. Kelly's address is a plea for the maintenance of peace through the rule of law and the development of international machinery for the settlement of disputes.

Robt. Bogle Reminisces On Days of '98 As Gold Rush Opens Near Jellicoe

Miseries and Hardships of Dawson Trail Told By Veteran

PRIZES POSSESSIONS HIGHLY

Member of Arctic Brotherhood of Which Few are Left

An orange flash stabbing the darkness of a moonless January night. A mutilated corpse bloody. A scream and a groan. The thud of a falling body. Then silence, and, skulking behind a rock, heavy revolver in hand, prowls a killer.

Six hundred persons on a river boat, whose normal capacity is but two hundred, out at sea, three days from Victoria. One thousand dogs and eighty-eight horses balanced between decks. Curling wisps of smoke issuing from the after deck. Fire aboard!

A murderer stalking his camp fire through the white wastes of the Arctic, hate in his eyes, revenge in his heart!

Working a gold mine claim with a suicidal maniac—and the nearest neighbors miles away through a little river!

Nome, when but a dozen or so men comprised the whole white population.

These are but a few of the recollections of Mr. Robert Bogle, one of the city's best known men of the stirring days of '97 and '98—the days of the great gold rush into the Yukon, when men from the four corners of the earth mobbed the trails that led in the whirling blizzards of winter or the heat struck fly infested days of the brief summer.

Nome, Alaska's famous city of gold, lies in ruins, with the majority of its 1,500 population homeless and heavy damage amounting to $2,000,000 changed as the result of a disastrous fire that swept the city but a few days ago. Mr. Robert Bogle of this city was one of the original prospectors in Nome when the total population was but a few hundred prospectors. Only a few shacks had then been located on the bleak, wind-swept shores.

"That seemed to settle the question with him. He was like a lot more of the miners up there—even the old sourdoughs. Wherever Soapy went, they were particular to stay away from. Of course I had heard a lot about Soapy and his gang, but I decided to act ignorant and draw the old fellow out.

"Soapy is a tough man, that's all. He's killed people for nothing at all practically. And he's a pretty tough man to stay away from." That's all the old tobacco store man would say.

"Then he began to tell me of the gang that disgraced the streets in Skagway. It seems that an epidemic of spinal meningitis had struck the town and was killing the citizens off like flies.

"I decided to go on, anyhow."

The next day we pulled out for Skagway. That is one port in the north you'd have to know before you could find your way in. Towering cliffs hem it in on all three sides, and the boat has to creep up a narrow channel. Then after she gets in you are a long way off from shore because a long, piled wharf had to be built out into the water to accommodate the boats. The town was just a bunch of shacks and stacks. But that was the beginning of the trail north and at the end of the trail there was gold!"

Name of Hotel in Charcoal

As a concession to pride the Dyea miners only burned charcoal, but he had name printed with charcoal on a shingle which hung above the door. Investigation by Mr. Bogle and his friends proved that the copper ashes, which were obtained by sleeping quarters, were particularly fine timber reserved marked off the bedrooms. There were no bureaus, blankets, wash basins or bed appliances. And the price was twenty dollars for two rooms for two days. But the guest had all the boiled drinking water he wanted free of charge. And if Yukon wasn't dry enough, there was a very long and wide blue bar in the lower section. Most of the miners or intended miners were a bit skeptical of the water anyhow and bottled or not, it didn't agree with their stomachs. But it did come in handy now and then to wash with.

Beans and pork; rolled oats and beans and pork. That was the day to day, every day ration of the prospectors and miners who stayed at the hotel. But Mr. Bogle and his companions stayed just long enough to outfit their party for the trip ahead. They were on their way to the Klondike and Dawson. It was many a mile of danger and toil ahead.

"Those who have made the Dyea Trail, and thousands passed over it, will probably remember that trip as a "grueling day," reminisced Mr. Bogle.

Split in the annals of the north was that trip over the Dyea Trail. It is second perhaps in notoriety to famed Chilkoot Pass, where early adventurers stumbled on to death amid, whirling blizzards and a swift biting frost; when the mercury hovered in a little ball at fifty below and more. Men and horses and dogs died on that single path between towering snow choked gorges and canyons, which stretched and wound for interminable miles through the white and cold timberlands. Murders were frequent. Supplies were stolen and lost. Death beckoned as the adventurers followed the trail. But none turned back.

"We got to the Fifth Canyon one evening after stumbling under our heavy packs all that day. What we couldn't carry on our backs we pulled on a hand sled. As we set up the little tent for the night, the temperature was almost covered it. We were tight in the middle of hundreds of boulder strewn strips of land. Then continued Mr. Bogle. "I was dog tired, almost too tired to eat."

Fights Quite Frequent

"Then, just as I started to doze off in the sleeping bag I heard a shot. . Now, shots on that trail were nothing. Fights were frequent. Fatigued by the heavy pack, and inflamed with a carelessness that only those who have struggled over that trail can ever know, tempers were bound to flare over the least incidents. Guns would flash, and one more gold seeker would lie by the wayside. But this was different. Instead I noticed the flash of the shot I heard a man cry out: 'My God! I'm shot!' I lighted a candle, hurried out. Lying not fifty feet from the tent was a young chap with a bullet in his shoulder. Blood was pouring out on the snow staining it red. I ran back to the tent, pulled the sled out of the drifts and went back and rolled the man on it. He was dead by the time we got back, but I threw a blanket over him and put him in the side of the tent to keep the wolves from getting him. The next morning I packed his machine and found a letter addressed to him. His name was Bean, from California, a fine, big, six-foot specimen, too."

"Later on I walked over to the spot where he had been shot. From the prints in the snow, he had been dropped in the ambush from behind. I walked behind the high boulder from which a person might have fired from ambush—and walked smack into a strange, big, snaggle-bearded man. And in his hand he had a revolver that looked as big as a cannon!"

"Hello, pardner," he said. And I'll never forget these eyes. They were steel grey, and rimmed with blue circles around them.

"'Where are you bound?' he asked me.

"'Skagway,' I told him."

"'Wal,' I was just looking for a pardner to hit the trail with. How about it?' he asked."

"My mind had me covered, but I told him I was with a party. He insisted that he accompany us. I told him no. There was more argument to and fro, and finally I told him that if I didn't get back my partners would be looking for me. He disappeared. But that wasn't the last I saw of him. Later I found out that he had been going around to all the parties asking to join them. But they wouldn't have anything to do with him."

Eldorado for Gamblers

After Mr. Bogle and party had been laid up for a day or so a Mounted Police took charge of the body, and continued. Days of steady mushing and plugging along the trail, guarding against frost bite and bowed under the weight of their packs alternated with nights of weary and unrefreshing sleep in a snow backed tent. Impossible to heat with the ordinary bucket of red hot stones placed inside. Then the most memorable trek over the Dyea Pass was recorded. Dawson, the hole of iniquity, the most corrupt town, then, in the whole Yukon, but as Eldorado for gamblers, dance hall girls and gold seekers weary of the trail, was reached. Just a conglomeration of shacks, with every second one a saloon and gambling den. Hell is spelled food and rest and entertainment for those who had been from home and comfort too long.

There was gold in those hills around Dawson, and after separating from his trail buddies, Robert Bogle staked out a claim thirty miles from the town. Later he got another partner and both worked the claim. The new mate was an ex-timber cruiser from British Columbia, hard as nails and willing to work. The new man was a fairly prospector, one and both partners were satisfied. They had panned enough gold to be carried steadily on, thawing the ground with fire by day and digging down through to bed rock as it thawed.

A few months later on one of his few trips to Dawson, Mr. Bogle said on the street one day he felt a tap on the shoulder. He turned around and there, coming from the dark, was the face of the spectre eyes; the man who was reminded. Dawson, the murderer at the Fifth Canyon!

"We've met before, haven't we, pardner?" he said.

"Possibly," returned Mr. Bogle. "I came over the White Pass with thousands of others."

"You were on the Skagway Trail, weren't you, pardner?" he said questioningly.

"Why, of course. We might have had a word or two passing up and down some time or other."

"Never see anything out of the way there, did you, pardner?"

"Nothing that you mean," returned Mr. Bogle.

The man with heavy gun still advancing at his hip, looked intently at him for a moment, and then smiled off.

Dead Men Tell No Tales

It was four or five months later they had settled down to their hands. It didn't look so good. That's the way the poke robbers and trail murderers did things. Usually they kept kneeling and fumbling with their packs, acting as if I was just breaking up camp. They approached me—out of the corner of my eye. Then they kept coming closer. Then I felt a hand on my shoulder. Then I knew. There he stood again—the man with the funny eyes. He had a funny smile on his face.

"I see you know me, pardner?" he said. Only he used my first name. I answered Then I added, "if you want to use this fire you're welcome to it, seeing as I was just going and he'll be impatient with me if I don't come back."

"In a hurry?" he asked me. The other fellow just grinned.

"He made no effort to take his pack off or to unroll."

"Say, we've met before, haven't we. You were on the Skagway Trail?"

"Sure, thousands of us were there."

"Didn't something happen there?" he said to me. I might have been killed a dozen times, falling rocks and all that."

No Effort Made to Detain

"I had the pack all tied up again, and I pointed to my packs. No one made an effort to step me. But if you don't think it isn't the strangest feeling on a man that you know would like to put a bullet through you, and nevertheless feel that you're miles from civilization, then try it some time. Then to catch my self—I had a hollered at them as I hurried off. Even then I half expected to hear a shot or a grade. But they just stood and looked at me, and finally I was out on the edge of the timber. Then I struck at right angles for the mountains base. So far so good, and once I hit that cover I did some of the fastest hiking I ever did in my life. A few miles along and I struck back on the path again and met another fellow also on the way to Dawson. It was getting dark then and we decided to pitch camp. He brought out his cooking equipment. I got a fire going and we had some hot tea. He made flapjacks. After supper we got talking and he had a bottle one had stolen their packs. They suspected Jane and grabbed their guns. Then they tore her dress half off and found the poke of gold dust secreted by the unfortunate man.

Jane swore all the way to Seattle, but when she wasn't too sick to swear she sang. She sang every day, even when she got sick. She was lying in her bunk cursing and moaning with her lady friend. Finally some one hunted me up. I went down to see her. She had a stomach ache and wanted me, to do something. All I had was a bottle of strong cathartic tablets, so I gave them each two. Then next day they were feeling fine, and during the rest of the voyage both of them were carried up on deck. Jane, although that didn't pay for the rest of the passengers and crew on board. One afternoon three men had to separate her from some of the boat stewards she was going to have arrested for insulting her "intulted her or something. Calamity Jane was-the most person-ble and

From The Daily Alaskan, July 15, 1898:

"Isaac" the Siwash Murmem, with three squaws, a dog team and toboggan sled, passed through the town this week en route to the moose pastures about one hundred miles up the Klondike River. "Isaac" whose grub consumption is about seventy-five pounds, is to be gone about several week and will get a moose in about one Sunday, he thinks; but two Sundays sure. Then his dogs, he says, will be "Ditex fat"; he says moose are plentiful up the Klondike, and that caribou are in droves of thousands. Under the prevailing prices of one dollar a pound, some good white hunters could find an Eldorado in the moose pasturage."

Brevities from Klondike Nugget

From the "brevities" column of the Klondike Nugget, Saturday, July 9, 1898:

"The proprietor of the Jolly Old Timer is nothing if not a law abiding citizen. On Friday night some one told him that it was Saturday, and he locked up the saloon and bar at midnight and went home for his usual long Sunday sleep".

"The only point at which fish is kept on the newcomers to the Yukon is at Tagish Post. On June 19th the official register showed that 1,858 boats of all kinds had cleared from there, containing 11,276 men and 881 women. At that date there were nearly another thousand boats in sight."

Ed. Note: "This is the first time we've taken a chance on being an editor. If ever editorials don't suit you don't worry—log a bit. Have tried to tell you the truth, the time and the weather in this region—and if our style is not smooth, it may have the merit of being original."

"The steamer Tees came in this morning from Victoria with 17 tons of gold aboard, all for the Mounted Police."

Mind Deranged from Solitude

"This proved on his mind," recalled Mr. Bogle. "He was continually thinking of the money he was'n making and of the pile his friends had. 'Weren't they the lucky ones, though?' he used to ask about twenty-five times a day. 'Pal' was a good worker, but he steadily grew worse. Often he'd quit work to come to the head of the shaft and ask that same question. But we worked on for months without any serious trouble—until one day, or one night, rather, I found I had a lunatic on my hands. And I was over thirty miles from any place!"

"Things came to a head that night. Generally I could cod him along and get him to say something, but this night it was different. He always brought the axe into the cabin. "It was razor sharp from the time and he was very fond of it. Then he got leaving out of it. Somehow he got the idea that I was going to steal it. He got so he would just stare at me with a queer look in his eyes. I knew the symptoms because I'd had two other men go crazy on me before.

"I didn't sleep much that night and I was almost prepared when he did jump out of bed some time early in the morning, screaming that he felt like killing somebody. He had a big hunting knife in his hand and was moving around in the dark cabin. I got up and lighted the lamp. Then I talked quietly to him, telling him about the good grub we were going after in Dawson as soon as it got light enough. He finally quieted down and next morning we set out for town. When we got there I hunted up some of his friends and asked them to look after him. I saw afterwards that he had enough to go home and marry the girl.

"I was along about this time that the country needed a bank and Bank of Montreal sent Mr. Harry Willis from Belleville to set one up in Dawson. He came overland from one million dollars, closely guarded, to set it up. There was a handy cave near the spot where they got the wooden back up they burned the clay to make bricks, and built a big fire in front. Then they got a steel door some place

Mind Deranged from Solitude - In Yukon All Men Were Equal

"On the Klondike today there are a few hundred miners chopping wood, doctors digging ditches and bankers cleaning spittoons for their breakfast.

"On one claim on Hunker last winter there were three lawyers, three doctors, a sea captain and a preacher, all digging into frozen earth for a day's wages.

"Once in the country you will find there a place where all men are equal. You cannot distinguish the millionaire from the hired man by his clothes; and if you have money enough to pay your way in and permit you to live a life of ease after you've reached here, go to Monte Carlo, Paris, for you'll have more fun and it won't cost as much."

Went Into Warehousing Business

It was soon after this that Mr. Bogle, slightly homesick and anxious to see the old folks, had paid a flying visit to Belleville and then returned to Dawson where he went into warehousing for some time afterward.

The town of Nome that is now lying slowly smoldering in the disastrous fire there several days ago, was reported by Mr. Bogle as one of the bleakest places on earth. The precious gleam of gold alone brought people to the shores of it, whereas the town numbered some 1,500 population previous to the fire, when Mr. Bogle visited there, in 1898, but a scant twenty-five men had made it their headquarters.

Nome had come down to us in Dawson that gold was being picked right off the ground at Nome. Mr. Bogle, Seven of us decided to charter a boat, and after paying $5,000 apiece we finally got one. It was a flat bottomed stern wheeler, and there was room on cabins on it for us. We were anxious to get there before the rush. Then we'd have a better show made up of Americans.

"St. Michaels isn't far from Nome and after we got there we found that there wouldn't be a stick of timber to be had for love or money, even a tree, and if we wanted to stay there we'd have to take our cabins with us when we left.

But we went on anyhow."

"What a desolate place Nome was! Just a strip of rock running out into the ocean. There was no harbor and the boat tried to lay off shore, while we rowed to land in small boats. When we landed we found that the whole settlement was made up of about twenty-five tents and some wooden shacks.

During our short stay we managed to clean up all right, and it could be picked right off the ground. But the gold we saw was in the form of dust—not the sandy beach from the Arctic Ocean. We have to work a long time making money out of that, and the way they were reclaiming it looked was ridiculous to the health. They were amalgamating the gold into quicksilver, and then burning the quicksilver. But the fumes were, killing the miners, rotting their gums and jaw bones. I decided to take the first boat that came back and left a message on the Lorado, bound for Seattle, which was a thirty day trip.

Met Calamity Jane in Nome

"Nome was the first place I ever met Calamity Jane, although I had heard of her for many years. A big boned, husky woman, she was not only as big as a man, but could swear like one. I've never since heard. The day I left Nome, she backed against the gang plank down to the beach all ready, dressed in a sort of crinoline dress, and right behind her came half the miners in the camp. They were cursing like lumbermen because some one had stolen their poker. They suspected Jane and grabbed their guns. Then they tore her dress half off and found the poke of gold dust secreted by the unfortunate man.

Jane swore all the way to Seattle, but when she wasn't too sick to swear she sang. She sang every day, even when she got sick. She was lying in her bunk cursing and moaning with her lady friend. Finally some one hunted me up. I went down to see her. She had a stomach ache and wanted me, to do something. All I had was a bottle of strong cathartic tablets, so I gave them each two. Then next day they were feeling fine, and during the rest of the voyage both of them were carried up on deck. Jane, although that didn't pay for

Hit Klondike at Juneau

"We finally came to Juneau, Alaska," continued Mr. Bogle. "It was at night and the old boat just crept in and tied to the wharf. No one made a move to go ashore. We had heard tales of this place and from where we were then it didn't look at all inviting. Just a few

DAILY SHORT STORY

Wedding Dress

By Jane Allen

Dora Madden, entering the cold interior of the Style Shop on that stifling August day, felt her frayed nerves soothed by the subtle atmosphere of luxury which pervaded Madame Andre's little establishment. Here she was surrounded by an almost bewildering array of beautiful fabrics and colors—she, Dora Madden, who had known so little of lovely things!

A saleagirl approached her. "Something for you, madam?" It was a crisp young voice and the girl herself was crisp and capable. Dora's request, however, brought the latter's pencil eyebrows together in a tiny frown.

"A wedding dress," she repeated. Let me see . . ."

Something in while, you know," Dora elucidated, simple, but stylish. And not too expensive."

Swiftly, expertly, the other appraised her customer. Fairly good figure without much style. Pale eyes and hair. The prospect of white satin against such a sallow complexion caused her to shudder inwardly. If only the woman had chosen to be married in blue!

"This way, please," she said smilingly.

Her high-heeled pumps preceded Dora's sensible shoes down the length of soft carpet to an open glass showcase filled with snowy satins and mousselines de soie.

In the fitting room Dora stood at last before the long triple mirror in a dress which throbbed her with its beauty and simplicity. A dream of a dress in satin and lace, a cloudy veil caressing her head and falling about her shoulders in a shimmering mist. Not such a dress as she had always pictured it for herself.

She observed the skirt critically. It was a trifle long, perhaps, but such small alterations were simple. One hand strayed to the veil of soft illusion and she reflected wistfully that it would be ever so much prettier against dark hair—dark, softly waving hair. Her straight blonde bob appeared dull and lifeless under the bright glare of the lights.

Even so, the sight of her slim reflection brought a brief sensation of pleasure. Strange not to have known before that she had a good figure. A pity not to have afforded pretty, well made dresses . .

Dora slit her lip on a quick sigh, took a little turn about the room. "Ted will like it," she told herself. Important, was it not, that the bridegroom should be pleased with the bridal gown? Remembering Ted's face—with its deep blue eyes and boyish smile—blurred her consciousness.

How really terrible it was to love a man so much!

Turning to the saleagirl she said, "I think I'll decided on this one. It's very beautiful."

The other stepped up smiling, to help her change. "Yes, it's a most attractive model," she said briskly.

"I mustn't forget the orange blossoms." Dora was thinking as she recalled Lydia's letter.

A sweet girl, Lydia, and her favorite student from the very beginning. Just a carefree child of the mountains two years ago at sixteen; now so suddenly a slim, tall young woman with the smoke-lines of the hills in her lovely eyes.

Ted used to call her a "fine kid." To both of them Lydia had been a sort of prologe, a strong bond of common interest. She had crept so often into their conversations as they talked together over the dying embers of a dozen campfires or during long hikes through the woods. Lydia was talented, Lydia had promise—she must, somehow, be sent to college, receive real advantages.

But it was not always of the students that they talked.

As Dora, garbed once more in her cheap brown silk, returned to the front of the shop, memories were taking her back to that golden afternoon in autumn when Ted had described to her those three years of teaching in the little school before her arrival; his long fight back to health in the hills following a serious breakdown; his growing love for the mountains which had finally decided him in the choice of a life work.

"These people are real—the country is real," he had confided with characteristic enthusiasm. "It somehow gets hold of you after a while. I could never be satisfied anywhere else now."

And Dora had realized that day that she could be happy there, forever, too—with him.

The dress, wrapped at last in soft tissue paper and placed in a long box, the saleagirl waited, pencil poised, to write the address. Dora's gloved hands leaning on the counter were rather too tightly clasped together.

"Mail it to Miss Lydia Spencer," she said steadily. "Norton's, Gaspereau. You see, this is her dress and the wedding is this week. And, oh yes, I almost forgot—the old smile that twisted Cora's lips never reached her eyes—"please put in a spray of orange blossoms. Brides always wear them, you know."

MOTHER LOVE — WHAT DOES THE FUTURE HOLD FOR THIS INFANT?

Children Picture Ideal Parent, Put Discipline Before Wealth

LOVE OF PETS

New Brunswick, N.J., May 1—Wealth is less important to successful parenthood than "firm but fair discipline," coupled with understanding, recognition and companionship, according to the consensus of 2,000 children ranging in age from 10 to 20 years. Their description of the "ideal parent" was discussed here by Miss Alice Sowers of Washington, D.C., parent education specialist for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Addressing the one-day parents' conference of the Home Economics Extension Service of Rutgers University, Miss Sowers said the young people's views were obtained in a nation-wide study she had made. About 300 parents heard her talk.

Only a few of the children who filled out a questionnaire, Miss Sowers said, put wealth as a requisite to successful parenthood. The consensus favored only enough money for a "comfortable home" and for education.

On the subject of discipline there was general agreement that it should be "firm when it is based on sound reasoning and not emotional stress."

"If the parental rule is "no movies" except on Friday night or Saturday", Miss Sowers said, these children didn't favor the parent who could be coaxed to break it. On the other hand, they insisted that an unnecessarily harsh judgment, rendered in the heat of a parent's emotional outburst, should be tempered rather than be made to stand merely in the interests of discipline."

In asserting that the ideal parent recognizes the viewpoint of youth, scores of children wrote that the time-worn parental admonition beginning with "When I was your age" fell on deaf ears as far as they were concerned. The reason they said, was that "the world has changed since mother and dad were young."

The survey also disclosed that children resent being told by a parent "you are too young to know what you are talking about."

"Parents who talk that way," Miss Sowers said, "are killing the child's opportunities for intelligent expression and conversation between parent and child. Before long the child has no respect for opinions of the parents who talks that way."

Boys, in particular, the survey showed, want the companionship of their fathers. "To go fishing with dad" was revealed as the unfilled desire of many boys.

That parents should not overlook the importance to children of their pets was indicated by the 10-year-old, who wrote: "I never expect to be a father, but if I am I'll never kick my boy's little dog." Rating especially well in the study were step-parents. Every reference to them was laudatory, Miss Sowers said.

A number of the children she interviewed complained about having their fathers walk into the room in stocking feet when they were entertaining their playmates, she said.

They also expressed their embarrassment about their parents being slow to learn the names of their friends. One girl said that she was ashamed of her father when he forgot the name of a young man who had been calling upon her for more than a month.

Many of the children expressed a desire to have somewhat more privacy in their homes, she reported. They told her they wanted a room of their own, where they could play with their friends in a congenial atmosphere, without the strain put upon them by the presence of an older person.

YUKON GOLD RUSH OF 1898

widely known persons in the Yukon or Alaska. Wherever she was there you'd find gold. She died not so many weeks ago, I believe."

"There was many an old story connected with those days back when any kind of a tenderfoot could make himself a hundred dollars a day or so, on any kind of a claim," recalls Mr. Bogle. "And it wasn't always, that the experienced prospectors found the richest claims. The world talked about the strike at Eldorado when it was first discovered, but it was a checkako who found gold there first. Old prospectors said you wouldn't find gold up that high in that district but one youth who came up one day said he was going to have a try anyhow. He went up to the hill one morning, and by nightfall he had panned some $1500 in nuggets he had just picked up. Then you should have seen the rush."

"I spoke of "Soapy" Smith some time ago. Soapy was almost as well known as Calamity Jane, but Soapy was a born and deadly killer, who robbed and murdered and stole, with the help of his gang. He was killed in July 1898."

During the past several months, due to failing health, Mr. Bogle has been more or less confined to his home, but his memories of those early days on the rim of the Arctic the epic struggles through the rock-hemmed gorges of the Yukon, the thrill and spell of God are still as fresh in his alert mind as they were when actually lived. Mr. Bogle this year will observe his 72nd birthday.

Terrymen Pound Horsehide Behind Veteran Hubbell in Subduing "Hated" Dodgers

"Dizzy" Dean Scores Third Win at The Expense of Reds

TIGERS DOWN INDIANS

Four Signals Return to Line-up With a Four Baser

By SID FEDER

Carl Hubbell probably woke up this morning and pinched himself to make sure he wasn't dreaming.

Even after dropping such a "Wing Carl" just couldn't believe his New York Giants mates had given him all those runs in yesterday's 11-2 walloping of the "hated" Brooklyn Dodgers.

And New York's diamond faithful, awaiting the belated 1937 debut appearance of Joe DiMaggio in the Yankees' line-up today, had to check and double-check the box score before they could figure out how Bill Terry's troupe went out and piled up that many tallies for Hub.

It's been done. But rarely before for the great left hander. Ordinarily, the National Baseball League champions give Carl a couple of runs, more or less, and then tell him, in effect, "Wait, it's up to you now, boy." They've been doing it for years.

Usually, those few runs are enough. In 1936, Carl won 16 straight, yet his major headache was up with an average of only about four runs per game in his 35 appearances. In 1935, they did about the same, and they went over that figure for him only once in '34.

Third Bounce For Old.

Hubbell's victory yesterday was his second in a row this year, boosting his consecutive game streak in league competition to 18. Mel Ott, hammered his third homer of the year, and three other males followed suit. One of them a pinch four-bagger by Jim Ripple, which probably earned that youngster the regular centre field assignment.

Hubbell allowed seven hits and fanned nine batters, but, despite his fine performance, was unable to catch up to his noted National League rival, Dizzy Dean. The "great one's" latest victory No. 3 for the year for the Cardinals, greeting himself to a five-hitter at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds, and finishing on top 7-1, with the aid of Johnny Mize's second homer.

Newsom No "Cousin".

The Yankees not only saw their five-game winning streak come to an end with a 4-1 whipping at the hands of the Senators, but discovered also that Buck Newsom is no longer their "cousin". Buck, who was easy for the swat squad all last year, handcuffed them with 5-3 hurling all the way.

The Pirates worked a triple play but lost to Chicago Cubs 7-2. One of the Boston Bees' "old" rookies, Jim Turner, turned in a six-hitter for a 10-2 win over the Phillies, who came to terms finally with their hold out first baseman, Ralph Camilli.

Jimmy Foxx, making his first 1937 appearance, and fully recovered from sinus infection, immediately picked up his round-trip ball and banged a homer out of the lot as the Red Sox belied the Tigers 5-3. The Tigers went 10 innings to nose out Cleveland's Indians 4-3, and the St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox were rained out.

JOHN KATAN

The Former Champ.

The rough pugnacious Winnipeg wrestler who meets George Clark, Scottish titleholder in the main bout of Tuesday night's wrestling card at the Belleville Arena.

STAND LEGLOCK IS BEST HOLD

Will Need All His Cleverness to Down Scotch Champion

George "Dazzler" Clark, Scottish heavyweight wrestling champion, has met varied types of opposition since he came to America, but he will encounter something new when he opposes John Katan, the former Canadian titleholder in the main bout of the Queensbury Club show at the Arena next Tuesday evening. If Katan can apply his specialty hold the Japanese standing leglock, the "Dazzler" is liable to wonder what has happened to him. This hold has won many bouts for Katan and, when he has scored a first fall with it, the other man seldom has been able to come back to resume the bout.

Henry Piers, champion of Holland, will be the second titleholder from overseas who will be seen in action. Piers, who made a decidedly favorable impression at the last local show, will mix it up with Charlie Strack of Boston and will need all his ability, strength and cleverness to turn in a victory.

Ted Key, one of the fastest men in heavyweight ranks, comes back for a preliminary after having been in the main event last time he was here. Key, who uses drop kicks and flying tackles to excellent advantage, will oppose Joe Maynard of Boston.

Regina Pair Claim A Trundling Record

Regina, May 1 (CP)—Pete Gottselig and Sandy Kidd, two of Regina's foremost 10-pin bowlers today claimed a world's record for two-man teams after rolling 1,532 here yesterday.

Including a perfect 300 game, fifth of his career, Kidd rolled a total of 790 while Gottselig scored 794.

Four years ago the same pair rolled 1,512 and sought official recognition from the American Bowling Congress but they were informed that, in 1927, Roy Johnston and George Skeen of Denver, Colorado, had piled up 1,518 pins.

MAPLE PUSHERS WIND UP SEASON

Hold Banquet at Belvidere Hotel, Where Winners Announced

Culminating a highly successful season on the bowling alleys the Royal Canadian Air Force bowling club held a post-season banquet at the Belvedere Hotel last evening when the R.C.A.F. "sports club" was the hosts to some forty bowlers.

The No. 2 A.C. Squadron, champions of the R.C.A.F. League and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers", champions of the Trenton Town League were honored along with individual league titlists and high scorers for the past season. The 3 A.C. Squadron club, R.C.A.F. winners, was composed of Sgt.-Major Horner, Sgt.-Major Solon, Sgt.-Major Shakespear, L.A.C. Pafford, L.A.C. Walton and L.A.C. Williams, while the R.C.A.F. team to win the Trenton Town League was composed of Sgt. Neale, Sgt. Follows, Sgt.-Major Staveley, Sgt. Shakespear, L.A.C. Roy and Corp. Sweeney.

A splendid banquet was prepared by Mr. Walter Allers, proprietor of the Belvedere Hotel and highly commented upon by the large gathering. Flying Officer McKay occupied the chairman's position while the league statistician, Sgt. Shakespear, gave the league averages. Corp. Sweeney led the R.C.A.F. bowlers as high scorer of the season. The entertainment of the evening was supplied by Sgt.-Major Hibberny and other members of the Air Force.

The winning of the Trenton Town League bowling honors by the R. C. A. F. team marked the first time in six years the "Flyers" had been successful in lifting that coveted trophy.

WINDSOR FORDS PROLONG SERIES

Defeat B. C. Thunderbirds in Third Game For Basketball Honors

By IVAN CORBETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, May 1.—(CP)—Windsor Fords, fighting with championship courage to retain the Canadian Men's senior basketball title, defeated the University of British Columbia's long string of victories last night and are determined to even the best-of-five series at two games each when the teams clash again tonight.

Fords flashed a brilliant attack to win the third game 39-28. The Vancouver Thunderbirds had not been beaten since they entered the Provincial play-offs more than a month ago, having won the first two games of the Windsor series 21-20 and 31-30.

Fords Never Headed

Betting at reel rumors they had called their star centre, Julius Goldman, from Windsor by air plane, Fords took the floor without the ace sharpshooter, who remained at home for business reasons. They ripped past the Thunderbird guards almost at will in the opening days and scored nine points without a reply in the first 10 minutes.

Windsor was never headed throughout the game, leading 13-8 at halftime. Referee Jewell called numerous fouls on Fords in the early minutes but the Collegians were unable to make them count. Fords, who saw victory snatched from their grasp in each of the first two games just before the final bell, took no chances last night. They were faster getting back under their own basket to defend it from the fast-breaking collegians.

Wiseman was the most effective man on the floor and shared scoring honors with Varsity's Jimmy Bardsley, each with seven points.

Toronto Wins Five Straight to Open Baseball Season

The surprise package of the 1937 International Baseball League season is the young team Manager Dan Howley has collected for Toronto. The team opened the season with a barrage of hits to trounce Baltimore Orioles by a decisive score. Not contegt with an opening day win, the youngsters went on to take the three game series. From there they moved to Syracuse where they took the Chiefs into camp to run up five straight wins before they were halted by cold weather. Here are several of Toronto Maple Leafs' sharpshooters who have been ringing up a merry barrage of hits. Six of the Leaf outfielders are lined up in batting order above. They are, from left to right, Tom Oliver, George Blackerby, Mayo Smith, Ted Petoskey, Adam Comorosky and Bobby Porter, a Toronto boy. At lower left is the sensational second baseman, Frank Madgeral with Tom Heath, catcher for the club in centre. Lower right above is Joe Gantenbein swinging the history. Playing at short he has been a outstanding hitter for the club.

What's In An Arm? Many Big Leaguers Know What's In These

With all the talk about the great pitching abilities of Bob Feller, 18-year-old rookie with the Cleveland Indians and Carl Hubbell, screw ball wizard of the New York Giants, you may wonder what their pitching arms look like. Here is a layout of the two ace hurlers in the big league. The arm with which Feller throws his mighty speed ball is pictured at top. Bob is demonstrating how he holds the ball when delivering an incurve across the rubber. The slender, muscular arm seen below is that of the great screw ball hurler of the Giants. Carl shows us how he places his fingers on the ball for the pitch, incidentally he holds every pitch with the same fingers. It is stated that, with the continual use of the screw ball, Hubbell's arm has become slightly twist'd. When the arm is at his side the palm of the hand faces out instead of inwards.

5 CLUBS ENTER LACROSSE LOOP IN CENTRAL ONT.

Five clubs definitely entered the Central Ontario Lacrosse Association for O.A.L.A. competition in 1937, when the association convened in Cobourg last night. Two clubs present were: Belleville, Peterborough, Cobourg-Port Hope (Combine) Norwood and the R.C.A.F. (Flyers).

The meeting voted to adopt a triple schedule to commence on May 24th and finish no later than August 14th. The play-off system will include the first three clubs with a home and home series being played between the second and third placed teams. The ultimate winner of which meets the club finishing the regular schedule in first position. The R.C.A.F. Flyers and the Cobourg-Port Hope Combines drew the opening date assignment for home games. Belleville playing at the R.C.A.F. and Peterborough supplying the opposition for the Cobourg combine.

The referees named were—Norwood, S. Innes, Gordon Puffer; Belleville, Homer "Red" Cornwood, David Batchelor and Claude D. Tyer; Peterborough, Stud Palmer, Lou LeBarr and Mr. Reynolds; Cobourg, "Scottie" Black. The A.A.U. did not name their official last night.

Mr. G. Dopp, secretary of the O.A.L.A., was present and discussed the playing rules with the meeting. The Gem and Vicery balls were adopted for league use. F. O. Carling-Kelly, R.C.A.F., was present and resigned as league secretary, this office stating he is was contemplating a move by the department. Ross Burley of Trenton was named as the league secretary while Alex Kemp of Norwood and Mr. Miller of Peterboro' were added to the league executive. Although it was at first believed that Oshawa would definitely enter a club, no delegates from the Motor City were on hand to officially ask for admission.

Peterboro' delegates recommended that Eastern Ontario be represented on the O.A.L.A. executive and that also the parent body name a group convener also. Mr. Dopp spoke on the need of safe and sane play in order to bring the standard of lacrosse back to its former level in this part of the province. "The referees do not want to see continued rough play and neither do we," stated Mr. Dopp.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Maxie Baer, former world's heavyweight champion and fisticuffs general par excellent, yesterday signed for a 12-round match with Benny Poore, South African heavyweight at Harringay, England, on May 27th. Baer, in his first British start, was given a bad beating, it will be recalled, we presume, by Tommy Farr recently, but Maxie undoubtedly previously was the British heavyweight title by outpointing Poord, however. They survey must be the well-known bears for punishment over 'ooze.

There seems to be a considerable difference of opinion between the local softball mentors relative to when and why they should commence their season's activities on the diamond. It was recently decided by officials upon the Belleville Softball League schedule on May 12 (Coronation Day) and then not play again until Victoria Day. How it seems some are of the thought that May 12th is a little too early for softball and maybe the setginal plans of the league opening will receive a new deal when next the softballers meet on Tuesday evening.

Old lady Dame Rumor informs us that the executive of the Cannifton ball club in the South Hastings League is in hot pursuit after W. J. "Peeney" Mills to guide the destinies of Ed Shorey's pets this season. The former C.O.B.L. star of yesteryear said "Nay, nay, ne'ists," or words to that effect. Member Peeney, your public must be served.

During his interview at the Kingmen motor show recently, when the two local O.H.A. champions were honored, "Dit" Clapper of the Boston Bruins stated he expected to fall back on the defence next year. "Old age is sneaking up on me, I guess," was Dit's witty reply. The Bruins' star of long standing stated, however, he was of the opinion that the dynamic Eddie Shore would return to the hockey wars and continue for many years to come while he also stated he believed the gun and eye of Charlie Conacher possessed the hardest shot in the big time.

When the bashful Bob Davidson stepped before the mike, however, he assured the fans his greatest thrill in hockey came during his initial N.H.L. game at Montreal. "You see I scored the only goal when the Leafs beat the Maroons 1-0 that night," explained Davidson. Bob considers Babe Seibert and Ebbie Goodfellow two of the hard defencemen in the N.H.L. to get past and says that Normie Smith is "tops" as a goalie. The autograph hunters were especially the fair sex and the "keen age boys had a busy time at the armouries the other night.

Today is May Day and within a few days George Pepper hopes to be on the briny enroute to England and the Isle of Man races. George shipped his new Brockier machine to Manchester, England, the home of the company to manufacture these machines, where the bike will be completely overhauled before George arrives. The members of the Quinte Motorcycle Club met at Gordon Davies' home last evening and honored their star club member during a social evening and wished him bon voyage. Wednesday and Friday are a great need of about $50.00 more to assure George his transportation and expenses to compete in the world's championship races. How about it, sport fans, we only have a few more hours to help the cause.

This lad George Clark, the Scottish wrestler who meets John Katan in the main bout of Tuesday night's wrestling card at the Belleville Arena, as mentalist deserving of punishment for his opponents when necessary, so maybe Katan, who is none too well liked locally anyhow, may get just what the fans desire, a good sound trouncing. That alone should be worth the price of admission. Scientific wrestling is usually practiced by Clark in his bouts to win, but he can take care of himself nicely, unless he to how tough the opposition gets, we were recently informed by Matchmaker Jack Corcoran who holds Clark in high esteem. "I can assure you Clark will be a crowd-pleaser in Belleville, but don't discount his Piers-Strack semi-final bout, it'll be a knockout," confided Mr. Corcoran.

The Central Ontario lacrossers met last night and decided to open their season on May 24. Although no schedule was adopted the opening dates were suggested and we understand Belleville will open versus the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" at either Trenton or the Airport. Referees were named and the rules generally discussed with Gene Dopp, secretary of the O.A.L.A., being present to assist.

Junior baseball practices at the Fair Grounds will commence on Monday night and continue every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, starting at 6 p.m., Coach Woodley assured us today. There's lots of room for more material at these week-outs, however.

After winning seven straight, Dan Howley's Toronto Maple Leafs finally ran off the track and tasted their first defeat of the current season, being knocked off by Jersey City Giants 4-1. The great Dizzy Dean notched his second consecutive win of the season, however, and only missed another shut-out by the narrow margin of 8-1.

HARSH REPRIMAND FOR SCHOOL BOYS

Suspended Sentence Given And Boys Ordered to Obey Parents

Three local school boys appeared in a special Juvenile Police Court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., yesterday morning, on several offences of breaking, entering and theft. The youthful delinquents were accompanied into the court by their parents and received a severe lecture from the Bench, before being given a suspended sentence.

"The boy can see the position you are in here today, disgracing your parents. There is only one direction you are travelling and that's towards a life of crime and ruin unless you change your methods of thought and living. Ordinarily I would impose a reformatory sentence penalty, but I will give you one chance, and see that you behave yourselves and obey your parents in the future," warned His Worship as he gave the boys into the custody of the parents, who included a weeping broken-hearted mother.

The youthful lads admitted breaking and entering King George School, Queen Mary School, the residence of Col. Barragar, Holloway St., Mrs. Bacon, Hillside St., and Mrs. Howe on Herchimer Street.

London Merchants Begin Flood Cleanup

Their stock in trade ruined by flood water, merchants at London, Ont., began a clean-up campaign to restore activity to normal. This merchant is cleaning out all his water-spoiled goods and piling them on the sidewalk to be taken away. Throughout western Ontario the work of reconstruction in towns ravaged by flood waters has begun as the raging waters of the Thames and its tributaries pull them river emptied into Lake St. Clair.

footer into the right hand corner of the net from 15 yards out. Five minutes later Burbanks scored scoring as the culmination of the most thrilling movement during the game. The whole forward line combined in a raid on Preston's goal Burbanks netting by beating the ball past Maspero's outstretched arm after receiving an accurate pass.

The teams:

Preston: North End: Goal, Burns; backs, Gallimore, Beattie; halfbacks, Shanley, Tremelling, Milne; forwards, Dougal, Bereford, F. O'Donnell, T. O'Donnell.

to expire simultaneously on that date. The dispute was brought to a head by owners of the Harworth Colliery refusing to negotiate with the federation. Efforts to amalgamate the two unions in the area into one group under the federation failed.

TRAFFIC SNARLED

panies attempted to introduce non-union men.

Coal Strike Ordered

The coal strike was ordered by delegates of the Mine Workers' Federation in a conference held here. It will be effective May 22 unless a settlement is reached in the Federation's demand for complete recognition in the Nottinghamshire area where a union affiliated with the federation has been battling for many months with a so-called company union.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 1.—(AP)—Quiet strength was displayed in parts of today's stock market but many issues fell back after yesterday's sharp ascent. Selected oils, farm implements and specialties trudged upward for gains of fractions to 1 or more points. Steels, however, gave ground easily. Transfers were in the neighborhood of 550,000 shares.

Among Dominion Stocks Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines, Distillers-Corp-Seagrams, McIntyre and International N. were fractionally higher. Canadian Government 4s were inactive. Dominion Funds yielded 1-64 of a cent to 100.18 1-4 cents. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines tilted slightly higher.

Polosing higher during most of the brief session—some slipped in the final new minutes—were Standard Oil of N.J., Texas Corp., Houston Oil, Mid-Continent Petroleum, Socony Vacuum, Barnadall, Skelly Oil, Continental Oil, and J. I. Case.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 1 (CP)—Prices bulged narrowly in the early period of today's trade on the Toronto exchange market and eased off slightly just before the close.

The medium priced golds attracted the main attention and among the industrials Imperial Oil, Brazilian and Dominion Steel and Coal B changed hands in considerable volume. Gains of minor fractions were held by Dome, McIntyre and Lake Shore and net gains of 10 to 15 cents were held by Wright Hargreaves, Central Patricia, Pickle Crow and Macassa. Net gains of 3 to 8 cents appeared for Hard Rock, Moneta, Sladen and Sisco.

The demand was fair for the big base metals and fractionally higher prices paid for International Nickel, Noranda, Hudson Bay. Closing prices were up 5 to 10 cents for Waite-Amulet, Sudbury Basin, Sherritt and Chromium. Eldorado firmed about 15 cents.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal May 1—There was an unsettled tone on the local butter market yesterday. Demand was quiet, buyers awaiting announcement of the policy of Montreal stocks in store; meanwhile butter production prospects are favorable and in line with the advance of the spring season. Eggs were inclined to be easy. Old potatoes reacted upward, following several recent declines. Cheese and poultry were steady. Receipts were 1,605 cases of eggs, 280 boxes of butter and 35 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Sales on the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 100 boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score butter at 23 1-4c, and were posted at the close at 23c to 23 1-4c for Quebec fresh 92 score and 22-22 1-4c for Quebec fresh buyer's inspection. On the open market in the afternoon No. 1 in cartons or l.c.l. lots were quoted 22 1-4c to 23c, a wider range than usual prevailing.

Graded shipments of eggs in cartons or l.c.l. lots were generally 22 1-2c for A-large, 21c for A-medium, 20c for B, 19c for A-pullets, and 18 1-2c for C. Storage packed eggs were quoted in some cases slightly about these levels, while some l.c.l. lots were reported slightly under. Offerings were posted at the Commodity Exchange at 22c for A-large, 20c for A-medium and 19c for A-pullets.

SPRING SEEDING CAUSES FARMERS TO FORGO MART

PLANTS OFFERED

Spring Vegetables Featured Outside Market Today

With the majority of the farmers starting work of spring seeding and cultivation, one of the smallest markets of the season greeted Saturday morning shoppers today. The fine weather and early morning sunshine brought out a large crowd of shoppers however, and each and celery at ten cents the bunch.

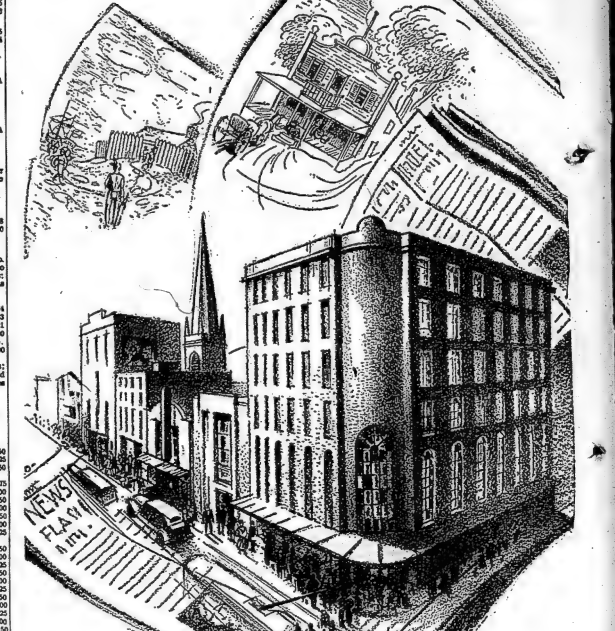
Cabbage plants and Spanish onion shoots were available and sold to a brisk market or fifty cents and ninety cents per flat respectively. Raspberry bushes were also offered for sale.

Five week's old pigs were plentiful and were quoted at prices from $3.50 to $4 each. Barred Rock and Leghorn chicks were also in evidence and sold at ten cents each.



Good quality of winter apples were fairly plentiful with Russets and Spies selling at fifty cents the peck. Stark Delicious were quoted at sixty cents and a lower quality of cooking apples were quoted at one dollar the bushel.

Whitefish and lake trout were also fairly plentiful with prices holding firm at the same level of a week ago. Trout was offered at twenty cents the pound, while whitefish demanded twenty-two cents. Pan fish and Rock bass in all sizes were offered at six for twenty-five cents. Eels were also in evidence selling at eight cents the pound, while the popular mudcat demanded twenty-five cents for two pounds.

One of the smallest displays of farm and dairy produce in weeks, featured the inside market. Eggs held firm at all week prices: "A" selects being quoted at twenty and twenty-one cents with the mediums going at eighteen and nineteen cents and "B" graded add a eighteen cents. Butter was scarce and sold at two pounds for fifty-five cents although a number of vendors offered their product at sixty cents per roll. Home cooking vendors did a brisk business with milady buying various dainties in numbers.

Chickens were scarce and young broilers sold well at seventy and seventy-five cents the pair. Other birds sold at prices ranging from seventy five cents to as high as one dollar and fifty cents.

Whipping cream was quoted at fifteen and thirty cents half-pint and pint respectively.

The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.

Dance Hall Lady

Jane Clayton

Without the least regret. . . .

Rain was coming, enormous, frightened, desperate.

"He's going to his office," she heard herself say, but it sounded like that of Richard's song. "I—I'll see him."

She combed feverishly at her tangled hair, straightened it with trembling fingers to blot out the traces of her tears.

"Promise me you'll come back," Anne said, as the other started out the door. "Promise me that."

Ray did not scorn.

"I promise," she said.

There was daylight in the dressing room until after five o'clock. Then the light died from the windows and shadows began to creep from the corners of the room. Anne's pale color of the rug, blurring chairs and dressing tables, dimming even the silver brightness of the mirrors. Anne put up her needle. The dancing frocks, repaired, lay in a neat pile on the couch beside her, the black with the spangled flowers, the white with the new hem, the coffee color with the tear mended.

She looked up in the dusk to realize suddenly how late it was, how dim and cold the vacancy had become. A tryst that was echoed in the brightness which she had known and swept folded dresses into one soft armful. Her own steps seemed loud. "The end of the day," she declared her locker gave her a tiny shove. "Ray's back. She hadn't she returned?

Resolutely she crossed the room again, stopped at the light, powdered her face, dusted the powder from her hands, pulled the small, smart, knitted turban. Several times she adjusted the set of the turban's severest line, and rejected her taffeta scarf.

Stanley had bought the scarf for her. Her heart twisted in the old wicked way at the remembrance. Late, maybe afternoon, the perfect lunch, and afterwards the window-shopping that led down the Avenue. How clearly she envisioned the very shop where the taffeta scarf had been displayed, the red dotted scarf which had tantalized the girl as soon as Stanley's memory of it. Or did he remember, as she remembered, his tenderness that had not silk square be taken from the window, because it's just right? Did he remember that everything that afternoon had been just right? Did he remember how they had laughed?

Two tears splashed on her bare hand. Before she took herself in hand, wiped her watering eyes, glanced again at the clock. They had been gone for more than two hours. A few more moments and Anne looked sure of leaving anything had been left.

It was then that someone knocked, an uncertain, hesitant knock. Ray? Why would she bother? Her hand on the knob, Anne paused, a prey to vague anxiety. A second knock. She opened the door and fixed her dazzled eyes upon the figure of a man blocked against the darkness of the corridor. She caught her breath.

The man was Stanley Bye.

Haggard, a little pale, he stood there, his head thrust forward in his familiar way, the familiar scowl etched between his brows. The girl's heart gave a leap of mingled hope and fear. Even in the first bewilderment she mistakenly put out her hand. Both his hands locked about it. As she felt that quick contorting clasp she restrained a rush of tears. Stanley continued to regard her soberly, and then she heard him speak:

"It's you, Anne."

"Yes," she whispered, never taking her fascinated, fearful eyes from his face.

"I didn't think to see you here."

"Nor I you," she said mechanically. And underneath the ache kept growing; for an instant she had thought that something different. . . .

"What's the matter?" he asked her, as if they had met yesterday. "You've been crying, haven't you? Is it Ray?"

Concerned and peremptory, he leaned toward her. The exquisite tenderness, the warmth, the blessed comfort of his very presence almost overwhelmed her. She had only the time to tell him everything, now was the time to ask him why things had gone so sorrily with them —it was now or never. He was waiting.

"Perhaps," I have been crying," she admitted finally. Her voice sounded tame and flat in the dusk. "It's nothing, really. Sewing too long and a headache, that's all. You —why did you come here?"

During the first part of this speech he had cried her suffering, but at her question his expression changed. He was plunged again into the problem that had brought him there. Fleetingly he wondered at her composure.

"Have you seen Nancy here?" he asked her, and Anne's head echoed the words. Impossible now to talk to him, to say any of the things which had been in her heart. Incredible that Nancy was gone, Nancy, as they had always been for Nancy.

"Nancy has disappeared," he was explaining, as if she could help him. "We don't know where she's gone. Early this morning I left her sleeping, but she locked her door before I went out. Mrs. Underwood said she'd packed and taken a week-end bag.

"I'm afraid—" He paused. There was something in it now but courage. Anne lifted her head.

"You mean you're afraid she's gone to Richard Graeme," she said steadily. "That's what you mean."

Watching his agitated gesture, she said conceded, his gaze upon Nancy, as they had always been for Nancy.

"She's not here," Anne interjected, in a shaking voice. "And it's been a month or more since she was—once broke. "Please leave," she said quickly. "Please leave me alone."

"There's something I must say to you, something hard to say."

"I won't hear it."

He bent over her swiftly.

"I'm sorry, Anne, so sorry," he said and was gone.

A DOOR CLOSES

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

For a long time Anne leaned against the open door, clenching and unclenching her slim hands, fighting down the sobs. It's all over, it's all over, Stanley and me, she kept repeating in her soul. Nancy had died from him and still he loved her. Nancy, the girl for whom he had shown so undeniably that she preferred a man his inferior in every way. Nancy, who had always been; Nancy it would always be.

"He's only sorry for me". Anne said once aloud.

How long she remained there, sick and broken, ensconced at the entrance of the dressing room, she never knew. Certainly it was a full five minutes before she whirled in the sharp shrill of a telephone from the ballroom. Nobody answered the telephone; it rang on and on, rose and fell, clamorous, imperative. Presently she crept dazedly into the shadowed ballroom and toward the booth. For a minute she heard only a buzzing on the wire, the mechanical repetitions of the operator and then an agitated, feminine voice:

"Dick, I've been waiting and waiting. Where—"

"This isn't—" said Anne patiently.

"Has Mr. Graeme started yet for Seven Oaks? Can you tell me?"

"I can't."

There was a sharp click. Nancy hung up. It was Nancy calling Richard. Nancy calling Richard! Anne started irresistibly toward the outer steps and halted. Too late now. Stanley was long gone. She could not tell him where Nancy was. She could only tell him that Nancy and Richard had planned to go to Richard's country place. Did plan to go to the lodge.

But what of Ray? Where was Ray? The girl tried to think, but her brain in a whirl of confusion. The quiet, the shadows, the emptiness of the ballroom disturbed her. She experienced a kind of subtle, growing fear.

Suddenly she gave a short laugh, figured for shoulders, and started for Richard's office. The corridor was now in heavy dusk. As she groped her way past the dressing room and turned, the silence was broken by a terrifying sound, a sound that stopped Anne dead in her tracks, sent one hand flying to her cheeks, from which the color slowly ebbed.

For one endless moment her heart quit beating and then began thump, thump, thump. The corridor, the ballroom, the world now were wrapped in silence, a cold and terrible silence that rooted her to the spot so that she could not, dared not, move but must stand there endlessly her eyes upon the darkness.

"It must have been a back fire," Anne whispered, with a dry throat. Again there was utter silence. Once more she sought to move.

"It had to be a backfire. . . ."

Outside, however, an strivied train rattled past, a link in a world that was commonplace and safe. There was the alley below, where a few hundred yards distant were crowds of people walking to and fro, but here . . . .

Anne's head shook. Somewhere she heard the quiet, closing of a door. Then again that dreadful silence. Anne, forcing herself to move, to make the turn, left behind the safety of the dressing room, moved noiselessly, painfully along the corridor until she reached the door of Richard Graeme's office and felt the silence that seemed to flow like a tide, acrid, thick from beneath the office door until it must engulf her. A dozen times she raised her hand and let it fall.

"Ray", she called huskily. "Ray", almost soundlessly, her cheek to the yielding door. In the shaded green light from Richard Graeme's private office—the desk itself, the row of telephones, the swivel chair, the couch—Anne saw all things. Then Anne saw that Ray was there, huddled upon the couch, her arms outstretched and her head on the childish breast.

Incredulous, Anne stared at the crumpled figure on the floor. Ray's head was on Richard Graeme's breast. Her eyes were struck with horror. She screamed silently, her mouth open, her throat brassy echoes, and then again the silence, more terrible than ever. The walls rocked and the world rocked and she realized dimly that she was falling.

She clawed backward at the door and knocked against it, then forward with a rush and flung herself on the floor and cried out aware—but at her question his expression changed. He was plunged again into the problem that had brought him there. Fleetingly he wondered at her composure.

"Have you seen Nancy here?" he asked her, and Anne's head echoed the words. Impossible now to talk to him, to say any of the things which had been in her heart. Incredible that Nancy was gone,

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McKeown have returned from Florida where they spent the winter.

Mrs. J. P. Kerr and daughters Pauline and Marion, Bleecker Ave., are spending the week-end in St. Catharines, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Mustard of Toronto, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Goudy, Foster Ave.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Phillips of West Huntingdon, surprised them with a shower, it being their silver wedding anniversary. All spent an enjoyable evening at cards and dancing.

A delightful Coronation Tea and sale of home-cooking was held in St. Andrew's Sunday School hall on Friday afternoon, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Club. The guests were received by Mrs. W. J. Walker and Mrs. R. A. Wilson. Mrs. George Wallbridge was in charge of the decorations which were carried out in Coronation colors. The tea table was centred with a basket of red and white carnations and red, white and blue tapers. Tea was poured by Mrs. George Wallbridge, Mrs. Mayhew and Mrs. Marion Young, who are past presidents of the club. Mrs. P. Bannon, Mrs. K. Hill, Mrs. M. Ward were in charge of the tea room and Mrs. W. Muir had charge of the home-cooking table. The receipts were quite gratifying to the committee.

Weddings

MILLER—KAISER

A wedding of unusual interest took place at three o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Kaiser, 219 MacDonald Avenue, when their daughter Katherine Robina Kaiser, became the bride of Knute Waldorf Miller, son of Mrs. M. Miller of Randers, Denmark. The Rev. W. J. Walker, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, officiated.

The bride was charmingly attired in a beige travelling suit with brown accessories and was given away in marriage by her father. The rooms were prettily decorated with sheafs of fern and Marguerites. Wedding bells of baby's breath hung in the centre of the room.

Mrs. Harvey Brown, of Belleville, was the matron of honor and looked charming in a navy and white ensemble. Mrs. Kaiser, mother of the bride, was dressed in a brown ensemble. Baden Kaiser, brother of the bride, was groomsman. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a silver bracelet, and to the best man a green white cuff link set.

A wedding reception to which fifty guests were invited, many coming from out-of-town, was held immediately following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Miller left on a wedding trip to New York, Washington and Atlantic City. On their return they will reside at 194 Albert Street.

GRIGG—FOX

A wedding of much interest was quietly solemnized Friday, April 30, by the Rev. Mr. Sinclair, when Miss Jennie Grace Fox of Thomasburg was married to Mr. Sidney Grigg of Belleville. Mrs. J. R. Christmas of Shannonville was matron of honor and the groomsman was the twin brother of the bride, Mr. Ray Fox.

The bride was charming in a dress of periwinkle blue crepe with silver trimming and accessories to match. Afterward, wedding refreshments were served at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Grigg. In the evening Mr. Sinclair proposed the toast to the bride which was appropriately responded to by the groom.

The happy couple will occupy the home of Mr. Grigg's father, George Duff, aunt and uncle of the bride, on the Front Road, Consecon, for the present. Among their wedding presents were a set of dishes and a floor lamp, the gift of the Consecon Lock Company and staff.

FOXBORO

Foxboro.—Y.P.U. was held on Thursday evening due to the banquet on Monday evening. The call to worship was given, scripture reading. Roll call was answered by a favorite hymn. Minutes and business and coming events were given by Mrs. F. Spencer. Master Gordon Priest read a poem. Psalm 81 was read by Miss Freda Horton and a reading based on the last verse of Scripture by Mrs. George Priest. An inspiring topic was then given by Miss Dora Horton and meeting closed with a hymn and usual benediction.

PICTON UNITED CHURCH SCENE OF ANNUAL BANQUET

Convention of Temperance Federation of Prince Edward County

Picton.—The Temperance Federation of Prince Edward County held its annual banquet and convention in the Picton United Church, Tuesday, April 27th at 7 o'clock. The ladies of the Picton W.C.T.U. under the direction of Mrs. John Grimmon, served a most sumptuous supper which was enjoyed by all present.

After supper a splendid program was given, Mr. J. Donald Baxter of Bloomfield, the County President, was in the chair, and presided in his usual happy and capable manner. In his address he stated that the Federation had made progress during the year, especially emphasizing the work which is being done in the Sunday Schools of the county. Temperance education along this line was stressed very much. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the report of the nominating committee was adopted. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. Clarence Mallory.
Pres.—J. Donald Baxter.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. John Grimmon.
Secretary—Donald Walters.
Treasurer—Cleland Blakely.
Education and Publicity—H. D. Williams.
Children and Youth—Rev. H. W. Pointen, Rev. R. A. McRae and Mrs. Harold Ruttan.

The Rev. David Wren welcomed the guests of the evening in his pleasing manner and made everyone feel perfectly at home. Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard sang a solo, "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again", to the delight of all.

Rev. R. A. Watson, of Toronto, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Rev. J. R. Mutchmor of Winnipeg, the newly appointed Associate Secretary of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada who has come recently to reside in Toronto. Mr. Mutchmor is very familiar with the liquor problem in the Province of Manitoba, and drew some glaring contrasts between the situation in Ontario and the prairie provinces—not to the credit of Ontario. He stressed the reduction of the will so that people, especially young people would "will" to have nothing to do with strong drink. He also emphasized the education of the young folks along temperance lines. His address was splendid.

One of the highlights of the evening was the oratorical contest. There were two contestants, Mr. Warren Chase of Consecon and Mr. Harold Ruttan of Picton. They both spoke well and handled their subject matter in a concise and interesting way.

The bouquet fell to Mrs. Ruttan. Mr. Donald Baxter presented the silver cup to Mrs. Ruttan on behalf of the Federation. Those acting as judges were Rev. McRae, Wellington, Rev. Shier, Mt. Pleasant, Rev. Pointen, North Port.

Mr. Clarence Mallory, Past President, made an appeal for funds for the local organization and a substantial amount was realized. Mr. L. G. Ward of Bloomfield moved a vote of thanks to the ladies for their very fine supper. The United Church Orchestra, of Picton, furnished delightful music during the supper hour.

MASSASSAGA

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE FROM EARLIEST DAYS

UNDER the date of the month of January of long forgotten years in the city hall building, among the week yet unwritten old time book, full of historical lore of the city in days that are gone and done, it has been planned many an interesting fact and story from the years and page to its printing, may for many years before them.

To many older residents of the city it will revive memories of the past which it was printed. Earlier years it will mention even they will be unable to recall. And to the younger generation it will but serve to show them Mo in this district fifty years ago.

It is as:

DIRECTORY
COUNTY OF HASTINGS
Containing:

"A complete list of householders of the City of Belleville, of each Township, and Village in the County, and of the Township of Ameliasburg, Prince Edward County; a classified list of trades and professions in Belleville, together with other information, local and Provincial, and advertisements of the principal business houses of the County, Belleville, and the principal Villages."

It was published by the Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Company in the year 1339, in Belleville.

The financial position of Hastings County, for that, then was as follows:

Gross liabilities $116,863.13
Assets available ..... $ 58,402.81

Net liabilities ..... $ 58,356.32

This was forty-three years ago, and the rate of taxation for County purposes was 4½ mills on the dollar.

COUNTY'S ASSETS.

Besides the available assets, the county had fixed assets as follows:

234 miles of gravel roads ..$486,000
220 bridges 110,000
County property in Belleville, Court House, Shire Hall, Gaol, Gaoler's House, and Registry Office ..... $ 60,000

Total $656,000

BELLEVILLE.

"One hundred years ago (written in 1839) the site of Belleville was in a state of nature. The year 1787 that spot which was then designated the "Tbith Town"—now known as the Township of Thurlow—was surveyed by Louis Kotte, a surveyor in the employ of the Crown Lands Department, who had been engaged in the survey of several other townships along the bay. It appears that the original map that Lot No. 4, first Concession of Thurlow, was reserved for an Indian burying ground, and it was upon this that the site of the village was subsequently laid out by Surveyor Willmott in 1816. Settlement for some years was very slow, the Townships of Sidney and Thurlow forming the western limit of colonization. Captain John Stockton and Lieutenant Ferguson, were the first settlers in the new township, their location being made soon after the first survey had been accomplished on Lot No. 4, afterwards owned by John Cassidy, Esq., and subsequently by Shubael Parker, which is now included inside the city limits. Neither of these gallant pioneers survived for long however, as it is recorded that Singleton died in 1792, and Ferguson followed him to the grave a few months afterwards.

"In the spring of the same year a party of fifty refugee Loyalists settled in Sidney and Thurlow, and the following year John Taylor, one of the party who had settled up the river in the fifth Concession, came to live at the mouth of the river, on Lot No. 5, now the most important part of the city. Captain John W. Meyers, having purchased from Mr. Taylor the north half of his lot for $100, in 1796 erected a dam on the site of which is now known as Bleecker's or Meyer's dam, where he built a mill. In the same year Fort Hall, now Napanee, and in 1784 constructed the famous old brick house which still stands, and is now the property of Mr. Wm. Clark of the Intelligencer.

"Up to the commencement of the present century but little progress was made by the embryo village, and this is not to be wondered at, as near the mouth of the river was a barren plain, with a heavy cedar swamp extending on each side of it. What is now Front street, one of the finest streets in Canada, was a thick cedar swamp, with the rock within a few inches of the surface. Soon afterwards a few houses were erected south of Dundas street, and for many years settlement did not extend much of that street. Probably the first person to build a house in Belleville was Asa Wallbridge, and in 1797, Asahel Simpson built the first house in Thurlow, which stood at the south east corner of Dundas and Front streets. Note: This is the spot now occupied by Mr. Wm. Clark's blacksmith shop. At this place was the ferry, and subsequently the first bridge. Prior to the latter date the site of the bridge was transferred to the spot now occupied by the Lower Bridge.

"At the time last spoken of, and until 1816, Belleville was known as "Meyer's Dam," so called in honor of Capt. Meyers, the mill owner. The Indian name of the river was Sagonsaka, and it had also been the name of Singleton's farm. It is now mentioned, according to a disputed statement, Governor Gore named the village Belleville, in honor of his wife, Lady Nells, which name has subsequently been transmogrified by the addition of a single letter into the name which it now bears.

"This year Mr. Willmot, acting under instructions from the government, laid out the Indian Reserve Lot No. 4, into town lots of half an acre each. In this year also, a post office was established in Belleville, and Mr. S. McNab was first postmaster.

"The growth of the place is shown by the gradual increase in population which was according to Mr. Willmot, about 150 in 1816, in 1824 about 500; in 1829 about 700, and in 1836 about 1700.

POLICE VILLAGE.

"In 1836 Belleville set up as an independent municipality, and the first Board of Police was formed, the members composing which were: For the First Ward, Mr. McCarthy and Asa Yeomans; for the Second Ward, Mr. Zenas Dafoe and Mr. Wm. Connor. Mills Flint, Jr., was by the people, elected the fifth member, and the Board also chose him as President. Zenas Dafoe being the opposing candidate. The late George Benjamin was chosen Clerk to the Board.

"In 1838 the Court House and the County Gaol were completed, the contractors for which were Robert Matthews and David Duff, of Kingston. The contract price for the building was $23,640.

"The first quarter sessions were held in the Court House in 1838, when Benjamin Dougall presided; Edmund Murney, Clerk of the Peace; J. W. D. Moodie, Sheriff.

FIRST CHURCH.

"The first church in Belleville was built by the Methodists in 1817, and in 1819-20 the Church of England followed suit. The present time (1839) Belleville has within her limits fifteen churches, some of them among the largest and elegant edifices in the country. These are: Church of England, 5; Methodist, 5; Presbyterian, 2; Roman Catholic, 1; Baptist, 1; Congregational, 1.

"The schools include a High School, a Central School, and five Public Schools. In addition there are a Roman Catholic School, a Girls' School conducted by the Sisters of Charity, and several lesser educational institutions of varied character.

"Belleville is also the seat of the Albert College, which includes Alexandra Ladies' College. This institution was established in 1857, and is a Wesleyan Institution and in a very efficient condition.

"The Ontario Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, (now Ontario School for the Deaf), which the government of Ontario established here in 1870, has proved most successful. It stands fourth in point of importance on the continent, the attendance averaging about 150.

"Another highly important educational institution in Belleville is the Ontario Business College, which was established in 1873, and has now grown until it has attained the proud distinction of being the most largely attended of all business schools in Canada.

TRADE AND MANUFACTURERS.

"Although nature has given Belleville a site favorable for the establishment of manufacturing industries, but few advantages have not been utilized as fully as might reasonably be expected. There are, however, a considerable number of manufacturing industries in the city, chief among them being Tickell's Furniture Manufactory, the Ashley Carriage Company's Works, and the Brown and Walker's Foundries. The largest employer of labor in the city are the Grand Trunk Railway Company, who have furnish employment to more than two hundred men.

WATER WORKS.

"The waterworks system, which was completed in January, 1833, is one of the most complete and perfect in the country. The pipes, which range in diameter from 16 inches to 6 inches, cover fifteen and a half miles of streets, whilst 165 hydrants furnish a fire protection so satisfactorily that the rates of insurance have been lowered considerably. The supply of water, which is of excellent quality, is drawn from the Bay of Quinte, by two Worthington steam pumps, the united capacity of which is 2,000,000 gallons per day. The cost was about $250,000. Mr. Geo. H. Pope is the local manager.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"The city is traversed by a street railway, which extends from the Grand Trunk Railway station to the ferry wharf, a distance of two miles.

"The streets are lighted with electric lights, gas lamps and coal oil lamps, but the latter are being superseded by electric lights.

"The Agricultural Show Grounds are worthy of mention. They cover a large area and include a fine main building and numerous stables and sheds for live stock. They are the property of the Bay of Quinte Agricultural Association whose central exhibition, open to the world, is held here annually.

It is probable that ere long Belleville will have permanent connection with the old country by means of joining country of Prince Edward by means of a bridge spanning the Bay of Quinte. The charter was secured, a company formed, a large amount of stock has been subscribed by private individuals and by the Corporations of the City of Belleville and Ameliasburg, and the success of the undertaking seems assured.

Reader's Note:—There may appear to be discrepancies in the foregoing, but the excerpts as taken have not been changed as they were transcribed from the book to the columns of this paper. It may occur to some readers here and there that it has been the fault of the unknown author who first secured the material in the years gone by from which were published in the Hastings County Directory of that date.

Madoc—Its Settlement, Early History and Steady Growth to Become Important Centre

IN a directory that was compiled in 1889, appears a short sketch revealing the origin of what Madoc township, the subject hereunder who then collected the data said:

"The Township of Madoc is one of the most prosperous and growing municipalities in the County of Hastings, rapidly acquiring rapidly in both population and wealth during the past number of years. It is situated about the centre of the County, and is bounded on the north by Tudor, on the west by Elzevir and Huntingdon, on the east by Rawdon and Hungerford. It is said to have derived its name from Lord Madoc, of Wales. It contains about 70,400 acres of land.

BACK TO 1830

"The permanent settlement of the Township commenced about the year 1830. Uriah Seymour, Barnabas Yankeet, James O'Hara, Senior, Cyrus Rigg, Thomas Allen, J. N. Ketchenon, Levius Empey, Hugh Cooper, William Allen, N. Hinchley, Richard Seymour, Hugh McKenzie, William Blair, Hugh Blair, John McCoy, John Moore, Coleman Hauck, and others were among the first settlers in the Township. The Township has been brought into thickly settled prominence in the United States and Canada owing to its rich mineral deposits. Gold, iron, lead, marble and numerous others have been found to exist in large quantities within its borders. Aside from the mineral wealth, a part of most parts of the Township of Madoc is excellent for agricultural purposes. Grain, roots and fruit abundantly. The farmers are thrifty and prospering, as is evidenced by the well tilled fields, well cultivated and substantial looking dwelling houses.

MADOC VILLAGE

"The Village of Madoc, while its position renders it the most important village in the North Riding of Hastings, is undoubtedly one of the most flourishing and progressive villages in the County at the present time. It is situated on Deer Creek, in the Township of Madoc, bordering on Huntingdon, 36 miles north of Belleville, and is the present terminus of the North Hastings branch of the Midland Railway. An excellent county gravel road also connects it with Belleville, over which extends northward from Madoc to the rear part of the county. Madoc became an incorporated village in the year 1878, and in 1879.

"Madoc is surrounded by an excellent agricultural country, and not only that but is in close proximity to some of the richest and most extensive mineral beds in the country. In addition to the Belleville and North Hastings Railway, which passes the limits of the village regular and easy access to the front, the line of the proposed Madoc and Ottawa Railway runs through the village, and there is every possibility of this scheme being carried out.

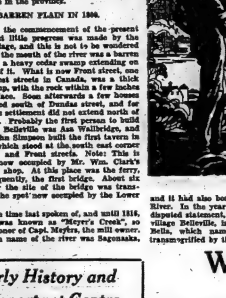
"While it is evident that on the mineral resources of the district depends largely the future of the village, there is no doubt that in the years to come the future will be an independent one.

"There is no doubt but sooner or later, the Township comprising the North Riding of Hastings will have to be cut off from the south for municipal and judicial as they are now for parliamentary purposes. The rapid influx of settlers into the northern townships and the rapidly increasing population of the whole riding will, in the course of time render this step necessary, and that Madoc will be the county town of the new county seems almost beyond doubt.

All this was written nearly a half century ago.

MEN OF OLD

Some of the leading citizens who contributed to the success of the Village of Madoc in its early days are as follows: Asahel Parker, teacher of the Model School in Madoc. C. F. Aylsworth, Jr., surveyor; Simon Barnum, Terry stable keeper; Alexander Sinclair, carriage builder; Wm. H. Brooks, blacksmith; George Brewer, shoemaker; B. E. Conrad, general store keeper; George Conley, proprietor of the Grand Union House; J. Dann, chemist and druggist; John Francis, County Surveyor; John Huff, Bailiff and County Constable; Rev. Mr. Hartley, pastor of the Methodist Church; J. S. Loomis, M.D., Clerk of the Division Court; Wm. Lochead, Inspector of Public Schools; Alex McDonald, Notary Public; William Morrice, boot and shoe manufacturer; Alexander R. McCausland, manager of the Trader's Bank; Geo. Rollins, Township; Robt. Simmons, proprietor of the Madoc House; Rev. T. A. Smith, Pastor of the Church of England; Rev. D. Wishart, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church; A. F. Wood, grain merchant; Wm. Wooley, stage proprietor; James Whyriock, grocer.



44 Year Old Directory Tells of Amelisburgh

When was Amelisburgh a village? is a resident who has attempted to gain some information regarding the section in which he lives. The Township of Ameliasburg is rich in old records, was settled at about the same time as Sidney Township, and is one of the oldest settled townships in the Province.

Writing ages ago the writer of the Ameliasburg: "The Township of Ameliasburg is situated in the County of Prince Edward, and is bounded on the north by Hallowell, on the west by the Township of Hillier, on the east by the Township of Sophiasburg, and on the west by Lake Ontario. Its proximity to the City of Belleville has to a great extent made the commercial interests of the two places identical. The inhabitants of Ameliasburg, in order to get to that city have found it to their advantage to lay their goods and wares in the City of Belleville, and to accommodate the traffic between the two sections, a bridge from Bonby Island to Ferry Point has been undertaken. There are several villages in the Township, the most important being Ameliasburg, Consecon, Rossmore and Redneresville. The soil of the whole Township is excellent for all varieties of farm products.

WINTER FISHING ON THE BAY OF QUINTE

A Day's Activity Among Veteran and Amateur Fishermen

AS you drive along some of the highways that skirt the Bay of Quinte, these days, you will notice scores of little shacks dotted here and there over the frozen surface, looking for all the world like toy houses from some child's play pet. Muskroom-like, they appear each winter as soon as the ice forms firm enough on the bay to hold them. As you view them you dismiss them from your mind. Your curiosity is an idle one. Or if you think of them at all, it is just a vague wonder as to the why and wherefore of them.

Yet, to the unemployed of the city, they represent a substantial investment. Knocked together from scraps of wood, these three by three little structures contain food and clothes, and a little bit of small change to tide them over the days of winter when work is scarce and hard to get. It at least assures them a breathing spell in which to worry the hours of idleness during the short days and long nights.

FISHING SHANTIES.

They are fishing shanties. Men sit in them, and with pole and line wait patiently for some of the finny specimens which crowd the bay to come up and bite the baited hook. Outside rests of them a small pile of small fish lie frozen on the ice. Later, when darkness descends over the bay, they will be peddled from door to door in the city by the men who have spent the day fishing for them.

We enter one of the small shacks. Squatted on a soap box beside a hole cut in the ice about a foot in diameter, one of the local sportsmen is sitting patiently with a small bit of pole in his hand, and line in the water, waiting for a bite. Inside the shack it is warm and dry. A piece of a stove pipe, with an end riveted on the bottom of it, is hung up by bits of wire to the ceiling in one corner of the very small house. A small fire of faggots and soft coal burns merrily, raising the temperature to nearly a hundred. The man, with pipe in his mouth, crowds over a little to let us in.

TUG ON LINE.

Comes a tug on the line. He snaps the pole backwards and hauls a struggling perch through the hole to the floor of the shack. It flops on the wooden floor until he extracts the hook, and then opens the door and throws the fish to the ice outside. "Not biting very well today," he remarks. "Only caught about a dozen all morning." It was then about noon.

He reached for a worm in a cigar box beside him, deftly impales its twisting form on a hook and again lowers it into the water. We peer through the hole into the calm green depths below and see schools of perch and a few sun fish gathering around the fisherman's bait. Now and then a few of them give a scared nibble, and then dart away.

"Perch are like that some days," explains our host. "Some days you can't bait the hook and haul them in fast enough. Other days they shy away as if they knew what was going on. And many of them do," he adds. "Smell the weather? I guess we're going to get a snow storm or something. If you know the signs, and the fish, you can pretty nearly always tell what the weather is going to be like for the next few days, just by watching the actions of the fish."

ON THE SHARP HOOK.

Another luckless perch finds himself impaled on the sharp hook, and starts off down the bay, attempting to drag the pole out of his hands. A quick jerk, and that specimen is landed. It proves a large one and is thrown into a separate little pile in front of the door. "I'll have that one for supper," he explains.

You wonder where he could get the room in the middle of January. "Take them," he explains. "We all do. Catch them in the fall, put them in wooden boxes in the cellar and keep them covered with a piece of window glass. Each week we take them all out of the box and hardboiled eggs we throw in, then take the lot in chucks like we do now, and put the whole thing back again. You can keep them forever that way, and they breed almost as fast as we can use them up."

Some of the others, he explained, use minnows for bait. Even in winter it is the trick to chop a hole in the ice, keep throwing bread crumbs through it for a few days, and then the minnows start to swarm around, not them. With the latter live bait many of the boys in the shacks have caught a mixed chest pickerel through the holes this season. These can be sold for a higher price, and with harder to catch, provide more fun and money.

WARMTH OF FIRE.

The improvised stove crackles cheerily, and through the small open door the ruddy glow is cast against the side of the wall, to flicker back in red streams. It's twittering in there. Dark, also. There are no windows. Through the hole in the ice, however, comes a weird green light which seems to throw its flickering phosphorence like a sharp relief of greenish hue. He seems not to mind, but puffs away calmly on an evil smelling pipe. Clouds of tobacco smoke swirl in flow in a blue haze above our heads.

He breaks the silence. "My record catch for one day, the first of this week, was one hundred and twenty-five perch and sun-fish, besides a few other varieties. Rena seem to be a bit out of the way. Against the law to fetch them, anyhow," he adds, a bit ruefully. "And I've only caught a dozen in about three weeks. The funniest thing I pulled through the ice this year was a bass one day a few days ago. Big-fish, you know. Some of them call them "beaver-tails".

Occasionally the fisherman rises, goes to the door and peers at his catch. "Got to do it nowadays every little while," he adds. Chaffie and others have caught about two dozen one day, and he threw them all out on the ice in front of the shack. They took a freeze for about an hour or two. Then when he did go out there was not a fish in sight. The cold had about six dogs busy chewin' away at the rest of them. Dogs around these parts have come to know what's in the offing and are down here every day stealing fish.

AS DARKNESS COMES ON.

Darkness comes early in the occupants of these shacks are usually busy. Only the fishing little fire, fed with tree branches picked up along the shore, and bits of soft coal garnered from the railway yards, is kept for warmth and the illumination. Every afternoon finds them preparing to go home in the early dusk. At least, for there remains much more to do before the day is over for them. There still remains the task of cleaning and scaling the fish before they are to be peddled from door to door in the city.

"Lots of the people like them already skinned when they buy them, but of course there are others who wouldn't think of it. They're getting their money's worth unless they bought fins, head and all, eh? Most No. 12 men I've ever bother skinning them or cleaning them, but I generally do."

Frozen stiff though they are, our fisherman takes them one by one, and with a deft flash of the hand in a shiny knife, splits them open. Another quick slash and the insides are drawn. Skinning is done as rapidly, but can only be done by those who have had a lot of practice. It is a rapid series of quick hairy strokes downward, and when the flesh of the fish is fresh and hard. One by one they are tossed into the bucket. Then, washed and ready, they are ready for the family supper on a good many tables in the city.

THE MARKET.

"Fresh fish, ma'am," points the fisherman to the basket, as the lady of the house opens the door. "Not today, don't want any. Call daily month." And slow, changes her mind, takes another look at the basket, and then decides to buy a few of the fish.

"Fifteen cents the half dozen, ma'am. Twenty-five cents for a dozen and a quarter. Good for frying pan." The deal is closed. Half a dozen perch that had been swimming the waters of the bay in the early hours of the city a few hours ago will be swimming in hot grease in a skillet on top of a heated stove.

"Fresh fish," repeats the fisherman as he walks up and down the line of shops at a store. Some buy, some don't. But the average of sales over the year is good. And the fresh fish at such a low cost is considerably higher than those who do not buy. A dollar or so earned by the fisherman is much money for his day's work, but at home there is a wife and two or three small children, and a dollar looks big to them. They will be able to buy a few things at least that day.

After all, that's a reason for those tiny little shacks you will probably look at with renewed interest the next time you travel in their direction.

Early History of Tweed and Part Village Played in Hastings Life

FIFTY years ago an unknown chronicler wrote, in a directory: "Tweed — this village is beautifully situated on the River Moira and Stoco Lake, in the Township of Hungerford, distant from the City of Belleville twenty-five miles."

The village was laid out for the late James Jamieson, Esq., and was first surveyed in 1822 in the tenth concession in the year 1850.

"The early settlement of the village is entwined with the surrounding country.

"It is possessed of one of the best water powers in the Province, which the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway through the village has helped to develop.

"The water power is one of the finest full roller process flouring mills in the country with a capacity of 125 bbl barrels a day, connected with which is an elevator, with a capacity of 40,000 bushels, and with new machinery erected by Easterbrook, Esq. in connection with the mill. On the same dam is a saw mill owned and operated by the same gentleman. A short line of railway extends from the C.P.R. to the elevator.

"A marked improvement in the business of the village has resulted from the building of the C.P.R. through it. Many new buildings have been erected, all fully occupied. Messrs. Van Dusen and Houston have a planing mill, sash and blind factory. M. A. McGowan, the genial Deputy Reeve of the Township, has an extensive carriage factory, which does a fine business, and employs a dozen or more hands the year around.

"Tweed is the seat of the municipal government for the township of Hungerford. It is possessed of a fine brick Town Hall, office, and lock-up. A large number of fine brick, private residences have been erected, and the business buildings painted, which gives it a neat and smart appearance. The birth and emergence of the people show substantial prosperity. Its religious and educational wants are well provided for. Its churches are St. James Church of England, Rev. Mr. Forster, rector; Methodist, Rev. Mr. Limbert; and the Presbyterian, Rev. Father Fleming. Father Fleming has in course of construction one of the finest stone churches in the country, which will soon be completed at a cost of about $35,000, situated on the hill west of the village. It will be the Church of England. This may properly be called Church Hill."

Then listed in the directory of the village at that time is a total of one hundred and fifty-three names. A few of the shorter sketches of the village are given below: George H. Anderson, Attorney; Frederick Bartlett, school teacher; Thomas Bentley, county constable; W. J. Bowyer, post master; George Easterbrook, mill owner; Rev. Father Fleming, R. C. parishioner; Felix Gaborie, Victoria Hotel; John Gordon, railway agent; Jackson Marshall, photographer; Rev. W. Limbert, pastor, Methodist Church; W. W. Little, printer; P. K. Newton, druggist and stationer; James Quinn, general store; Spalding and Stewart, liquor merchants; Van Dusen and Houston, sash and blind manufacturers; Thos. Wickett, building inspector.

LAND SETTLEMENT SAID NECESSARY IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Former Newfoundland Commissioner Minister Reviews Problems of Oldest Colony and Says People Must Work Out Own Salvation

MANCHESTER, England—A vivacious policy of land settlement is the only solution for the present problems that beset Newfoundland, in the opinion of F. Lodge, who was formerly in charge of the department of public utilities in the Newfoundland commission of government. He retired in November, 1934.

Writing in the Manchester Guardian, Lodge reviews at length the problems which ultimately led to the adoption of government by commission. From his experiences as member of that commission he has come to the conclusion that government is no substitute for self-government and that the people must work out their own salvation.

"The principles of democracy," he says, "lead me to doubt the ultimate efficacy of any attempt by a largely alien government to impose even the most admirable reforms on a reluctant people."

Lodge declares there is a grave danger that commission government is forming a community which considers it has no responsibility of its own and that it is the duty of the British taxpayer not only to keep its poor from starvation, but to keep its comfortable classes in a permanent state of comfort.

"In the long life of a nation it may well be that the immediate alleviation of material conditions was too dearly bought," he says.

Referring to an experiment in land settlement begun in 1934 by a group of Newfoundlanders and subsequently taken over by the Commission, Lodge remarks:

"Every visitor to the settlement from outside Newfoundland who examined the project with any care came away enthusiastic. But in Newfoundland itself it was the object of more ridicule and more hostile criticism than any other act of general policy.

"The Newfoundlanders wanted immediate results when it ought to have been obvious that the true formation of an unemployed person from the slums of St. John's, to the shoulders of a rocky fishing settlement, into a self-supporting citizen, was a lengthy business.

"He wanted an immediate, spectacular enlargement on the scale of operations in spite of the obvious fact that the first need was the provision of an efficient administrative staff. And, quite inconsistently, he criticized the total gross expenditure without putting against it the material results achieved."

SERVED IN CANADA NOW 102 YEARS OLD

LONDON (CP)—At various times stationed in Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, Rev. Matthew Gold, believed to be England's oldest minister, has been celebrating his 102nd birthday. A fractured hip three years ago forced him to give up cycling but he still walks two miles each day at Exmoor home.

Son of an Exmoor farmer, he spent the first 30 years of his life in agriculture. He entered the ministry and after preaching a year in West Somerset villages, went to Canada and entered an Ontario college. He was ordained by the Canadian Baptist ministry, his first charges being at Lindsay, Ont., and Whitewater, Man. On retirement he returned to England.

HONK! HONK! DO YOU DRIVE? SOFT PEDAL

Wild Geese Not All of Jack Miner Variety

DURN NUISANCE

Sweep Thro' Country Startling Citizens out of Year's Growth

"Honk" according to the dictionary is the cry of the wild goose, and is frequently heard around Belleville. Almost any day and any hour, day and night, you will hear the cry of the wild geese driving a car, and honking to advise all concerned, and some not concerned, that he is completely out of control and running wild. Just watch any day at our main intersection light, if it happens to be working. Coming from Trenton for example, these drivers are either going straight east or north. In which case they should take the lane near the middle of the road, or they are going south and should be in the south traffic lane, if there was one. What actually happens is that the geese going south takes the centre and has to cut right in front of the line of traffic, and similarly many on the south are going north and have to stop the other traffic lane until they get in their proper place. A traffic officer is badly needed there and a little paint would be a great help too.

Big Mule's Foot.

When the light changes the fellow in front feels that nobody else matters but himself, and he very leisurely moves across, so leisurely that often the cars behind have to wait for the next change of light. The 1938 models should be brought out with a nice big mule's foot in front, so you can give these fellows a good kick in the tail light. Some day sooner or later it will be necessary to use West Dundas street and the south C.N.R. bridge to relieve the congestion, and plans should be made accordingly.

Council Nearly Did Something.

Belleville district is becoming quite notorious for car accidents. There are only two places in Ontario with a worse record, and Toronto is one of them, according to insurance circles. Angle parking on Front street is responsible for a great many minor accidents, much delay in delivery and bus service, and is locally stultifying to the tourist, the shopper and the fire brigade. The city council very nearly did something about it, and we feel sure that before another five years, they will actually pass a by-law. Whether they will ever have the courage to enforce it, we cannot at the moment say.

Health Care Stressed By Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt

NEW YORK — In a May Day message to New York City mothers in the current issue of Neighborhood Health, publication of the Department of Health, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt emphasizes the necessity of training mothers in child-health care, particularly in large cities.

"In the big cities like New York City," she writes, "it is vital that the mothers should guard their health and that they should know how to guard the health of their children. This is largely a question of education.

"The economical situation of the family, of course, is the basis on which is founded a standard of living. If a mother takes the troubles to educate herself she can do better however, whatever her financial situation."

In the same issue, Health Commissioner John L. Rice points out that a "Child Health Day" will be observed on Saturday. A feature of the day will be a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria under the auspices of the Child Welfare League of America.

FUELS TAUGHT SAFETY

Rochester, N.Y., (CP)—A 56 per cent. drop in traffic deaths among 10,000 school children within five years has proved the value of safe-driving training. About 150,000 youngsters and adults got safety instruction from the police department.

CURE CROSS-EYES BY RETRAINING

Dr. Vivian Reports to Atlantic City Convention on Results of Clinic Treatments

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—Dr. William C. Vivian, professor of optometry at the Pennsylvania State College of Optometry, Philadelphia, said that by retraining the eye nerves and muscles 70 per cent of the cases of cross-eyes can be corrected.

Addressing the convention of the New Jersey Optometric Association here, Dr. Vivian told of the efforts along this line being made at the school, where an average of 150 cross eye patients are being treated each week in the clinic.

Cross-eyes result from the nerves, muscles and retinas overdoing and exaggerating their work, he said. This condition may exist for years before the eyes become crossed but an accident such as a fall, or whooping cough, may act as a starter and the strong eye and the weak eye become out of line.

"The restraining progress involves keeping the strong eye covered throughout the day," Dr. Vivian said, "for anywhere from a month to two years, meanwhile making the poor eye do the work, training and developing it. It gains strength with practice, so that eventually the cover may be removed and the two eyes will work together."

The group elected Dr. Benjamin M. Wilson of Trenton, president; Dr. John W. Morey of Ridgewood, Dr. Walter Calchlager of Newark, and Dr. Walter H. Glaeser or Ridgewood, vice-president, and Dr. J. Howard Steele of Elizabeth, secretary.

Fasts for 50 Days

Still continuing his religious fast, despite the fact a physician warned him he faces death shortly, Jackson Whitlow, 45-year-old Stooping Oaks, Tenn., farmer, may have food forced down his throat if his neighbors have their way. Whitlow is shown entering his fiftieth day of fasting waiting for "a call from the Lord" before he will take food again. Mrs. Whitlow and close relatives have laid plans to hold the neighbors off should they attempt to make good their threat. The farmer has lost 97 pounds during his fast and is too weak to get out of bed.

London House and Occupant Marooned by Flood

When the flooding Thames River swept over its embankments near the Dundas street bridge in London, Ont., this house and its occupants were marooned by the torrent that rolled over backyard fences and into the basement and lower rooms of the structure. The owner was rescued with difficulty by boats manned by volunteer workers. A total of nearly 10,000 Londoners were forced from their dwellings by the raging waters and business and transportation in the Forest City was almost completely paralyzed.

London Family Finally Forced To Flee Inundated Home

Rapidly rising water at Chatham, Ont., 60 miles southwest of London, Ont., has caused more than 20,000 women and children, to evacuate their homes and seek high and safer ground. Danger that drinking water may become polluted arose when flood water began seeping into the Chatham waterworks plant; more than 50 workmen were quickly enlisted to help stem the flow of muddy water. The flood, which began in the London district has gradually moved in a southwestern direction, damaging such villages and towns as Thamesville and Glencoe and forcing hundreds of persons to flee from their homes. While flood water gradually receded at London, many persons were still homeless and nerve shaktn by their experiences during height of the flood. This family, though they had moved upstairs to escape the water, was finally forced to accept aid from passing boatmen.

CHARRED BONES BELIEVED AUBREY SEDORE'S

Sedore Not Seen For Some Weeks; Say Residents

WAS BELIEVED ABSENT

Robert Woodman, 23, Said to be Partner, Held on Vagrancy Charge

Robert Woodman, 23, arrested near Northbrook 50 miles north of here after discovery there yesterday of charred human remains, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Northbrook today on a vagrancy charge. Woodman was remanded in custody to Saturday.

Woodman's arrest followed discovery by two farmers, Joseph Reid and Frank Lloyd, of a pile of charred human bones, bits of cloth, a pocket knife and two coins, believed to be the cremated remains of Aubrey Sedore, 30, bachelor, who lived two miles north of Northbrook.

Sedore was reputedly thrifty and carried between $300 and $50 with him or kept it in his cabin at all times.

Though he had been missing for some time, relatives were not worried for they supposed he was working in the bush.

Man Missing Some Time.

A head of charred human bones, believed the cremated remains of Aubrey Sedore, and a pile of charred human bones, missing since March 13, was accidentally discovered by two neighbors yesterday hidden under a pile of evergreen brush near his home two miles east of Northbrook.

Another neighbor, Robert Woodman, was taken into custody by Provincial Police ten hours later on a nominal charge of vagrancy.

For some time after Sedore was last seen, little concern was felt because of his isolated life and habit of making solitary hunting trips into the bush for days at a time.

Fire in Bush Three Weeks Ago.

Discovery of the charred bones almost completely cremated, after three weeks after Frank Lloyd, a neighbor, saw smoke rising from the bush in the direction of Sedore's three room cabin. His two sons had gone over to investigate and found a fire smouldering there.

Lloyd did not worry more until yesterday when he mentioned the fire to another neighbor, who became concerned over the fire running through to his property.

Search Yesterday.

Consisting of 70 men and dogs, quite a hunt we found one edge of the fire from the pile of brush

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen Science Service Meteorologist "Mist Is Makes the harvest right soon."

Folklore is full of all kinds of proverbial relating to the weather, most of which are without foundation, and one above, however, has some truth in it. Mist is the forerunner of rain, it appears very well to early crops. But late crops require more than mist in July and August. Water is necessary to every sunflowering plants. Rich soil will avail nothing if there is no water to change the mineral components to feed the roots. A certain amount of water must pass through the tissues of plants for normal yields. This year, as for ladies, well distributed throughout the growing season if less than through, the crops will be less than normal.

MAYOR IS AUTHORIZED TO SIGN NEW PACT

HAWKESBURY, Ont., May 3.—(CP)—With one dissenting vote the Hawkesbury Town Council Saturday authorized Mayor John B. Woods to sign a 10-year power agreement with the Oatmeal Electric Light and Power Company.

The agreement calls for reduced rates to power users but a reduced assessment for taxes on company property. The new rates will be effective May 1, and the agreement will be put to a vote of the ratepayers. It must also be approved by The Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs and a special Act of the Ontario Legislature.

STRIKE LEADERS STILL AT LIBERTY

Neither in Hiding But Try-ing to Have Warrant Cancelled

Montreal, May 3.—(CP)—Two leaders in the Montreal streetcar operators strike, named in warrants issued Saturday, four days after Premier Maurice Duplessis said he had ordered their arrest.

While Provincial officials took no apparent action toward their arrest Strike Chairman Raoul Trepanier and Bernard Pinard, business agent of Division 134 International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union continued active campaigns for the blacklisted men.

An attempt to have his purported order minded by the Federal Department of Justice was underway, meanwhile, by the Montreal Trades and Labor Council. The council, whose President is Trepanier, has sent F. M. Draper, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, to seek this step from the Government.

As the outcome of this manoeuvre was awaited today, about 3,000 workers remained on strike. Another 1,500 already had gone back to their jobs, granted tentative concessions in the way of wages and improved conditions, pending a settlement.

Obstacle to the return of those still out was the refusal of about 40 employers to grant union recognition.

DUKE OF WINDSOR ON WAY TO TOURS

Travelling in France And Mrs. Simpson Who is Now Free

Salzburg, Austria, May 3 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, loaded down with Meiweiss, sailboats and smile, travelled toward France and Mrs. Wallis Simpson tonight on the Arlberg Express. He is due at Tours tomorrow.

In his arms when he boarded the express after a motor ride from St. Wolfgang were two packages for Mrs. Simpson, freed from her second marriage today by the London divorce court.

One of the packages was crammed with Edelweiss, white mountain flowers that grow in crags. The other was a dirndl, the Austrian name for the colorful costume worn by the peasant women.

Voluntary Exile at Salzburg.

Twenty-four weeks ago the Duke came here in a voluntary exile, stepped off the train in the early dawn and drove up and down the platform. He looked haggard and worried. He just had abdicated.

Today he fairly sprinted along the sunny platform, radiating happiness. He wore no hat and had a coat of deep tan.

Before he left he received a telegram from President Miklas of Austria, replying to the duke's message of thanks for Austrian hospitality during his stay.

$2,025,000 Provided for King George VI by Civil List

5,000 CHILDREN FROM BILBAO CITY TO BE EVACUATED

Protection of British Guns to be Given Evacuation Party

FRANCO OBJECTS

No Hostages Will Be In-cluded Among Refugees

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 3 (C.P. Cable)
Five thousand children will shortly sail from Bilbao under the shelter of British guns. They will be the first contingent in a great movement of Bilbao's civil population to France.

British and French merchant ships in the neighborhood will cooperate in executing the plan, it was learned today at the Spanish insurgents' base Bilbao. Coast guns of the British fleet will guard the merchantmen through territorial waters. On the high seas British warships will ensure their protection.

No hostages will be included among the refugees. The British consul at Bilbao will see to it that this evidence is shown.

Great Britain is determined to go through the evacuation scheme on purely humanitarian grounds, despite the protests of the non-intervention committee and the French Government, it was learned today. The British scheme to assist in the movement of civilians was conveyed to France, it was stated, as a matter of courtesy. Apparently there was no thought France would object.

Grounds for Objection

However, the insurgent general strongly objected. His main grounds for objecting were:

"It is inadmissible that the head of a Spanish province responsible for many crimes against law should request that warships of foreign powers should give collective action against the sovereignty of his country."

"Ships cannot be allowed to break the Bilbao blockade and to be used for other purposes than to send ships into territorial waters owing to the danger of mines."

"Safety of operations in the port cannot be guaranteed in the case of necessity of taking air action against traffic in the port and neighborhood."

"The Valencia government recently requested the Spanish Republican Red Cross to evacuate women and children from Bilbao, Santander and Gijon, but the secretary of the Virgen de la Cabera, in Jaen province, refused.

"The civil population need not be evacuated to a foreign port, as they could find refuge between Bilbao and Santander;

World Formal Safety Zone

"A safety zone could also be established by international decision if Bilbao guaranteed that the zone would not be used for military purposes."

Bilbao also said he would be willing to admit women and children to Nationalist territory, but rejected this as to political creed, excepting those guilty of crimes.

The evacuation scheme, Francois protest further complicated, is that Mussolini commanding in Biscay base to get rid of the civil population, which is largely anti-Fascist in wealth of Bilbao and other towns.

"It would be impossible to evacuate," he said in conclusion, "would mean interference in the future destruction of Bilbao."

Woman Flings Bottles at Bandit

Police said the bandit escaped $41 in cash under the bottle barrage.

"I didn't intend to shoot you," the bandit threatened when the woman fired at him from behind a back door. He brandished a revolver at Mrs. Lotridge, but ran when clerk and four customers, but Mrs. Lotridge followed him when he ran for the street.

Grabbing two soft drink bottles from the counter, she threw them at the retreating bandit, but they crashed through her plate glass window. The thug had obtained the cash by shoving the revolver into the face of Miss Anna Bonaccio, the clerk. In his haste to leave he dropped the hand through the glass in the door, but evidently was uninjured.

London, May 3.—(AP)—The machinery of the British divorce court passed Wallis Warfield Simpson's final decree to make her the Duchess of Windsor, who left the British throne for "the woman I love" prepared to leave St. Wolfgang, Austria for the French fourntain resort.

They are free to marry whenever they choose—even in the chapel of the Chateau de Candé where Mrs. Simpson has been staying— but probably not until after the coronation of King George VI in London ends days hence.

Developments Are Swift

These developments came swiftly today:

London, 10:30 a.m.—Presiding Judge Sir Boyd Merriman in the divorce court approved 76 final divorce cases, one of them "Simpson, W., vs. Simpson, E. A." and said: "I pronounce the decree absolute."

St. Wolfgang, Austria, noon—The Duke of Windsor, dressing for a mountain hike, answered the telephone, then announced through his adjutant: "The Duke is taking the 4 o'clock train at Salzburg—Destination Tours."

MISS F. WATT, 28, OF CAMPBELLFORD DROWNS IN CANAL

Russell Abernethey Has Miraculous Escape And Held For Manslaughter

INQUEST ORDERED

Car Went Out of Control South of Town And Plunged Into Canal

Cobourg, Ont., May 2 (CP)—Three men raided their lives in unconscious efforts to save Miss Florence Watt, 28, when the car in which she was riding plunged into 20 feet of water at the Trent Canal near Campbellford, 30 miles northeast of here Saturday, Russell Abernethey, 26, Campbellford, employer and driver of the motor car, was arrested on a manslaughter charge and remanded here until May 10 by Leslie Wilson, Justice of the Peace.

Coroner K. A. Stuart will conduct an inquest at 11 a.m. on the death of the young woman. An autopsy and inquest here Sunday revealed water, Dr. Bruce Longmore reported.

Walter Lowe, Buster Fraser and Fred Pettifer dived repeatedly in the cold water of the canal unsuccessfully from the overturned car but were prevented in their attempts by the cold water and swift current. Hydro workmen summoned by Fraser, a witness from the opposite shore, tried unsuccessfully to resuscitate the young woman after she was removed to her former home at Orangeville, where she is survived by parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Watts.

A former school teacher, Miss Watt has been employed at Campbellford since September as manlady by the Aber Knit Manufacturing Company, of which Abernethey is proprietor. They had been returning from a business trip to Campbellford when the fatality occurred.

Abernethey was taken to Cobourg by Sergeant Harry Thompson of the Provincial Police, Campbellford, and Constable Gordon Campbell, Campbellford. He appeared briefly before Leslie Wilson, Justice of the Peace, and was remanded to May 10, charged with manslaughter. He has retained Hon. G. N. Gordon to defend him.

ABSENT 2 WEEKS SAM BURNS' BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Believed to Have Been Visiting With Friends at Picton

NO INQUEST

Body Discovered in Water by Two Boys on Weddell's Farm

Trenton, May 3 (Special)—Believed to have wandered off the dock at Weddell's Slip on the west side of the Trent River in Trenton some two and one half weeks ago and accelerated by the condition of the body when found, Samuel Burns, age 78, and former Picton resident, was discovered floating face down in the river early last evening.

The body, believed to have been brought to the surface of the water by gases of decomposition after the nearby stay in the water was found by two youthful fishermen, James Richmond and Armour Wrightsman. Both noticed the dock some few minutes previous. Their attention was at once attracted to floating body which was fully clothed in overcoat and heavy apparel, a short distance from the pier.

Brought to the side of the dock with the aid of their flag poles, it was held floating until police of Trenton could be advised. The body of Mr. Burns was removed immediately to the McNairn funeral parlors.

No inquest will be held, it was stated today, following the viewing of the body by Dr. W. R. Crowe, Coroner of Trenton.

The aged victim, who had resided in Picton up until the death of his wife last January, had taken up residence in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Orval Ward, Trenton, since then. He had been actively connected to long walks and periodical visits to friends in Picton. His absence for over two weeks was not especially noticeable until a search was made by his daughter at his residence, when it was learned, that he had not been seen there for some time. Finding of the body was almost co-incident with this report. It was later identified by his daughter.

Mr. Burns leaves one daughter, Mrs. Ward of Trenton, and three sons, Herbert of Picton, Ralph of Peterborough and Royal of Rochester.

FIRE IN ALBERTA OUT OF CONTROL

All Available Men Fight Frantically to Save Breton

Edmonton, May 3 (CP)—Forest fires fanned by high winds raced out of control today along the Hoadley spur of the Canadian Pacific railway line from Edmonton to Breton, Breton, darkened by a dense cloud of smoke, was threatened as the fires were burning on all sides. All available men in the district saw mill workers, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Fire Rangers fought frantically to save Breton.

"The furiously overall available man is fighting fire it seems practically impossible to stop it against the high wind and the fires are steadily creeping near sawmills and valuable timber," the correspondent wired. "The whole country seems to be on fire."

Starting Sunday north 'of Innisfail, about 75 miles south of Edmonton, the fire spread toward Hoadspur, five miles south of Breton. Residents fled when the latter was threatened.

The fires range from Pigeon Lake, 15 miles south of Breton, to about ten miles north of Breton.

PLUNGE INTO SEA TO ESCAPE CAPTURE

St. Jean de Luz, France, May 3 (AP)—Jose Antonio Aguirre, head of insurgent army column today were reported trapped at Bermeo, on the Bay of Biscay coast about eight miles from Bilbao.

A Basque officer, reaching Bilbao, said they were leaping into the sea and attempting to swim to the eastern shore of Guernica inlet, two miles away.

The Basque reports said government troops had encircled Bermeo, a small but important port.

11 Year Old Princess Is Provided With $29,600 As the Heir Presumptive

Duke of Windsor Not Mentioned in Civil List

LABOR MEASURE LOST

Ancient Usages And Ceremonies Upheld by Commons and Work

London, May 3 (CP)—Financial provision of £410,000 (approximately $2,025,000) was recommended for King George VI in the report of the Special Civil List Committee presented in the House of Commons today.

The Duke of Windsor was not mentioned in the report but it was assumed the former Edward VIII would be provided for privately out of the Royal purse.

From out of the total provided by the Civil List, the committee recommended Queen Mary receive £70,000 annually as before, and Princess Elizabeth, 11-year-old heir presumptive, be provided £6,000 ($29,600). When the Princess comes of age, the committee recommended her stipend be increased to £15,000. The latter sum would be subject to revision in the event a male heir is born to their Majesties.

Princess Margaret Rose Monteagle of the committee further recommended £6,000 for Princess Margaret Rose when she reaches her majority, and an increase of from £25,000 to £35,000 for the Duke of Gloucester.

The Civil List sets forth the sum paid the King each year for the support of himself and the Royal family.

The committee defeated a Labor party amendment which would have urged greater simplicity for George VI and adopted another by Winston Churchill, which read:

"Whereas;

"The ancient usages and ceremonies existing upon the Crown have become, even more than in former times, a bulwark of the constitutional ship and a symbol of the unity of the several members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, we hereby affirm we do not desire any change

BESSBOROUGH TROPHY TO TORONTO MASQUERS

By GUY RHOADS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 3—(CP)—The Ottawa Drama League's little theatre drama dark today, its curtain down for two years on finals of the Dominion Drama Festival which will be held at Winnipeg next spring.

The festival finally came to an end early Sunday morning when Adjudicator Michael St. Denis, first Frenchman to judge the finals, read the last names on the list of prize winners and said: "Ah, yes, I am finished."

For the second year in succession the Bessborough prize went to performers of a Canadian writer's work and the speech from the throne for the author of the best Canadian-written play went to citizen of Ontario.

The Toronto Masquers, A department store employees' dramatic club, carried home the Bessborough Trophy, main festival award, with their presentation of John Coulter's "Family Portrait in the Quiet Style" Northern Ireland dialect comedy.

Mr. Coulter won the festival committee's $100, the prize that went last year to W. Eric Harris of Barrie, Ont.

The Masquers also took the Sir Ernest MacMillan Trophy for best performance of a Canadian-written play. Frank Rosslee, one of the players, the prize spread toward Prospur, five miles south of Breton. Residents fled when the latter was threatened.

The fires range from Pigeon Lake, 15 miles south of Breton, to about ten miles north of Breton.

BURLESQUE SHOWS MUST REMAIN CLOSED

New York, May 3 (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Glennon said today a jury would decide next week whether license commissioners exceeded their discretion in denying license renewals to the city's burlesque theatres.

Attorneys for three of the theatres appeared before Justice Glennon today and asked for a writ of mandamus ord...ng Moss to immediately issue licenses for the 1937-1938 season.

This request the justice denied. He said, however, he would issue an alternative writ under which counsel for proponents of burlesque would have an opportunity to be heard.

The court said arguments would be limited to the question of whether Moss exercised proper discretion in refusing the licenses which darkened the glittering Marquees of New York's burlesque theatres Saturday. Pending the hearing, the court said burlesque theatres must remain closed.

Sees Printed Word, Radio as Partners

Columbus O., May 3 (AP)—Gladstones Murray, General Manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., pleaded today on a program broadcast for "working partnership in understanding between radio and the printed word.

Murray was one of the speakers at today's program of the eighth annual Institute of Education by radio.

"Radio has its limitations," Murray asserted, "and in one sense its message is even more evanescent than that of the printed periodical. It provides the initial fascination, but it is doubtful if it can complete the job unaided.

"The whole of the serious side of broadcasting must be thought out, and planned as it should be, requires the continuous support of the printed word," he continued.

Radio has a prominent part to play in the field of education, Murray said. "The time is not far distant when not only either of general or technical education, will be complete without the inclusion of radio talks and broadcasts.

Perpetual radio listening led to inactivity, he continued. "There is probably no much broadcasting, as there is good circumstantial evidence. It probably would be better to reduce the amount now being distributed and increase its quality. A little more silence would add materially to the comfort of life.

8 WAYWARD DOGS DESTROYED IN POUND

Eight wayward canines, that had been taken into the custody of the city pound of a recent date were destroyed over the week end, Chief Thorne announced this morning. In the custody of the dog pound, however, is a Boston bull terrier pup that was wearing a leather collar when found by the dog catcher. This canine will be held for 48 hours and is a valuable dog, Mr. Thorne stated today.

ST. JULIEN CHAPTER TAG DAY NETS $190

Topping the receipts of a similar affair held a year ago by a considerable margin, over one hundred and ninety dollars swelled the coffers of the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. on Saturday evening following the selling of tags on the city streets. Officials of the chapter voice their appreciation of the generous response of the fraternal public to this worthy cause.

BEACHES ASSOCIATION MEETS TUESDAY

The Bay of Quinte Beaches Association will hold a regular meeting on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the T.M.C.A. One of the matters before the committee will be the elimination of inactive members from the association. It was stated today, Alderman B. F. Jennings has been named chairman of the landscape committee.

LITTLE FREIGHT MOVING BY WATER

Regular shipments to the east by water on the Glen Allan from the local port will not be commenced until about May 15th, according to latest advice received from Manager Jos. Waddell.

Heavy shipping from the port of Belleville has not been so far as has been indicated by transport companies with coal and bulk freight awaiting the lake opening of incoming freight.

QUINTE BRANCH W.M.S. ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

At the biennial meeting of the Bay of Quinte branch of the W.M.S. held in Armoire on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. R. J. Cockrill of Trenton was named treasurer of the branch; Mrs. H. B. Hendershot of Tweedsburg, was named head of the Periodical Committee, and Mrs. Percy McMullin, Stirling, was named Press Secretary. Mrs. Frank Dafoe, Madoc, was appointed head of the Temperance Committee.

Mrs. G. O. Miller of Kingston, will head the branch as president for the coming year.

GRAIN WINTERED WELL

"Wheat came through the winter unusually well, and the prospect this spring and at the present time is in splendid condition," it was reported today by Wm. Michael, Dominion Seed Inspector of the local office, following a check-up survey of the area.

"According to our estimates, only about fifteen per cent. of the crop has been destroyed, which is below that of an average winter."

Pastures are also declared to be in splendid condition at this season with a thick and luxuriant growth indicated.

Oats and mixed grains will be sown in large acreage throughout the section this year, according to local seedsmen.

METEORS' PATHS CROSS

Following a brilliant, comet-like meteor which streaked across the northern skies on Thursday night, leaving a trail of light in its wake, hanging in its wake from east to west, a second smaller meteor which cut a zig-zag path across the sky was observed at 10.48, last evening. Both meteors were reported visible over the entire path through the skies.

SITE OF EXERCISES NOT YET CHOSEN

Members of the city's special Coronation committee are expected to settle finally the pressing question of whether Belleville's Coronation Day exercises are to be held in the open at either the campus of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute or at the Agricultural Grounds, or whether the Belleville Sports Arena as originally planned at the regular meeting being held on Tuesday evening. As no final word has been received by the committee regarding a decision of the use of the local 240th Battery for which permission has been sought from the Department of National Defence it was reported.

FARMERS PROTEST DUMPING OF RUBBISH

City residents are filling rural roadways with unwanted rubbish and attic cast-offs, littering sidewalks and country lanes with piles of unwanted junk according to the latest complaint of rural residents who declare the nuisance to be spreading.

On the Marshall road, just east of the Institute Lane on Saturday, one Belleville resident was observed coming to dumping from rear of his sedan automobile a considerable quantity of cloth which included worn boots and shoes, the newspaper bundles, old mattress, worn clothing and a pail of ashes.

HIGH PRICES PAID FOR LIVESTOCK AT AUCTION SALE

Consistently higher prices are being realized for stock and equipment at sundry auction sales held throughout this section lately. At an auction sale on the farm of Thomas Allingham, near Crowbridge on Saturday, a team of horses sold at $300, a two year old colt brought $100 and cows sold from $21 to $37 each. A brood sow brought $30. The net sale realized the owner nearly $1,000.

SAILBOATS OUT

While sails were spread on the Bay of Quinte yesterday as the first of the season's navigators took advantage of the summer weather and light breeze, to enjoy brief pleasure trips. Motorboats also sent their popping echoes across the water, filled with early season fishermen.

Temperatury rose gradually on Sunday under the influence of a bright sun and warming winds, until the highest warmest mark of the season registered at the city pump house. Recordings taken shortly after noon showed temperatures of 76 degress in 12 shade.

ANNUAL MOVING DAY PROVES BIG TASK

Trucks and cars, burdened and weighted with bows chairs and tables, mattresses and household effects are rumbling through the streets of the city and roads of the country, setting perhaps a new record this year for numbers engaged in their annual moving day exercises.

Dozens of families in the city have found new quarters during the past week or so, it is estimated by local moving concerns, busy from daylight to dark on the work of packing loading and unloading from one house to another. Added to these are the number of arrivals in the city taking up residence here from middle points.

There was no rest for weary movers over the week end, for both trucking concerns and families worked far into the night, Saturday, devoting Sunday for the major part to the task of tacking down carpets and hanging curtains and drapes.

Hydro employees of the water works department, in the telephone maintenance men of the local utilities companies have shared in the rush connected with the annual May Day migration of rented residences changing of telephone services in one home and restoring them to another have been numerous and heavy, although it was not scheduled as yet whether this year will be a record year for the number of movers.

MOHAWK CHILDREN TO HOLD FIELD DAY ON KING'S CORONATION

School children of the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve will observe May 12, coronation day, as a field day at which suitable coronation festive services will also be held. Small grants are being given the various schools by the Department in order to provide suitable decorations and make possible the holding of various athletic events, it was reported.

NORTHERN LAKES ARE NOW FREE OF ICE

Roads through North, Hastings have been opened, and under favoring past week or so, and all conditions are not conducive to pleasurable traffic, according to reports of local residents who week-ended at northern lakes.

The camp trail into Weslemkoon was staked by Col. R. J. R. Graham to be rutted and soft, while roads in Bancroft district, the same condition is reported by local drivers of the large cities.

Col. Graham, who had his fishing camping on Hubert Jones over the week end returned with several "nice" trout taken from a stream at Weslemkoon Lake. The lake was reported free of ice.

"OLD IRON" THIEVES TAKE FARMER'S FENCE

The lure of "old iron" prices is still attracting the get-rich-quick gentry, according to a prominent Consecon farmer. Spoiling to the rear end of his farm yesterday, he discovered that persons unknown had dismantled part of his fence in any effort to get at a discarded hay-rake, the rake had been smashed in pieces, with apparently a return trip being anticipated, for several pieces of the smashed implement lay on the ground.

"I didn't want the rake," he lamented "but the bearers might have left a large stretch of wire fence which they took with them. Now it'll take heaps up I will have to put up another row of new metal barn I recently erected".

CAR STRIKES SIDE OF TRAIN

Driver Says He Did Not See Train Until Too Late

Trenton, May 3 (Special)—When his car crashed into the side of a slowly moving freight train at the Sidney Street crossing late Saturday night, Thomas Kevin, R. R. 5, Trenton, escaped with a shaking up, and was fortunate in escaping serious injury, the car which was carried by the train for some distance before the right of way, was considerably damaged. In a statement to Trenton police who investigated the incident, Irwin stated that he did not perceive the train until it was too late.

Thrown out of her buggy when the horse she was driving suddenly reared into a passing automobile driven by Allan Lewis of this town, Mrs. Adelaide Pall, seventy-four year-old resident of Trenton suffered severe lacerations of the arms, and head injuries on Saturday night.

The elderly woman was thrown heavily to the pavement when the horse made its sudden sideways swerve. Becoming frightened at the impact, the animal dashed away, but was stopped a short distance from the scene of the accident.

Dr. Farley was summoned and found the injured woman, who was taken to her home.

POLICE COURT

George Mills, Belleville, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court charged with the theft of a rocking chair, property of James Malmes, a neighbor.

"How do you plead to the charge?" asked Crown Attorney Dixon of the accused.

"I'm guilty I suppose, but Malmes owed me some money so I took the chair and intended keeping it until he paid me," admitted the prisoner, who denied entering the complainant in the case, however.

Restitution having been made, His Worship bound Mills over to keep the peace, no fine or costs being imposed. "As you can't take the law in your own hands and go around stealing other people's property," explained the Magistrate.

Murray Spencer, Prince Edward County farm lad, pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of the theft of a radiator cap. "Our witnesses are not available today, I'll have to ask for an enlargement until Friday," replied Chief Mills. The case was apprehended on Front Street Saturday night after having removed a radiator cap from a car, police stated today. Spencer holds two mistakes in the Belleville collection of cars.

Gerald Pope, Carrying Place, was fined ten dollars and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of one armed driving. He was given his one practice and should not be molested. There are too many accidents on our highways as it is," commented His Worship.

Four other minor infractions of the H.T.A. and two L.C.A. cases, constituted the court today.

POLICE BLOTTER

No serious crime was reported in Belleville over the week end, police activities being quiet and normal. A few infractions of highway traffic rules were reported, police apprehending a man, who gave his name as Hilarion Clouden, Montreal, and charging him with speeding. The officer claimed the motorist was proceeding at a speed of approximately 60 miles per hour, when seen on Front Street, early yesterday afternoon. A summons was issued.

A few motorists returned to their respectively owned automobiles to find them adorned with "ice so pretty yellow polish stickers, that informed them they had been charged with the violation of Belleville's one hour parking bylaw.

Thirteen transients were given a night's lodging over the week end, ten on Saturday night and the remainder last evening.

BOY ON BICYCLE HURT IN CRASH

Alan Cumming Removed to Hospital But No Charges Against Car Driver

When a bicycle on which he was riding collided with a motor car at the intersection of Everett and West Bridge St., late Saturday, Alan Cumming, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cumming, 13 Charlotte street, sustained a severely lacerated face and several painful bruises on the body. The lad was removed to the Belleville General Hospital where medical attendance was given by Dr. G. H. Stobie.

According to reports given the police Albert Washburn, Trent Road, was driving his motor car easterly on West Bridge Street and at the Everett Street, intersection made a left-hand turn to proceed north on the latter street. Young Cumming, accompanied by two other lads, was riding his bicycle on Bridge Street, and apparently failed to observe the automobile coming in the northward turn, the bicycle and the heavier motor car colliding at the corner of the intersection. The boy was hurled heavily to the pavement, while the driver of the motor car passed over the bicycle badly damaging the frame, but the lad was not being seriously today, Dr. Stobie reported. No charges were laid in the matter, police intimated after investigations.

Police Drag River For Missing Witness

Windsor, Ont., May 3 (CP) — Police today continued dragging the muddy bottom of the Detroit River for trace of Henry "Bud" Frail, missing key witness against three alleged "hijackers."

The 27-year-old Windsor man was last seen April 16 when he delivered a load of beer. Two hours later his abandoned car was found parked near the river.

For two weeks police have searched for Frail, who in the case against the three men, accused of stealing 24 cases of beer, has been twice subpoenaed.

Having distributed circulars checked friends and relatives and exhausted other possible sources of information police yesterday dragged the river for three hours.

Gloucester's Duties Additional

The model duties of the Duke of Gloucester be taken from the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster.

The report disclosed that Major C. R. Attlee, Deputy Leader in the Commons, had moved for an amendment, suggesting "greater simplicity in the duties of the Duke and that the court is destrabe to bring it into accord with modern conditions." The amendment was defeated.

Civil List Provides

Attlee's amendment referred to the tedious and irksome ceremonial" of the court which "does not tend to endear the burden of kingship be allowed to fall upon the child in connection with their high office the freedom which belongs to those of private station."

The committee adopted the provisions suggested by the king in a message to the commons several weeks ago. It is taken for granted that present recommendations will be passed by parliament.

The civil list does not mention any pension for the Duke of Windsor. It is assumed the former Edward VIII will be maintained privately out of the royal coffers.

No special provision was made to cover the possibility of Princess Elizabeth's marriage. The committee held parliament should make such provisions as it may seem proper at the time and in the light of circumstances then prevailing."

Stipend Called Adequate

The committee said it was satisfied the stipend made for the crown prince "is adequate for the maintenance of the dignity of the crown, but no more than adequate."

In case the king and queen should have a son, provision was made that annuities at the rate of £10,000 for each son be paid to trustees who will hold that sum until the son reaches his majority. When and if that son should marry, his grant would be increased £20,000.

The annual award for civil pensions was considered inadequate, so it was increased from £1,200 to £2,500.

Ann Sothern and Don Ameche in Laugh-Spiced Romance

Marooned by a blizzard in a mountain lodge, with only a stuffed moose as company and canned cave and crackers for food... that's the romantic predicament that faces Ann Sothern and Don Ameche in "Fifty Roads to Town", 20th Century-Fox laugh-spiced romance opening today (Tuesday) at the Belle Theatre.

Supporting these two vital, delightful and thrilling stars, Slim Summerville, Jane Darwell, John Qualen, Douglas Fowley, Arthur Aylesworth and Stepin Fetchit add humor and excitement to the season's most zestful escapade.

A riotous adventure of mistaken identities, "Fifty Roads to Town" starts off in high when Don Ameche, meeting a mysterious telephone call that someone is ready to shoot him on sight, excitedly leaves town in his car, roaring along the road to Canada; at the same time is Ann Sothern, and chasing both of them is a motor cycle cop. After adventure, Don and Ann arrive by different routes at a cabin in the Rockies where he makes her throw into the fire a legal document which he believes is a subpoena for him. The events which follow are crammed with fun, thrills and dangers.

"Weary Blocks is Missing"

Unfortunately portrayed by the star of "The Informer" an impudent Private Steel is blasting at the 20th Century-Fox production now showing as the companion attraction on the same program, presents a powerful drama of vengeful hate spiced by its own fury and punishing man's greatest love.

AT THE BELLE

The Belle Latest World News Flashes is announced for exhibition on the same program.

"Hands Across Sending" Departs

Romance, hilarity and music in human proportions is the keynote of "Waikiki Wedding", the gay comedy with Bing Crosby, Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Shirley Ross, which is coming to the Belle tonight for the last times. The romance is between Crosby and Miss Ross and, in the lighter vein, Burns and Miss Raye. The music is excellent.

Marmora and District

Marmora,— The regular card-party under the auspices of the ladies of the Sacred Heart Church, was held in the Separate School on Wednesday evening. The fancy dress and old-fashioned costume attractions of the evening drew a large crowd. Mrs. Cecilia Dunlay was prize-winner for having the best old-fashioned costume and Miss Theresa Crawford and P. J. Flynn were the best-dressed lady and gent. J. Clairmont and Mr. Joe Shannon were high scorers for the ladies and gents and Mrs. Eugene Brady and Mr. Herb Woods were winners in the bridge game. Refreshments were served before the dancing commenced.

Marmora High School Board met this week in the library with all members present except Mr. Albert Burridge. The principal business was the preparing of estimates and the 1937 requisition on the Village Council.

A new roof, new eavestroughing, painting etc., have to be provided for this year and the total requisition amounts to $7,250. However, when the cost of the Continuation School Government grant are deducted the High School rate should be less, a full year's rate, than last year, when the water and sanitary system were installed. The average rate per pupil for running the school is very much lower than the majority of the public schools in the county.

Born— In Belleville General Hospital on Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson (nee Vivian Woodhouse), a daughter.

Mr. Jim Wright is spending a few days in Kingston taking treatments at the Hotel Dieu. Mr. Wright injured while he was in active service.

Misdames E. C. Prentice and K. Armstrong and Miss M. Savage are spending a few days in Toronto this week.

Mrs. Thornton Mustard paid a short visit this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Oale. Her daughter, Miss Ruth Mustard of the Toronto Normal School has recently been appointed instructor in Art Penmanship Committee for courses in the Public School. He was engaged in this work in Belleville, during Miss Mustard's visit to Marmora.

Mr. Hugh Young has been appointed caretaker of Marmora Protestant Cemetery and during the next few months will devote much time and work to its upkeep.

Trinity Group will meet at St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a very successful bake-sale in the Orange Hall on Saturday afternoon. Beginning at three o'clock the ladies sold

SMOULDERING

We pulled the brush off and found the bone and the bones. The brush must have been cut and carried into the clearing.

The charred remains were put in a two-pound pail. An empty .22 pocket knife identified as belonging to Sedore was found.

Provincial police rounded to carry several hundred dollars with him at all times. Suggestions that he would leave on a hunting trip as originally supposed by neighbors were unwarranted clothes and a fryer of bones in the stove.

Reid Tells of Discovery

Reid gave graphic accounts of their finds, pointing out the location of the Sedore home.

"It was nearly three weeks ago," Lloyd related. "Dad I was working in my sugar bush north of Sedore's house. I went through the bush to the bush, in this direction and I pointed it out with my hand, when I noticed Ralph. The next day, my two boys went over to see what was burning and when they came back they told me they had found a fire smouldering near Aubrey Township line. I didn't do anything more until today, when I happened to meet Joe Reid and he told me what he found.

"I was curious about the fire," Reid said, "because I found it was a fire to no fence, which runs through near here. We went over, Ralph and I, and found a hunt-knife one edge of the fire under this pile of brush."

He pulled the brush off and found the fire and the bones. The brush must have been cut and carried in to this clearing," Reid declared.

Jack Knife in Cloth

Mrs. Beatty, mother of Sedore, was positively identified, according to Mr. Lloyd and Mr. Reid.

Identification was clear to us as soon as we found the bones," Mr. Lloyd declared. "Finding the knife in the ashes of the clothing."

Mr. Sedore had been away for a few days.

After viewing the spot, and identifying a jack knife found in a body of charred bones, which are believed to have been a pocket, Mrs. Beatty identified clothing found in the ashes and Clayton Benn, a resident of the district, walked the three miles to Northbrook where Provincial officials authorities were called.

Police officers set up around the entire collection of bones and other articles found in the fire for inspection by Dr. R. R. Franklin, medico-legal expert for O'Leary, besides the jack knife, several small squares of cloth, two small metal plugs, an eyelet from a shoe, and a steel similar to those used in the construction of overalls, were found in the ashes.

Says Some Bones Missing

Dr. J. Wilson, of Napanee, coroner for the district, took charge of the investigation. Dr. Wilson declared that several of the bodily charred and broken pieces of bone were undoubtedly those a pig's body. So well had the remains been destroyed that but a small pile of bones left following the fire filled no more than a two-quart paper pail. Majority of the bones discovered appeared to be from the skull, jaw, ribs, arm and leg of round bones and an eight-inch section believed to be from the thigh-bone were also unearthed.

Evidence of freshly-dug ground near the location of the find are being investigated.

Piece of Cloth Found

A piece of cloth about six inches square was found close by, everything else was burned beyond recognition. Provincial Police started their search for the investigation this morning. Under the supervision of Inspector Gardner and Sergeant Harry Thompson of Belleville, further investigations followed at sunrise today when one more bone and other smaller charred bones were unearthed in the ashes beneath the ashes. The fire had been kindled a few hundred yards from Sedore's house, which was located in a wooded glade.

Residents of Northbrook spoke highly of young Sedore, stating he was a quiet, thrifty person, who carried all of his money on his person. Sedore was known to go about with anywhere from three to five hundred dollars on his person," a friend declared today, and he knew the young man personally.

Inquest Soon To Be Examined

The charred bones found will be immediately taken to Toronto for examination by medico-legal experts while further 'extensive investigations will be conducted on by Provincial Police, who are still endeavouring to link together many baffling leads of the mystery.

Sedore and Woodman were known to be partners in a wood business, which has been cutting trees all spring in the vicinity of Northbrook. Woodman is said recently purchased an automobile, which police state he told them he had saved during the autumn for $18.00 but only took delivery recently.

Ralph Sedore, Northbrook village constable, notified the Provincial authorities when the fire was found. Chief Inspector Gardner, Sergeant Harry Thompson and Constables Fred Hutchinson and Raymond assisted in the investigation.

TO CONTINUE AS CHIEF

Toronto, May 3.—(CP)— Major-General Sir Eric Wentworth-Dyer, Ontario Provincial Police Commissioner, will continue his superintendent but by invitation of Premier Mitchell Hepburn will continue his duties indefinitely, it was announced today.

"I have asked General Williams to remain in the service of the government and he has signed," Premier Hepburn announced. "This arrangement will be confirmed immediately by order-in-council."

Nickel Declares 58c Dividend

New York, May 3 (CP)—Directors of International Nickel Company of Canada at itself monthly meeting today declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock for the second quarter. The dividend is payable June 30 to shareholders of record June 1. This continues the similar dividend paid for the first quarter.

Aircraft Engine Suit Adjourned

Los Angeles, May 3 (AP)—The $10,500 recovery suit of Darryl Zanuck against Greta Garbo, film star, was adjourned today until June 14 after lengthy arguments by attorneys in which Garbo, who was not present, was repeatedly referred to as "that woman."

Record Ocean Flight

Ireland, May 3 (AP)—Lieut. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, famous flier, set a new solo record for the Australia to England trip today, he landed at Baldonnel Aerodrome at 5.40 p.m. (12.40 p.m. EST) taking six days, 10 hours and 5 minutes for the flight. The old record was set by C. L. James of England, in 1934, at seven days, 19 hours and 50 minutes.

Pirates and Tigers Head Respective Loops After a Weekend of Heavy Firing

Experts Telling Fans Not to Sell Either Team Short

HERMAN INJURED

Shorty Hogan Fatman of Senators Released to Indianapolis

Maybe Jack Doyle wasn't so far wrong at that.

As the Broadway "Commissioner" who will take any kind of a bet on the baseball races, Jack recently cut the odds on Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers to 2 to 1 each. As the first the folks couldn't see the reason for it, with such competition as the Cincinnati Reds and Cubs in one loop, and the Yankees in the other.

But Jack isn't taking many chances, where the family fortune is concerned, and the fact that the Bugs and the Bengals are in first place in their respective league today proves it.

Although the first two weeks of the season are about as conclusive as a one-run lead in the fifth, the tip is definitely out—don't sell the Bucs and Tigers short.

Bolstered by their best pitching staff in years, the odds on the Pirates have been dropped all the way from 8 to 1. With Joe Bowman recent acquisition from the Phillies, making his starting debut at a Pittsburgher, the Bucs rode into the National League lead yesterday on a 7-3 win over the Roughneck Reds from Cincinnati. St. Louis' Gas House Gang couldn't do a thing against Bill Lee's three-hit pitching and dropped out of first with a 4-1 and a terrific second-half offensive, which has only cut down the original lead assumed by the North Siders in the first half but not put them two goals in the clear to go on and win in handsome fashion.

For the first time in fifty-seven seasons "Tr-Coop" will rest in the baseball wilderness of Sandlotdom.

And while on that subject, the ultimate winners were scored at 75-1 to win at the beginning of the cup-ties. . . .

Baseball Writer, erstwhile Bad Boy of the Detroit Tigers is taking the Motor City fans by storm like sensational Cobb" as he is popularly known to the fans of Navin Field is smacking the apple in a manner, which is not only effective but spectacular.

Gehringer, who is one of the fastest baserunners on the hoof, started the month of the Tiger powers last season by hitting .400 and went to start the season at .400 again.

Tonight . . . This season he is using the beam and bat to the detriment of Eastern fans. . . .

Saturday the irrepressible "Gee-tan, who has no-club with a fourbit's foot prior to every game smacked out three for three, one of them a four-base clout, which pulled the pastime out of the fire for the home-towners. . . .

Britain's hopes to lift the American's Cup will out on the high seas today. . .T. O. M. Sopwith's challenger Endeavour II. vs. Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow in quest of it on which yachting enthusiast of England are pinning their hopes, left Saturday for New York . . . Manned by a professional crew and skippered by a yachtsman, who rates ace high in British racing circles, Endeavour II. should be right of the cup back with them. . . .It will be a race of salt to . . . ritzy and last minute trickery, they claim.

And now comes the inevitable aftermath. . . . Jack Doyle, Irish ex-pugilist, who knocked down plenty of stuffing out of Kingfish Levinsky a few days ago to record the second consecutive victory of Engineer Bill Farmer, Canada's foremost invaders, is now the recipient of apologies from various American sportswriters. . . . It seems he insinuated him following his miserable showing was Bloody Jack Dempsey who knocked him kicking in the first round of their fight. . . . Now apologies are in order. . . . The "I told you so's" are getting thick. . . .

However, the wiser ones are not taking the Irish songbird's victory too seriously. . . . They claim that a lemon voice and a left-hook jaw are all that is necessary to hook a fish like Levinsky. Many fighters who can hit a little, run a little, and also have stamina to go the route are considered world beaters. . . .

Meanwhile with the loud squawks of Eastern fans regarding the top price of $18.50 they paid to watch Bob Pastor go through his one hour bicycle race with Joe Louis, ringing in their ears, fight moguls are preparing to stage a benefit between Pastor and Bob Nestell, Pacific Coast K.O. sensation. . . The top price for this scrap will be $100, which will be handed over by the victor to charity and are accustomed so seeing six-day bike races. . . .

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver

The pent-up emotions of fifty-seven years were let loose on Saturday afternoon at Maple Leaf Park when the "oop-l'ountry lads" defeated the Preston North End team by 3 goals to 1 and thus gained a terrific second-half offensive, which has only cut down the original lead assumed by the North Enders in the first half but put them two goals in the clear to go on and win in handsome fashion. . . .

Cleo" Scher, erstwhile Bad Boy of the Detroit Tigers is taking the Motor City fans by storm like sensational Cobb" as he is popularly known to the fans of Navin Field is smacking the apple in a manner, which is not only effective but spectacular.

Gehringer, who is one of the fastest baserunners on the hoof, started the month of the Tiger powers last season by hitting .400 and went to start the season at .400 again.

Tonight . . . This season he is using the beam and bat to the detriment of Eastern fans. . . .

Saturday the irrepressible "Gee-tan, who has no-club with a four-bit's foot prior to every game smacked out three for three, one of them a four-base clout, which pulled the pastime out of the fire for the home-towners. . . .

Britain's hopes to lift the America's Cup will out on the high seas today. . .T. O. M. Sopwith's challenger Endeavour II. vs. Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow in quest of it on which yachting enthusiast of England are pinning their hopes, left Saturday for New York . . . Manned by a professional crew and skippered by a yachtsman, who rates ace high in British racing circles, Endeavour II. should be right of the cup back with them. . . .It will be a race of salt to . . . ritzy and last minute trickery, they claim.

And now comes the inevitable aftermath. . . . Jack Doyle, Irish ex-pugilist, who knocked down plenty of stuffing out of Kingfish Levinsky a few days ago to record the second consecutive victory of Engineer Bill Farmer, Canada's foremost invaders, is now the recipient of apologies from various American sportswriters. . . . It seems he insinuated him following his miserable showing was Bloody Jack Dempsey who knocked him kicking in the first round of their fight. . . . Now apologies are in order. . . . The "I told you so's" are getting thick. . . .

However, the wiser ones are not taking the Irish songbird's victory too seriously. . . . They claim that a lemon voice and a left-hook jaw are all that is necessary to hook a fish like Levinsky. Many fighters who can hit a little, run a little, and also have stamina to go the route are considered world beaters. . . .

Meanwhile with the loud squawks of Eastern fans regarding the top price of $18.50 they paid to watch Bob Pastor go through his one hour bicycle race with Joe Louis, ringing in their ears, fight moguls are preparing to stage a benefit between Pastor and Bob Nestell, Pacific Coast K.O. sensation. . . The top price for this scrap will be $100, which will be handed over by the victor to charity and are accustomed so seeing six-day bike races. . . .

Gymnastic Competition for Collegiates Won by Windsor

"Nick" Soble of Windsor First in Individual Competition

4 SCHOOLS COMPETE

The Windsor-Walkerville Technical School gymnastic group won the team competition in the Ontario Secondary Schools Dominion finals gymnastic tournament held in the Belleville Collegiate gymnasium on Saturday, concluding the championship from the Glebe C. I. of Ottawa, in the four point meet for schools were represented and completed by the following placement that was witnessed by a good and highly appreciative audience of Glebe and Collegiate of Ottawa and Windsor-Walkerville Technical Collegiate Institute of Windsor being the contesting teams.

The exhibitions on the mat, high bar, parallel bar and horse were undoubtedly the finest exhibition of gymnastics ever witnessed in this city and were featured by an exhibition of gymnastics by Charles Zwyzyck, Belleville gymnastic coach and physical instructor at the University of Toronto. The exhibitions of the visiting gymnasts were roundly applauded, but Mr. Zwyzyck's exhibition brought vociferous applause for his sterling and thrilling efforts, especially on the high bar.

Medals Presented

Mr. A. S. Mitchell, Glebe C. I. and Secretary of the C.S.S.A. presented the trophies and medals to the respective winners. The individual champion of the meet was the solo contestant from Patterson Collegiate who contested in every event to win the grand aggregate of points, M. "Nick" Soble, of Windsor with a points score of 19. Lesser H. Chaput, Leggar C. I., Ottawa was the runner-up. Chaput won the C.S.S.A. gymnastic team for 1937 in the C.S.S.A., Windsor-Walkerville Technical School was the champion of G. Williams, E. Parent, T. Szwarkowski and F. Hlinka, which was coached by Mr. R. Parent of Windsor. Some very fine exhibitions of gymnastics were seen in both the morning and afternoon meets.

Individual winners of the four events were—Mats—F. Hlinka, Windsor; W. Wright, Windsor; H. Chaput, Leggar C. I., Ottawa.

Friends Invitation

Mr. Zwyzyck, of Toronto, capably acted as judge while Mr. George Laughlin who invited the C.S.S.A. to hold its annual final gymnastic exhibition at the Belleville Collegiate Institute personally welcomed and congratulated the officers of the C.S.S.A. and the contesting schools. Mr. Laughlin announced something new in Belleville and district will be highly appreciated. Laughlin also invited the C.S.S.A. to hold its annual hockey championships at the Belleville Arena next spring. The C.S.S.A. extended their thanks to the athletic instructor of the B.C.I. for his efforts and attention in making the 1937 C.S.S.A. Dominion gymnastic meet the success it enjoyed.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, May 3 — (AP) — Casey Stengel still roots for the Dodgers. . . . And why not, at $15,000 for a summer's yelling? . . . Attention, Washington: Reports list Johnny Murphy, Jake Powell and Sunny Hadley as Yankee trading material.

Sling Sing will increase its "major sports" curriculum to four next winter, adding hockey to football, baseball and basketball. . . .

After Pompoon's flop in the Wood Memorial Saturday, you'd naturally expect his Derby odds to soar. . . . Well, they did. . . . He's 10 to 1 now. . . .Giant batting slump ended the day Al Schumi served 'em up in hitting practice. . . . Al hopes the Brats will remember this is they go into the World's Series.

Time marches on and so does Tommy Henrich . . . Saturday Yankee announcer Tommy Goldsmith in a New York newspaper that he was getting a real thrill out of working with the Yankees. . . .Later the same afternoon he was across the Hudson pinch-hitting for Newark Bears (who are not in the American League) . . . Tommy was taking batting practice with the Yankees, when he learned he had been optioned to Newark. . . . Business Manager Ray Kennedy called him through the Holland Tube in time to get into the game with Buffalo Bisons.

The Bruins collected 24 hits, Franklin Richols gave the Leafs sucket, got five safeties, including a double, and scored six times while Buddy Rosar, catcher, got two doubles, a home run, and drove home four tallies. And the latest Newark acquisition, Tommy Henrich, hit a double, triple and single.

Chiefs Now Third

In the midst of this cannonading Al Nichols gave the Leafs sucket, got five safeties, including a double, and scored six times while Buddy Rosar, catcher, got two doubles, a home run, and drove home four tallies. And the latest Newark acquisition, Tommy Henrich, hit a double, triple and single.

Chiefs Now Third

Earl Cook of the Chiefs pitched three-hit ball in the second after Jack Bruner and Jack Kane each drove the winning run in the eighth, inning of the opener with a local fly.

Jersey Glanis, held fifth place, held a game behind Buffalo Bisons after splitting a double header with Newark Bears before a crowd of approximately 25,000 at the new Jersey City stadium. The little Glanis took the opener, 6-3, after Buffalo had won the first 8-7.

TORONTO LEAFS STILL HEADING INTERNATIONAL

Walloped by Bears in First Game 23-1 But Come Back in Second

CHIEFS NOW THIRD

Baltimore Orioles Have Still to Win Their First Game

Like kids decked out in pop's Sunday best, Newark Bears of the International Baseball League are pushing their c'rcus pages, the American League New York Yankees into the baseball background.

The Yanks, long noted for a terrific attack, have been winning by low scores, while the Bears, youthful team larded with some steady veterans, have been batting away at enemy pitchers with a high degree of success.

Latest reports of Colonel Jake Ruppert's precocious youngsters show the Bears have thoroughly mastered old Pop Yank's favorite trick — bowling down the opposition with a barrage of base hits. The Bears walloped the Toronto Maple Leafs 23-1 Sunday in first game of a doubleheader at Newark Bears' baseball park, the most one-sided contest in the city's history, its mayor's worth even though the Bears dropped the second contest, 3-2 and failing to oust Toronto from the league lead.

GEORGE CLARK

The Scottish wrestling sensation, who will join William Regal in the main bout of Tuesday night's card at the pelleville Arena. Clark is rated as one of the leading four ranking wrestlers in the world today and is noted for his scientific method. Henri Piers, Holland, and Charlie Strack, Boston, who wrestled to a draw in their previous meeting, will continue their hostilities in the semi-final bout here.

Already over 40 lacrosse sticks have been purchased by the school boys of the city and an additional three dozen is expected to be distributed around the school next week, so says Bill Fry, local lacrosse enthusiast. "And remember each school boy is paying 75c out of his own pocket to buy these sticks" cried out Bill. We wonder would the coming generation of football players assume the same initiative.

Some time this week George Laughlin physical director at the B.C.I. & Y.S. and who is keenly interested in introducing lacrosse into the public schools says he wants to make a personal tour of each public school and interview the scholars and principals regarding the possibilities of a public schools lacrosse league. "The only way you can interest the boys in lacrosse is through the schools and with boys under the age of 16 years. Three is no use of trying to teach a person over 18 the rudiments of lacrosse, that person is too old and set in his manners to acquire the art of handling a lacrosse stick," informed Mr. Laughlin.

If the gutted-stick mentors continue their inroads it looks as though it will only be a few years before lacrosse will replace what is left of baseball, boxing and football after baseball in our public schools, the local baseball mentors looked on the public schools as a day we find the lacrosse executive with the proper system, they're going into the schools, contacting the men-aged players, putting lacrosse sticks in their hands and before we once had a line school baseball league with a dozen teams playing being shown will have lacrosse in a very few years. Then the days of the lacrosse-minded of the city for their foresight, but what's there to be said of those who the bands baseball was left during the years of depression.

If the school kids will dig down for a "frog skin" to play lacrosse it was thought College Grey Bruce have done the same thing for baseball had the opportunity been presented. Chas. Marshall, Physical Education, our schools, was neglected. Now along comes the lacrosse mentors and really show what can be done if only a little effort is put forward. . . .

Tuesday night's main bout at the arena holds certain big significance for both wrestlers. Clark is out to regain his Canadian heavyweight title now held by Ward McCready, who just returned from "down under." Of course defeat for Katan at the hands of Clark would not help the Winnipeg brainer's march to that height, while on the other hand Clark has covetous eyes on the Scottish Empire wrestling title now held by Danno O'Mahoney. In this rank there are "Crusher" Clark of Scotland, McCready of Canada and possibly Katan, who can whip McCready and Clark. There is no question about Katan providing Katan can down Clark. Promoter Jack Corcoran might possibly stack the deck against Mc-Cready-Katan return bout in Belleville at a later date. Judging from the applications for reserved seats Belleville is certainly not beginning to appreciate the fact, that Belleville is at last getting the topnotchers of wrestling to perform. The fact also proves that Belleville is willing to support sport when good competition is offered.

We never had the opportunity of witnessing a display of gymnastics, outside of Belleville before, but after taking in the exhibition of gymnastics performed at the Belleville Collegiate during the Ontario Dominion Canadian Secondary Schools intercollegiate gymnastic tournament off our chests by the athletic director, Mr. Laughlin, who was responsible for bringing such an undertaking to our city. The poise, dexterity and grace of those athletes on the mat, bar or horse was the picture of perfection. Especially the exhibition on the high bar by Charlie Chaput, Canadian champion gymnastic exponent and physical director at the University of Toronto, was the acme of perfection on the flying trapeze looking like a girl with a hobbie skirt trying to be serious. . . .

Owing loo illness two schools were not represented, but their absence in no way detracted from the sterling performance of those school-boy gymnasts. Glebe C. I., Walkerville Tec unnested Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa and C.S.S.A. Utilists while to Nick Soble, one of the individual honors. Nick was the sole competitor from Windsor Tec in Windsor the remaining trio of Red and White Clad Boys were from the mumps. The lad entered in all events and finished with a percentage of 90. H. Chapel, Leggar C. I., Ottawa, was the only dual winner; when he took the parallel and high bar events with ease and grace. It was quite a feature in Coach Laughlin's group to have succeeded in bringing such an outstanding event to Belleville. . . .

Some new faces loomed on the horizon in the big league baseball circles over the week end, Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers moved up ahead of Rogers's Hillies, despite the fact Lou Gehrig clouted his initial four-bagger against the Red Sox yesterday and the Yankees won, out only one game, but the league's leadership. Over in the National League the Pittsburg Pirates are the new league leaders, replacing Dizzy Dean and his Cardinals as top. Dapper Dan Harrison's Toronto Leafs suffered two setbacks over the week end, but whipped Newark once to retain first place in the 'Int.' loop. The Hornetsplus must split with the Bears in their remaining two games to come home and open on Thursday as league leaders, however. . . .

Red Cook, who was at least by the Leafs and immediately grabbed off by the Montreal Royals, is declared the find of the Training Camp. The Lemonville speedball artist doubtless needed a change in scenery. . . .

Do you remember when Lionel Conacher overcame a bad dose of the "mumps" to win the National wrestling bout at Toronto five years ago tonight, defeated as Canada's greatest all-round athlete, when he was in good health? In another rugby tricks to pin Carl Poschenlil in two straight falls. However, concentrating on major-league baseball which he is now considering retirement. . . .

BRITISH EMPIRE TITLE AT STAKE

Winner of Clark-Katan Bout May Meet O'Mahoney or Casey

When George "Dandee" Clark meets John Katan at the wrestling show in the Belleville arena Tuesday night one or the other will be put in line for the chance for the British Empire title, which several leading heavyweights are seeking. In addition Champion Danno O'Mahoney, McCready is eligible for the crown as is Dan O'Mahoney and Steve Casey.

Katan won the Canadian championship recently and is doing so put him out of consideration for the time being, he has to get back to him later. However, there is little to choose between them and Clark from present indications that if Katan can beat Clark tomorrow he will be remained with McCready for the Dominion crown.

There will be two overseas title holders in the ring tomorrow night, of course, holds the Scottish title while Henry Piers, champion of Holland, will be in the semi-final against Charlie Strack, the big rough house trouper from Boston.

Ted Key, speedy Californian will round off the elevenpair to get past Joe Maynard in the opener, Maynard who, by the way, is a former professional boxer, likes to rough it. . . .

News of the World as Told in Pictures

LONDON TRAFFIC DISRUPTED AS 23,000 BUS MEN STRIKE

Fear that London's transportation system will be disrupted during the coronation season, when the Empire capital will find its customary transport problem tripled by influx of world visitors, developed when more than 25,000 bus drivers and conductors went on strike to enforce demands for a cut in their eight-hour day and a slowing up of bus schedules. Attempts to mediate the dispute or to secure a postponement failed when Ernest Bevin (lifter), head of the Transport Workers' Union rejected the labor ministry's appeal for a truce. About 5,000,000 Londoners will be affected, with subways and tram lines forced to carry the brunt of added traffic. A solution to the tie-up is hoped for before May 12.

DONATES ART TREASURES

Jules S. Bache, banker, who donated his world-famous $20,000,000 collection of classic art to the public. Announcement of the gift was made shortly after Mr. Bache sailed for Europe. The great collection of gems from brushes of Italian, Flemish, French, Dutch, German and English masters, will be housed at Mr. Bache's home 814 Fifth Avenue, New York, permanently endowed as a museum by Mr. Bache.

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE TO EVACUATE CIVILIANS FROM WAR-TORN BILBAO

A view of the harbor and city of Great Britain and France are taking steps to evacuate an estimated Bilbao, Spain, now withstanding a withering attack by insurgent 300,000 persons from the war-torn forces. According to latest reports, city. Evacuation of the refugees will hundreds of civilians have been especially be accomplished by British killed by insurgent shells, and both merchant vessels now stationed in the harbor and which will be protected by Spanish loyalist ships to high seas. General Francisco Franco, however, has advised the British government he would not promise to respect foreign ships in Spanish waters that were taking part in the evacuation.

LOAD U. S. FIGHTING AEROPLANE WITH BOMBS WEIGHING HALF TON

At the army air base, March Field, near Riverside, Calif., the United States' most modern fighting aeroplanes are being prepared for a mass demonstration of military craft, numbering some 300, to assemble on the Pacific coast for manoeuvres. Here a group of mechanics are seen rolling a huge 1,100 lb. bomb to a fighting plane for placing on the bomb rack.

LABOR HEAD CRITICAL OF QUEBEC PREMIER

P. M. Draper

Declaring that the Montreal labor groups will open the fight, P. M. Draper of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, warned that organized labor in Canada will resist the action of Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec who ordered Bernard Shane and Raoul Trepanier, union leaders active in the Montreal garment workers' strike, arrested and held without bail. "It is a new departure to order the arrest of labor representatives and hold them without bail," Mr. Draper was quoted.

Picnic and Fishing Parties Visit Their Favorite Haunts Throughout the Country

Brilliant sunshine streaming down from a cloudless sky baited the city in temperatures reminiscent of the good old summer time yesterday, and furnished a warm spring setting for activities which climaxed by far any indulged in as yet by a winter-weary populace.

With the thermometer hovering around the seemly fire mark shortly after noon yesterday, residents of the city, at least those who had not left in the early morning hours to entice the speckled trout from the coolness of shady brooks, sought the highways and byways, of surrounding rural districts in a cavalcade of motor and other modes of transportation, which crowded the travel lanes almost to capacity. The main highways were the scenes of steady streams of vehicular traffic, as Mr. and Mrs. John Public sought the coolness of Spring breezes and the leafy glades of rural retreats.

Izaak Waltons in the largest number of the season left early in the cool of the morning to seek the speckled beauties in their haunts in the northern part of the county. "Nearly every tree had a fisherman behind it" reported one fisherman who returned to the city late last night with fifteen trout in his creel. "They were biting splendidly and the most of the boys we saw came home with their quota."

The warm sunshine was responsible for the initial appearance of many picnic baskets. Campsites of the ground was overcome with blankets, and many summer picnic spots held a number of Sunday afternoon enthusiasts.

Bay Bridge Popular

The Bay of Quinte bridge was a popular spot. All day long, long lines of cars were parked on it with passengers enjoying the light breezes which swept in from the water. The water's edge was dotted with small boys and a number of oldsters armed with hook and line. One adventurous youth, in a pre-season spirit of adventure, doffed bathing suit, but the touch of cool water on an out-thrust big toe, caused the youth to re-consider his decision, and he retired to the safety of nearby bushes and the warmth of hastily donned clothes.

With the coming of dusk, the temperature did not lower to any appreciable degree. That the young men of today are no different to those of years ago was evidenced in the apparent turning of their fancies to things romantic last night. In the warmth of the evening, and the fact that some of the street lights failed to function, youth and maiden strolled along the main thoroughfares, and dimly lighted streets of the city, bright lights streamed along still crowded highways at a late hour. Pedestrians of all ages were on the streets at a late hour, as if reluctant to give up the Spring atmosphere for the comparative discomfort of heated apartments and houses.

Mayflower parties arrived in the city in late afternoon laden with bouquets of the sweet-scented blossoms, denoting the popularity of the glades which only a short time ago rang to the shouts of maple sugar enthusiasts.

SPRING SCENE

MARCH would be a dismal month indeed if man had no imagination. Fortunately, hope springs eternal, and each returning Spring sees new ideas, new aspirations brought once more to life.

"We'll do that in the Spring," is a familiar expression. Plans shelved during the Winter are dusted off. Now, the family talks about replacing the old car . . . buying new clothes . . . a new radio . . . dahlia bulbs . . . paint for the garage. A thousand things are needed . . . a thousand tasks must be done.

Here in the advertising pages of this paper is real Spring news. Articles you need, carefully selected and arranged, are paraded before your critical eyes. Read the advertisements thoughtfully . . . and so choose wisely. For advertisements, the maker's guide to good values, will be your guide to a happier, more cheerful Spring.

SERVICE STATION ATTENDANT CLAIMS HE WAS HELD UP

Brantford, Ont., May 3.—(CP)—Herbert Smyrl, attendant at the Thayer Service Station, Colborne street, told police today he had been held up and robbed of $32 belonging to the company. He was sitting in the office going over some sheets, Smyrl said, when a man entered a door behind him and told him to stand up. He did and the man searched him, taking the money from a pocket under a sweater and a rear pants pocket.

Greek Church is Picketted After Congregation Split

Court Order Disregarded And Easter Services Held

ACTION CONTEMPLATED

Oshawa, Ont., May 3 (CP)— A split in the congregation led to picketing of the Greek Catholic church here to prevent its regular parish priest from conducting its Easter Day services. A Toronto priest was brought in yesterday and performed the rites traditional to the eastern church calendar.

The internal dispute reached a previous crest six weeks ago when the church management committee charged the parish priest, Rev. Maxime Chawrink, with theft of vestments and other church property. Father Chawrink defended himself on the grounds he took the articles because his salary was unpaid. The case is still before magistrate's court after several hearings.

Saturday Father Chawrink obtained an injunction in county court to restrain certain members of the congregation from preventing his holding service. He also was granted an order to the court clerk to turn over the church keys, vestments and other property to him.

Nailed Order in Church

Saturday night the priest nailed the court order to the front door of the church, at Bilson Road and Bloor street, but members of the congregation pulled it down. He also said to have torn the order down. They threw a picket line, in which were a number of women, around the building.

Sunday when Father Chawrink tried to enter the church to prepare for services he found a band of women guarding the front gate. Police were called, but made no active attempt to crash the picket line.

An hour later Sam Sibalak, described as chairman of the opposing group, arrived with Father Leo Silkin of the Russian Catholic church (Glen Morris Street) Toronto. Under order, Father Silkin the Easter services were held.

A. W. S. Greer, solicitor for Father Chawrink, in a statement said action was contemplated against the pickets for contempt of the court order.

DEFIES ABERHART

Refusal to resign his cabinet post of Minister of Agriculture until he received more definite reasons why his resignation should be asked has been made to Premier William Aberhart of Alberta by Hon. W. N. Chant (above), Mr. Aberhart, in asking for the resignation, stated the department of agriculture needed more aggressiveness and higher efficiency, in a letter to the premier Mr. Chant said, "I would respectfully ask some more definite reason for your action as it is my opinion you are under misapprehension concerning the department."

Expert Thinks Cowbird Has Homing Instinct

Winnipeg, May 3—(CP)—Experiments to determine if cowbirds have homing pigeon instincts which might be utilized in wartime are being carried out by William Lyon, President of the Inland Banding Association, Waukegan, Ill., and Canadian bird banders here.

In preliminary experiments, Lyon said he proved fairly conclusively cowbirds were good homers. His theory is that in wartime, a cowbird with a message might pass through enemy territory unmolested while a pigeon would be shot on sight.

To further his experiments, Lyon shipped 26 banded cowbirds from Waukegon to Winnipeg. They were released here and a check will be made to determine if they return the 750 miles to Waukegon. Other types of cowbirds have been shipped to Regina and Edmonton for similar tests. It was reported both the Canadian and United States Governments concurred in the experiments.

APPROVE CONTRACT FOR LONGSHOREMEN

Montreal, May 3—(CP)—With the full approval of the parent body, a new contract between the shipping Federation of Canada and Local 375 of the International Longshoremen's Association will be signed today, giving exclusive control of Montreal's waterfront labor to the Local.

Actually, it will be only the signing of a contract with a name changed from National Independent Union of Longshoremen to Local 375 of the I.L.A. For the N.I.U.L. previously held the contract, but was as an I.L.A. unit, precipitating the trouble that led to a threatened coast-long boycott of Federation ships and open fighting on the Montreal docks.

PRAYER FOR THE KING'S REIGN

One of the most difficult of tasks is the imposed task, such as rests upon the brow of a poet laureate. Kipling who was never laureate of England though one of the greatest of modern literary figures and the coiner of some of the choicest lines in English such as appear in his "Recessional," wrote never for such an occasion as rests upon John Masefield who has himself written some of the finest poetry in modern days as well as great drama. Kipling coined the majestic rhythms of the words "far-flung battle line," "Dominion over palm and pine," and other memorable phrases in the "Recessional" written for the London Times.

Tennyson wrote some highly inspired poetry as laureate for the late Queen Victoria and the royal family and great events in modern English history and Masefield has written on the occasion of King George Fifth's jubilee and death and prepared a sonnet and prayer for the reign of King George Sixth. Masefiled's is very modern. It is more simple than "Recessional" and more direct, modern in terminology. Therefore the prayer:

"O God, the Ruler over earth and sea,
Grant us Thy guidance in the reign to be;
Grant that our King may make this ancient land
A realm of brothers, working mind and hand
To make the life of man a fairer thing:
God grant this living glory to the King."

The present day sense of human brotherhood inspires these verses. So does the great burden and anxiety of the world for a day when wars shall be no more... Masefield prays that the King and Queen may be inspired to give hope to the hopeless, to the workless, means to live. He also prays for grace to the rulers that they may "give to working minds a road to reach excelling things beyond their best." He points to "the joy of making human wars to cease," and prays that God may "make wise the counsels of the men who sway the British here, the Britains far away."

SCIENCE AND SOCIETY

In his address before the American Physical Society Mr. David Sarnoff acknowledged the debt of industry to the mathematical physicist. Like others, he found it easier to dwell on the more obvious benefits that have flowed from the work of Maxwell, Hertz and Marconi than to specify the kind of society which is best able to utilize the gifts of science and invention.

Democracy as we know it is a political conception of the eighteenth century—a period when there were no steam engines, no railways, no one-day international transports or electrical ways of communicating with one another over vast distances, no mass production, no mass entertainment in the form of broadcasting and movies. In Great Britain and in those countlies which hold most strongly to personal liberty and in the old freedom of speech and thought are attempting to preserve democracy and adapt it to a society which has been profoundly changed by these and other technical innovations.

A democracy can indicate what kind of government it wants by popular vote, but no popular vote can determine what will happen when television comes or atomic energy is harnessed. Obviously we need technical guidance in government as much as we need engineers to design a four-day liner. The first step, then, is to create more bodies like the National Advisory Board to tell us, not how democracy can be fitted to the machine, but what researches the scientists are conducting, what new discoveries and machines are in the offing, what social changes may be expected. We paid scarcely any attention to the two reports of the board. It is something, however, that it should have been appointed at all. For it is a sign that democracy is trying to discover how it should prepare itself for what Mr. Wells calls "the shape of things to come." Whatever these things may be, freedom of thought and expression must remain inviolate. If this is shackled, deomcracy and science must languish and die together. It is ominous for both that Fascists and Communists should deny the right of the scientist to formulate theories that may conflict with their social philosophies.

Like the rest of us, Mr. Sarnoff dislikes regimentation. Yet there is less personal liberty than there was in Washington's day; and there will be still less tomorrow and more complex inventions than dreamed of now will be introduced. The advance of technology is inevitably accompanied by regimentation in the sense of organization. Without it we cannot have millions of cheap identical automobiles, identical electric lamps drawing their energy from one central station, identical tins and packages of food in countless pantries, identical motion pictures in a thousand theatres. This is no reason for weeping. The losses are offset by gains in swifter transport and communication, better and cheaper clothes, more plentiful food, more time for leisure. Professor Dewey put it bravely when he said:

"It seems incredible that men who have brought the machine of applied physical discovery, invention and use to such a pitch of perfection will abdicate in the face of the infinitely greater human problem."—New York Times.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH

By Helen B. Anderson

A modest little country church, it stands beside the way,
A mecca for the rural folk on every Sobbath day;
Twas built oh! many years ago by zealous men and strong
Men who in spite of heavy odds made war against the wrong.

Year after year the Saints of old assembled at its door,
Year after year these ardent souls who
God's sure help implore;
And preaching from the Holy Word were men with grace endowed,
Who guided sinners in the way that Christ Himself had trod.

The builders of this little church have long since passed away
And strangers now (their numbers few) meet at its door today;
But oh! the folk on pleasure bent heed not the Master's call,
Know not the power that once prevailed within these Sacred walls.

Prevailed, I said, nay, still 'tis there — the spirit's power of old,
Still thrills the hearts of worshippers who dwell within its fold;
O little church! what joy and peace have filled ed my weary soul
When in sweet fellowship divine I felt my life made whole.

O city folk, look not in scorn upon this humble church,
Where unassuming country folk the Holy Scriptures search;
A Father's blessing there they seek, their sins humbly confess,
For with the two's and three's He meets, and that to own and bless.

SOME MESS?

The Beaumont, Texas, Enterprise's fishing column relays this from a Daisetta correspondent . . . "Daisetta correspondent set out his hook in the Trinity river afternoon and returned at 1 p.m., pulled up and thought he had snagged a log . . . His friend threw a light and cried that it was a bunch of snakes . . . They pulled some more and found that a large eel had hit the hook and put . . . Then a 40 pound yellow cat had taken the eel, . . . The eel slipped-through the catfish's gills, hanging outside . . . The correspondent reported it was a mess of fish . . . Can anybody match it?

GOOD OLD DAYS

To those who send up a long wail for "the good old days when working was a pleasure," this excerpt from "Employees'-Rules of a Chicago Department Store in the 1880's noted in the Rotarian Magazine is presented:

1. Store must be open from 6 A. M. to 9 P. M. the year round.

2. Store must be swept; counters, shelves and showcases dusted; lamps trimmed, filled, and chimneys cleaned; pens made; doors and windows opened; a pail of water and a bucket of coal brought in, before breakfast. (If there is time to do so, attend to customers who call.)

3. The store must not be opened on the Sabbath unless necessary and then only for a few minutes.

4. The employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, being shaved at the barber's, going to dances and other places of amusement, will assuredly give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty.

5. Each employee must pay not less than $5 per year to the church, and must attend Sunday school regularly.

6. Men employees are given one evening a week for courting, and two if they ga to a prayer meeting.

7. After fourteen hours in the store, the leisure hours should be spent for the most part in reading.

Even Birds Don't Like It

Sleepyheads who hold a grudge against the birds for being so happy at five o'clock in the morning may revise their ideas after reading a report of the United States Department of Agriculture on the habits of birds.

It appears that birds, like men, are not always the jolly early risers we have supposed them to be. They can get out of the wrong side of the bed, too. "In the case of the robin and the wood thrush," says the report, "the first signs of morning activity may be expressed by a few querulous notes." Others, like the sparrow and the red bird are worse. They wake up, emit a few plaintive notes—and then go back to sleep.

The blue jay seems to be among the few birds who live up to the popular conception. He wakes with a joyous song in his throat and proceeds to sing it.

This information, given presumably by a competent observer of avian temperament, should enable us to understand why we have long supposed enthusiasm of the lark is actually a protest against the necessity of taking his head from under his wing and scratching for a living. Also it explains the disgruntled air that has been passed on to us mostly by poets, who, at best, take a dim view of latitude when dealing with matters of fact. The United States Department of Agriculture, in pointing out that birds are fellow-sufferers with human in the matter of early risin, has done much toward bringing about a better understanding between them.—Winnipeg Tribune

Shops Act Dazes Britain

London — The newly enacted Shops Act which goes into effect May 1st, has English merchants and keepers waiting.

The "bins law," designed to regulate Sunday trading, is so complicated and contradictory that tradesmen and shopkeepers insist it will be impossible to enforce or obey.

All shops, street stands and pedlers have been divided into different categories with rules and regulations governing their particular line of merchandise. As some of them certain articles may be sold all day, on others certain articles may be sold up to a specific time which will be set by the local authorities, but not later than 10 A. M. in any event; at others another class of goods may be sold up to 2 P. M., and so the law goes on.

Paradox after paradox pops up in the most incongruous bit of legislation thought up by politicians in recent years.

Under the new law, for instance, a barber may take a shave repaired on the Sabbath but he cannot buy a new pair of laces for his shoes.

Incredible as it may seem, a man may buy an automobile accessory or a bicycle tire but a motorist may not buy a wheel from his baby's pram cannot buy a nut or bolt to repair it, without breaking the law.

A list of similar incongruities could be multiplied indefinitely. Letters and articles of protest are already appearing in the English papers. A typical one, from a correspondent writing anonymously in the Evening News, concluded with these words:

"Sunday trading is either good or bad. If good trading is good let it flourish; if it be wrong let it be killed. Let attempt to prohibit some parts and permit other parts has resulted in a hotch potch of futilities."

Century of Kindergarten

It was on April 21, 1782, that Friedrich Froebel was born at Oberweissbach, Germany, and celebrations are being held this week to commemorate the 100 anniversary of his idea of teaching very young children by what is called the kindergarten system.

Froebel opened his first kindergarten one hundred years ago at Blankenburg after he had pondered the subject for some twenty years. He held the idea that education begins with the consciousness of the child and that children could begin to learn by the play-system. He noted how children of four years and upwards amused themselves with building, lumps of clay and folded papers, crayons, plaited straw and that they generally would have a natural fondness for animals. Why not, he thought, give their play some direction so that they would have a purpose in doing things and teach them many lessons about the pets they played with and to be kind to them. That was the basis of his theory which, with a great understanding of child psychology, would, it has been improved upon by Dr. Montessori, the Italian educationist, and others. Dr. Montessori adding health-play.

Kindergarten teaching is still regarded by many pikers as an expensive fad, but educationists agree that children who have had the benefit of such a system before entering the regular grades are well ahead of those coming in contact with the educational system for the first time, some putting the advantage as high as two years. There is no attempt to "force" the education of a kindergarten child. If children feel drowsy and sleepy they are allowed to do so. There are no examinations or prizes. There is science ans just given direction, and when their thinking and reasoning faculties develop, they have the decided advantages over the others.

On Land and Sea

There must be of necessity a great deal of secrecy about the defence of the British Navy and Air Force, but a certain amount of information leaks out—probably just as much as the Government thinks it desirable that other countries should know.

There is for instance, a new submarine detector. Sixteen scientists are working in the Royal Navy Antisubmarine School at Portsmouth, in a specially guarded building, on a device which has already proved that it can detect submarines many miles away. It is not yet expected to make devious so that every ship in the Navy will have one, beginning with capital ships. By deploying the ships at different speeds and appearances, it is believed the Navy will be practically immune from submarine attack. The new invention does not reveal the exact position of the vibration of submarine propellers but can pick out even a "dead" submarine. That is, to say, a flotilla of subs is lying "doggo" on the bottom of the sea waiting for a favorable moment to attack. A remarkable instance of this is the fact that the machine recently located the German M3 which was sunk and sank in West Bay, Weymouth, in 1922. Although the location of all other warships of all kinds in the vicinity.

Then there is the Royal Air Force. News has been published from time to time about the new power and invulnerability of planes. Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary for air, revealed in the House of Commons the other day, that Britain took a great risk in ordering production of new types of flying machines from the drawings without waiting to build experimental planes and test them. But Britain won the gamble. The result is that Britain is two years ahead of almost any other country in the world. Moreover all other countries are said to be practically out of date with machines that could not cope with the British Air Force combat. This is particularly interesting in view of the recent visit to Britain by the German observers in Spain that the German and Italian planes are inferior to the British ones. The newest British machines render the Spanish planes obsolete. Within of two years ago. Sir Philip also revealed that two new types of guns are being made for the R.A.F. One of these has eight barrels and can fire 1,000 shells a minute. In a balloon, recruiting for the air arm is beyond expectation.

Perhaps these things have something to do with the stiffening of the British attitude toward Mussolini.

OTTAWA PARADE

Back Stage in the Dominion Capitol with

WILFRID EGGLESTON

There is something about a certain type of Scotsman that gets under Mr. Bennett's skin. In the last parliament 'Jock' Vallance was the victim. He is remembered by both of these men hail from central Saskatchewan. They have this in common, also, that they can take good care of themselves in a debate. It may explain why the opposition leader hits so hard when he is dealing with them. Or why the return punch will be powerful enough.

There in my scrap book several typical exchanges between Messrs. Bennett and McLean, and one of them is drawn from the very last day of the session:

Mr. McLean: I might tell the leader of the opposition that I am always welcome to ask any leaders my questions I want to ask about things I do not understand.

Mr. Bennett: Then they must be constantly employed.

Mr. McLean: I would remind the leader of the opposition that my leaders have never claimed to have a fatality of knowledge claimed by some gentlemen whom I know.

Mr. Bennett: Mr. Mackenzie said with some heat, in reply to another interjection.

Mr. Bennett: Mr. Mackenzie said: "No one instructs me in the Liberal party and I do not 'instruct' anyone else"—whereupon the opposition leader interposed, ironically "Not a hint."

x x x

One of the "hints" of these exchanges occurred during a debate on farm implement prices.

Mr. Bennett made some statement about the western provinces.

Mr. McLean: That is hardly correct.

Mr. Bennett: It is hardly correct.

Mr. McLean: It is not correct at all, Mr. Speaker, but I wanted to be polite. I knew I was out of order when I began to be polite.

Mr. Bennett: Then, if the hon. gentleman knew he was out of order there is no reason why he should depart from his usual custom and be polite.

x x x

Do you wonder at the suggestion made some time ago that if Mr. Bennett retires from the House of Commons some of the Conservative Liberals will feel a little easier at breaking the ice of parliamentary debate while the leader of the opposition is following their feeble efforts?

Flag-waving has long been a useful device in elections, but Christmas schemes backfire. Hon. H. H. Stevens relates an amusing account of an opponent in 1911 who issued "bills" with his own pelard.'

The former Minister of Trade and Commerce tells it in the following language:

"I was a candidate for Vancouver, and my chief opponent was the late Harry Stanfield K.C. one of the most popular men in Vancouver. It became known that I served with the Americans in the Boxer War in China, and my Liberal opponents concluded that I must have been an American citizen (which by the way I was not) and thought that it ill became a former American to wave the flag in Canada.

"So they arranged to trap me at a huge joint meeting at which about 8,000 people were present.

"I had spoken first, and Mr. Stanfield followed. He at once commenced his attack upon me. Finally he turned on me in a dramatic way and asked: Were you in the Philippines and China fighting with the American troops?

According to the pro-arranged script I was supposed to answer 'Yes'. Instead I rose to my feet and walked in the front of the platform amid a veritable tornado of objections. I turned to the Chairman and asked permission to answer the question in my own way.

The chairman, president of the local Trades and Labour Congress, gave me two minutes to answer.

I turned to the audience, and, after securing their attention for a moment, said 'Yes, I was.' There was an audible sigh of satisfaction from certain quarters as 'though to say: We've got him. Before they could break loose however, I added: "And wherever there is a scrap you will find a Britisher."

"At that, there was one of the wildest outbursts of cheering I have ever heard and the meeting broke up in the state of delight their dear friend, Harry Sinclair, had had only about five minutes of his 'medicine' and the rest of his time, as the audience never settled down again.

"The next day the President of the Liberal Association came to me and asked for fifty tickets to the closing meeting of my campaign in the Opera House. Fifty prominent Liberals were there the next night and at the following election, voted in support of me. My majority on that occasion was something over three thousand three hundred."

Did you know....that Senator Griesbach's father was the very first Mounie there ever was in the world? He was the first to enlist when the force was formed, his regimental number being One.....that Senator's Griesbach's sorrel mare is doing duty back to boyhood, and in order of development were: 1. Locomotive driver; 2. Pirate; 3. Soldier. He realised the third..... when he returned from the South African war in 1901 he established himself in offices in Edmonton to practice law. The records the only people who rapped on my door were trying to sell me something" he says of that period. I had to have an outlet for my energies, and the fact that I was a boss captain in the Fire Brigade did not seem to be sufficient. So I contacted upon a policy of attending any meeting that was called for any purpose whatever.

Senator Griesbach adds he proceeded to organize the Young Men's Conservative Association in Edmonton. I spoke on every possible occasion and in 1902 at the age of 25 induced two citizens, the late Colonel Bruce Powley and John I. Mills, now of Toronto, to sign my nomination paper for the election to the city council. I was at the top of the list of those who failed to be elected." From then onward, Senator Griesbach never looked back in his public career.... Senator Griesbach collects pewter and ancient swords, and all kinds of military reading. In 1914 he published a book on cavalry training: "Hints to Western Cavalrymen."

STUDIO WORKERS ASK CLOSED SHOP

Six Thousand Members Ordered Not to Report For Work

Hollywood, May 3.—(AP)— Six thousand studio workers were swept into the spreading fiber industry strife today as Guild Actors arranged a week's delay in joining the walkout.

The 6,000 members of 11 unions of the Federated Motion Picture crafts, were ordered not to report to work this morning, and 2,000 of them were assigned picket duty.

Basis of the dispute, which first flared into a strike last Friday night, is the Federated crafts demand on nine major companies for sole bargaining rights.

And for the first time in years, the United States' $2,000,000,000 motion picture industry faced a serious production stoppage.

Two thousand actors and actresses, some unknown, others famous, but all aligned with the Screen Actors Guild, attended a meeting last night to vote on strike questions.

Take the Federated crafts, the Guild is seeking a closed shop. It frankly, however, set a deadline which would throw 40,000 persons out of work and stop a weekly payroll of $1,500,000.

NOMINATED FOR MEDALS

Vancouver, May 3.—(CP)—Kenneth Mosdell, 17-year-old Vancouver policeman were 'swell guys' and policemen recommended for a Humane Society medal —after two traffic officers and an unidentified civilian rescued the 13-year-old boy and his dog from a narrow ledge in Stanley Park, Saturday.

Police said they would recommend the medal for Kenneth in recognition of his attempt to rescue his dog which had fallen down the ledge. It fest below the brink of a 100-foot cliff in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

A dog which had been frolicking with Kenneth Mosdell, 17, missed the ledge and dropped to its death on the rocks below.

The Chateau de Cande, France, nar Tours—Mrs. Simpson in seclusion, let her attorneys handle the decree and swelled the arrival of the former King Edward VIII. She will not wed him, her spokesman insisted, until after the coronation.

Only 30 seconds was required by the London court formally which finally freed Mrs. Simpson and Ernest Aldrich Simpson, her second husband, whom she married July 21, 1928. She obtained the divorce decree nisi at Ipswich last Oct. 27, charging infidelity.

A court clerk asked presiding Judge Sir Boyd Merriman to make absolute the 78 divorce cases on the docket, including Mrs. Simpson's. "Is there any intervention?" intoned the clerk, standing in the jammed courtroom.

After a moment's stillness, in which no dissenting voice was raised, Sir Boyd nodded his head to the clerk.

Decree Is Pronounced

"I pronounce the decree absolute," the judge said quietly.

It was Mrs. Simpson's second divorce. An earlier marriage to Lieut. Earl W. Spencer of the United States navy was dissolved in a Virginia divorce court in 1927.

Only a few spectators were in the court's public gallery for the final scene. None of the principals in the case was present in person.

Only eight women and two men witnessed the proceedings from the gallery.

Walter Frampton, who represented Mrs. Simpson in the original action at Ipswich, attended the court session accompanied by a representative of her solicitors.

Frampton rose and hurried from the courtroom as soon as the decree was made final.

It was believed he immediately telephoned the news to Mrs. Simpson at Tours, France.

Receives News in Garden

Monta, France, May 3.—(AP)—Wallis Simpson calmly received the news that her divorce had been made final as she strolled through the gardens of Chateau De Cande today.

Her spokesman, Herman L. Rogers, indicated that she had nothing to say about the action of the British divorce court which removed the last legal barrie' to her marriage to the Duke of Windsor.

Rogers, confirming reports from Vienna that the Duke had left his retreat at St. Wolfgang, Austria, indicated the former King would arrive some time tomorrow.

Rogers declined further comment but promised a statement "before the Duke arrives." He ruled out the chance of a wedding before late May.

Duke Leaves Retreat

St. Wolfgang, Austria, May-3—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor bade this Austrian beauty spot goodbye today and hastened toward France, where awaits Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Just before noon the telephone rang in the remodeled pension, Appesbach, where the former King Edward VIII has spent the last few weeks. The Duke was putting on his mountain climbing togs. He went to the telephone; learned Mrs. Simpson had been finally divorced from Ernest Aldrich Simpson in London.

Immediately he called the Chateau of Cande in France, and in a few minutes he was speaking to his fiancee.

At noon, the Duke announced he was leaving at once for Tours, near the Chateau. There was no disguising his elation.

Ex-King is Elated

Edward's crisp orders galvanized the house into action. Bags were piled into the Duke's car in time for him to catch the express from Salzburg. Then a second car loaded into the station wagon. A small truck took some of the luggage from St. Wolfgang.

Newspapermen and photographers were waiting. He was all smiles. "How shall I pose?" the Duke asked.

The photographers asked him to face the lake and he complied.

Chuckling, he joked with the men and told Louis Matshold, the Associated Press correspondent:

"I bet I could beat you up the mountain."

Later, Edward's adjutant told the photographers:

"You use only the pictures in which the Duke is smiling. This is a happy day."

14 BURLESQUE THEATRES CLOSED

New York Cracks Down on Strip-Tease Acts in Theatres

New York, May 3—(AP)—The case of "The City vs. Burlesque" went into the courts today with the 14 burlesque theatres of the metropolis dark and their owners gloomy.

Burlesque, still stunned by the city's action in closing its theatres for the first time in history, prepared to battle for its life.

Ready to defend the art of the strip-tease and the propriety of burlesque commodities, the show customers for the theatres said they would apply to the city supreme court today for a writ of mandamus.

The attorneys planned to ask a preliminary stay enjoin interference with the shows pending a final hearing, after which they hoped the court would compel commissioner of licenses, Paul Moss, to issue new licenses replacing those which expired at midnight Friday.

However, the city's intention to follow through on the fight was made known by Mayor La Guardia in a statement defending Moss' action by refusing to renew the burlesque licenses, and criticizing the theatre operators for the "risk and lawlessness" of their shows and their "brazen and arrogant attitude of defiance."

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—The body of Elsie H. White, Vice President of the White Cleanig Company, was found under the Parliament Street viaduct yesterday. His automobile was parked on the bridge. He had been in ill health for several months.

London, May 3 (CP-Havas)—A special showings of a film entitled "The Heroes of Windover" on a coach attached to certain of the London-Leeds-Edinburgh Express trains will be on view in celebration of the Coronation season. It was learned here today. The showings of the film are expected to start shortly.

Chicago, May 3 (CP)—Breaking out of a pen at the stockyards, a steer run wild over a large section of the South Side, twice swimming across the Chicago River while police and cowboys tried in vain to lasso it. When they finally caught up with the animal it fell suddenly on someone's front lawn, apparently tired of it all.

Milan, Italy, May 3 (AP) — Publisher Benito Mussolini's newspaper Popolo D'Italia here today by a system that would make most newspaper publishers green with envy.

When the Popolo D'Italia publishes an important editorial revealing a governmental line of policy or important official pronouncements, as it does frequently, the Fascist government orders all newspapers in Italy to print a three line announcement like this:

"The Popolo D'Italia today carries an important article on such and such a subject."

The other newspapers may not reproduce the article until the following day so that curious persons must buy Il Duce's newspaper.

Statesville, N.Y., May 3 (CP)— Statesville's "death oak" was dead last night, a victim of the lives of no more motorists.

Its last victims were Lawrence Tremor, 34, and Mrs. Mary Parker, 36. Before them several had died when their cars crashed into the automobiles struck the tree. Then car uprooted it.

St. Wolfgang, Austria, May 3 (AP)—Villagers of this mountain lake serenaded the Duke of Windsor with a brass band music fete.

A huge Swastika burned on the mountain side, illuminating the pageant, which lasted more than an hour. When the Duke asked the meaning of the Swastika, it was explained to him as a demonstration of pro-German sentiment.

Wilmington, N.C., May 3 (CP) — Capt. Thomas Bellamy, train conductor, excited a litter of kittens between two box cars. Mamma cat resourcefully moved them into a dark nest in Jones' garden after rescuing them from the egg.

Mamma duck looked the situation over, and decided to sit on the kittens. The neighborhood children gave up in disgust. The end will happen when mamma duck takes her little "ducklings" down to the water to swim.

FRANCO OPPOSES PLAN OF CIVILIAN EVACUATION

LONDON, May 3.—(CP-Havas) —Rebel Gen. Francisco Franco today informed Sir Robert Hodgson, British representative on the Non-Intervention Committee, that he was opposed to the plan to evacuate civilians from certain areas of Loyalist Bilbao.

Franco's reply to the Government's notification of the scheme to evacuate Bilbao was received at the Foreign Office today.

The note stated Franco appreciated the humanitarian reasons which dictated the British move but nevertheless disapproved.

It was not learned what the insurgent note would change the Non-Intervention Committee would say beyond the three-mile limit to the ships patrolling the Biscayan coast.

Grandstand Seat Prices For Coronation Take a Dip

Prices Almost Cut in Half Partly Due to Business Strike

CLOSED STATIONS

London, May 3—(AP)— Prices of top-flight coronation grandstand seats dipped downward today in strike-stricken London as the demand for luxury accommodations along the May 12 procession route fell off.

At the same time London felt the full impact of the business strike that has tied up the city's 8,000 buses since midnight Friday, threatening to smart traffic arrangements for the coronation only nine days hence.

Early morning crowds, returning to work after the weekend, jammed railway and choice car systems, seriously taxing those branches of the transportation system crippled by the walkout of 25,000 bumben demanding shorter hours.

The drop in coronation grandstand seat prices affected luxury accommodations principally, though some speculators believed there would be a last-minute rush buying.

Price Cut in Half

Some Orford Street flats, for which as much as $1,000 had been asked today were advertised today for half that amount.

Several large seating agencies which had charged $25 each for but still were holding a big number of better seats, priced from $100 to $200.

While speculators worried about the lessening demand for seats, Ministry of Labor officials worried about the strike. It showed no sign of it continues, would make even more difficult the handling of coronation throngs.

Public Enquiry Opened

Police, who were forced to close the Marble Arch and Oxford Circus railway station in Universal Sign-up until they were cleared of struggling crowds of holiday makers, watched apprehensively as growing streams of workers fought their way to crowded, over-taxed buses.

A public inquiry into the strike opened at the behest of the Labor Ministry.

The consensus was that the strikers, which has no power of distribution, could not report to the Minister of Transport until Thursday or Friday.

THEIR MAJESTIES IN LONDON

London, May 3.—(CP Cable)—The King and Queen returned to Buckingham Palace today after spending the week-end at Windsor. They were cheered by a great crowd assembled outside Buckingham listening to cramaphone records used in the Coronation broadcast placed along the Mall for next week's Coronation Broadcast.

ITALIAN BRIGADE IS "DECIMATED"

Claimed 18,000 German And Italian Troops With Insurgents

(Copyright, 1937, by The Havas News Agency)

Bilbao, Spain, May 3 (C.P.-Havas)—Defending forces "decimated" an Italian brigade northeast of Bilbao, it was claimed here today, as Basque officials charged that 18,000 German and Italian troops and 110 foreign planes are operating for the insurgents on the northern front.

Official radio reports said that Lieut. Col. Antonio Escobet had routed an Italian "Black Arrow" brigade in bitter fighting in the Bermeo sector, killing 2 fallas generals and 2,000 men, yesterday. Seven prisoners and four truckloads of war material were said to have fallen into the hands of the victors.

Two insurgent attacks in the Guernica and Durango sectors, further to the southeast, were reported crushed with heavy losses.

Basque officials said that 2,000 Germans and Italians were now fighting on the front under direction of their respective general staffs.

One of two Italian prisoners taken Saturday, Angelo Pelles, said he belonged to the Sixth Italian Battalion, which embarked at Cadiz on February 1, nineteen days before the International Non-Intervention "leers" went into effect. He declared that all Italian and Spanish "units on the Basque front were commanded by Italian staff officers.

Farmers Used to Retire

For Miles Around

Time was, and not a long time ago either, once again the influx of another when it was the practice of men who had to work the major part of their lives in industrious fashion on the farm to retire for the balance of their years to the nearest municipal centre. With a few exceptions this is now a thing of the past, conditions in the last few years have made it impossible for the average farmer to do this.

Commenting on this subject the Oshawa, times says: There was a time when there was a debatable point as to the value of retired farmers in a community. Now, when farmers are not retiring, there seems to be little doubt about it, and there are few citizens who would not welcome

Celts defeated Aberdeen in Glasgow and won the Scottish football cup for the 13th time. The second place to make up the attendance at that football game in Glasgow. We would need all the folk—and to them—from: Peterborough; Brockville; Kingston; Oshawa; Whitby; Elops ;Lindsay; Cornwall; Belleville; Bownanville; ; Campbellford; Cobourg; Marmora; ; Tweed; Havelock; Omemee; Lakefield; Millbrook; Whitby.

JOURNEY'S END

CHAPTER THIRTY

Four weeks later Anne left the hospital. Pneumonia, not burns, held her there. The burns were trivial but for aniline dyes her hands' rasping breath filled the clean, antiseptic room and shook the hearts and courage of those who watched and loved her. Every resource of modern science was thrown into the struggle; grave-eyed specialists gauged inside the narrow bed to feel her flickering pulse; nurses came and went. The Simeon Carr family was told. And they sent Anne's life just as she had saved their daughter's.

Nancy left her private suite in the same hospital when the crises in the adjoining suite was at its height. Miraculously unscarred, pretty lucky Nancy had escaped entirely the consequences of her folly. She had escaped death and disfigurement; she had escaped the tongue of scandal. The wild ride back to town through the rain, the Carr money and influence, had brought her through unscathed.

The Graeme case was closed, had been closed with the finding of the slight chief of police, with the medical wreckage of his car. "Accidental death while attempting to flee jurisdiction after wanton murder."

Thus was ended the story of Ray Graeme and his existence. A sordid, day journalistic sensation, a two day newspaper story.

No newspaper printed the name of the person whose flirt reported the accident to the police. No newspaper was informed that the person who called the Carr residence learned of the hurried midnight conference between the Harris attorney and Simeon Carr. And if Carr's police officials knew that a charred bag containing a supply of expensive feminine clothing had already been found among the wreckage they took care that no one else should know.

Nancy was preparing to leave for Europe on the day that Anne, pale, wasted and indescribably tender to expected moments, was discharged as cured. Nancy was gay and happy, since that wild, storming night a month before. David's guest. No guest. Nancy would willingly have come and would willingly have parted from Anne. Nancy wanted to see her to say. Anne had seen Mrs. Carr many times. Indeed the tension grew unbearably grateful lean, eager woman whom suddenly have been kept away without cruelty; but an unending flood of her gifts could have been stemmed only with difficulty and rudeness. David. Irene, Mrs. Carr—these were daily visitors. There were no others.

Stanley Ryan had vainly sought to see her. Nothing he could say to her could gain him entrance. Anne was determined that the break between them was final. A knife was buried in her heart—she was to die of the twisting it. Quite innocently Mrs. Carr performed this service for her when she sought to plead Stanley's cause.

"He's such a nice young man, my dear, and he admires you immensely." Then she nodded roguishly and smiled an arch, mysterious smile of you're bound to see him anywhere in the fall. Nancy is counting on you as a bridesmaid."

On the day that Anne went back home she told David that she would marry him.

There had been no proposal. David, during the hospital days, had been the old adoring David but for an instant as the girl looked up at him she felt the queer sense of isolation she had felt once before in his presence. She had again a conviction that his love was not to her. Then the man had bent quickly over her thin hands and was kissing them finger by finger. Anne was lying upon the divan. Wrapped in a thick blue comforter, propped with gay pillows, the waning daylight blending to accentuate her sweet thinned face, she seemed pale and ethereal and infinitely young.

"Do you still love me then, David? Do you still want me?" she asked timidly.

"You have my first love, honey, my first love will always be yours."

He dropped a kiss in her palm and closed her fingers upon it. Irene rapped at the door. Entering, she saw at once what had happened. Anne had a strange feeling that her room-mate's face had grown suddenly gray and then the illusion vanished and Irene was congratulating them and demanding, "When's it to be?"

"We don't know yet."

Anne glanced at David. He smiled down, tenderly, intimately, just for her. What was missing in that answering smile. In her soul the girl knew that love was missing. She knew that if this were Stanley....

They sat there quietly, the three of them, in the growing dusk, thinking their separate, so different thoughts. Anne, in the first David's hand. Irene was a little apart, her expression grave and thoughtful and touched with melancholy. Below the open window, street lights winked on; elevated trains whirred the length of Second Avenue carrying people to their convictions, to dinner and home to dinner; grocery carts rolled, their noise and drew the blinds. Still the three friends lingered on in the twilight.

Presently Irene stirred and yawned and said, "If we had some ham and eggs I'd be hungry. Let's have ham and eggs if we had some eggs."

David laughed, rose and went off downstairs. Irene waited until he was gone before she switched on the light. Both girls blinked a little and blinked at the sudden illumination. Then Irene, in time, managed to fish out a letter stuck behind the clock. Without figures. Anne began to tremble.

"For you, honey."

Something leaped into Anne's throat when she saw the writing. It was Stanley's.

Then she said, "Send it back to him. I don't want it."

"Why won't you open it?"

Tears sprang into the blue eyes. Anne said quite thickly, "Why should I? He's going to marry Nancy. I don't want to hear anything from him. I never see him again."

"Better not mixed! What do you mean better all around?" the other girl echoed, her voice sharp and accusing. "Do you mean that the feeling fair to David?" she asked defensively, flaying almost into her roommate's tear-bright eyes.

"I love David." Anne muttered. "I don't see why not."

"I'll tell you why not! He loves you. He's been mad about you ever since you've got to give. A fine Carr man, indeed the times he's been wholly grateful lean, eager woman whom suddenly have been kept away without cruelty; but an unending flood of her gifts could have been stemmed only with difficulty and rudeness. David. Irene, Mrs. Carr—these were daily visitors. There were no others.

Stanley Ryan had vainly sought to see her. Nothing he could say to her could gain him entrance. Anne was determined that the break between them was final. A knife was buried in her heart—she was to die of the twisting it. Quite innocently Mrs. Carr performed this service for her when she sought to plead Stanley's cause.

"He's such a nice young man, my dear, and he admires you immensely." Then she nodded roguishly and smiled an arch, mysterious smile of you're bound to see him anywhere in the fall. Nancy is counting on you as a bridesmaid."

On the day that Anne went back home she told David that she would marry him.

There had been no proposal. David, during the hospital days, had been the old adoring David but for an instant as the girl looked up at him she felt the queer sense of isolation she had felt once before in his presence. She had again a conviction that his love was not to her. Then the man had bent quickly over her thin hands and was kissing them finger by finger. Anne was lying upon the divan. Wrapped in a thick blue comforter, propped with gay pillows, the waning daylight blending to accentuate her sweet thinned face, she seemed pale and ethereal and infinitely young.

"Do you still love me then, David? Do you still want me?" she asked timidly.

"You have my first love, honey, my first love will always be yours."

He dropped a kiss in her palm and closed her fingers upon it. Irene

The kitchen was a-buzz with busy, active sounds. Someone knocked.

"The man from the drug store," David explained in response to questioning glances. "I ordered ice cream."

"Mixed?"

"Mixed it is. Come right in. The door's unlocked," he called, raising his voice and reaching in his pocket for change.

Quite simply and thus announced Stanley Ryan was in the doorway, his hands thrust in the pockets of his tweed coat, his dark head bare. Friendly and comfortable and master of course, he smiled in upon them as if he'd casually dropped by to join the party. Irene roused first from the paralysis of silence.

"What do you want?"

"I want to talk to Anne."

Anne's face had turned white flamed with color.

"Are you quite sure that Anne wants to talk to you?" David suggested with a level look at the other man.

"That's up to her, naturally. I think she does."

Anne swallowed, "I want to."

Then he moved toward her. His fine eyes never leaving her face taking in all at once her new slenderness, her gravelessness, paler, every tiny mark of recent illness. He reached the chair, stooped and locked his big hand about her fingers. He spoke to her as if they were quite alone.

"I've tried so often to see you."

"I've been in a hospital."

"I don't get this." Irene declared loudly, vehemently. "It's too odd and mysterious altogether. "I don't get it at all. Why must you talk to her? What do you want to say?"

"I want to say that I love her," Stanley responded gravely and unembarrassed. "I want to ask her to be my wife."

"Then you didn't know that she's engaged to David?" said Irene with angry, indignant scorn. "I suppose the man who had spoken not one word for himself—"

"No, I didn't. Is that true, Anne?"

The light grasp of his hand did not loosen. Anne's head drooped. She ached the others. David, sober and silent, sitting cross-legged on the kitchen table. Irene, angry and baffled, Stanley so near, so thrillingly near. Outside in the street a horn struck eight. Anne thought that in that moment Stanley Ryan would be gone, that her life would go on and on as she had thought it would go on before she ever took a job at Lotusland and met the man who could upset her entire world. The man who had walked through all her dreams since childhood, come to life, come a dream again. She would be engaged with David, sitting at David's house and perhaps later with David's children. Richings and Stanley and leather chairs and secretary and despair....

"Is that true, Anne too late, Irene remarked in an argumentative tone. "Anne's spoken for and happy."

"Are you happy, Anne?"

"I guess I am," she replied, her voice as grave as his own had been. "I've been terribly unhappy."

David had been turning a paring knife over and over in his square blunt fingers. Now he laid it down.

"You know I'd never hold you against your will, girlie, don't you know that."

"Yes, of course," she agreed in a troubled way. "I know you'd always want me to be happy, that you always have."

"Who says you won't be happy with David?" Irene demanded, dropping her head a little and gazing truculently at Stanley.

"I say she won't," he replied on a brief, triumphant laugh. "She doesn't because she belongs to me."

"Belongs to you." Irene echoed ironically. "It's a fine thing when you didn't know that a month ago or two months ago that Anne didn't cross your mind all the time, that you were engaged to Nancy Carr. Fickle's crazy, Stanley. David tells Stanley's ghost. I don't think it's fair."

There was a crackle of tearing paper, the rustle of closely written sheets. Suddenly Irene heard a strange, short laugh; she looked at her hearth—she saw the letter drift to the floor, saw that the other's face was colorless.

"What did he have to say?"

"Do you remember, Irene," Anne said very slowly, and as if she spoke from a dream, "do you remember my telling you how Stanley changed at the house party, changed so that I hardly knew him?"

"I remember."

"I know why now. Nancy told him that night Richard had come to see there and hidden on the estate to keep an engagement with me. That's why."

"You poor kid!"

Irene's rush was halted by her roommate's bleak regard. She stopped quite still. This was no place for friendly sympathy.

"What are you going to do now, Anne?" she asked quietly.

"Do now?" Anne roused. "Do just what I've been doing. Nane Nothing's changed."

Nothing had changed. Over and over she told herself that nothing had changed. When David returned certainly she saw no change. He dumped his packages and compliments and about unwrapping. The girls were in the kitchen, Irene busy measuring coffee while Anne, carefully wrapped in a bathrobe, perched on a spectator's chair, David donned an apron and began beating eggs. Irene trimmed the ham, opened a can of peas, tested the broiler flame

HER HANDS WERE ALL OUT OF SHAPE

In Grip of Rheumatism for 15 Years

"For about two years I hardly went out, it was such a painful effort to walk owing to rheumatism. My hands and feet were the worst affected, I was unable to walk without a cane. I read so much about Kruschen, I decided to try it. Within three months before I felt any better, but I kept on and since then I have been fine and never used the cane. My hands were all out of shape, but they are almost normal now. Of course I could not expect to get better all at once, as I had suffered for 15 years before I started on Kruschen."—(Miss) A. L.

Rheumatism is frequently caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood. If you could see how Kruschen dulls those uric acid deposits, then dissolves them away altogether, you would agree that the Kruschen treatment should bring relief in cases of rheumatism.

blinds and they looked out into the velvety night. A patch of stars twinkled and the smell of the river was strong. After a little he drew her gently to the divan, found the blanket, tucked her head on one, her feet in and sat, down with his arms around her. She heard the strike nine.

"I used to be going into Lotus-land," she said, "at nine."

"Never again," he said exultantly. "Never again, my darling."

A tear rolled down her cheek and splashed against his hand.

MAY DAY CELEBRATIONS IN CANADA PEACEFUL

(By the Canadian Press)

Approximately 36,500 persons took part in May Day celebrations in Canada, a check-up throughout a coast to coast survey showed. It was a peaceful celebration in Canada, contrasting with disorders and peaceful parading. A feature was the absence of Communists from the platform with Labor and Leftist leaders.

Toronto led the Dominion in the size of its parade and mass meeting, with 15,000 persons held at Wieland and Sudbury. Windsor attracted over 5000. Up in the Sound area anglers were more concerned with opening the season's trout season. Many Canadians thought of May Day only in the terms of lesser and moving vaus.

FRANKFORD

Frankford—A Quinte transport took charge of by R. Trotter, of Trenton, caught fire on Saturday afternoon half a mile from Frankford on Highway No. 2.

Prompt action on the part of the driver and a brisk breeze combined saved the truck and its heavy load of freight. Paint, burning off the hood of the truck was the chief damage done.

Trenton—Immediate Mr. George MacDonald is erecting a service station on the corner of Dundas and Quinte just north of the Fair Grounds.

Weddings

WALDEN—CORDES

A quiet wedding took place on Thursday last in Trenton, when Ivy Evelyn Cordes became the bride of Ronald James Walden, both of this city.

SILLS—CORNELL

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of St. Thomas, Saturday morning, May 1st, at 8.30 o'clock, when Miss Vivian Blanche Cornell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Cornell and the late Mr. Cornell, became the bride of Mr. Jack Sills. The service was performed by the vicar of the parish, the Rev. Beauchamp Payne, following which there was a celebration of the Holy Communion at which the bride's vows was celebrant.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harold C. Cornell, and Miss Blanche Cornell was bridesmaid. The best man was Mr. Andrew Frederick Knott.

The young couple will reside in the city and their friends wish them many years of happiness and prosperity. They will take up residence at Belleville upon their return from a short wedding trip.

MOSSMAN—CURRY

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, May 1st, at 8 o'clock, when Lethia Edna, daughter of Mr. Samuel Curry and the late Mrs. Curry, Sidney Township, was united in marriage to Percival Francis Mossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mossman, Thurlow Township, Rev. J. D. P. Kent officiating.

The bride was attired in blue silk jersey with white accessories. Miss Marjorie Curry, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and wore navy jersey with white trimmings. The groom was attended by his brother, Walter Lee Mossman. Mrs. and Mrs. Mossman will take up residence in Thurlow Township.

SLADE—HADMAN

A quiet wedding took place on Thursday evening, April 29, at the home of Rev. T. F. Keough, on Bleecker Avenue, when Miss Ruby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hadman, Belleville, was united in marriage to Harold Slade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slade of Owen Sound.

The bride looked charming in a blue ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage bouquet of Briarcliff roses and fern, was bridesmaid. The groom was supported by Mr. Thomas Webb of Owen Sound, while Mr. Clair Newman acted as usher. The bride and groom were married with white, satin ribbon.

Before the altar, decorated with palms and baskets of Spring flowers, the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Woodger of Cobourg assisted by Rev. David Wren, Miss Claire Newman sang very sweetly "Because" during the signing of the register.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Chapel Street. Receiving with the bridal couple was the bride's mother, wearing a gown of printed sheer over black and a corsage of Pernet roses and Mrs. F. Armitage, of Hamilton, in black crepe with beaded sleeves and corsage of roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Armitage entertained for Montreal, from whence they flew via American Airlines to Chicago. The bride travelled in a grey coat, ballerina style, worn over a dress of Tokan rose with navy accessories, and a platinum fox cape, the gift of the groom. Upon their return they will reside in Hamilton.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. C. A. Knapp, Mr. Wm. Ballance, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Armitage, of Napanee; Mrs. M. G. Scannell, Belleville, Rev. W. P. and Mrs. Woodger and Miss Ruth Woodger, of Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. F. Armitage and daughter Gloria, Hamilton, and Mr. Thomas Webb, of Durham.

The Quo en Tries Flying—With Some Encouragement

King George has flown little, if at all, in late years. Instead, willing perhaps to see its fliers become supreme in commercial and military fields, still looks askance at the suggestion that its king or queen should risk even possible injury or accident in aerial trips. Owing to the high position which his majesty will not insist upon aviation as a social mode of, transport, though it has been suggested on good authority that he will not dispense entirely with aeroplanes as a means of travelling to or from his many dominions.

Both the King and the Queen have shown themselves firm believers in the future of aviation and have taken great pains to inform themselves on the latest developments and possibilities. The King often appears in the air force uniform which he rankling as an officer entitled him to. Nominally, of course, as King he commands the R.A.F. as he does the other services.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Five Thousand Relatives

By Hal G. Vermes

"A race track will put Springdale on the map." Roaring Reggie shouts. "Folks who follow the ponies always spend plenty coin and they might as well spend it here!"

"Is Saratoga broke?" Reggie spotters. "Is Louisville or Miami in the poorhouse? No, Mr. Plandrean, horse racing will bring Springdale millions."

When the people of the commonwealth of Massachusetts vote in favor of horse racing, we go up there right away with the intention of building a track. But after we visit twenty towns in all we should and cannot get a local license, we are downright disgusted. And that is why Roaring Reggie comes out of the office of the mayor of Springdale with fire in his eye.

Right after that we buy a large piece of land, put up a clubhouse along the main highway and lay out a race track behind it. When the mayor asks on opening day what we have built, Reggie tells him it is just a private residence. And he points to the sign over the fresh entrance which reads: "Smith Family Reunion. Every Day—Rain or Shine."

"Everybody by the name of Smith can come and be entertained," Reggie explains.

"But you cannot get many people that way," says the mayor.

"For after all, there are not so many Smiths."

For answer Reggie takes the mayor out to the crowded grandstand. "All of these five thousand people are Smith by name," Reggie states. "At least when I advertised at the door and ask them if their name is Smith, it is a very peculiar thing but each and every one has said yes."

"Then it seems to me you are spending a lot of money just to entertain all these Smiths," says the mayor. "How can you afford to do it?"

"It so happens," Reggie replies, "that out of our generosity we let everybody purchase one share of common stock in this enterprise for only one dollar. When they leave they return the stock but somehow or other our dumb cluck ushers forget to give them back their dollar."

"I have been advised," the mayor says, "that you permit betting on these races. That is against the law!"

"Those hides racing around the track," Reggie relates, "are not running an ordinary horse race, as perhaps you might think. This is a special psychological treatment what has been ordered for all these Smiths by the doctor in attendance, who you can meet if you insist. You see, Mr. Mayor, all the Smith family has a hereditary disease called Smithitis as related here and the only thing what will cure it is watching those bangtails running and running and running."

"I will have to see the district attorney about that," says the mayor. "But what about all the betting?"

"We do not allow anybody to use money; all the betting is with counters. Of course when the people leave they can cash their winning chips at the desk if they do not want to throw them away."

Though he looks ill it is all very illegal what we are doing, which is not such surprising news to us, the mayor does not really know for until he walks into the bar in the clubhouse.

"This is criminal!" he yells. "You are serving alcoholic beverages without a license!"

"We do not need one," says Reggie, "because like I already said, this is a private home and besides we do not charge for the drinks. Though I might as well tell you before you find it out for yourself that everybody in the bar is expected to tip the hat check girl a small matter of five bucks on the way out."

"You must be making a lot of money, the mayor sighs.

"The pari-mutuel machines have taken in two hundred thousand bucks so far today," Reggie states. "That is, they would have if only we would let them bet with real money."

"I am afraid," the mayor repeats, "that I will have to close the place up."

"Out of that," Reggie continues hurriedly, "besides the regular cut for the state, we are perfectly willing to give the fair city of Springdale 5 percent of the total take. And we are ready to pay all the taxes and et cetera if you will get us a racing permit."

"You have proved your point," the mayor finally admits with a smile. "And I will get that license for you at once, Mr. Smith."

Little Benny's Note Book

I went around to the barber shop to get my hair cut on account of pop saying I better not make him mad at me again, and the little barber started to cut my hair and I ast the big barber at the same time, saying, Supposing you had to have a disease, how much would you vote for, a Fashist or a Communist?

In the first place you dont vote for a dictater till after he's already elected himself, the big barber said, and the little barber said, But you vote afterwards, dont you, Fred, to decide whether to keep him or not?

If yes, you vote for him after he's in, and he kindly steddies your hand for you while you make a cross after his name on the secret ballot, the big barber said, and the little barber said, Just a same, things mite be a lot better if we had a good smart dictater. I bet we wouldn't have to work Saturday afternoons. I bet we would get off at one o'clock just like bankers and people, and I bet it wouldn't cost as as much to have a little fun as what it does now, he said.

That's rite, at 5 minutes after one a free government Rum would call for you to race you to a free compulsory mass meeting where for 2 hours you'd get a free demonstration of how to salute the new flag and the dictater's representatives in the block you happen to live in. The rest of the afternoon you'd spend free of charge at a compulsory concert practicing the new national anthem all about

"Thanks to you," says Reggie, "but please to remember the next time we meet that my last name is Jones."

the dictater a miley man is he, berray for him o gosh oh G, for better or worse, for sink or swim, nobody cant say I ain't for him. And by that time it would be evening and your wods afternoon and your wods a oem, orf wouldn't of cost you a cent, he said.

O well, I'd just as soon keep working Saturday afternoons and taking chance on the Barbers Union getting a little more active, the little barber said.

Wish by that time my hair was done and I was on my way out.

U. S. AND AUSTRALIA IN TENNIS ZONE FINALS

(By The Associated Press)

The United States and Australia emerged as the finalists in the American zone Davis Cup play over the week-end while four teams reached the second round of European zone play.

The Americans, fresh from a 5 to 0 victory over Japan will meet the Australian team, which trimmed Mexico by the same score, at Forest Hills, N.Y., May 29-31. A year ago, the United States' hope of winning the cup were smashed when the Aussies won the zone final.

Belgium and Switzerland won in the opening of the European zone, Belgium on a 3-2 score over Hungary, and Switzerland through a victory over Ireland by the same count. In the other European matches South Africa shutout Holland, 5-0 and New Zealand defeated China in England, 3-2.

The South Africans will play New Zealand in their next match. Other European zone pairings are: Upper half, Germany vs. Austria, Sweden vs. Greece, Italy vs. Monaco; Lower half, France vs. Norway, Poland vs. Czech Slovakia, a smaller company, the Japan Nickel Company, already is in operation treating domestic ore and estimates that within a year it will be able to fill 60 per cent of the country's requirements of 3,000 tons a year.

JAPAN TO BUILD NICKEL SMELTER

Oriental Country Will Turn to Domestic Sources For Munitions Metal

Tokyo, May 1 (CP)—Japan, hitherto dependent upon Canada for her nickel supply, has turned to domestic sources for that "munitions metal."

First major step in a program to make the Empire independent of foreign sources for its armament raw materials is the project of the Japan Soda Company to establish a smelter at Yokahama which will turn out 150 tons se refined nickel month.

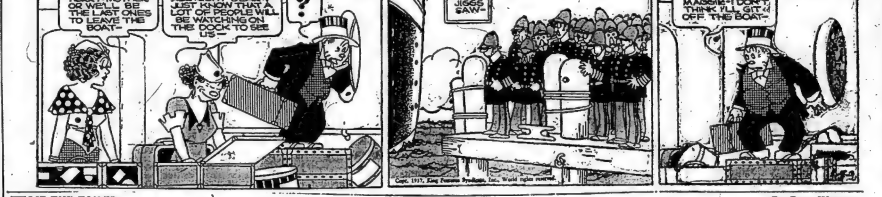
HIGHGRADER SENT TO JAIL FOR YEAR

Counsel For C. M. Armstrong, Windsor, Says He Will Appeal

Windsor, Ont., May 1 (CP)—Charles Massey Armstrong, found guilty of conspiring with persons unknown to dispose of highgraded gold, was sentenced by Jude F. W. Wilson in County Court today to one year in Ontario Reformatory. Armstrong was tried and judgment was reserved until today.



Before passing sentence, Judge Wilson conferred with Crown Attorney James Allan as to the advisability of suspended sentence but Allan demurred on the grounds that Armstrong would not assist police in prosecuting the actual highgraders who brought gold here from the Porcupine district of Northern Ontario. Immediately after the verdict, Defence Counsel A. F. Cignac of Windsor, filed notice of appeal.

Armstrong was arrested in Detroit in October, 1936, according to evidence given at the one-day hearing last week by Leo H. Moloney and William Carlson, United States Secret Service operators, the prosecution's chief witnesses.

MARKET COMMENT

The market last week was called upon again to absorb a considerable amount of nervous liquidation, but the manner in which it acquitted itself indicates that better things may be looked for in the not too distant future. A large number of weak accounts have been thrown out and the list today is again in a position to resume its forward course.

Rumours continue to persist from time to time on a number of topics and the uninitiated trader takes these rumours for facts and dumps his stocks overboard. The manner in which such distressed offerings were absorbed attests to the substantial buying power underlying the market and warrants the opinion that last week's reaction was only a natural phenomenon in a bull market. Every bull market has its sharp setbacks which tend to clear the air and aid in the continuation of the forward move.

As long as the business picture continues bright and the outlook promising, little fear need be entertained of a bear market. It is the trend of business that in the final analysis shapes the trend of security prices.

At no time is the timing of purchases so important as during a period of violent ups and downs such as we have witnessed during the past two weeks. At such a time when to buy is more important than what to buy as practically all groups will share in general trend. Those who buy on sharp dips are apt to run into quick profits but they must be prepared to convert these into cash as rallies during a liquidating movement have a way of petering out very quickly.

An idea of the extent of the trading in gold mining shares is indicated in notes from London and South Africa saying that often enough individual "jobbers" alone reached several million shares a day in some recent sessions. In this connection it is interesting to point out that during the bull market in the mines last year, there were experienced some sessions boasting a total turnover of 3,000,000 shares a day.

Where a few months ago satisfactory yields on common stocks were difficult to obtain, today many sound securities can be purchased to return better than 4 per cent. The senior golds all return very handsome yields while satisfactory yields are also obtainable in such securities as Quebec Power, Canada Northern Power, International Nickel, Imperial Tobacco, Dominion Textile, and many others.

Buying of Noranda during the break has been of an excellent calibre, it is learned from an authoritative source. As noted, it can be judged the outlook for Noranda is the best in its history.

New Output Peaks In Hogs and Bacon

Ottawa, May 3.—A new production peak for hogs and bacon was recorded in Canada in 1936, Hon. Mr. Gardiner said in an immense increase in volume, said the Agricultural Department annual review made public today, but quality reached an unprecedented standard.

About 3,797,000 hogs were moved through stockyards to plants and direct on export, a sharp increase from 2,917,000 in 1935. Evidence of improved quality, about 500,000 head were sold on a dressed weight or carcass basis. This figure is now mounted from 115,000 in 1935 and 3,000 in 1934.

Bacon exports to the United Kingdom jumped to 154,768,000 pounds from 127,000,000 the previous year, setting another new record but still well below the 200,000,000 pounds quota under the United Kingdom agreement. The report said the 1936 export showed the best type, pack and quality in the history of the Canadian hog industry.

Although the expansion in production came during one of the poorest field crop years farmers have faced in part of the empire, supply was finished on the old grain crop and returned a substantial profit.

Exports of hogs to the United States were 69,527, almost five times as great as 14,994 in 1935. Although exports were not large in comparison with those going overseas, the improved United States demand was a factor in the prices at Canadian stock yards and country points.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 3—(AP)—Selected stocks jogged sleepily into moderately higher territory today, but many market leaders were unchanged at a standstill.

In one of the slowest sessions of the year, favored steels, oils, railaircrafts and specialties posted gains of fractions to 2 points at the best.

Brokers said traders, while on the whole inclined to optimism on the basis of bright corporate statements and satisfactory dividends, appeared to be awaiting further cues from Washington before taking a pronounced position on either side of the market.

There were a number of losses near the final hour in dealings which were at the rate of less than 700,000 shares for the day.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 3.—(CP)—A heavy tone developed this afternoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange after the list had displayed marked strength through the early part of the day. The Industrials broke about even on losses and gains while Base Metals leaned to the upside at the close. Golds were irregularly lower and the Western oils definitely weak. Calgary and Edmonton was the point of main selling pressure in the Oils, about 100,000 shares changing hands on a net price decline of about 1.50 to 2.35.

Senior Oils were weak to the extent of 1-4 point to 1 point, Home and junior issues off 10 to 30 cents were Dalhousie, Home, Violaet, South West Petroleum, Okalta, and Pendells.

Senior Metals held to the up side, International Nickel firming about a point, Noranda a fraction and Smelters more than two points, Eldorado weakened 10 cents to 2.45.

A strong market developed for Brazilian, pushing the price up more than a point while United Fuels Pfd firmed two points and Consumers Gas, International Utilities B and United Gas were slightly lower. More gains than losses were posted in the Food group.

Kellogg's Aid Flood Victims

London, Ont., May 3—Stocks of Kellogg's products lost by retail grocers in the flooded area of Western Ontario are being replaced by the Kellogg Company of Canada, Limited, at no cost to the storekeepers, it is announced today by the management.

Materially assisting the victims of the flood, the Kellogg Company donated $1,000 to the Red Cross Flood Fund, and is also aiding the families of their employees who resided in the flooded sections of London.

Campbellford Cheese Board Holds Meeting

Following a most successful year, the Campbellford Cheese Board held their annual meeting on Saturday night but no cheese was offered for sale. Mr. McGuire, secretary of the board, stated that approximately 32,000 boxes of cheese were sold over the board last year, this amount representing the make of 24 factories. Members of the Board passed two resolutions during the meeting, one being, that all cheese sold on the Campbellford Board would be sold subject to Campbellford grade, the other grade and paid for on that basis, while in the second the Board approved of the Cheese Patrons' Association and copies of the resolution will be sent to be submitted at the future for Ontario and members of the Lyndale Cheese Board in this district.

2nd Vice-Pres.: Roy Walker, Campbellford.

Secretary-Treasurer: Mr. McGuire, Campbellford.

Executive: R. E. Truscon, Bobcaygeon; George Vanderburgh, Hastings, and Alfred Merrill, Campbellford.

The next meeting of the Board will be held on May 22 at 7.15 p.m.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 3.—Produce stocks in Montreal, with comparisons, were announced at the Board of Trade, over the week-end. It was pointed out that May 1 and April 1 stocks represent the aggregate for the end three weeks previous added this year, while stocks for a year ago represent the old basis only. The figures are pounds for butter and cheese and dozens for eggs:

	May 1, 1937	April 1, 1937	May 1, 1936
Creamery butter	1,094,913	1,956,754	1,048,362
Dairy butter	4,000	15,517	1,120
Cheese	7,527,050	9,201,041	6,008,550
Fr. eggs	71,784	151,644	44,370
Shell eggs	366,501	94,162	480,210
Butter in bond	1,624		1,624

Receipts for the week, with comparisons, were announced as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
	Cases	Boxes	Boxes
Last week	11,250	2,037	1,016
Week ago	11,250	2,037	1,016
Year ago	16,400	2,810	1,110

Exports for the week, 1,991 boxes of cheese and one box of butter, the former going to the United Kingdom, the latter to the British West Indies.

Butter was quoted there at the close at 32 3-4c to 33 1-4c for Quebec fresh 92-score and 32c to 32 1-2c for Quebec fresh buyer's inspection. On the open market No. 1 in car lots or 1-1, 31c was bid, while 1-c paid 31 1-4c to 32 1-4c per lb. Small lots to the retail trade were bought by jobbers at 34 1-2c for solids and 35c to 35 1-2c for prints.

The egg market was quoted on graded shipments arriving in Lots. 22c to 22 1-2c for A-large, 20 1-2c for A-medium, 20c for B and 18 1-2c for C and A pullets. Selected shipments of fancy eggs generally were 1-2c above these levels.

Livestock

Toronto, April 3—(CP)—Butcher cows were firm on the Toronto Livestock Market today but sales on other grades of cattle were too few to establish prices by early afternoon. Hogs were steady in a shade easier while sheep and lambs traded near previous levels. The hog market was unsettled at mid-session. Cattle holdover from Thursday 1,000; calves 380; hogs 1,280; sheep and lambs 650.

Cows sold at $5.25 to $5.75 for choice with common downward to $4. Canners and cutters brought $2.50 to $3.50. A few fed calves were priced at $6.75 to $8.25. Light calves, grass sold from $4.50 down.

Majority of veal calves traded between $8 and $8.50 with choice lighters bringing $9 to $9.50.

Indications were hogs would close steady to firm.

Previous close on off-truck bacons was $8.75 to $8.85.

Good feed-lot lambs sold at $11. Trade was slow on spring lambs at $15 to $16 as bid each, there was at $14 to $5.50 ewt., tops up to $6.

Chicago, May 3.—(CP)—Calves sold 25 cents lower in opening dealings on Montreal Livestock Market today. Other divisions held unchanged.

Receipts: cattle 1,348; calves 1,168; sheep and lambs 251; hogs 1,415.

Butcher cows made from $3 to $5.50 with common cattle at $6 to $7.25 and medium good to good kinds at $7.50 to $8.50 ranged from $4 to $7. Beginning and after today, there will be a cut of a head on hogs, the latter now weighing over 60c pounds.

Medium good veal calves brought $6.50 while fair to mediums went from $5 to $6.75 with plain to good kinds around $5. Common to plain calves went mostly $5.50 to $6 with culls as low as $4.

Good spring lambs weighing 80 pounds or better brought $9 each-up with lights around $7 each. Common to plain kinds averaging around 40 pounds went at $5 each while sheep ranged from $4 to $5.25. With bulk at $4.25 to $4.50.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered, made $9.25 with the usual $1 premium on selects and cuts on off grades.

KING GEORGE REHEARSES CORONATION AT ABBEY

Wears Ceremonial Robe Over His Civilian Suit; Archbishop Takes Part

Monarch Pays Unheralded Visit to Ancient Westminster

QUEEN IS SPECTATOR

Consort Rehearses Part of Processional But Not Her Crowning

London, May 4 (CP)—King George VI was "crowned" with twelve pomp nor ceremony.

In fact, he was "crowned" You three.

The king paid an unheralded visit to Westminster Abbey to rehearse for his coronation May 12 and practised the ritual with the Archbishop of Canterbury for two hours. He wore a coronation robe over his civilian suit.

Queen Elizabeth accompanied him and rehearsed part of the processional. She looked on, however, while the Archbishop and the King practised the rite which will consecrate the new reign. Her own crowning was not rehearsed.

BLAME DIVORCE PARTLY ON NOVEL

Caroline Miller is Separated From Her Husband

Waycross, Ga., May 4 (AP)—A divorce blamed in part on the Pulitzer Prize winning novel, "Lamb In His Bosom," was obtained by the author, Caroline Miller, from her husband, Will D. Lumpkin, in Superior Court issued the final uncontested decree yesterday.

Said the decree:

"He (Miller) complained incessantly and nagged at her until unbearable" after the book was published and won the prize in 1934.

He was "insanely jealous of her, her book and her success as a writer, short story writer and lecturer."

Said Miller:

He was a "faithful and affectionate husband and the couple got along well until his wife got pleasure and after writing the book."

Their courtship began while Miss Miller was one of her husband's pupils. They were married in 1931.

King Presented With Baton by Sir W. Birdwood

London, May 4—(CP Cable)— In the presence of seven field marshals and 200 generals, the King today was presented with his field marshal's baton at Buckingham Palace by Sir William Birdwood.

It had been originally planned to have the Duke of Connaught, as senior field marshal, make the presentation, but the King's great-uncle was unable to attend owing to indisposition.

The baton which His Majesty received from Sir William is about 22 inches long and one inch in diameter. The staff is covering with red velvet with gold lions passant gardant in eight rings upon it. At the top there is a chased gold crown with a wreath of rose, shamrock and thistle surrounded by St. George and the dragon. The lower end has a mount of similar design.

The case has been the inscription: "His Majesty King George VI, Field Marshal, 11th, December, 1936."

Later the King presented colors to the King's company of the Grenadier Guards in the quadrangle of Buckingham Palace. The ceremony performed by every sovereign since Charles II in the 17th century.

The company is about 100 men, each over six feet in height, parading on the palace terrace while the Queen, Queen Mary and Princess Elizabeth and Margaret looked on.

AGED COUPLE APPEAR FOR ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Toronto, May 4.—(CP)— A middle-aged couple escaped death here early today in what police charge was intended as a suicide pact.

When other roomers in a Seaton Street house were aroused to smell of gas through the place, police were notified and found that William Airvin 50, and Ruth Moore, 55, in a locked bedroom in which two gas jets were open. The man was seated in a chair before the gas stove with his head resting on the bed.

Police Department inhalators were applied to the pair, after which they were taken to St. Michael's hospital, where they died soon later. They were charged with attempted suicide. When their time came to appear in police court, however, the case was again taken ill and returned to the hospital.

Airvin also faces a charge of theft of $15 from his wife.

DRINKING PARTY ENDS IN DEATH OF PARTICIPANT

Wife of Tom Roman at Kirkland Lake Victim of Alleged Kicking

HUSBAND IS HELD

Will Appear in Thursday's Court Charged With Murder

Kirkland Lake, Ont., May 4 (CP) —Tom Roman, 45, faced a murder charge today following the death of his wife in what police said was a row at a drinking party in celebration of the Greek Orthodox Easter.

Police said they were notified of the woman's death last evening by persons present at the party and that the woman was said to have died from kicks. The wounds on the woman was Rosie and she was 43 years of age.

Involved in Argument

Authorities said the story told by some of the persons at the party described how the husband and wife became involved in an argument over the time to go home. The wife is said to have struck her husband with a bottle.

Natives of Rumania, Roman and his wife were married for 21 years, coming here from Cobalt last September.

The woman, police said, was found on a bed after being informed in the belief she would recover. A doctor was called to "attend a sick woman" but he found she was dead two or three hours.

An autopsy will be held some time today. The husband will appear in court Thursday.

Tribute is Paid to Brockville Clergyman

Brockville, Ont., May 4.—(CP)— Many and high tributes were paid in paying tribute to Canon L. E. Davis as he started his 30th year as Rector of St. Paul's Anglican church here.

Marking the honor at a dinner sponsored by the Young People's Association of the church, he was presented with new vestments, during which he was made a life member of the Church Women's Auxiliary of the Church.

Speakers at the banquet included —Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario; Hon. H. H. Stevens, K.C., Conservative Court of Canada; Rev. Canon R. B. McElman and Rev. Prof. T. W. Isherwood, Toronto.

Church Must Be Left Free, Pontiff Tells Hitler

Passenger Ship is Racing To Rescue Ten Thousand From Beleaguered Bilbao

St. Jean de Luz, France, May 4 (AP)—Refuge for about 10,000 women and children from days of bombardment in Bilbao was virtually assured today as 5 fleet of passenger ships raced to evacuate as many as possible before Insurgent guns close the port.

Bilbao's desperate defenders fought a last-ditch fight but Insurgent dispatches said General Emilio Mola's troops were pressing into the mountainous region north of Bilbao and that the last artillery already commanded the Nervion river, Bilbao's outlet to the Bay of Biscay.

More than 4,000 refugees, many children among them, were latched to sail tonight aboard the 10,000-ton Spanish liner Habana.

Arrangements were made to charter another large ship to remove the refugees to England.

The ship's identity was kept secret lest it become a prey of insurgent war vessels patrolling the Bay of Biscay.

Advices from Bordeaux, France, said several French steamers with a total capacity of 2,000 refugee passengers were being called and provisioned for a dash to Bilbao.

The first to leave, the steamer Marguax with room for 500, was expected to clear Bordeaux Harbor by midnight tonight. The Carimare and Chateau Palmer, with space for 1,000 and 500 souls, among them, were scheduled to leave for Bilbao within 24 hours after the Marguax.

Windsor Meets the Woman For Whom He Yielded Crown

Enters Castle Arm in Arm With Willis Simpson at Chateau de Candé

'PLANS' DISCUSSED

MONTE, France, May 4 (CP)— The Duke of Windsor was reunited today with the woman for whom he renounced the throne, Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Five months and one day of enforced loneliness for the former king ended at 1.45 p.m. (7.45 a.m. E.S.T.) when the Duke reached the Chateau de Candé. He came from St. Wolfgang, Austria, by train and car. Mrs. Simpson met him on the doorstep of the chateau.

Preceded by a motorcycle policeman, the duke's car roared through the gates. A truck, stacked with 17 suitcases, panted along behind.

The Duke Meets Mrs. Simpson

The Duke was an hour overdue. From Versailles, where he left the Allsey express, the motor trip consumed four long hours.

The Duke jumped from the car, and, arm in arm with Mrs. Simpson went inside the castle.

Within the mossy chateau set in a park gay with masses of lilacs, tulips and yellow acacia, a small house party awaited the Duke for luncheon.

During the morning Mrs. Simpson had walked in the garden alone. The day started out grey and chilly. But an hour before the Duke arrived the sun burst out to show Britain countryside in all its splendor.

Peaces are Reported

A knot of villagers had gathered outside the gate, with a leading newspaperman, to see the Duke's arrival. Many asked for autographs and bread and sipping from flagons of white wine.

A truck loaded with live pigs paced by a motorcycle policeman, and the grimaled driver gazed with mild curiosity at the crowd. An English woman, a friend of Mrs. Simpson, outside the newspaper photographers and kept a sharp eye on everything in sight.

The Duke's Plan to Duke

As the Duke's car passed, every British newspaperman removed his hat.

The Duke wore a black overcoat, but no hat. He looked tanned, smiling, and waved to the newspaper crowd.

S. B. DELLADOMNE DIES SUDDENLY

Trenton Resident Succumbs From Heart Attack on Street

Trenton (Special)—Stricken with a sudden heart attack, S. B. Delladomne, fifty three year old resident of Trenton, collapsed on the sidewalk in front of the home of William Brennan, Quinte Street, shortly after nine o'clock this morning and expired almost immediately.

Delladomne, who is of Italian nativity came from his native land eighteen months ago and made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Leo, on Marmora Street. Walking along the street he suddenly collapsed and an alderman, Dr. E. A. McQuaid was called and pronounced death due to heart failure. An inquest was deemed unnecessary. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

CONVICT GIVEN FREEDOM AFTER 42 YEARS IN JAIL

Francis Shortis' Whereabouts Unknown—Convicted Shooting 2 Men

CELEBRATED CASE

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—Somewhere in a world changed since 1895, Francis Valentine Cuthbert Shortis tries to live down the 42 years he spent in prison and to adjust himself to modern life.

Word of the 80-year-old murderer's release on ticket-of-leave gave to him all of the memories or from what institution he was released. It was learned, unofficially but beyond doubt, only that Shortis left Dominion government regulations nothing will be known officially, in the belief an ex-convict will have a better chance to rehabilitate himself.

In the day Shortis' case became something of a cause célebre. He was said to be a member of a prominent English family, sentenced to be hanged, a commutation saved his life.

Bac in 1895 Shortis, then 18, "a dandy with a curled moustache," was living in Aberdeen, Quebec. He was sentenced to die January 31, 1896.

The Dominion cabinet studied his case but refused a reprieve. The governor-general of Aberdeen, cabled London and, so the story goes, was told to use his own judgment. It was also said Lady Aberdeen influenced her husband. The commutation was granted New Year's Day, 1896.

Mob Stormed Jail

Shortis had won in the Beauharnois jail. On the night originally set for the hanging a mob of 500 stormed the jail and attempted to lynch him. Finally Sheriff Laberge came out and, pleading for calmness, provided the crowd to a hotel for "refreshments." Most of them followed him. He promised the mob Shortis could be seen next day, each man viewed him alone. The mob dispersed.

Then afternoon came Laberge learned another mob was coming by train from Montreal. Rumors spread the sheriff intended to drive Shortis to St. Martins Junction and put him on a Montreal train.

The mob headed for St. Martins, but Laberge took another route to Chateauguay by sleigh, rowed him across the river, and drove him by sleigh to Montreal jail.

At the time of Shortis' conviction, he was described as a "dandy" with a curled moustache." He had been "instrumental in causing much broad shoulders."

Shortis' sentence his sentence was commuted, Shortis is said to have told interviewers: "Well, of course, I don't exactly feel like a social lion but I was not afraid. Fear is a queer thing. You get used to it and aware that when a fellow does wrong he must pay the penalty."

Mother Pleaded for His Life

Shortis' mother came from England to plead for her son.

A public meeting protesting the commutation was addressed at Valleyfield, presided over by Mayor Ed. Quintal, one of the leaders. The protest, sent to the governor-general, said citizens felt if Shortis' people had not the good will or if he had been a native of Canada, he would have been hanged long ago.

At Coteau Landing an effigy of Shortis was hanged and burned.

It is learned that since the momentous days Shortis' life sentence has been spent in several penal institutions, among them Kingston penitentiary and the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

DEATH OF INDIAN IS UNDER PROBE

U. S. Government Agents Take Up Case of Tom Martin

Syracuse, N.Y., May 4 (AP)—U.S. Government agents investigated today the second Indian slaying on a reservation in Upstate New York in five months.

Ralph L. Emmons, United States Attorney, said Justice Department agents were instructed from Washington to investigate the death of Tom Martin, 45-year-old St. Regis Indian in a Cornwall, Ont., hospital Sunday.

Hogansburg, Levi Frost, an Onondaga Reservation Indian, was sentenced to spend twenty years and one month in a federal penitentiary for the murder of Alvin Stout after a Hogansburg Day drinking bout. A jury convicted him of voluntary manslaughter.

Border Alleged

Martin, Emmons said, was beaten in a brawl on the St. Regis Reservation at Hogansburg and then taken across the border and dumped in a rowboat to the Canadian side. American authorities did not learn of the case until Ontario Provincial Police notified Troop B of the New York State Police at Malone.

The United States Attorney said two Indians, Lewis Herne, 43, and Peter Cook, 45, were held by Police in connection with the death of Martin. Both were held in the Franklin County jail at Malone. The two men, Emmons said, will be arraigned before a United States commissioner and the case sent to the federal grand jury.

Emmons said although Martin died in Canada the brawl took place on the Canadian side of St. Regis Reservation, giving United States Federal jurisdiction. The Reservation lies on both sides of the international boundary.

Rumors Say Duke May Marry Tomorrow

Monte, France, May 4 (CP)— Rumors flew about and fast here today that Wallis Simpson and the Duke of Windsor may marry tomorrow. However, both the Mayor of Cours and the Mayor of Monte said they had not been approached to perform the ceremony. Windsor arrived today from St. Wolfgang, Austria, to visit Mrs. Simpson, granted her final divorce decree yesterday.

Note Insists That Economic Pressure Must Not be Used

SCHOOLS UNHAMPERED

Today's Communication is More Moderate Than Encyclical

Vatican City, May 4 (AP)—Pope Pius told Cardinal Pacelli Reiter today that the Catholic Church must be left free to fulfill its mission in Nazi Germany.

The Pontiff's reply to the recent German church note, an answer to the Pope's pre-Easter encyclical accusing the German government of violating the 1933 Church-State concordat, was delivered by Reporter Cardinal Pacelli to the German Ambassador to the Holy See, Diego von Bergen.

May 1st Speech Unnoticed.

Vatican sources said the note did not mention Hitler's May Day speech in which he wanted against armour of "encyclical" which "disturb" the third Reich. It took a more moderate tone than the encyclical and left the way open for further conversations about the concordat, which set up separate spheres of church and state influence in the Reich.

The note maintained, however, the church's independence from economic pressure must not be brought to bear against Catholics in Germany; that the schools must be free; the Catholic press should not be hampered.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Bonnville, Ind., May 4 (CP) — The Bonnville Building and Loan Association long has heightened its mundane tasks by having love birds in its midst added, and the survivor pined with loneliness.

But a substitute was obtained.

It didn't look much like a bird to humans, but it did to love bird.

It was done with a mirror.

Lamar, Mo., May 4 (CP)— A farmer fainted and fell unconscious from his tractor, which continued on its way driverless. The farmer recovered, saw his tractor running away, and leaped to his feet to overtake it.

His age, 55, his name, Lyon Ford.

Atlantic City, N.J., May 4 (AP) — When a fellow with a splitting headache holds his head it's probably something more than wishful gesture.

If he knows the right holds it may help his headache a bit, Dr. J. E. Graham and H. G. Wolff of the New York Hospital told the American Society for clinical investigation.

They reported the throbbing pain of migraine headache was caused by throbbing blood vessels in the head. Pressing or holding a finger on the offending artery, on the temple, behind the ear, or on the back of the neck, the pain could be subdued.

Modesto, Calif., May 4 (AP)— After a crowd of 500 irate farmers and sympathizers turned back Federal veterinarians and county officials from their boarding ranch, Sheriff G. M. Hogin said he would not call out all available men, if necessary," to enforce a quarantine against bovine tuberculosis testing law.

Woodstock, Ont., May 4 (CP)— Apparently tired of laying standard golf shots, Tom Frank went visiting to take the whole day off, a two-yard-high terrier on the farm of Miss Hagen, Sweaburg, decided to compromise. His answer was a shot that began by being weighing only half an ounce.

300 INSURGENTS BLOWN TO DEATH

Blasted by Dynamite in House in Which They Took Refuge

Madrid, May 4.—(CP)—Three hundred Insurgents were blown to death it was reported today, when the house in which they had sought to best off attacking Government troops were blasted with dynamite.

The dynamite attack yesterday blasted Madrid's suburbs three times the lines of entrenchments on the southwestern edge of the city.

The onslaught was but one of a series of hammer, blows designed to crush General Francisco Franco's men from their positions nearest to the city, and simultaneously, at the same time, to restore communications and supply lines between their main body and 2,000 comrades beleaguered in University City; on Madrid's northwestern edge.

The Insurgents were reported to have been driven further back from the Corunna Road running northwest from Madrid.

LAPOINTE PRESIDES

LONDON, May 4.—(CP Cable)—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Canadian Minister of Justice, presided today at a session of the Empire Parliamentary Conference at Westminster.

Crowds outside the Abbey sent up a cheer as the royal party arrived. The King walked with the Queen and Queen bowed.

Princess Marie-Louise were met by the Duke of Norfolk, who as Earl Marshal is in charge of the Coronation arrangements. The princess took the Abbey annex to the chancel entrance.

A large black box bearing the inscription "Her Majesty The Queen" was carried in the Abbey shortly before Queen Elizabeth arrived.

$2,000 OBTAINED IN BANK HOLDUP

Schomberg, Ont., May 4—(CP)— Two armed men, early this morning, held up the Royal Bank of Canada branch of this North York village and, forcing the manager and teller into a vault escaped with about $2,000. After tying the two men with cords the robbers escaped in a waiting automobile.

D. C. V. Morrison, manager of the Bank, and Ray Byers, the teller, were the men forced into the vault. They furnished police with a description of the robbers.

One of the bank bandits was described as five feet, 11 inches tall, heavy set and wearing a grey cap and overcoat. The other man was about five feet, six inches tall and wore blue trousers and a red plaid mackinaw coat.

The robbers were last seen on their way south towards Toronto.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiesen
Science Service Meteorologist

Measuring winds aloft! At a recent meeting of the American Meteorological Society, Mr. A. F. Spilhaus of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology exhibited and explained his newly-invented device for measuring winds aloft. It consists of a spherical rubber balloon inflated to rise 200 yards per minute. Attached to the balloon is a metal stick containing a fuse which burns slowly. At suitable distances in the fuse are charges of magnesium so spaced that they explode every minute. A record of the flashes is made by a camera equipped with a 180-degree lens pointed to zenith. With the device the speed and direction of winds aloft up to two miles were deduced.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 4 (CP)—Pressure is low from the Maritimes south-west to Texas, also over northwestern Ontario and the Atlantic States, and relatively low over the Mississippi Valley and Saskatchewan. Elsewhere it has been fair and warm in all districts. Showers have fallen in the Maritime provinces.

Lake Superior—Light to moderate variable winds; fair today and Wednesday; somewhat cooler tonight.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—Mostly fair and warm today and on Wednesday.

Move Casa Loma to Callander Suggests North Bay Councillor

Proposal to Move Quints Brings Counter Proposal

MAYOR VETOES IDEA

North Bay, Ont., May 4 (CP)—A real problem is moving, but it's Alderman Arthur Hill's solution to Toronto's desire for placing the Dionne Quintuplets in Casa Loma instead of Callander.

Only Council last night pondered the problem. Alderman Hill didn't make it clear just how the huge castle would be transplanted to North Bay or Callander. And Mayor Robert Rose had all solution to be ruled the resolution out of order "for the time being."

Alderman Percy Quinn of Toronto has urged the quints be placed in Casa Loma, Alderman Hill's motion over by Toronto for back taxes. After giving the idea some thought Alderman Hill of North Bay placed such a resolution before council, seconded by Alderman R. J. McMillin.

"In view of the interest displayed by the city council of Toronto in having the Dionne quintuplets moved to that city so as to have them as a double-bill tourist attraction for the province and since there appears to be no other possibilities in having the quintuplets moved from this district, be it resolved that instructed to write the City of Toronto suggesting that that body consider the feasibility of moving Casa Loma to Callander or North Bay with the understanding that reasonably agreeable arrangements will be made with regard to taxes."

Alderman D. Moreau remarked: "There is a lot of good common sense in the resolution but I'm afraid it is out of order."

Alderman Hill: "It is just another suggestion for the City of Toronto. They seem to need suggestions."

Mayor Doesn't Appeal to Alderman.

Alderman D. O. Stevens failed to see the "good common sense" mentioned by Alderman Moreau.

"Just because somebody in Toronto is making himself ridiculous there's no reason why we should do the same thing," he said.

"I would like to see Toronto's Alderman Quinn just how foolish he is," said Alderman Delladomne.

If the mover of the resolution is willing to withdraw it I am agreeable."

"In Toronto they see no reason why they shouldn't have the quints so there is no reason why we shouldn't have Casa Loma," declared Alderman Hill as he urged his resolution be passed.

The seconder, Ald. McMillin, explained it was "simply an invitation".

If they want the quints to live in Casa Loma they had better move the castle to this district because there is not a chance in the world of seeing the quints down there," he added.

Alderman Hill pressed council to take immediate action Monday. The quints were a great tourist attraction for this district. If the resolution was not supported, Toronto would work all the harder to get the quints, declared Ald. Hill. Ald. Oliva Dionne, he said.

Alderman Hill's Regimbal made council realize they were not sticking to city business. The mayor ruled the resolution out of order.

Y'S MEN ENTERTAIN CAST OF PLAY

Entertaining the cast of their recent successful amateur drama production, "In Have the Honor," the local Y's Men's Club were hosts to a good number of local amateur actors at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The general routine of business was dispensed with and an entertainment supplied those, who had so splendidly sustained others. Lorne MacDougall assumed the chairman's duties, President Jack Wilson being a member of the cast.

A lengthy programme, that included many musical selections, was highly appreciated. Piano duets by Phil Huddleston and Ernie Haskett, vocal numbers of Frank Howard and a piano selection by Alec Gordon were a few of the items presented.

Newton Thompson, past president of Y's Men's International, conveyed the thanks and appreciation of the club to the cast, for their untiring efforts in the play with Dawson Boyd and Miss Jessie Tulk, who directed the play, replying. The song leader for community singing last night was Newton Thompson, while Lyman George Fenley collected the fines as serjeant-at-arms.

CIL SCUM ON HARBOR ANNOYS BOAT OWNERS

A greasy film of oil on the waters of the harbor, which has already caused scores of moored boats with a thick, black scum, and tin cans and other debris floating on the surface of the harbor and bay has led to early complaints this year on the part of boat owners.

Official notice of the nuisance was taken today by Harbourmaster Joe Waddell who pointed out that a city bylaw prohibits the dumping of refuse into the river. Strict city regulations also prohibit the dumping of crankcase oil or other inflammable fluids into city sewers or drains, it was declared.

"We're going to get right after this nuisance this year," warned Harbourmaster Waddell.

ROTARIANS FAVOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

An unofficial vote of members of the Belleville Rotary Club after the regular luncheon meeting on Monday resulted in a unanimous vote in favor of Daylight Saving time.

SWIMMING SEASON OFFICIALLY OPENS

Warm weather brought out hundreds of people to the open spaces Sunday, Victoria Park was a favorite spot for many, most of whom took great interest in watching the antics of a few hardy young men swimming there. What little opposition to the water was rather quickly overcome, and the water, although it was cold, was stated by those who did not remain in the water long at a time.

CYCLISTS DAMAGE CORBY PARK LAWN

A deep rut across the grassy spaces of Corby's Park, caused by the wheels of bicycles is the latest thing for complaint of residents living in that vicinity, according to a prominent citizen.

The riders could have followed the paths provided, it was pointed out, he said, "it seems a shame that the grass should be ruined in such a manner, when paths are available for them.

BUSINESS IS GOOD AT WELLINGTON

For the first time in a decade the village council of Wellington was faced yesterday with the problem of securing the services of a constable.

Three canning factories, which this district has dominant, which have greenhouses and road construction in the surrounding area, all available labor with the result that a great deal of employment is available for man in the village. Last night, when a construction programme called for additional labor, officials reported that none was available. Merchants in the village are consequently all smiles.

ODD JOB MEN IN GOOD DEMAND

A sudden rush of odd jobs is giving temporary employment to a number of the city unemployed, according to officials of the local Employment Bureau. Housekeepers of the city in a sudden fit of the spring cleaning, are having lawns raked, gardens dug, basements cleaned and done over, flowers attended to, all of which creates a little but welcome employment for the ranks of those out of work.

At the Church of St. Michael and All Angels there will be two celebrations of the Holy Communion, one at 7 a.m. and one at 10.30 a.m. At 4.15 p.m. there will be a Children's Service and at 7.30 p.m. there will be a Special Evensong. All services will be in the church.

At Christ Church the Festival will be observed in a fully choral celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 a.m.

WORK GANG IMPROVES ROAD NORTH OF TWEED

Damage to roads in the Tweed district caused by this Spring's flooding is being repaired at the present time by township workers. This week a large gang of men under W. C. Marlin, is engaged on the Tweed Road, just north of the Tweed village and corners are being straightened and much needed improvements are being made.

QUEEN'S CONVOCATION FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Queen's University Convocation will be held in Queen's on Friday afternoon, May 7, when degrees will be conferred upon several local and district graduates in Arts and Science. Prizes and honorary degrees will also be conferred. It is understood that several from Belleville will attend the convocation.

FLOOD PREVENTION PLANS DISCUSSED

Thorough discussion and survey of recommended plans for flood prevention of the Moira River through this city was being held at the city hall today by members of the special Flood Prevention Committee of city council. The meeting was convened by Mayor R. D. Arnott for the purpose of J. L. Bysson, engineer of the Dominion Department, whose Works who will spend the day in the city making a personal investigation of local conditions.

One suggestion made and for which plans have been drawn and adopted is the construction of a high wall on the east bank of the river below the lower bridge, which will divert excess levels of water to the west side where a deeper channel would carry it to the bay. Deepening of the river mouth by dredging was also recommended in this plan.

Mr. Bysson was introduced by Mr. C. A. Cameron, M.P., and local member, the meeting was of officials. According to plans a chain of the fiery beacons will stretch across Canada on that night, with almost every city and town being represented. It is expected that Zwick's Island will be chosen as a site if plans are carried out.

'AND THE GREEN GRASS GREW ALL AROUND'

"This great growing time" as one farmer aptly puts it has a double meaning for the city dweller, at least, Nature-like with drenched with the warm suns of the past few days, has produced a growth of grass and other spring shoots in a manner almost magical in its rapidity. Grass gardens are rapidly accumulating a carpet of green. Early-flowers are blossoming practically overnight.

However the more-favored lawns, and some of which have yet to receive their Spring raking and cleaning, are proving a source of worry to owners. Grass is growing with such speed that lawn-mowers will have to be called into service before the winter residue can be removed. No less than four residents were seen today turning the cutting machines to shops to be sharpened.

"I have grass nearly four inches in height," muttered one, "and if I don't get after it soon it will get the start of me."

O.S.D. CLOSES HERE ON JUNE 16TH

OAK LAKE COLONY CLEAN UP COTTAGES

Following the unusually balmy weather of the past few days, the migration of city residents to Oak Lake has begun. Cottages are being opened and painted and the annual spring housecleaning is now under way. The first bather of the season was seen to be reported last evening when an unidentified young woman unconcernedly defied bathing suit and splashed briefly in a short swim.

PERCH FISHING GOOD

Perch of excellent size have been caught so freely along the wharves and docks south of the city during the past several days, that fishing for them is becoming a monotonous business of battling the hook and line with the fish, if rear with the anglers. So plentiful have the fish been reported that the wharves are built on the dock to rot by those engaged in fishing "just for the fun of it." Bass, which usually follow on the other hand, are declared conspicuous by their absence. Turtles, now basking on projecting stones, and bays, are declared particularly numerous this season.

MERCHANTS EXPECT BIG SALE OF FIRECRACKERS

Sporadic popping of fire crackers in city streets and shooting sky-rockets will not wait for the usual date of May 24th this year, it is intimated by dealers in fireworks on the part of local shops stocked up this year ahead of time. The usual display of fireworks will be overshadowed by Coronation Day and Young Belleville will join in the fun to dispose of the unusual allotment of crackers and fireworks, it is reported.

Send-Off Seemed Like Old War Days

C.S.M. Sam Johnson Writes of His Impressions When Departing From Montreal

"So far it is an experience which I shall never forget", wrote Serj. Major Sam Johnson, Belleville's representative at the Coronation this month, in a letter to the Canadian Contingent a short time ago to Lieut. Col. Leo Bellinger of this city.

"We received a beautiful send-off from Montreal" the letter continues. "Thousands of cheering people stood on the docks when the S. S. Montcalm, itself a bit of history, left with Guards from her decorated super-structure, slowly backed into the stream. Bands played on the wharf, and guns roared a salute as she moved slowly down the St. Lawrence. It seemed like the old days, when we left on active service. We are stopping at Quebec City where we will pick up the Canadian Coronation Band and the detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Fire Extinguishing Chemicals Given Demonstration Before Group of Firemen and Citizens

Roaring Mass of Flames Extinguished in Twenty-One Seconds

WATER NOT EFFECTIVE

The fallibility of water as a fire extinguishing medium in various types of blazes, and the remarkable strides made by scientific research in the discovery and manufacture of various chemicals now being used for the almost instantaneous reduction of fire originating from various causes, was demonstrated yesterday afternoon by representatives of a prominent fire preventative manufacturing company on the vacant lot at the corner of Dundas and Mary Streets before a representative gathering of city and district fire chiefs, city aldermen, insurance representatives and a large crowd of interested citizens.

Dense clouds of black oily smoke through which the lurid glow of yellow flames was seen, arose from a specially prepared pit 12 by 14 feet in which had been poured ninety gallons of oil and twenty gallons of gasoline. The inflammable liquids were poured together and then ignited. The futility of attempting to extinguish a fire of such proportions with water was demonstrated by members of the Belleville Fire Department, who specially prepared chemical solution was injected into the water stream by means of a fire hydrant stricted for the purpose and, the burning results proved a decided surprise from the assembled crowd. The use of water alone was demonstrated at the point without the cessation of the operation. Water was played on a blazing ignited gasoline-soaked boxes with the chemical being extracted from the water flow by a simple operation.

The extinguishing of the roaring mass of flames through the medium of the chemicals took 21 seconds.

Effective in Gasoline Fire

Another interesting demonstration was the reducing of a spread of blazing gasoline on a small area of ground. Belleville firemen again tried to put out the flames with water but met with no success. A few short blasts from the business end of a fire extinguisher loaded with a special solution did the trick in a short time. Blazing gas in buckets and pans met the same fate at the nozzles of the chemical hose.

Another highlight of the affair, and one which held the attention of the gathering, was the application to a burning area of a chemical which not only rose above it as a solid, and left a deposit of snow-like, diminishing the heat and enabling the holder to get closer to the seat of the blaze.

Members of the Belleville Fire Department, and fire apparatus, under Chief Wm. Lynch, assisted the demonstrators. Fire chiefs from Napanee, Marmora, Deloro and Deseronto were among those attending the demonstration. During the course of the various blaze reductions a number of the spectators availed themselves of the opportunity to use the methods in a practical way.

CORBIN HARDWARE ENTERED BY NIGHT

Number of Metal Boxes Used in Foundry Removed

With cool nonchalance robbers entered the premises of the Corbin Hardware, Coleman St., and secured a number of metal boxes, used as jackets in the foundries, last night. Police investigations regarding how the robbers gained possession of the iron jacket. The nightwatchman in charge stated he had made his rounds hourly, but heard and saw nothing suspicious. Police are working hard to put into practice regarding the apprehension of the guilty parties, it was learned at noon. The continued practice of stealing all kinds of metals while unknown left within reach has become too prevalent throughout this district.

BISHOP VISITS AT RESERVATION

Mohawk Children Are Confirmed at Christ Church on Reserve

Right Rev. John Lyons, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, visited Christ Church Mohawk parish on Sunday to administer Confirmation for which the rector presented a large class of boys and girls. The Bishop delivered an address, one for the congregation and one especially for the candidates. After the Bishop had laid his hands on the candidates head and prayed for them, he administered Holy Communion, first to the newly confirmed and then to the other communicants, of whom there were many. The church was filled with worshippers.

The Lord Bishop was assisted by the rector, Rev. Herbert Principe (Chechuksh) and Rev. A. L. Geen (Shannonville), of Belleville.

During the service a hymn was sung in the Mohawk tongue.

After the services many had lunch at the rectory, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gould of Belleville, great friends of the Bishop.

POLICE BLOTTER

A hit and run driver was reported on Station St. yesterday when a parked bicycle, owned by Norman Hopkins, 178 Bridge Ave., was knocked over and damaged by a passing automobile. The driver of the automobile did not stop sufficiently long enough to provide their license number to the person owning the licence plate number of the car and reported it to the police.

Entrance was gained into the boy's bicycle was badly damaged.

Entrance was gained through a window in an attempt to gain entrance to her home had been made last night by persons, namely Messrs. George Woodley, James Cordes, James Hudgins, Bert Mason, Charles Hudgins and Garnet Dobbs.

Internment was made at Campbellford; the service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. R. E. Newman and the last rites of the Oddfellows' Order were performed by members of Havelock Lodge, who acted also as bearers at Campbellford.

Obituary

LATE FRANKLIN J. McMASTER

The funeral of Franklin J. G. McMaster took place Monday afternoon from his late residence, 7 Park Street. A brief private service was conducted in the home by the Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of Holloway Street United Church, assisted by the Rev. L. G. Wight. At the close of the private service the funeral procession proceeded to Holloway Street United Church where an impressive service was conducted by the same ministers.

The late Mr. McMaster was a member of the Order of Oddfellows and many members of the Order from Belleville and Havelock were present at the service in the church.

Members of the Official Board of Holloway Street United Church acted as bearers at the house and Oddfellows at the church.

CHRONIC LETTER WRITERS SCANNED BY EDITOR

'Letters to the Editor' Signed And Unsigned—Builders And Wreckers

"Letters to the Editor" was the subject which engrossed the attention of Belleville Rotarians at the regular meeting Monday, that being the subject of the guest speaker, G. H. VanBlaricom, Editor of Canada Lumberman, published at Toronto, as the official organ of the lumber trade of Canada. Mr. Van Blaricom was introduced to the club by Past President J. O. Herity, as a native of Hastings County, Sidney Township to be exact, who narrowly escaped graduating from not being born in Huntingdon township. (Here Mackenzie Robertson interjected something about "Pancake Mill", and another heckler connected with the Hells of St. Mary's.) Educated in the Little Red School House in the country, High School at Trenton, with polishing off in Belleville and Queens University, the guest speaker took up journalism, was editor of the Peterboro Review, and other newspapers and was a prominent member of the staff of the Mail and Empire for some years he has been editor of The Canada Lumberman.

Champion Letter Writer

Mr. Van Blaricom prefaced his address with interesting reminiscences of the Belleville of thirty years ago, and of the popular "Letters to the Editor" of those days, the champion letter writer being for publication for many years locally Dr. J. J. Wills, who always signed his name and disdained to adopt from ambush. Of those who write to the newspapers giving their views of current topics about half sign their name for publication, the other half hide behind the veil of anonymity. Should leave the newspaper to shoulder all responsibility and any trouble which may arise therefrom. Otherwise it is unwholesome at any time but anonymous destructive criticism is not the mark of a truly loyal and good citizen.

During the past winter lumbermen were concerned lest there be not enough snow to move the product of logs and get them out in the spring, and the lumbermen of Northern being intensified by the prospects of the best lumber market in years. If the logs get out in the fall, and to the mills the trade would suffer huge loss. In this connection Mr. Van Blaricom read a letter from an investor sent to a Montreal lumberman, offering to set up a machine which would produce a foot of snow per day after each fall of snow, and for five hundred dollars for the first foot, and five hundred dollars for every foot thereafter. Fortunately, this machine has not been developed.

Personal Grudge Vented

Many would-be letter writers seek to satisfy a personal grudge, using the paper as a weapon and hiding behind the assumed name. Anybody wonder why the newspaper refuses to publish such a letter. The newspaper can get into enough trouble unwittingly without courting it on someone else's account.

Generally speaking, said Editor Van Blaricom, a letter when signed, carries more weight and commands more respect and confidence than anything from the pen of an anonymous contributor. Letters to the editor should be encouraged, provided they are directed along the right line. Too many easily find fault ing constructive or helpful. They are destructive in character and seek to tear down rather than build up. It is easy to fire a shot from ambush, disagree with any proposition advanced for the weal of the community, or to disparage the ideals of the citizenry, but when it comes to furnishing something substantial to take their place, it is another story, with the critic generally scheming or side-stepping the question.

Chronic Nuisance

The chronic letter-writer, said the speaker, often developed into a nuisance, crank or pest. He should be put in the same category as those persons who are everlastingly condemning or denouncing aldermen, civic officials, the rate of taxation, assessment, etc, yet will never consent to do their part, either by becoming a candidate for office, or accepting any responsibility on a representative body such as the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Education, Parks Commission, etc. Every city, town and hamlet has these croakers who are long on words and short on action. Instead of being tolerant, and broadminded, helpful and hopeful they go along constantly grumbling in letters to press or private in their every day conversation and never seem to be happy unless they have a grumble or grievance.

Other highlights and sidelights "Letters to the Editor" were interestingly given by the speaker, and his address was punctuated with humorous anecdotes.

Col. Cecil Farmer expressed Rotary appreciation to the speaker.

THREE TRAPPERS ARE FOUND DEAD

Retreating Winter Leads to Discovery of Triple Tragedy

Quebec, May 4 (CP)—Chill winter, retreating slowly from Quebec's northland, left a story of triple tragedy etched on the country's rugged face today.

Three trappers died, each alone, in the solitude of deep winter. Miles apart they died, as numbing cold overtook them; yet each had called the same village his home.

The news of their deaths came out of Seven Islands last night. As word of the deaths came out of the north to the village on the Gulf of St. Lawrence shore, Villagers could only guess at how long the trio had been dead before that.

Paul Blanchette, after trying vainly to carry Absalom Gamache's body into the village, laid of finding his companion 300 miles north of Seven Islands. They had gone north together and separated with Lac Gras the rendez-vous.

Blanchette kept it, only to find Gamache dead on the frozen lake surface, his snowshoes still strapped on. Exhaustion and cold apparently claimed him.

Alexandre Bellefleur and William Boyd died 28 miles apart and 100 north of home. An Indian guide found Bellefleur dead in bed at Riviere Moisy, his blanket-wrapped body frozen and an open book beside the still fingers

REPEATED CLAIM TO VOTE

Montreal, May 4 (CP)—Appearing before the commission appointed to investigate the plight of small property owners in regard to mortgages and tax arrears, Miss Irene Jolly again advocated the claim of Quebec women to vote in provincial elections.

CROONS FOR TRADE

PONTIFF WRITES 'WHITE PAPER'

Plan to Show German Government Violated Concordat

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 3 (AP)—Prelates disclosed tonight that Pope Pius is finishing a "white book," or compilation of documents and records, to show that Chancellor Hitler's German Government—not the Vatican—has violated the Church-State Concordat with the Reich.

He will issue it, these prelates said, if Hitler's blinde toward the Church "becomes more offensive".

Berlin, May 3 (AP)—German party by night trains to the capital of the city and compels against merchants that have established business. Aldermen Lewis spoke in the opinion, that the by-law should be borrowed from the statutes as he thought Mr. Chapman was entitled to rebate in this instance.

A petition from the residents on Bates Street protesting the zoning of that street this summer was received by the council and referred back to the oding committee. The committee will inspected the streets and will at an early date give a report to council on their findings and the measures that should be oded this coming summer.

Parallel Parking to Stay

A petition was also received from all the merchants on Front Street from Bridge Street to Church Streets protesting against the repeal by-law making parallel parking in that area in diagonal form. The council took no action on the petition and parallel parking in the area will exist for the time being at least. The merchants in their request believed that business would be diverted from this area by the enactment of the council and this would be a detriment to their business. Alderman Greenleaf and Kennedy were a committee appointed to consult the city solicitor in connection with a proposed by-law as to the inspection and manufacture of bread in the city.

Two by-laws were up for ratification, one confirming the agreement between the city and James E. Glass for the collection of garbage in the coming year and naother to ratify the assessment roll. Both by-laws were passed through the various stages without discussion. There being no further business the council adjourned. Those present were Mayor Arnott, Aldermen Wills, Thompson, Clapp, Jennings, Barnard, Kennedy, Greenleaf, Cushing, Barlow, Armstrong and Lewis. Alderman Clapp was in the chair in the Committee of the Whole and on by-laws.

TIN-CAN BANK UNSAFE

Taber, Alta. (CP)—When fire destroyed the farm home of Andrew Meagres, in this town, 60 miles south of Calgary, he lost not only $350 in clothing and household effects, but $150 in bills secreted in an old tin-can.

TRAP TRESPASS DISCOURAGED

Fernie, B.C., (CP)—First conviction under a new law caused $100 fine to be imposed upon John Hampton here, charged with trespassing on another man's trap line.

RATE DWINDLING

Winnipeg (CP)—Since 1918 rat population of Winnipeg has been diminished by 113,647 at a total cost in bounties of $5,682.

19-YEAROLD WIFEFACES ATTEMPTED MURDER

Edmonton, May 3 (CP)—Charged with attempted murder, Mrs. John V. Labine, 19 year old wife of Flat Lake, Alta., farmer, was held by police here today.

She was arrested Saturday after, allegedly firing two shots at Adolph F. Dreger, Edmonton farm implement dealer. Her husband was taken into custody at the same time property owners in regard to their mortgages and tax arrears. Miss Irene Jolly again advocated the claim of Quebec women to vote in provincial elections.

Police said Dreger told them Mrs Labine came to his house Saturday and tried to persuade him to give her money. He said she pulled a revolver from her pocket, followed him from the front porch where they had been talking and fired at him twice while he was telephoning police. Neither shot hit Dreger.

COUNCIL TO SEEK ADVICE OF BOARD AS TO PROCEDURE

Ald. Laurie Lewis Hopes to Carry Out Wishes of Electorate

NO REBATE GIVEN

Request of Mr. Sugarman of Kingston is Filed by Council

In order to carry out the wishes of the electorate respecting the City Manageship form of government and a reduced council, Alderman Laurie Lewis moved a motion: "that the advice of the Municipal Board be sought as to the best procedure for establishment of City Manager form of government and reduced council this having been decided upon by a majority vote at the polls at which was unanimously adopted by the council at their regular meeting on Monday night, it being the shortest session of the year. Alderman Jennings, speaking in favor of the motion, stated that the vote taken would be a unanimous one. Another motion was to the effect that the tourist camp be opened on Friday night next which was carried. Notice of general invitation being extended to the citizens to be present. Considerable improvement had been made in the tourist camp this year and the manager is now busy expecting a much better season than formerly. The buildings have been painted. The flag pole has been erected and a new flag purchased, while the tables and buildings have all been repaired.

Rebate Not Granted

Mr. Sugarman of Kingston, communicated with the council respecting a rebate of part of the money paid for Tweed Ladies' Athletic Traders By-law with Alderman Lewis' approving of the request but the council saw fit to turn down the request. Mr. Sugarman quoted the business done during the the Frontenac Auto Electric Concord Fair in 1936 and the profits the city the sum of $200 of which he has received back $50 by the business tax assessment. The council members were of the opinion, that if it was paid back to the merchants have to be treated the same way as this would create the object of the by-law, which is to prevent by night traders coming into the city and compete against merchants that have established business. Alderman Lewis spoke in the opinion, that the by-law should be borrowed from the statutes as he thought Mr. Sugarman was entitled to rebate in this instance.

A petition from the residents on Bates Street protesting the zoning of that street this summer was received by the council and referred back to the oding committee. The committee will inspected the streets and will at an early date give a report to council on their findings and the measures that should be oded this coming summer.

Those present were Mayor Arnott, Aldermen Wills, Thompson, Clapp, Jennings, Barnard, Kennedy, Greenleaf, Cushing, Barlow, Armstrong and Lewis. Tweed—Tweed Ladies' Athletic Association was organized with the following officers:

Hon. Pres.—Miss Elizabeth Stewart. B. A.; Pres.—Myrtle Dack; Vice pres.—Secretaries, Rathwaite Bergey, Jean Sills; Treas.—Ana Thompson; Manager—Harold Wilson.

A ladies' softball team will be organized and an effort will be made to arrange a Soft Ball League with Madoc, Marmora and Stirling. Applications will be made with the provincial Women's Softball Union.

W. J. Gebourie has taken over the Ford Motor Agency for Tweed and district. He will conduct his business in the building owned and formerly occupied by E. W. Jones and carry a full line of agricultural implements. Associated with him is Clayton Deline, distributor for Stewart-Warner radios, who will also conduct a Radio Service Shop.

Inspectors Hoist and Andrews of the Bank of Montreal were at the local branch for several days during the past week.

Mr. James Purru has been engaged by Tom Bailey to assist in his Meat Shop for the summer months.

Several boys and young men opened the swimming season on Saturday, May 1st, at Tweed Memorial Park. The warm spring sunshine caused a rummaging around among the moth-balls in the old trunk, or wherever swimming equipment spends the off-season, for bathing suits. They report conditions quite favorable.

Miss Mavis McGuire, B. A., of Queen's University has returned home for the summer.

Mr. Hillard Murphy, Bobcaygeon formerly of Tweed, has been elected president of the Man's Bowling Club of that place.

At the April meeting of Hungerford Township Council the following officers were appointed for 1937:

Rev. R. R. Nicholson gave an excellent address on Sunday morning at the United Church. It was a nature sermon entitled "Look at the Birds." "Birds are God's most marvellous creatures" said the speaker. Of the sixteen thousand birds in the world, twelve hundred are native to Canada. The skill and intelligence of birds is shown in the construction of their nests. The humming bird, with its wonderful chimney swift and king-fisher show special wisdom in building for safety from enemies.

Some birds fly exceedingly great distances in migration. The Golden-Plover makes a non-stop flight from Nova Scotia to British Guiana, a distance of 2,400 miles in 48 hours. The Arctic Tern summers within the Arctic Circle and winters within the Antarctic Circle, making the eleven thousand mile flight twice within the year. Even the tiny humming-bird can fly the 500 mile wide Gulf of Mexico in a single night, while the homing pigeon has recorded the almost unbelievable speed of 97 miles an hour. No engine made by man can equal its power and endurance the heart and wings of the bird.

The migratory instinct in birds is strong. They are very regular in the time of their migration from northern North America to South America in the autumn and their return in the spring.

The economic value of birds is their most important value. They destroy noxious weeds, seeds, and harmful insects, and act as scavengers. Already half a million insects have been named and classified and four times that number are still to be named according to science. The birds are our most valuable allies without birds, which feed upon these injurious insects, life would be a poor, lonely, cheerless world. Wordsworth, Lampman and others loved the birds and many are the songs which they have written about them and they have written about them.

CO-OPERATION APPRECIATED

Col. Peacock, Brigadier Bunton and his workers of the Salvation Army have given heroic service in connection with the relief work in the city of London during the floods of last week. Some of the Salvation Army members were put in charge of feeding refugees at the armouries. Just as soon as word was received in Toronto, the new chief secretary there was right behind the brigadier and immediately dispatched a truck load of new clothing and food supplies to the scene of the flooding. That is practical service in time of distress.

WORLD IS SHOCKED

"The human mind is inclined to be shocked at new knowledge of how cruel it can be," says the Christian Science Monitor, referring to the reported ferocity of the scenes at Guernica when air bombers and machine gunners shot down a fleeing civilian population. This assault, the paper says was more than a raid on Guernica, it was an assault on the humane sensibilities of civilized people everywhere.

The human mind "imagines that it can go on devising even more destructive machines for the slaughter of human beings, can go on thinking in terms of shrapnel, incendiary bombs, leaden hailstones and poison fogs and become kinder, as it were, in inverse proportions to the increasing outward manifestation of latent cruelty."

The Monitor goes on to comment that the action of these bombers who troubled not to attack an armament plant, was felt across the world, stirring anger. So loud did the sounds ring in the ears of British Government circles as to have laid for evacuation of the helpless civilians from Bilbao in the face of one of the warring Spanish parties.

The Monitor points out that the slaughter of the helpless in hospitals, of fathers, mothers and children in the streets and in the fields where they stood defenceless against robot vultures was only propaganda to show what would happen to those who did not obey campaign of "education." It is clear that not one of the refugees who escaped is convinced that those who can perform or allow such scenes of horror are qualified for the role of making peace in any country.

HOLDING FAST TO TRADITION

Momentous days are just ahead in England. From all quarters of the Empire and from foreign strands come thousands upon thousands to have the privilege and honor of witnessing a portion of the pageantry associated with the crowning of His Majesty King George Sixth in the West Elizabeth in the 14th-century old Abbey of Westminster. Into this pageantry is woven the history of development of a nation and an empire which stands in a unique place among the greatest confederations of all time since 1936.

Ancient empires had no such opportunities as the British Empire has had in these days for there is not only the difference of political motives which inspire nations and empires but also the vast changes in regard to knowledge of the world and the relations of even the smallest of states in the world to the world movements. Never was such an Empire possible before and there is no other such. It is this vast growth which is summed up in the coronation pageantry.

Into a world which is intensely materialistic and mechanical is brought the pure breath of faith expressed in the part which Divine Providence may play in the guidance of the state's affairs as some other states executives are installed with due national and religious ceremony, but in none is the pageantry so impressive as in the British scene. It is a dramatization of a vital living national spirit.

Nations which have lost or never had such a form as the coronation, most people will be inclined to agree, miss much. The majority of people will agree with the resolution of the Right Honorable Winston Churchill in the report of the special Civil Lists Committee read in the House of Commons yesterday that "whereas the ancient usages and ceremonies centring upon the Crown have become, even more than in former times, a bulwark against dictatorship and a symbol of the union of all members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, we hereby affirm we do not desire any change in the style and establishment of the sovereign and his family."

Labor Leader Attlee had moved an amendment that "greater simplicity in the state and ceremonial of the court is desirable to bring it to accord with modern conceptions" but this was lost, Attlee's suggestion meaning those who carry "the burden of kingship should be allowed to enjoy so far as it is consistent with their high office the freedom which belongs to those of private station."

But the idea of the coronation through British history as it has grown means so much more than the mere placing of the crown on the head, it is a ceremony with a symbolic value, which Britain would not yield for any simpler ceremony in the world. It is well to see a land not potent in a strange age of turmoil (in which so many traditions are going into the discard) still holding fast to what has a spiritual value far beyond the power of the mind or men to conceive, because it is a natural growth, yet in closest keeping with the spirit of the race.

ENGLAND TAKES TO MILK

Milk as a healthful and refreshing beverage is receiving widespread acceptance throughout Great Britain where the opening of scores of "milk bars" in the more populous centres has been a great blessing to the dairy farmers who have witnessed a consequent improvement in the demand for their output, says the Brockville Recorder.

To the patronage which is being given these establishments there is now being added a large consumption of milk in factories. Within the past four months, it is announced, the managements of no fewer than 445 factories in the Birmingham area have made arrangements for the mid-morning supply of milk to their operatives. Since the latter number more than 110,000 in the aggregate, it may be readily understood what this new market will mean to the producers who supply the city of Birmingham, and if the practice is adopted in other industrial centres, many of the troubles of the dairy farmers may be at an end.

In spite of the importance of dairying in this country and the necessity of a good market being available for those engaged in it, we have yet to begin to appreciate the advantages of milk as a beverage as they are being appreciated in Britain.

GRANNY SMITH COMES TO CANADA

The countries of origin of our imported fruits are always of interest, especially during the winter months when we get delicious fresh fruit and wonder why. Apples, for example. The enterprising shopkeeper may introduce a Australian apple to his customer and give it that enticing name of Granny Smith. These New Zealand apples come in when our own are out of season, no fewer than 18,000 barrels of them landed in this Dominion during the fiscal year 1936.

Our fresh tomatoes came mainly from Mexico last year, nearly 18 million pounds out of over 39 million. The British West Indies and Bermuda supplied the next largest quantities, at over seven million, while from the United States we got over six million. Most people call the tomato a vegetable but we need not argue over that.

We got $5,772,000 worth of oranges, of which $5,239,000 came from the United States alone. There was a heavy drop in the imports from British South Africa, Australia, Palestine, Japan and Spain, the decrease from Spain being no doubt due to the disturbed conditions in the country although the imports of certain other commodities have kept well up despite the sad war.

Fresh grapes came mainly from the United States but we got 88,000 pounds from Australia, as well as 67,000 pounds of pears.

The most widely used dried fruit that we import is the raisin. Long ago it was Spain that sent the big supplies and later the United States, but Australia has taken their place. From that country we got last year 26 million pounds out of 35 million. South Africa is now taking a strong hand in this trade. Practically all our dried currants came also from Australia; Greece was once the main source.

Dried dates came mainly from Iraqq, perhaps better known as Mesopotamia, dried figs from Turkey, canned pineapples from the Straits Settlements, with Australia second, and canned pears from Australia, according to the External Trade Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Department of Trade and Commerce."

In religious not to do as thou sayest, is to unsay thy religion in thy deeds, and to undo thyself by doing.—Venning.

Is Relief to Be Permanent?

The Work Progress Administration of the United States has made known its settled conclusion that, even at the peak of prosperity, there will always be at least 4,000,000 unemployed persons in that country and that its Federal Government will be required to spend from $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 each year to provide them with purchasing power so that business and industrial stagnation will be prevented. There is also belief that President Roosevelt has adopted this as a permanent policy of his administration. At any rate, he has accepted the estimate of $1,500,000,000 as being necessary to carry on relief activities during the coming fiscal year, while reducing other expenditures in order to make this possible.

It must be remembered that in Canada, as elsewhere, there has always been unemployment, even during the best of times. This has been particularly true of this winter months when various industrial and other operations are temporarily suspended and when a comparatively large number of individuals drop themselves out of employment. Even during the "boom" period which preceded the depression there were very few communities in Canada which did not have a winter relief problem on their hands. Charitable organizations joined with civil authorities in providing for unemployed and with a bare subsistence, along with fuel and sometimes clothing, and there is every indication that no matter how conditions may improve, they will be required to do likewise during succeeding winters in the event of governments withdrawing the financial assistance which they have given so liberally during the years of the slump.

The unemployment relief is represented as having become a permanent problem. But it has always been with us. There are always people insufficiently provident to retain enough of their summer earnings to tide them over the winter but as there are always many others who, because of age, physical infirmities or want of good management, find themselves in want of assistance when the snow begins to fall. This problem has been intensified through the fact that savings of many individuals having been exhausted in the struggle of the past few years they have had to go on relief who have become almost completely impoverished. These will have to be provided in some manner for years to come and if governments decline to do what they are made to feel that no home but their own is free from individual action in localities with municipal organizations unless there is to be a great deal of hardships and suffering.

This is not to say that people who are able to work yet refuse to accept employment when it is offered to them should be encouraged in such an attitude or made to feel that no matter how little they may exert themselves, they and their dependents will be provided for. There is a grave danger of such a feeling gaining ground, and there have been experienced to receive their regular relief hand-outs when employment was offering at fair wages. In some cases times consider that, when it is available, they should strive it in the knowledge that they and those depending upon them will be provided for. The case is not, however, as employment relief as a permanent policy, there must be every certainty that those receiving it are fully entitled to it. The alternative is to have a generation of shirkers and loafers who will become a burden to their fellow-citizens for years to come.

—Brockville Recorder and Times

The Vanishing Robin

Five and twenty blackbirds went into a famous pie. A pie can also be made of five and twenty robins' eggs. Unlike the blackbirds, however, the robins won't fly out.

That's why some of your favorite robins haven't shown up this Spring to brag about your ear to the city with worms. They were sold for two cents apiece.

On their way north, millions and millions of the perky red-breasts assembled in a swamp near Chadd's Hill, N. C. They filled the sky by day by night the pines and cedars bent under their weight.

And at night, hundreds of men and boys went in and slaughtered the sleeping birds wholesale with clubs. The robins were worth just two cents apiece in the packing cities of Durham and Burlington.

Not a single one happened at other points where the robins congregated on their journey northward.

So tremendous was the killing that the United States Biological Survey and the State Conservation Department sent agents in to put a stop to it.

In such a manner was the pastime of robin extermination. For a few cents a bird, and through Flanders fields in Belgium.—New York Journal.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 4th., 1917.

Mr. W. A. Chapman, a former resident of Thurlow Township, now of Norway House on the Nelson River, Manitoba, is visiting with H. E. Dennis in this city. Mr. Chapman comes east with good reports from that section of the Canadian west, particularly the work of the Rev. George F. Dennis, son of H. E. Dennis, who is principal of the Indian Industrial at Norway House and also missionary to about 1,000 Indians. Last year the Government gave $12,000 for the erection of the institution of learning and the Methodist Church has also assisted materially. Norway House is about 350 miles beyond Winnipeg and is a great fishing district. Thousands of tons of fish were taken from there each year during the past winter. Letters to the Editor

AN IDEA ON THE HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN

Belleville, Ont.,

To the Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

The last day or so there has been considerable advertising, in all the prominent daily papers re the Home Improvement Plan.

As an ordinary citizen I fail to see where the plan as at present in force can help the unemployed or the home owner.

The home owner pays 6.22 per cent. to the banks and 8 per cent sales tax making a total of 14.22 per cent. on all transactions. Where is the inducement to do any repairs or new building other than is really imperative?

On the other hand if the Government would cancel the 8 per cent. sales tax on all materials bought under the H.I.P. there would be, in my humble opinion, a rush to take part in the said plan.

Thanking you for this space in your papers.

Yours truly,
A Home Owner.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma took me up on the Avenue to buy me a pair of rubbers on account of one of mine having holes in it and the other one being lost, and we went around to the "ending south" store and there was a bewly looking lady in the window showing how to shave a wooden dummy with a funny looking knife. I thought I'd say a word to her other hand saying on it: Marcello Converitbe Razor. Guaranteed to Cut Wrisk. Sharpen on Both Sides. It from a 2 Inch Safety to a 6 Inch Old Time Razor.

What, for, may I said, and ma said, I'm sure I don't know, but seems I'm highly mistaken your father will come home bearing a present for my budget in the store window is easy prey for him, she said.

And smile when pop came home he had a little clumsy package, and how Willyum Potts what have you got now?

Why the mourning voice? pop said. This is still a backward country and the plants are scarce or is assumed to be innocent until he is proved gifty, he said, and ma said, I know what you are bringing home without you telling me.

The dooce you do, how do you? pop said, and ma said, Because I'm a practical gazer, that's why.

And she went and looked through the side of the goldfish bowl, and said, What's this a pet? I see a loading crowd outside a chuggestion store and when this the biggest lossler of all? Why pop, I know what you are pushing rite and left until you get into that store. And what are you doing now? You're looking guilty at the show window, 'scuse seems to be a lady in there, but that could be impossible, so we'll set it pass, but the upshot of the business is that you buy some kind of a trick razor, am I rite, Willyum? ma said.

You were never more wrong in your life, what I've got here is a Marcelloconveritbe and lemmon squeezer, pop said, and ma said, Let me see it.

It's not to be opened till next Christmas, pop said. And he stuck it in his pockit and we started to eat supper.

Made in Japan

The other day we went into a store in a nearby town with a friend who was shopping around and we saw a large number of lead pencils at four for five cents. The pencils were all shades and colors and had rubbers on them. We picked up one of these pencils and carefully examined it. It was made of some kind of light wood, hexagon in shape, painted, varnished, but at the same time a mighty good pencil for the five-tithe of a cent. We bought a few bt them and tried one of them out. The graphite, for "lead" pencils are not lead pencils at all, but graphite, was soft and black and worked. Further examining this pencil we learned that it was made in Japan. consequently the wood used in its manufacture was not familiar to anybody who knows the difference in Canadian woods. But what beats us is how the Japanese pencil-makers can manufacture and pay shipping charges on such good pencils at such a low price that Canadian manufacturers find it such small quantities at such ridiculously low prices. The store where we purchased these writing necessities undoubtedly made a good profit on them so the cost to them must have been ridiculously low. We have in Canada manufacturers of lead pencils who must find the market hard to crack on account of these cheap products from Japan. And it is too bad, too, as our Canadian manufacturers require the business to keep their employees out of the bread line.

But it is not only in lead pencils that the Japanese are making it difficult for the Canadian manufacturer to make a living at all. We were told not so long ago that Indian coats made in Japan. were being sold in Montreal, after cost of importation, shipping charges and a fair profit had been added, for the small sum of four dollars and ninety-eight cents. Canadian manufacturers examined these garments and stated that it was impossible for them in their well equipped factories to turn out as good an article for anywhere near the price that Montreal merchants were asking for these coats.

Thus it would appear that while we may purchase products made in Japan at less cost that for the same class of articles made in Canada yet we make up the difference in paying into the government money to go to the relief of those who are kept from employment because of the importation of much that is made in sweat-shops, by child labor, or by workmen who are paid the wages of the Oriental—a few cents a day. Evidently it is the side of our nose to spite our face in the matter of buying foreign made goods in preference to that made from the products of our own soil.

How long is this going to last?

Advocate.

Life of Riley for British Tommy

The thin red line of 'eroes was replaced by the gentlemen in khaki on parade each against Coon Fanal, and now Tommy Atkins is to have a handsome blue walking-out uniform, at the Government's expense.

He wear when walking out with his best girl; he is to be better paid and better fed; he is to be relieved of fatigue duties.

A cartoon in Punch shows John Bull trying to persuade himself into an infantry uniform of the Victorian era, and he is lamenting that there isn't the spirit for soldiering there used to be. The Secretary for War's proposals mean, at least, that get the recruits that are so sorely needed.

The authorized strength of the British army is 198,000 (excluding Indian forces in India), actual strength is 21,000 below this figure, and recruiting continues only just. A quarter century ago the regular army establishment numbered 220, 220, with 88,711 additional troops (including natives) in India; army reserves, 139,000; special reserve, 91,519; militia forces in the United Kingdom was marked "strength" but territorials numbered 317,100. In July, 1914 just before the Great War, the total army establishment was 714,000 as compared with 469,000 last year as follows:

	1914	1938
Regular army, home	125,000	114,000
India	75,000	75,000
Overseas	32,000	33,500
Reserves	145,000	20,500
Militia	64,000	nil
Supplementary reserve	nil	20,500
Territorials	272,000	130,000

Speakers in Parliament have noted that one of the greatest bars to recruiting is the present long term of enlistment—seven years with the colors and five in the reserves.

In moving the army estimates at $309,288,000, the Secretary for War outlined the new terms of service for the British soldier. "Time was when Tommy (through Kipling) could sing:

'Cheer, boys, cheer,
Bloomin' good pay,
Lucky to join,
A shillin' a day.

Henceforth the cash allowance for a recruit is to be raised to two shillings (50 cents) a day, instead of the year's shilling and nine-pence. (45 cents).

Kitchen-police work is to be done by trained civilians, so that will Tommy peel potatoes, polish the sergeant-major's boots, scrub the floor in the officers' mess, or police the ground outside barracks for cigarette ends.

No longer must the soldier resort to the canteen for his fuel in terms of case, sitting rooms are his, with central heating, hot and cold water and electric fires, and no charge for the fuel scale.

As well as his three meals per day, Tommy is to get his tea. The navy has always had the fourth meal, "because of the sea air."

And he is to get an ounce of butter instead of half that of margarine, and young soldiers will get a ration of milk to build 'em up.

"How long is this Eldorado, Tommy sang'.

Yah! Talk o' better food for us, and schools, an' fires, an' all,
We'll wait for extra rations if you treat us rational.
Don't mess about the cook room slops, but prove it to our face,
The 'Widow's uniform is not the soldier man's disgrace.

Oh, yes and it may be fitting to recall the same Tommy's letter home:

"It's Special train for Aldine' when the trooper's on the tide."

Ellen gets Her Man

FIRST INSTALMENT

It was spring in the Three Rivers Country. Over night almost, it seemed, the gentler season—had come.

Even the great, roaring Athabasca River had begun to relax. Where it first broke the ice-ribbed barriers of winter it had bowled, and groaned and roared with release of pent-up power, crashing and pounding in the darkness for five days. But now, the initial battle over with, it had lowered its voice to a crooning, lisping murmur, its coppery flood sliding swiftly away to the northward, where, thousands of miles distant, those waters would finally hold rendezvous with the silent, Arctic sea.

John Benham, bent over the intricacies of a splice in a mooring line, whistled as he worked. Surging to the depths of his great chest was a wild, haunting happiness, which always came to him when the far, dim trails were open and beckoning. His face bent eagerly to his work, was lean and brown, with a bone, nose, lips and chin cleanly and strongly carved, his eyes, deepset, steady and sparkling grey, were restless in their clarity and his heavy flannel shirt failed to hide, by any shoulders and opened at the throat the dark, curling hair on his chest. His hands, waving cunningly at the moment, were long, strong and nimble. The tremendous virility of the man seemed to give rise from his great, muscular and powerful current.

Ellen Mackay standing there on the crest of the sloping bank, distinctly sensed that current. It almost frightened her, yet it aroused also to awaken a nameless, responsive thrill which speeded the beat of her heart and set her pulses throbbing. And where she had approached in the first place with a pretty maid's forward air of arrogance, she now hesitated, swayed by a curious timidity.

Benham shook his head slowly. "I'm afraid that makes your request impossible, Miss."

The man was unconscious of her proximity. Some of the wind-blown hair had covered her light-footed approach. Benham's head was bent over his work. Beyond him, about the remains of the moon fire, sprawled the men of his crew, while still farther on, five keen, loaded bateaux, moored at twanging mooring ropes and shifted to and fro as the current of the river, kind of spring and were eager to storm the far leagues of the lonely land.

Ellen Mackay coughed, and was suddenly furious with herself to find that it had been a most apologetic cough indeed. The man's eyes lifted with alert suddenness, and Ellen's slim figure of the girl for a moment, as though, in wonder, she rose to his feet with a lithe surge of power which rippled over him like the wind across a field of wild grass.

"You—you are John Benham?" she began, in the first stir of self-possession.

If Ellen able to keep her tone casual and business-like. The aspect of the man there was almost hypnotic. No wonder John Benham, the factor, had spoken of a power among the far gatherers of the North.

"Yes," came the quiet, deep tones. "I am Benham."

"I am Ellen Mackay. I have to leave immediately for Fort Edson. I had intended to go with the Selkirk brigade, but I was delayed at Edmonton and De Soto has gone on without me. Pat McCluskey told me that you leave in the morning. If you will give me passage to Fort Edson I will see that you are well paid for your trouble."

For a moment Benham did not answer. His eyes rested steadily on the girl, unwaveringly, startlingly clear. Yet he did not look at her as other men had looked. His gaze was speculative, not personal—thoughtful, not amorous.

Presently he spoke. "You are Ellen Mackay. Then your father is Angus Mackay, Hudson Bay factor at Fort Edson?"

"Yes. Angus Mackay is my father."

A queer, hard light grew into being in Benham's eyes and he shook his head slowly. "I'm afraid that makes your request impossible, Miss."

Ellen stiffened, spots of colour flaming on her smooth cheeks. "I—I do not understand."

Benham looked at her curiously. "This is your first journey in the north for some time, isn't it?" he asked.

"I—yes. I've been to school at Winnipeg."

"Then it is natural that you would not understand. Should you go north with my brigade your father would disown you. For I am Benham, a free trader—the free trader to your father's life. My name is anathema to him. He hates me unreasonably. He curses me every thought of my existence. He even hates Miss Mackay, the Dresden doll, quietly. "But it is impossible."

For a long moment Ellen stood, swayed by many emotions, of which a riding anger was uppermost. This was the most unusual experience of her life. Why, the man had acted almost like a churl. His flat refusal was stunning with its impact, the more so because it had been so unexpected. For, during the past four years, men had vied with one another to please Ellen Mackay's every whim, to anticipate her wishes. Should you go north with my brigade your father would disown you. For I am Benham, a free trader—the free trader to your father's life. My name is anathema to him. He hates me unreasonably. He curses me every thought of my existence. He even hates Miss Mackay, the Dresden doll, quietly. "But it is impossible."

His flat refusal was stunning with its impact, the more so because it had been so unexpected. For, during the past four years, men had vied with one another to please Ellen Mackay's every whim, to anticipate her wishes.

Now if ya had gone to him as old Pat suggested, and used a wee bit of trickery on him, no doobt he would have been glad to take her.

"Twas the fact that, ye are Angus Mackay's lass that spoiled things, I'll wager."

"It appeared to be," admitted Ellen. "But I don't see why that should have made any difference. If he and my father have disagreed over something it is no reason why he should visit his spleen on me. I never saw such a mannerless clod. And as far as telling him I am a woman else beside my true self—I wouldn't think of it. I—I'll admit I took him my last chance to get north, but I won't lie, even for that."

Pat smiled on his maledorous black briar for a time in silence. "Let's get our heads together," he said at last. "I have a wee idea that may be of value."

At first Ellen shook her head in flat denial as Pat unfolded his scheme to her. But the more she thought it over the more the wild daring of it began intrigued her. In addition, when she had told Pat on arriving at Athabasca Landing, that it was important that she get north immediately to join her father, she had not told every word of it. Old Angus Mackay was a proud and haughty man and, knowing him as she did, Ellen knew that only the direst necessity could have caused him to write as he had in the letter she had received from him on the day she graduated from Winnipeg. Her father needed her. But why, she could only guess at. But why she could only guess at. But the Mackays had always been thick and clannish. And that was why Ellen had her own feelings in the matter and finally agreed to Pat's plan.

"I'll do it," she said thoughtfully. "I'll do it—if you can make the arrangements as you suggest."

There was little in the way of packing for Ellen to do. During her years at college she had not forgotten that the north country was a country of essentials, not frills. A suitcase and a small trunk was all the baggage she had brought, and after it became necessary, she was ready to discard the trunk. So she soon had things in shape, then stretched out for a little rest on the blankets of her bunk.

At first the tumult of her thoughts made even a hint of sleep impossible. She heard old Pat clumping about in the store, and after a little came in the room of his voice as he talked for a time with someone. Ellen's thoughts then came back to John Benham. Her mind was made up to like him, but she disliked him thoroughly. But when she endeavoured to isolate the reason for this she failed. Not very long in spite of the unreasonable rancour she felt, she had to admit, in all fairness, that her charge of rudeness on his part was not correct. She had asked a question and he had given her a straightforward answer. That it had not been the answer she had desired and expected did not constitute rudeness. His words and manner had been respectful, but none the less adamant. And it was this latter fact that Ellen hardly realised it, which had aroused her.

A masterful man. Ugh! How she loathed masterful men. With a little grimace of contemplation she remembered that simply by glancing at her he had shattered her self-aplomb in a most disturbing manner.

And so John Benham and the father were at loggerheads. Very well, if Angus Mackay hated that free trader, then Angus Mackay's daughter would hate him also. She had that right, and she would take a slack of her little white teeth. She did also conclude that her father's judgment in such a matter. She wondered what the cause of the enmity was between her father and John Benham. She mused over this to no conclusion, and fell asleep.

It was dark when she awoke, Pat McCluskey was calling her gently by the shoulder.

"Come, lass", the old fellow murmured, "supper is ready. Afterward He would talk with you."

Ellen thanked him, left the store, now dimly lit by the yellow beams of a lamp, and went down the steep edge of the glow was a huge dark figure of a man. As Ellen entered the stranger rugged off his red woollen cap and stood twisting it between two powerful hands.

SECOND INSTALMENT

"This is Angus Mackay's lass, Pierre," announced Pat.

Pierre Bouchard murmured a respectful greeting and continued to twist his cap. Ellen smiled and advanced close to the giant riverman.

"You are going to help me, Pierre?"

"Oui, oui, mam'selle," rumbled the big fellow. "Mi'sieu Benham, he's mad lak' wolf at Pierre Buschard, he mad lak' wolf at Pierre. You bet Pierre do wat he can. You come wit' Pierre now mam'selle, and we must be quiet lak' lynx when he stalk dat rabbit."

Ellen, victim to a sudden tumultuous thrill, scurried away and donned her mackinaw and cap. Back in the big room she stood on her lagging legs and peered Pat McCluskey on one whiskery cheek with her red pursed lips.

"I'll remember this, Pat," she promised.

"Ye little rough lass, how stick to your guns and I gamble this will come out well enough. I'm sure of your safety, for whatever else he may be, John Benham is a gentleman and the finest river man in the north. I've run along with Pierre and do just as he says. He has already taken charge of your luggage."

Pat gave Ellen's arm a squeeze and shook hands with Pierre Buschard. The next thing Ellen knew Pierre had taken her by the elbow and was guiding her steps down the sloping bank of the river.

It was still out there, vastly except for the ceaseless beat of the river while the night throbbed to the power of the limitless wilderness which stretched away to the north. A faint, haunting, quavering note drifted down from across the massed stars. The geese were winging north. All things were stirring to life. Ellen found herself thrilling with a strange, wild ecstasy.

There was a low, Peterborough canoe pulled up on the shore, and in the bow of this Ellen glimpsed the girl. Then he shoved off, balancing himself deftly in the stern, while he lifted and dipped a gleaming paddle. The buoyant craft trembled before the grip of the river, but headed against the current and slide silently upstream.

Ahead a jutting point loomed, still as a wind-blown shadow they rounded the point and drifted back wards again. Uncouth shapes took form in the night. Ellen recognized the loaded scows of John Benham's brigade. The canoe drifted in and Pierre laid the nearest scow, gently Pierre Buschard stepped to the scow and held the Peterborough firm.

Spray drenched her and the wind of their speed civelled at her face.

"Come, mam'selle," he whispered. Ellen stepped out beside him. Pierre indicated the massed cargo of freight upon the scow. He lifted up one edge of the tarpaulin which covered the pile. "Under here," he directed. "You must hide. For a day and a night you must hide, mam'selle. Den we will shoot dat Cascade Rapid. M'sieu Benham, she's not send you back after dat. Den we put dat food and water and blankets, mam'selle. And Pierre, he'll watch out for you."

Ellen gripped Pierre's huge paw with both her slim hands. "You are a dear, Pierre," she murmured. "I will never forget this."

"Bah," he grinned. "She's make me happy to help, mam'selle. You hide now, quick."

Her head beating thunderously, Ellen crept beneath the edge of the tarpaulin and crouched quietly. She felt, the slight quiver of the scow as Pierre left it. Alone now. Alone and fully committed to a great adventure. The future might bring disaster, but right now Ellen felt no fear. Only a stirring anticipation.

She remembered those strings, marvellously clear, almost hypnotic eyes of John Benham. Strange, at this time they rested on her — what was the stranger's regard of his red woollen cap and stood twisting it between two powerful hands.

DR. CHASE'S PARADOL

Pat McCluskey's little store there at Athabasca Landing, her anger and disappointment were easily apparent to the big, genial storekeeper.

"He—he turned me down—flat," she burst out. "He's a brute."

Kindly old Pat nodded commiseratingly. "Ay," he mumbled. "Ay lass, he is a brute—but rather a magnificent brute at that. I was afraid. Now if ya had gone to him as old Pat suggested, and used a wee bit of trickery on him, no doobt he would have been glad to take ye.

I never saw such a mannerless clod. And as far as telling him I am a woman else beside my true self—I wouldn't think of it. I—I'll admit I took him my last chance to get north, but I won't lie, even for that."

Pat smiled on his maledorous black briar for a time in silence. "Let's get our heads together," he said at last. "I have a wee idea that may be of value."

At first Ellen shook her head in flat denial as Pat unfolded his scheme to her. But the more she thought it over the more the wild daring of it began intrigued her. In addition, when she had told Pat on arriving at Athabasca Landing, that it was important that she get north immediately to join her father, she had not told every word of it. Old Angus Mackay was a proud and haughty man and, knowing him as she did, Ellen knew that only the direst necessity could have caused him to write as he had in the letter she had received from him on the day she graduated from Winnipeg. Her father needed her. But why, she could only guess at. But why she could only guess at. But the Mackays had always been thick and clannish. And that was why Ellen had her own feelings in the matter and finally agreed to Pat's plan.

"I'll do it," she said thoughtfully. "I'll do it—if you can make the arrangements as you suggest."

There was little in the way of packing for Ellen to do. During her years at college she had not forgotten that the north country was a country of essentials, not frills. A suitcase and a small trunk was all the baggage she had brought, and after it became necessary, she was ready to discard the trunk. So she soon had things in shape, then stretched out for a little rest on the blankets of her bunk.

At first the tumult of her thoughts made even a hint of sleep impossible. She heard old Pat clumping about in the store, and after a little came the murmur of his voice as he talked for a time with someone. Ellen's thoughts then came back to John Benham. Her mind was made up to like him, but she disliked him thoroughly. But when she endeavoured to isolate the reason for this she failed. Not very long in spite of the unreasonable rancour she felt, she had to admit, in all fairness, that her charge of rudeness on his part was not correct. She had asked a question and he had given her a straightforward answer. That it had not been the answer she had desired and expected did not constitute rudeness. His words and manner had been respectful, but none the less adamant. And it was this latter fact that Ellen hardly realised it, which had aroused her.

A masterful man. Ugh! How she loathed masterful men. With a little grimace of contemplation she remembered that simply by glancing at her he had shattered her self-aplomb in a most disturbing manner.

And so John Benham and the father were at loggerheads. Very well, if Angus Mackay hated that free trader, then Angus Mackay's daughter would hate him also. She had that right, and she would take a slack of her little white teeth. She did also conclude that her father's judgment in such a matter. She wondered what the cause of the enmity was between her father and John Benham. She mused over this to no conclusion, and fell asleep.

It was dark when she awoke, Pat McCluskey was calling her gently by the shoulder.

"Come, lass", the old fellow murmured, "supper is ready. Afterward He would talk with you."

Ellen thanked him, left the store, now dimly lit by the yellow beams of a lamp, and went down the steep edge of the glow was a huge dark figure of a man. As Ellen entered the stranger rugged off his red woollen cap and stood twisting it between two powerful hands.

SECOND INSTALMENT

"This is Angus Mackay's lass, Pierre," announced Pat.

Pierre Bouchard murmured a respectful greeting and continued to twist his cap. Ellen smiled and advanced close tiling the barriers of confinement. Spray arose to tingle the lungs. The land leaped and danced like the merest cockleshell. If men were shouting now, then their voices were being beaten back at their lips.

Ellen was not frightened. Her heart was she thrilled to her finger-tips. Here was the true pioneer blood, which beat rich and strong and vibrant in the battle with natural forces. Abruptly the scow pointed its nose shoreward and stepped forth. Confinement had become intolerable. The tarpaulin they did not seem to notice her. With quick, thrilling steps she ran to the front of the scow and braced herself there. Spray drenched her, the wind of speed whistled at her face, in her throat, her hair, her clothes, whipping the latter tight about her slim, valiant figure.

Presently Ellen turned. The crew spied her now, stolid, dark, slotefaced Cree Indians, and they stared at her for a moment in astonishment. Eyes from other scows had marked her presence also, and the axe Pierre Buschard grinning broadly and waving at her. Then one of the big scows headed in towards her own. When the scows were still a good three yards apart a big, bare-headed figure cleared the space in one clean leap of splendidly co-ordinated muscle, and a moment later John Benham was beside her.

"Well," he said slowly, his voice steady and deep, "I see you've won, And by the grin on Pierre Buschard I can guess how you did it."

Ellen's courage came back with a rush. She smiled. "I was desperate," she answered, "It was the only way. I hope you will not be angry with Pierre. He was very kind. And as I said at first, I will pay you well for your trouble."

Benham raised a non-restraining hand. A queer hardness twisted his mouth and a certain glint of anger flashed in his eyes. "My payment is already assured," he said grimly. "I'm not angry, but I'll not accept a pound of flesh."

Ellen stared at him. In a space of seconds he had become somehow more stern and savage. A spirit of recklessness, of defiance, welled up within her. "Then I shall pay you well for your trouble," she repeated. "I—I couldn't be . . . surely . . ."

"Don't—don't personally," he stated with a swift, harsh laugh, reading her thoughts with disconcerting ease. "You'll be safe and Pierre is an old and valued friend. He means well."

A crimson tide again flowed across Ellen's face. "Thank you," she said quietly. "I'm not afraid."

Benham nodded and turned away, being back to the crew he snapped a few terse orders. The Cree leaned muscular backs against the sweeps and under Benham's directions drove the scow up to the bank where Pierre's scow lay.

Ellen's uneasiness grew. Was he angry? Had her bluff after all? Was her triumph to be so short lived? Then—she breathed more easily. Benham, axe in hand, had leaped ashore and was swinging the gleaming blade in swift, powerful strokes among the slender boles of a dwarf birch thicket. In ten minutes time he had felled and trimmed a full dozen of the tapering poles and had passed them aboard. A moment later the scow was again out in the river, scudding northward.

Benham raised a non-restraining hand. A queer hardness twisted his mouth and a certain glint of anger flashed in his eyes. "My payment is already assured," he said grimly. "I'm not angry, but I'll not accept a pound of flesh."

Ellen stared at him. In a space of seconds he had become somehow more stern and savage. A spirit of recklessness, of defiance, welled up within her. "Then I shall pay you well for your trouble," she repeated. "I—I couldn't be . . . surely . . ."

The ROYAL ROAD to the CORONATION

Dogs and Dogs and Dogs—at the Royal Lodge, Windsor Great Park.

RED-BLOODED sportsman from head to foot, with practical experience in most sports which claim their quota of addicts, King George, like most sportsmen, is especially fond of dogs.

Moreover, this partiality to "man's best friend," is shared by the entire royal family, and among the many pets that claim homage from the House of Windsor are an unnumbered list of canine friends. They come in every size, every breed, every color, but each and every one is a thoroughly appreciated, thoroughly loved favorite of some member of the family, and takes its place as a welcomed addogdom by reason of its ownership alone.

The King and Queen like nothing better than to gather in the garden of their home and romp with their daughters and the family dogs. Today's pictures are an example. The scene is set with the family in residence at the Royal Lodge in Windsor Great Park, and the beautiful surroundings of this lovely estate form the background. The Queen, the King and Princess Elizabeth all have their favorites, and though this is only part of the collection of dogs which frolic around the throne—but, of course, in the manner of the King's ancient predecessors, whose hunting dogs filled the throne rooms — they perhaps may be classed as the individual favorites.

"Sidewalk Secrets"

Much of the toil of housecleaning is ended when rugs are kept Langley-cleaned.

History of S. S. 16 Rawdon

About the middle of the nineteenth century when Ontario was in a more primitive stage, a little log school was built, north of the present one. This was burned by forest fire and from that time on, that part of the section was known as "the burnt lands". For some time after that, those who lived in the eastern part of the section, walked to Spry's Settlement School and those on the west side walked to Springbrook. At that time the eleventh concession was only built for two miles east of the present highway. Only a foot path existed from there to the log school. On Sundays the minister rode in on horseback to administer the Gospel.

On December the twenty-sixth, 1868, a general meeting of the ratepayers of School Section No. 16 was called for the purpose of electing three school trustees. Mr. John Thomas Bateman, Mr. Andrew Reid and Mr. Tobias Pursetil were appointed as trustees.

On January fifth, 1869, a special meeting of the ratepayers of School Section No. 16 Rawdon was held at the house of Mr. Andrew Reid for the purpose of selecting a school site. It was moved by Mr. James Bateman and seconded by Mr. Tobias Pursetil that the school site known as the east half of lot No. 5 on the eleventh concession of Rawdon (the present site). It was then decided that the schoolhouse be built, with a balloon frame, twenty-four feet by thirty feet.

On March sixth, 1869, a special meeting of the ratepayers was called for the raising of money to go on the building of the schoolhouse. The trustees were authorized by ratepayers to raise one hundred and fifty dollars from the treasurer of the Township of Rawdon, to pay on contracts for furnishing material for the schoolhouse. The school was completed in 1869. The contractor, Mr. Cecille Demill, estimated the cost at about twelve hundred dollars.

In that same year, at the annual meeting, Mr. John Reed agreed to furnish hardwood for one dollar and forty cents per cord and pine for one dollar and twenty-two cents per cord, Mr. John T. Bateman to be secretary-treasurer and was paid five dollars for his services.

In 1893 the school yard was fenced and a well dug. A year later the section received its first government grant of thirty-six dollars.

In 1896 a special meeting was held to give the Union Sabbath School the privilege of holding Sunday School in the school.

In 1896 the school was insured for four hundred dollars.

During these years, teachers' salaries were shamefully low, being between two and three hundred dollars annually.

In 1909 a new floor was put in the school and at the annual meeting of that same year Mr. John T. Bateman retired and Mr. John Bateman became Secretary-Treasurer.

In 1912 the school was burned on Arbour Day. During the process of cleaning, a hot fire was kindled to heat water. Alas! for the school, the roof caught fire, and so the second school of School Section No. 16 Rawdon disappeared. Most of the desks and other contents were saved.

In May, 1912, a special meeting was called for the purpose of deciding what kind of school to build. It was finally arranged to build a veneered brick building thirty-six feet by twenty-four feet.

On July 3rd, another special meeting was held for the purpose of selecting a site. After a heated conference it was decided to use the old site, Strange to say Mr. Cecille Demill again received the job as contractor. Debentures were issued on the section for money to pay contractors. A Waterbury system of heating was purchased for the new building. The cost of the school was one thousand five hundred and sixty-five dollars, along with some additional cost of some outside work. The teacher now received five hundred dollars.

In 1915 an addition was built to the woodshed.

Two years later, the Secretary's old site, Strange to say Mr. Cecille In 1925 a school-garden was started, and in July of the next year, the roof was painted, new slate blackboards were put in and a well drilled.

Point Anne Couple Honored by Friends

A pleasant event occurred on Friday evening when a large number gathered in the Oracle Hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gannon, nee Margaret Bennett. The early evening was spent in euchre and the prize winners were:—Ladies' 1st—Mrs. C. DeBruyn; Consolation—Mrs. J. Gannon; Gents 1st.—Mr. A. B. Charlton; Consolation—Don Flier. After cards were finished Mr. H. A. Scullion called the bride and groom to the platform and read the following address:

Point Anne,
April 30, 1937.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gannon,

Dear friends,—

We have come here tonight to celebrate what we deem to be the most important crisis in the lives of any young couple, your wedding. For years it has been our privilege to know you Margaret, and for a short period your life partner. You have been endeared to our hearts by your quiet, pleasing manner, friendliness and the active interest you have taken in the welfare of our community.

As we look just now to the future for we are all well aware that undiscovered regions hold all that is really pertinent to either of you. As you travel through the valley of life, there will be dalmaine and the spring time and the autumn, the rain, God's greatest gift, and we fancy we see you sitting by your fireside, perusing a little book, with silver threads replacing the gold, still the same happy lovers as you are to-day.

We ask you to accept this token of esteem with the hope you will find it useful as well as a remembrance of the good will of your many friends of Point Anne.

The young couple replied in a fitting manner and thanked their friends for the lovely gift. The gathering then sang, "For he's a jolly good fellow" and gave three hearty cheers for the bride and groom. Dancing was then enjoyed to music by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wareham, also Messrs. Carter and Mac Laughlin and Mrs. Ray Gilmour, lunch was served at midnight and during the interval following by special request Mr. Tommy Bennett and Mr. George MacLaughlin stepped which was much appreciated by all.

W. A. Present Their Play at Lonsdale

On Tuesday evening April 27th, those taking part in the Shadow Play "Ladies' Aid Beauty Parlor," went to Lonsdale and the following cast repeated the play at a concert held in the hall.

The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott enumerated some of the past activities of the Society and announced the opening of the beauty parlor. Operator—Miss Helen Clark; Barber Mrs. Bobbitt—Mrs. Orval Straton; Bobbed Haired Girl—Miss M. Stickney; Shin Cook—Mrs. W. D. Robertson; Mrs. Frye—Mrs. O. Asselstine; Mr. Bump (Henry) Winger; Lane. Harvey Shelter—Mother and son with big cars—Mrs. William Osborne and Clifford Elliott; Miss Happ—Mrs. H. Shelter; Mr. Addle—Wallace Robertson; Mr. Puff—Harry Murphy; Roy Asselstine, pastor. All who took part finished the play by singing "Tell the Ladies Aid" a song with 4 verses and chorus.

Mrs. Harry Sine acted as organist. Rev. Craig of Rollin acted as chairman and told some good Irish jokes that provoked much laughter. Bill Leitch gave delightful violin music accompanied by Arthur Gibson on the guitar. They very generously responded to encores. Master Willie Roland sang several selections which were well received by the audience. A sacred pantomime given by Harry Murphy "Nearer My God to Thee" sung by Mrs. H. Shelter and Mrs. Harry Sine to accompany the motions. A vote of thanks was given the Shannonville people by Rev. Craig on behalf of the audience. After the singing of the National Anthem lunch was served to those taking part and was much enjoyed and appreciated and the thanks of all are due the people of Lonsdale for their kindness.

SIDNEY CROSSING

Sidney Crossing — Miss Edith Wright, Reg. N. of Belleville, attended Aikins Church on Sunday and was guest of Miss Irene Orlli.

Mrs. Ernest Outwater was week-end guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bradshaw, Trenton.

Aikins Mission Band took charge of the service in Aikins Church on Sunday morning. Most of the program was given by the children and was enjoyed by all. The Scripture Reading was given by five of the girls, a number of recitations and duets were given by Misses Marion and Marjorie Allen and Misses Evelyn and Dorothy Ray. Miss H. Card gave a very interesting talk concerning the use of the Mission Band money.

Mrs. Frank Sills, President of the W.M.S. made Lorna Ray and Gerald Grills life members of the W.M.S. Band and Gordon Grills a life member of the Mission Band, which was an important part of the program.

A few readings were given by some of the adults. The service was a decided success.

Miss Helen Card spent the week-end with Miss Edith Hogle.

Miss Loreen May of Belleville is spending a few days with her grandparents.

Pluck of Employer Saves Manager of Fishing Lodge

Walked Forty Miles to Nearest Phone to Send Plane

OUT OF DANGER

Montreal, May 4 (CP)—Saved from death in Northern Quebec by a swift 126-mile rescue flight made possible by the pluck of his employer, Armand Tremblay progressed today toward recovery from an emergency stomach operation.

From isolated Lac LaPerme, where the 40-year-old guide and woodsman was stricken with peritonitis and ruptured stomach Saturday, Tremblay was flown to Montreal yesterday. Doctors said today he was practically out of danger.

But for the determination and courage of Charles Emile Prefontaine, President of United Auto Parts whose hunting and fishing preserve in Iverthern Quebec he managed, Tremblay might never have come out alive.

89 Miles For Help

Prefontaine said that Tremblay at Lac LaPerme when the camp manager became ill. He put the woodsman to bed at the main camp at Lac LaPerme and set out for the nearest telephone, 40 miles away at Mont Laurier, Que.

It was noon Saturday when he started his trek over crude trails through dense, brushland. It was noon Sunday before he arrived, a call to Montreal started arrangements for Pilot Samuel Mackenzie to fly a pontoon-equipped plane to the lake from Rockliffe Aerodrome and an ambulance to meet the plane.

Then, with a physician from Mont Laurier, Prefontaine hiked back to the camp, making it in 12 hours despite his weariness.

Soon the plane, on which Allport attendants had worked to equip all Sunday night, arrived and yesterday morning Mackenzie and Dr. Owen of the Montreal seaplane base.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Don Ameche, Ann Sothern Head Splendid Double-Bill

A laugh spiced romance pungent with danger and two snowbound strangers find themselves marooned in a mountain lodge with only a starry-eyed chaperon, "Fifty Roads to Town," is the feature attraction at the Belle today and Wednesday, matinee daily with Don Amechе and Ann Sothern, two delightful young stars, in the leading roles.

After you see the hilarious and exciting adventures that befall Don and Ann as a blizzard bundles 'em in for the winter, you'll be inclined to agree that it's nice weather if you can get it.

"Fifty Roads to Town" starts its thrilling toboggan ride of merriment with Don and Ann hurriedly leaving town in his car, after receiving a mysterious telephone call that someone is ready to shock him on sight. Roaring along the road to Canada at the same time is Ann Sothern and the addition of a motorcycle cop to the party makes for a thrilling three-cornered chase.

After tricking the pursuing officers, the two fugitives seek refuge in the hills but come in for a surprise when they both wind up at the same cabin. Don makes Ann destroy a legal document which he believes to be a subpoena for him. Actually it is her marriage license, for she was running away from her millionaire parents to get married.

Don is afraid to let the girl go, thinking he will betray him, and also hearing a radio announcement that police are seeking a dangerous gangster in his mountain hideout, suspect that Don is the man.

By the time she finds out that Don is not a gangster, but just running away to prevent being mixed up in a divorce case, a heavy snowfall sets in, with the possibility of their being snowed in for the winter.

The events that follow are spiced with fun, thrills, romance and danger.

"Nancy Steele is Missing"

A powerful drama that runs the gamut of passion and emotion on your pounding heart, "Nancy Steele is Missing," the Twentieth Century-Fox production announced as the companion feature attraction on the same program, is unforgettably portrayed by the same star of "The Informer" and "Mutiny on the Bounty," Victor McLaglen, winner of the Motion Picture Academy's acting award for 1935, known as one of the finest performances of his career in this taut, dramatic film in which he is starred with two of the screen's outstanding players, Walter Connolly and Peter Lorre, Bumpy's one-man chamber of horrors. June Lang and Robert Kent are featured in the picture, adding a romantic note to the proceedings. The Belle latest news flashes will be presented on the same program. "Fifty Roads to Town" starts at 1.45 and 8.50; "Nancy Steele" at 3.30.

HIGH TIDE OF Spring

BLOSSOM TIME and bird time . . . . new leaves gleaming on the trees, and grass of unbelievable greenness springing underfoot.

Let's get outdoors!

There's magic in May sunshine that stirs desires to fulfilment. The flower-bed we've planned for years—we'll plant it NOW! We'll get new screens, the shining kind, and throw away the frayed old things that flies came through last summer. We'll get a new lawn-mower . . . a bird bath for the corner by the hedge . . . a lawn-chair or two, and a big bright umbrella with a tiny table for tea.

Can you afford all these delightful things? Of course you can! It's astonishing what values are offered in the stores this month. As you go through your paper you'll see them. Smart, cool, outdoor dresses . . . gardening hats and tools and gloves . . . croquet and deck-tennis and badminton sets . . . comfortable porch swings and outdoor furniture . . . all so inexpensive that you can buy them NOW without waiting and wishing.

Read the advertisements. Plan your purchases. And let your Spring dreams come true. . . .

Obituary

JONATHAN LATTA (Big Island)

After an illness of one week's duration Jonathan Latta, late resident of Big Island (Sophiasburg), Prince Edward County, passed away at the Picton General Hospital this Tuesday morning, May 4th.

The late Mr. Latta was born 75 years ago at Latta Corners, Ontario, being the late Mr. and Mrs. George Latta. For some years he resided in the district where he was born, then later moved to Belleville. About five years ago he took up residence on Big Island, Prince Edward County. When a young man he followed the vocation of farming. Politically he was a staunch Conservative and in religion he was a member of the United Church and highly esteemed by all who knew him. His friends deeply regret his passing.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife, one prior to her marriage was Miss Margaret Mather Mitchell; three daughters, Mrs. Alex Stevens, Southampton, Ont.; Miss Oscell Latta, at home; Mrs. Stuart Gough, Brighton; one son, Mr. Kenneth Latta at home; one sister, Mrs. G. W. Henderson, Gilbert's Mills, and one brother, Mr. Joseph Latta, of Edmonton, Alberta.

The body of the late Mr. Latta is resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Gee Walker King-Pin of Tiger Attack as Detroit Opens a Series with New York Yanks

Flying Right Fielder is Leading in Nearly Every Department

GIANTS DEFEATED

Boss Score All Their Runs in One Innings to Win

By BILL BONI

Associated Press Sports Writer

The right mental attitude is a wonderful thing, as witness the case of Gerald Walker, fast-flying right fielder of the Detroit Tigers, and, at the moment, American League batting leader and a front-runner in virtually every department of play.

Gerald was the king-pin of the Tiger attack today as Mickey Cochrane and his men opened a home stand against the eastern clubs, led by the world champion Yankees. Simultaneously, the White Sox, Indians and Browns were entertaining the A's, Senators and Red Sox, in the National League, eastern teams played hosts.

Walker had in recent seasons been criticized for headstrong or overimpetuous base-running, but he settled him of late with the mates of scores. Gerald took those cracks to heart, with the result that his game suffered.

This spring, however, he decided not to pay any attention to what he read about himself in the papers. As a result he's been going like a streak.

Sox Use Six Hurlers

He was in there again yesterday while the Tigers took another half-game margin on the second-place Yanks. Though rookie Pat McLaughlin lasted only three innings in his first starting game, Detroit collected 11 hits and took off four assorted White Sox pitchers to win 13 to 2. Slugfest that the afternoon was Hank Greenberg's home run with the bases loaded.

With the Indians and Browns rained out and the other teams unscheduled, the Tigers and White Sox were the only ones active in the junior circuit.

National League

In the National League the four eastern clubs engaged in intramural war while awaiting the arrival of the league-leading Pirates and other westerners.

At Boston, Billy Weir won his first 1937 game for the Bees in a pitchers' duel with the Giants' Hal Schumacher. Each team bagged a brace of hits, but the Braves' four of theirs in one inning to gain a 3-0 victory.

At Ebbets Field, site of so many duffy doings, the Dodgers lost to the Phils 14 to 8, after four Philadelphia and five Brooklyn pitchers had paraded to the mound. Four of the Dodgers committed four errors and the Phils collected 11 hits and the Dodgers ten.

DAZZLING DISPLAY OF TENNIS BY E. VINES

New York, May 4 (CP)—Ellsworth Vines and his blazing racquet had a field day against Jerry Weyer, who is representing Jimmy Braddock in the Garden suit, collects $1,000 for every big time defeat sawed off on the unfortunate. Vines, who is the Yankee pet glay in the old home town, but left for Detroit last night. The rumors ground out by the Yankee front office put in a telephone call to Buffalo to check up.... Mike Jacobs tried palming his house off on Braddock at $1 dollar and sprained a shoulder—ouch!

Jimmy Johnston, Jr., son of the Garden maestro, is taking bows for keeping a large group of such smart managers, as Sammy Goldman and Paul Moss, Harry Reilly and signing Paul Junior, Portland, Me., lightweight prospect ... Paul makes his big time debut against Al Casullo in a prelim on the Tony Canzoneri-Lou Ambers card. Friday night ... The Baltimore Orioles who began the season 7 to 5 favorites to win the International League pennant rewarded their backers by dropping their first ten games—another ouch.

Portland, Me.—Danno O'Mahoney, 219, Ireland, defeated Mick Litza 204, California, straight falls.

Philadelphia—Dick Daszo, 228, Omaha, Neb., pinned Hank Barber, 220, Cambridge, Mass., 34.35.

THREE TEAMS IN INTERNATIONAL TIED FOR FIRST

Toronto Leafs Drop Another to Newark Bears by 5-2 Count

ORIOLES STILL LOSE

Losing Streak of Baltimore Now Extended to Ten Games

Losing streaks can be just as impressive as winning streaks, especially when the teams picked to win the pennant is the victim. The Baltimore Orioles have one of the greatest names in baseball but they are earning a lot of new ones from their fans. To date the Orioles have dropped 10 straight games and are settling comfy at the bottom of the International League without a single victory in their record.

Yesterday's 10-7 loss to the Rochester Red Wings was in keeping with the Orioles performances thus far this season. Pitching is the main trouble. The opposition has averaged 8.1 runs per game and the Orioles, although they have collected 19 home runs have had to score nearly 6.5 runs in a contest. And all 10 games have been played at home, something unusual in losing streaks, which usually start on the road.

The Red Wings bombed the home runs in yesterday's tilt, with Johnny Stopp, Hugh Poland, and Jack Crouch making round trip blows.

Tommy Henrich, who escaped from the plantation of the Cleveland Indians, helped the Bees celebrate his freedom with the Newark club by hitting a triple and a single, driving in two runs as the Braves stopped the Toronto Maple Leafs 5 to 2. Steve Sundra smoked a recent acquisition, appeared on the mound for the Bears in the eighth and halted a Leaf uprising with the aid of a double play.

Bill Harris, veteran Buffalo Bison righthander, was hit 15 times by the Jersey City Giants but managed to hang on and win 9 to 6. The victory came largely through the work of Moe Mulleavy who hit two doubles, a single and a triple to extend home three runs and score two for the Bisons; who remained tied with Toronto for the league leadership.

The Montreal Royals pounded two Syracuse pitchers for 15 hits to trip the Chiefs, 8 to 3.

FASTEST LAST NIGHT

Holyoke, Mass.—Andre Jeanrun, 148, New York, outpointed Nat Bernick, 143, Fall River, Mass. (10).

Baltimore—Jackie Wilson (Kid) Cocoa, 146, Puerto Rico, outpointed Johnny Lucas, 144 1-2, Camden, N.J.; (12).

CHIPS from the SPORT BLOCK

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver

Perhaps never in the history of King Baseball, has the monarch of American sports presented so many colorful courtiers to the thousands of his faithful subjects as are adorning the playing fields of his far-flung domain this season.

Not only are such rookie starlets as DiMaggio of the Yankees and Pellagrini of the Indians blazing new paths across the baseball horizon, but a number of the veterans in a colorful comeback parade are furnishing highlights in the realm of baseballdom which are bringing out the faithful to the box-office in numbers heretofore unheard of.

Naturally, the sensational Feller has been and is the magnet of the baseball scene every place he appears, have appeased the faithful have been the talk of the park and demanded that they be shown the Boy Wonder, if he is not slated to pitch. Even the wise mandarin Col. Robert Switlarin, do some warming up before the baseline he gives the crowd the thrill they crave.

Then of course is the incomparable Dizzy Dean.... He of the orbicular and voluminous tongue who tells the boys what he is going to do and then proceeds to do it.... Carl Hubbell, Lou Gehrig, Earl Averill, Jimmy Dykes and last this year the Rough-house Redcap Crissy.... Talkative Terry Moore, the baseline he gives the Brooklyn Dodgers, who so far has already tallied himself a couple of homers.

Bill Terry of the Giants, whose pet aversion is the same Brooklyn Dodgers, is another. Mr. and Mrs. Baseball Fan this year will pack a considerable load on the right side of the team ledgers.

But the prize attraction for the fans, while the various squads are in the Grapefruit belt, are the struggles were those pitching duels between Feller and Dean, Hubbell and Carl Schreibaul, ... Down in N'Awlins, the Mardi Gras season, when the revels were slated to pitch, the hometown authorities closed up everything but the ball park, called off all important and meetings, declared a half-holiday and granted the local ball-park to its capacity.

And now, the latest reports in sports circle has it that Sing Sing has been converted into a retreat for gangsters, stick-up artists, and other leaders of the con't beltway. At work fraternity, has added hockey to its sport curriculum .... The sport is to be conducted with the full rules of the Big House, for they have imported Warden Lewis Lawes to coach on the football field. .... Some of the boys have been showing real skinners, as they termed themselves tacked a neat defeat on the Sing Sing nine and is now making more or less of a name for himself in baseball circles. Kaline, who has smashed through centre, yelled Murray, the interference ... Murray with seven policemen draped around his neck barged over the line for a winning touchdown with the seven policemen were injured in that play.... Its about, much to the glee of the spectators, much to the

Its "Derby Day, only .... The classy craft will dock at the bayshore palle sometime today .... The Yankee ball fiend cry from a Highland Fling to an Irish Lullaby .... Tommy Farr will wisely demonstrate both at the Arena tonight, when the Husky Welsh grappler ... Tommy will swap glares, gurgles and grunts with the willowy Indian Kaline .... He looks like a nifty show .... Ted Key, handsome Baltimorean .... Ted has the looks of Joe Maynard of Bawston, and Henry Piers, clever Yankee pitcher .... Will put on a model the scowling features of Frankenstein when the ball finds the city of annual tea-parties. .... Bob Green of Bawston, passed in a Merriwell chance on Sat. when with the bases loaded and nobody out he sacks, he swung at the ozone like a beer sign. .....

That warm air and bright sunshine of Saturday only tinged a lot of the local youth's fancies to light thoughts of love, but the local instrumental in bringing out the softball war clubs. .... In various sections of the city a lot of the young fellows and a number of the oldsters spent a P.S.A. chasing the overgrown pellet. .... In other places adherents of Barnyard Golf dug out the old horse pumps, stuck a stick in the ground and went in search of pre-season rigours. .... A

GEORGE CLARK IS WILLING TO MIX

Wrestling is Show Good Enough For Maple Leaf Gardens

With a program he says he would be proud to have at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury Club will operate his second heavyweight wrestling show of the Belleville season at the arena tonight. George Clark, who has drawn as much as $35,000 at Boston in recent months, and John Katan, a wrestler who has given very practical demonstrations of his ability right in Belleville, will provide the piece de resistance of an outstanding array of mat talent which has aroused considerable interest throughout this district.

CHARLIE STRACK

Henry Piers, champion of Jolnbuck Township, and Charlie Strack of Boston heavyweight, will have forty-five minutes in which to do battle.

Completing the card is a half-hour affair in which Joe Maynard of Boston and Ted Key, the sprightly Californian, will provide the action.

GRIMES PAYS ANOTHER FINE FOR SET-TO WITH UMPIRE

One of the most argumentative managers in the big leagues is Manager Burleigh Grimes of the Brooklyn Dodgers. He is pictured here paying Fred Frick, National baseball league president, a $25 fine imposed upon him by the league head for an altercation with an umpire. Grimes set a record last year for the greatest number of arguments with umpires. By the time Burleigh Grimes hasn't been doing bad, having been chased from the ball park on several occasions. But you are wondering which is the fighting Mr. Grimes, he is on the right.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

There was plenty of weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth in Peterboro and Kingston and scores of few sour pusses in Napanee after the O.R.A.A. meet on Saturday when at on the large number of applications for transfer. We expected to hear a long tale of woe from the Limestone City regarding the loosing out of three applications for transfer, despite the fact the Kingston baseball interests had been warned to get their applications for transfer into the hands of the O.R.A.A. way back last January or February. The advantages of getting those transfers in early gives the individual club an opportunity to organize games, that are laid over again before the playing season opens.

Napanee received transfers for two of their imports, but were refused a card for a local boy "Whitey" Dunn. It seems When migrated to Windsor or Detroit or one of those border cities and played hockey in the Michigan-Ontario loop last winter, returning home only a few days too late to qualify under the March 15th residence rule. Out in Peterboro they got through three out of four, which after all is a pretty good average. Jack Corbett, Canadian hockey Ken Long, former Dundas first-sacker, and Bill Bardsley, junior infielder will all be wearing the colors of the Petes, but Johnnie Johnson, their imported mound-man from Edmonton was welcomed with thumbs down by the parent executive. Oh well, three out of four is batting .750 ain't it?

Down in the Limestone City they did not click quite so well, however, three of Joe Ealey's athletes being laid over for further consideration. Doubtless Johnnie Goodfellow, former ace hurler, who tried out with the Leafs down at Hanlon City, Fla., and who the Motor City scribe says couldn't hit the side of his hat, John Gates, formerly of Wells Island and A. Pasgowski, from St. Lawrence University, but last report they were refused playing certificates when they arrived in Kingston and Elmer are ready to be big-headed about now. We see no reason for Elmer holding his head swollen is reported to have been bitten by the Easter parade in the wintry winds did blow last winter.

Reports were quite favorable around Belleville as to the effect Bud Cleary was back ready to do the fitting from the Packs' record of last summer. Bud, a former Sidney Daley had another 'finger' up his sleeve, in a Polish lad from Trenton, Joe Kaliszewski, or something along those lines. Joe hails from St. Michael's University at Canton, N.Y., all nicely tacked up his sleeve and ready to go. Other boys, the couple of former sports editor of the Kingston daily, and Jimmy Walker, the golfing Pasgowski's name into the headlines by the fact he is finally given a clean slate, however, if Joe's latest hurling sensation is as good as he looked in the Arena last night he should be in general in the C.O. A.A. Jimmy Walker Gower got most of his imports passed at a meeting of the O.R.A.A. held at Sprail, former Enterprise hustler in his staff of Tommy Polster and Udy Blaschuk. With so many im-pavia sporting livery of the National Central League will be the scene of several contests on the diamond field all, except Belleville by the bay.

George Pepper, local motorcycle champion rider, has been assured of his services, should enough public subscriptions, to pay his expenses while in England and on the lake of Man practicing for the races in June, but he has a little more to assure passage. Interested citizens have until Thursday morning to get the job done about it Jane!

George "Dassler" Clark, Scottish wrestling champ, who meets John Katan, former Canadian Olympic star, in the ring here, come to this continent with an enviable athletic record. Clark played football with the noted Keith Club, Scottish amateur champions, and also featured in track and field events, his achievements at the Strathpeffar games bringing about international recognition. The "Dassler" hauled the 16 pound ball for a distance of 44 feet; the 56 pound ball 26 feet and the 12 pound hammer the amazing distance of 136 feet 2 inches. He buried the 36 pound hammer 21 feet, 7 inches and put the 56 a height distance of 16 feet 3 inches, all established distances in competition. Besides George the "Dassler", there are four other Clark brothers all wrestling fans in Scotland, namely; James, Alexander, Duncan and Peter, but the latter makes 'em all say 'uncle' in the ring. Promoter Jack Corcoran has spared no efforts to bring the best wrestlers in the east realm to Belleville this year, and the ring card appearing elsewhere proving that interest.

Harry Moore, coach of the Belleville lacrosse team, expects to call the season's first workout at the Collegiate campus this week.

Pete King, veteran player and lacrosse mogul of Peterboro, was unanimously elected president of the Canadian Lacrosse Association at the annual meeting held in Toronto last week. Incidentally the Ontario lacrosse interests are still laboring tremendously over the question of playing out-lined-stick game in the Motor City. In the meantime Jack Corcoran's league is satisfied to stumble along with five clubs, instead of an aberration.

About fifteen or sixteen moreweek the call to junior baseball practice at the Fair Grounds will be issued by Jimmy Smalley a boy seasoned. We can remember the time when at least 60 and sometimes as high as 80 aspiring teen aged boys answered the spring call to baseball arms. The junior club rosin bags of three aspiring leaguers, but with a healthy schedule, as surely them in the South Hastings loop, and the two leagues in the Quinte mountaineers, as well as infielders and outer garden men for spring practice Monday, Wednesday and Fridays at the Fair Grounds.

At a recent meeting of the O.B. A.A. the league upheld their previous decision regarding Vernon "Lefty" Bishop and he was not granted a transfer from Napanee to Wellend. After all too much of a good thing in travel should be sufficient without baseball being thrown in.

Pitching—Lawson, Tigers, 3-0; Williams and Caster, Athletics, Marcum, Red Sox, and Knickerbocker, White Sox, 2-0.

King's "Household" Is Greatest Asset for More Public Affection

Enjoys All The Happy Connotations of The Word Family as Reign of George V—Will Gradually Gain The Same Impersonal Yet Intimate Affection His Father Enjoyed

By J. Norman Smith, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, May 4 (CP Cable)—May 12 is imminent. But what of Dec. 10 and all its momentous associations?

Has England forgotten the conflicting emotions so exposed at that time or is she crowning George VI with still a wet eye on Edward VIII?

These questions rest unanswered except by mere personal conviction or personal interpretation of public portents. They will be a challenging legacy for historians decades hence.

Yet the straws that flutter in which way, every way, in December seem to be sweeping in the prevailing wind that on May 12 will manifest the royal Standard of George VI in no hesitant uncertainty.

Discreet Modesty

Time and the King's discreet modesty have done much to smother the opinions of those who clung to Edward in his abdication. Quiet, but thoughtfully, the King's advisers set up a new household as Buckingham Palace without giving the appearance of removing an old one.

And it is a "household"—embracing Queen Elizabeth and the two Princesses in a picture of domestic happiness that is not only strength but also a source of inspiration to public affection. Therein, as Edward found, may lie the Majesty's greatest asset at a time when the merits of the King have been so conspicuously on trial.

"The Royal family" is in the public mind as in the reign of George V, enjoying all the happier connotations of the word family. The Cockney says "God bless 'em" instead of "Im" and the poet Lansdale significantly couples the Queen's name early in the official prayer:

"Grant to our Queen the strength that lifts and shares

"The daily burden that a Monarch bears."

Gathers Affection

And all the while the King is gathering affection. This quiet, serious, sensitive 42-year-old man is being compared with his father, who also had to follow the reign of a more lively, colorful man.

"Mind you, he'll gradually gain precisely the same impression as his fellmade affable, his father unbuyed"—this from a man in a high position of state. "Well, he may be plain but we know him and he knows us."

The day when their Majesties journeyed on the Thames to open The Maritime Museum at Greenwich, police had to postpone their return owing to the greatly enthusiastic crowds which blocked the route.

It is said his Majesty is applying himself to his work in an earnest determination to do his best respect for the Monarchy as well as the affection of his people. He is studying welfare conditions, particularly looking into humanist affairs in their relation to the common weal.

And he is acquiring a dignified reserve where once a tendency toward nervousness embarrassed both himself and those about him.

Feeling Very Fit

Amused on one occasion he was reported to have remarked:

"If I suffered all I am said to suffer from, I should either be dead or dying. Well really I am feeling very fit."

It is certain His Majesty's health is not robust. His constitution is delicate, but under care he maintains well. With his interests fortunately lying rather in the quieter pursuits of books or milder exercise, it is thought he will not find the kingship too exhausting a task.

Regarding the more immediate considerations of the success of the Coronation, there have been reports that many bookings were cancelled. If Edward were being crowned, it is whispered, May 12th would be a greater day.

Mindful of Edward's abdication, some attribute the cancellations to George's comparative lack of popularity. Yet informed observers discredit this theory, declaring there are inevitably numerous cancellations in such a giant event and normally such cancellations would pass without question.

Slackening Off of Bookings

If, which is doubtful, there is an apparent slackening off in Coronation bookings and interest some are made plausibly the fault against the press, commercial hotels, travel agencies, photographic and so forth, whose job is accused of being overdone and overpublicized to the extent that people become leery of participating in such a maelstrom of hilarity and activity.

And it is pointed out that industrial unrest and strikes—such as the current bus strike are possible deterrents.

Actually it is felt the Coronation in many ways will be a people's prayer affair than it would with Edward. The King has his children and the two Princesses. And if anyone thinks this an overrated consideration let him read the English papers, noting the amount of news devoted to the feminine side of the festivities directly attributed to the participation of Queen Elizabeth and her daughters.

Interest Noteworthy

The King's interest in all the Coronation arrangements has been noteworthy. One instance the writer knows for a fact: On May 14 more than 2,000 People from all over the Palace to receive Coronation medals. The scheme was that only representatives of each were urgent would actually receive a medal from the King, the others to be distributed through the ranks at the same time. The King objected, wanting to present each personally and was only dissuaded when it was proven such a ceremony would take five hours.

Against difficult days ahead, the King is building slowly on sturdy foundations to set the monarchy back on its pedestal. This he aims to do without spectacular devices but by personal appeal and personal activity, but through thoughtful application to his duty. And his conception of duty is the same as Edward's—rich duty!—though his service will appeal to the subconscious rather than to the conscious minds of his people.

All in all, the counter of straws cannot escape the conclusion that George VI will be crowned amid the genuine hurrahs of his kingdom.

COMPLETE TIE-UP IF ATTEMPT MADE TO BREAK STRIKE

Streetcar Union is Opposed to Any Sympathy Walkout

QUITE PEACEFUL

Motor Coach Companies May Try to Run Over Strike Lines

London, May 4 (CP)—A warning of complete tie-up of London's transportation in those crowded pre-Coronation days might follow any attempt to break the strike of 26,000 bus drivers and conductors came today from one of the walkout's leaders.

There were reports some members of the Subway and Streetcar Unions desired to strike in support of the tramen, although the latter's organization has opposed any sympathy walkout, at least until after a Board of inquiry reports.

The Bus Union official said, however, the danger of spread of the 4-day stoppage would be aggravated greatly if motor coach companies were permitted to run coaches over the bus routes.

The busmen are quite peaceful and they do not want any provocation, he said, adding the transport board "appear to be adopting a very careful policy so as not to give any appearance of strike-breaking or attempting to augment the tram and underground services."

The Board of Inquiry was to resume hearings today on the union's demands for a 7½ hour day and 44 hour week schedule. Busmen now work eight hours. It was expected the board's report would be issued Friday with negotiations for settlement to be conducted over the week end.

The strike continued to spread foot-wearisome and confusion among natives and visitors while London, gaily bedecked, tried to put her best foot forward for the Coronation, May 12.

Stirling A. Y. P. A. Presents Two Plays

Over One Hundred Attend Plays Given by A.Y.P.A.

Stirling, May 4—Over a hundred persons gathered in St. John's Memorial Hall on Thursday evening last to enjoy a splendid variety program and the presentation of two one-act comedies starring local talent chosen from the membership of the organization. Mr. H. Morrow, President of the A.Y.P.A. acted as chairman for the evening and in a brief address thanked the large number present for their kindly support. It was the first appeal made on behalf of the society for some time and the response was indeed gratifying to those in charge. Preceding each play several of the members contributed numbers which added color to one of the finest programs given in the history of the hall. A novel feature of the evening was the introduction of "Candy girls" who during intermission sold decorated cups of homemade candy.

The first number on the program was a vocal duet by Betty Currie and Molly Ruttle, two very talented youngsters who sang "Little Old Lady." Betty Currie, youthful student in the art of tap dancing went through a rhythmic routine displaying real ability with Miss E. Kerr at the piano. Other numbers offered included an accordian solo by Mr. M. Hedley, and an instrumental solo by Miss Kerr.

A group of carefully selected amateur actors then presented "The Passing of Mr. Peal", a laughable skit arising out of the misinterpretation of a telegraph message. The relatives of Mr. Peal gathering to make funeral arrangements and to seek their share of the estate are some of the humorous situations which crop up. Miss Annabelle Lawrence portrays the part of the maid in an excellent manner and the two sisters Miss Pearnee Turner and Miss Alice Calow as the friendly enemies was also well done. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Savage taking the parts of Bertie and Peg respectively also gave a fine performance.

Cast of Characters

Susan (the house-keeper): Miss Annabelle Lawrence.

Peg (the youngest niece): Mrs. Walter Savage.

Eva (the nephew's wife): Miss Alice Calow.

Fan (the eldest niece): Miss Florence Turner.

Bertie (her husband): Mr. Walter Savage.

Steve (the youngest nephew): Mr. Matt Hedley.

This clever play consisting mostly of funeral preparations for the rich uncle who at the climax is revealed to be very much alive was well organized and possessed a touch of humor.

The second play of the group was also a comedy possessing plenty of real action revolving around the rapid fire experience of "That Rascal Pat" a typical son of Erin who assumes great responsibilities when he accepts the position of valet to two men at the same time, Rev. A. S. McConnell in the leading role won the hearts of the audience with his genuine Irish brogue.

Cast of Characters

That Rascal Pat: Rev. A. S. McConnell.

Major Puffjacket: Mr. Wm. Davey.

Charles Livingston: Mr. Alfred Strickland.

Laura: Miss Helen Morrow.

Nancy: Miss Bernice Ackers.

The arrangements of the stage for this event was exceptionally well done by those in charge of the work and many fine comments were expressed regarding the fine lighting effects, etc. The A.Y.P.A. are to be congratulated on the splendid entertainment.

Annual Meeting of Stirling Horse Shoe Pitching Club

Preparations for a real busy season were set into motion by the members of the Stirling Horse-Shoe Pitching Club at their annual re-organization meeting which took place in the Agricultural Hall on Monday evening. The evening was spent in constructive discussion with regard to future activities of the club. Satisfactory reports of last season's activities were received and the election of officers resulted in the following group of gentlemen being selected to guide the club through the 1937 season.

Officers For This Season

President: Mr. Earl Fox.

Vice-President: Mr. Orval Casement.

Secretary-Treasurer: Mr. Fred T. Hulin.

Games Committee: James Mitchell, Frank Buller, Tom Dodman, Earl Fox.

Membership Committee: Wm. Dermidy, M. Reid, Wm. Rickman, F. T. Hulin.

Property Committee: Walter Jeffrey, Arthur Hulin, Stan Dainard, Wm. Rickman.

Represent Club

Presidents Earl Fox and Mr. J. Mitchell will represent the Stirling Club at the league meeting to be held in Belleville. Stirling made a fine showing in the league standing last year and their hopes for this year are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Burt Osborne of Napanee, spent the week end at his home in Stirling.

Mr. Reg. Matheson of Albert College, Belleville, is spending the summer vacation period with his parents in Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Martin, of Toronto, were week end guests at the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Mason and Lois of Harold. Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Morgan of Springbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ketchenson and family of Carrying Place, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carr of Peterboro were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mason, Church Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitehead and Glen visited friends and relatives in Campbellford on Sunday.

QUEENSBORO

Queensboro—Rev. H. Swayne of Tweed was calling in the village on Wednesday.

Birth—Groves: In Queensboro on May 1st, 1937 to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Groves, a son.

Mrs. Duff Genereaux returned to her home on Sunday after spending the past two weeks in Model Dien, Kingston.

Mrs. Ella Holmes spent Saturday at Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Clarke spent Sunday with friends in Marmora

The W. A. of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Vernon Spencer on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. John Gray, Peterboro, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Leslie.

The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.

Auctioning Off the Stock

Are farmers willing to pay for quality in the live stock, seed grain and feed they must buy? At present sales this past winter that question is being answered.

Here is a real "typey" cow with every indication of being a real producer, dairy excellence cow that has an udder like a tea cup. When the auctioneer finally declares the two sold, there will probably not be a difference in the price of more than ten or twenty dollars.

Experience in weighing the milk of each cow and periodic butter-fat tests have proven to us that there is a vast difference in the producing ability of any two cows. Moreover, the production of any one cannot be estimated at all closely without the use of scale-or Babcock tester. Under these conditions what is the value of that bull to the average farmer? If the production of these two cows many times more desirable than the other differs by 100 lbs. of fat per year, surely the better cow is worth the value of that bull and is more than the cheaper cow. If heifer calves are to be raised, the better cow is probably worth two or three times as much as the poorer—but try and buy it.

During the past winter we have had several excellent farm properties being sold, also many others were sadly in need of repairs and run-down from lack of tillage, and the difference in price was in itself sufficient to pay for the value of the improvements in the better farms. Quality did not count very much when it came time to "put up the good cow and the mediocre." As a going concern the better-cultivated, treated and more fertile farm is worth considerably more than the run-down place. As a selling proposition the man who has made many needed improvements finds that he has a lot of money invested on which he can never realize.

The answer is "ready cash." It is all right to tell a farmer he would be better off with one good cow than two poor ones. The two poor ones will likely raise calves. He will get nearly as much money for them as he will for the two good ones. Five or ten dollars looks like a lot of money to many a farmer. A thousand or two looks like a lot on the purchase price of a good farm. Everybody is willing to agree that the quality article is the cheapest, but it looks like a lot of money.

We have often referred to the personal hope of a farmer. It is just too bad once the man on the soil loses hope. He buys the cheaper cow and hopes she will turn out all right—the scabby pig in the hope that it may thrive—the run-down farm, on which he will spend years of effort, in the hope that some day it will be as good as the best. Sometimes his hopes are realized, but in the great majority of cases he will be buying the cheap cow in ten years from now, and his farm will be as run-down as ever.

Frankly, we believe that quality does pay, though we would have a hard time to prove it. At any rate we could get a lot more satisfaction in caring for good stock than in forking hay into some of the miserable critters we have seen changed hands this past winter.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

oronto, May 4 (CP)—Listings of the Toronto Stock Exchange registered a moderate gain today on the scallest turnover since last year in a full week. Trading in the section saw almost normal action but business slackened during the early afternoon and little more than 600,000 shares changed hands throughout the day. Base metals and oils closed higher, industrials were irregularly softer and golds had little to show on stiber side. They were up in the early session but they displayed a slightly soft tendency in the late afternoon.

Strength in the Liquor Group featured the Industrials. Walkers common added 2 1-2, closing at 46 1-2 and Distillers-Seagrams had an advance of about a point.

The rise in Brazilian added more than a point and Consumers Gas, Shawinigan and United Fuel Pfd., closed higher.

A general advance developed in the Steel group, having the Canadian Car and Foundry Stocks, United Steel Corporation, Coal Pfd. and Dominion Steel and Bridge issues with gains of 1-4 to a point at the close.

Despite lower London metal prices the big base silver stocks pushed along to higher ground. Consolidated Smelters added more than two points, Noranda 1 1-4 and Hudson Bay 5-8.

Dome, Hollinger, and Lake Shore registered gains of minimum fractions, O'Brien closed about 50 cents up.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 4—(AP)— Slow but persistent bidding today added gains of fractions to 3 or more points to the stock market's industrial leaders.

Profit-selling cropped up occasionally and cut down extreme advances in individual instances, but favorites were not far from their tops as dealings went into the final hour.

Volume was only moderately larger than in yesterday's dullness which was the most apathetic since June 1, last. Transfers were 1,231,000 shares, compared with 1,210,000 the day before.

At the rate of about 900,000 shares.

MARKET COMMENT

The improved market action has helped sentiment considerably and the impression is gaining ground that the sharp reaction of the past two weeks is only a natural phase in the current bull market. Stocks, based on sound business prospects, should reach much higher levels over the next year or two, but for the interval, corrections or movements are bound to develop periodically.

The "gold scare" seems to have largely disappeared. Many now believe that the gold reduction scares were inspired either in London or Washington, as a means of movement in both at the same time in an effort to discourage what seemed high authorities look upon as over-speculation. In any event, if there is high authorities desired a market correction, the result was eminently successful.

While on the subject of the gold price it is interesting to point out that the price of the metal has been increased in London thus halting the flow of gold to the United States. Again it would appear as if British authorities have decided to co-operate with the United State in stabilizing the gold situation. The question of a reduction in the price of the yellow metal has now disappeared for otherwise it is reasoned that Great Britain would not have been willing to purchase the metal at higher quotations.

The gold price question is universal for the reason that a lowering of quotations on the metal would not be just a "local" development, nor would it only affect the gold mining companies. A lower gold price would demoralize all stock and commodity markets which in turn would retard world economic recovery.

An atmosphere of caution is noted both in London and New York as it is realized that after such a drastic decline in security prices, particularly abroad, markets will go through a "convalescent" stage with debris forming and only the severer breaks in some departments bringing about adjustments in accounts. Private cables from London intimate that considerable of the recent selling in coppers and U.S. Steel came from the Continent. Feeling is that the worst of the news is out. Furthermore, these cables and traders over there felt more comfortable with the London Control Fund buying gold at the fixed price there is some positively expressed in cables from Liverpool cotton dealers growing out of some commodity positions said to be top heavy.

SOUTHERN GOLDS

Local officials of Southern Gold, Ltd., are in receipt of information from the Company's property, South Carolina, to the effect that the extensive underground development work now in progress is making good progress with high-grade ore being opened up. The southern drift on the No. 1 vein has passed through the sediments and is again advancing in the schist, while the raise on the north vein continues to expose good commercial ore over widths of three to four feet.

Of considerable importance, officials state, is the fact that the drift on the No. 5 vein in previously unexplored ground, located approximately 1,500 feet west and 600 feet north of the No. 1 vein is opening high grade ore. An ore shoot 70 feet in length already has been determined in this section of the ground. The entire campaign, they conclude, is progressing with highly favorable results and since the first of the year there has been considerable tonnage of high grade ore has been blocked out underground.

Agricultural Report

Cattle have already been placed on pasture in this and other sections of Eastern Province, it is stated in the current report of the Ontario Agricultural Department. Live-stock have gone through the winter although in some cases there has been a shortage of fodder and animals are thin.

"Conditions have improved in regard to seeding of alfalfa and clover, and it is estimated that 90 per cent. of the seed in the neighborhood of from 15 to 20 per cent. more than the acreage of the seeding has survived winter conditions successfully. Old meadows are in satisfactory condition. Pasture for good pasturage are excellent.

Fruit prospects and some price of cheese on the opening of markets, O'Brien closed about 50 cents up.

Bankfield is Going Into Production as New Mill Operates

After nearly three years of intensive work in exploration and development, followed by mill construction which was commenced last fall, Bankfield Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd., is now proceeding into production as the second active gold property in the Little Long Lac area. Mill parts are being turned over and tuned up and will gradually move into the handling of ore at a rate of 100 tons per day according to the Port Arthur News—Chronicle.

The property is located on the south shore of Magnet Lake, about five miles due west of the Little Long Lac and, like the latter, is about two miles, or a little more, south of the Canadian National Railway.

The Bankfield mill is in size almost equal to the Little Long Lac which is currently handling upwards of 200 tons of ore per day and to be out at 700 tons. The Bankfield mill is, however, rated at 100 tons per day. Initial capacity. The size will indicate the possibility of easy step up if and when ore conditions warrant.

Ore Reserves

According to official reports the mine has now developed almost two years of high grade ore, the value of $28 per ton having been stated. There is, in addition, a considerable amount of lower grade, the different values making it possible for the management to regulate the millings at such figures as may be found to be most economical. It is understood that for the first year or so at least the grade will be set at from $20 to $22 per ton.

While the property has been in process of preparation for active mining exploration and development during the past few months has been at a minimum, this will shortly be speeded up, with extensive drifting and cross cuts in directions. One is depth in the present workings; a second is the possibility of an extension of the newly found Jellicoe ore body through Bankfield property to the north.

Original Discovery

Actually it was in this north area that the original Bankfield discovery was made by Tom A. Johnson and Robert Wells in 1923, followed later by the location of a south zone. Underground exploration was undertaken. It is now proposed to explore the north zone from a prospect carried out from the present underground workings. This, it is said, will have additional satisfactory value by cutting through intervening territory for a distance of 1,000 feet. A third chance for further ore is believed to exist toward the west in the vicinity of Magnet. Consolidated which is now doing underground work.

It is expected the first brick will be poured at Bankfield about the 1st of June.

President of Bankfield Consolidated is Colonel C. D. Howe, while directors are Joseph Errington, T. H. Stinson, J. H. C. Walle, W. T. McGraw, and A. E. Ames, solicitors F. J. Bailes. Consulting Engineer is Walter H. Wood, and Superintendent, John W. McKenzie.

Children Warned Against Picking Up Blasting Caps

Danger to children picking up and playing with carelessly discarded blasting caps, sometimes called detonators, is pointed out at this time of year when melting snow again leaves the ground uncovered. Parents should warn their children that if they should find any lying around to leave them and report it so doing avoid serious if not fatal accidents.

There little pellets of concentrated power are not likely to be found by young in city streets or in their grounds, although there are cases where they have been found on metropolitan areas.

But alongside country roads, in fields, especially those of obstructions, and in the vicinity of any kind of blasting operations, there is always a chance that children may find these copper cups which could be maimed many uninformed youngsters, and have killed others.

They look like bullets and are used in blasting rock to explode dynamite. And in these the dynamite is used not only in mines and quarries, but by farmers everywhere.

Therefore, the lurking peril of the blasting cap, an instrument painstakingly designed by men who know its needful purpose and its power, but deadly in the hands of child or grown-up who picks it up and plays with it. For in spite of constant war-ing, the manufacture of these caps do occasionally seep into the hands of unskilled persons or scatter them carelessly around.

These small aluminum or copper cylinders, bright and shiny, filled with a powerful explosive, are about one-quarter of an inch in diameter, from one to two inches long, and resemble an elongated .22 calibre cartridge, except that some have wires attached to them.

One has only to see them through a plate of steel one-sixteenth of an inch thick. A few seconds and they burst their way through a two-inch plank of oak.

If tossed into a fire, a cap instantly becomes like shrapnel, whose flying fragments are blinding bits for the eyes of all nearby. If lightly pounded with a hammer, the same price and picked at, they are likely to explode. Then loss of sight or limb, if not of life, is inevitable.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 4—Butter and egg prices were easier on the local produce market and cheese also inclined a little lower, the lower grades being quoted unchanged. Receipts were 1,251 cases of eggs and 1,000 pkgs. butter.

Cheese was quoted there at the close at 22c to 23 3-4c for Quebec fresh and 22 spore and 21 1-2c to 22c for Quebec fresh buyer's inspection. On the open market in Montreal on May 1 in cases, 1,161 lots was quoted 22 3-4c to 23 1-2c, mainly 23c to 23 1-4c. Small lots to 24c retail trade. Ontario quoted in bulk cheese at 24 1-2c for solids and 25c for twins.

Top prices on the egg market for graded shipments to cartels or jobbers, were 22c for A-extras, 21 1-2c for A-medium, 20c for B and 18 1-2c A-pullets for B. Offerings were posted at the Commodity Exchange at 22c for A-large, 20c for A-medium and 19c for A-pullets.

CANADA'S TRADE WITH THE WORLD

In the last calendar year Canada had a foreign trade amounting to $1,663,693,000, an increase of 19.7%, as compared with an average of 8.1% for 24 leading countries, is this exchange the Dominion had a favourable balance (including exportation of gold as a commodity) of $393,000,000.

Another feature of international trade was the tourist business, incoming and outgoing, totalling $353,568,000, the balance in Canada's favour being $155,958,000.

With the figures for tourist trade added to those for ordinary commerce, our international trade rose to $2,018,652,000 with a total balance in Canada's favour of more than half a billion dollars.

Banking plays a vital part in the upbuilding of the foreign trade of Canada, and foreign trade is the backbone of the native industries which are the foundation of Canada's economic structure.

WINDSOR

spokesman, received newspapermen on the chateau lawn before the Duke arrived and issued this statement:

"The Duke of Windsor will arrive at Cando today about lunch time.

"His Royal Highness will come directly to the chateau. He will be a guest of Mrs. (Charles E.) Inglesby for at least several days.

"Sometime after the arrival of the Duke of Windsor an announcement will be made anent plans which are still to be discussed."

To Discuss Plans for Marriage

The plans "still to be discussed" were understood to be arrangements for the marriage but it was not expected that they would take place until after the May 12 Coronation.

The Duke was whisked away from Vernuell by automobile when the Alberg express carrying him from Montreal to Melville stopped. He thus avoided Paris.

The arrival at Vernuell was welcomed by about two score of the village's 744 inhabitants, who ranged in a semi-circle about the station platform in the few minutes between the arrival and departure. The Duke greeted the chauffeur of the car Mrs. Simpson had sent with a hearty handclasp.

Travels With Esquery

Passengers on the Paris-bound train were startled when the Duke detail an Austrian detective who left him at the Swiss border.

"I'll be back in two months."

Windsor travelled in an ordinary sleeper, sharing his accommodations with his equerry, after changing from a special car before the train left Austria last night.

The color-bearer on the train's rear platform kicked off the miles of his hurried journey as a refrain to his happy shouts of "We are free! We are free!"—his outburst at St. Wolfgang preceding the train's official word of Mrs. Simpson's absolute decree.

A companion of the former king when he received the news from Paris was told of his jubilant cries and of the immediate question: "When can the next train for Paris?"

Most of Baggage at Vienna

The possibility the Duke of Windsor's visit to Chateau Cando would be short found favor in view of advices that he had left most of his baggage at Vienna.

A member of the Duke's staff disclosed the former monarch was considering writing a book to correct many of the more erroneous reports concerning the abdication.

Meanwhile, Geoffrey Dawson, editor, and William Buckler, assistant editor, of the London "Coronation Commentary" was heard today in Chambers.

No reason was announced. The Duke has sued for libel, demanding damages, and has sought an injunction restraining circulation of the book, published last month.

CASH OR CREDIT NOT CASH AND CARRY

"Cash and Carry" may be a very good policy for the grocery business but it will hardly answer for the furniture business, according to Ex-Alderman Ben. Safe, the reverse being the case as the customer is carried and the cash is credited, as paid, while the furniture is carried by the time-delivery system wherever the customer desires it.

Alderman is the power behind Belleville's newest Home Furniture Company, 312 Front St., Belleville, and inadvertently in the space of this time he is Rotary Club edition Saturday the line "Cash and Carry" appeared instead of "CASH OR CREDIT".

Mr. Safe is pleased with specimens from the "Intelligent Compositor" and the "Eagle-eyed Proof Reader."

DAILY SHORT STORY

It's an Ill Wind

By Martie Ramson

After doing a stretch of a year in an eastern jail, Eddie Williams robbed because he had no alternative. With only the dollar he borrowed from him and starvation the spur and thumb nowise was the only one open to him.

In justice to Eddie it must be said that he was the victim of a frame-up. When his two pals rolled him to stop in the Smoke, Eddie had no idea they were going to hold up the place; not until they came out and told him to drive like h—l, they were picked up half an hour later by two radio cops.

Major Gardner, head of the Gardner Stables, running a string of horses at the new Santa Anita track, took a great deal of pride in his ability to judge men and horses. For that reason he never questioned Eddie concerning his past, but asked him if he knew horses and if he could ride. Yes, Eddie showed him his credentials; showed him his paper clippings; wanted to tell him about the year he spent in jail but the Major stopped him, said, "You'll do, my boy, you'll do."

In the two weeks before the opening of the track Eddie with two other jockeys, was busy working out the horses. The Major was always on hand with a kind word and a friendly pat on the back. He came to love this boy. He loved him because of his quiet manner, his affectionate way of talking to the horses and his consideration for their comfort in preference to his own. And if you don't think Eddie had a way with horses listen to this!

Miss Mary, a maiden after nine starts, won her first race the first time Eddie rode her. Tomboy, that broke track records at workouts, yet couldn't win a race, won the Gala Day Handicap with Williams up. Flying High, a horse that the Major had personally acquired for $7,500, won his first three races for the Gardner Stables with Williams riding.

Then into his life on the day of the big Thanksgiving Day Handicap came two strangers. Strangers they were to Eddie but he was no stranger to them.

It was an hour before the big race. Eddie was alone with Flying High when they approached him with a friendly enough smile. One of the two did all the talking.

"I'll ya, Eddie," he said with a friendly wave of his hand.

"Sticks", replied Eddie some too congenially.

"Eddie," he says matter-of-factly, "We want to see Flyin' High win today."

"Well," said Eddie smilingly, "so do I. Fact is, I'm riding him to win."

"Yeah . . . but we wanna make sure ya win."

"What do ya mean by that? I don't go for any phony stuff."

"Listen, kid," said the spokesman, "We just sold a horse for $7,000 and we got it all on Flyin' High's nose, see? An' if Flyin' High don't win, the Major'll be broke and you'll get the pen and we'll make it worse. We'll tell him it threw the race for six grand? How just be sensible and we'll all win. Get ahead of the game. You gonna help ya win."

Eddie hesitated and pleaded to leave him alone, but it was useless. He promised them he'd win without using their battery, but he'd insisted he take it and use it or clear.

Eleven horses were starting in the $25,000 Thanksgiving Day Handicap. Some of them Eddie hadn't seen at the track. Slipped in recently he supposed. There was Cossack at eight to five; Marietta at two to one; Peck's Lad at five to one and Flying High at two to one.

They all got away to a beautiful start in the usual noise and confusion attending the rising of the barrier. At the quarter pole Cossack took the lead, Peck's Lad was second and Marietta third. At the half they remained the same. Eddie didn't push his mount. He was too long a race for that. At the third quarter he gave him the word; talked to the horse, pleaded with him. He was determined he would not use the battery. He was gaining fast. He was neck and neck with Marietta as they passed Peck's Lad. The Cossack was right in front of them. Marietta was only ahead, passing the Cossack. Eddie urged Flying High but it was no use. Marietta crossed the finishing line in front, Cossack was second and Flying High, third.

When Eddie pulled his mount into the stable the two men were there ahead of him. They were talking to the Major. Eddie knew what to expect but he wasn't going to run away. He'd take it standing up. He pulled up and jolted the three in time to hear

"Here he is now. Ask 'im if it ain't true."

"I know all about Eddie, my friends," the Major was saying sternly. Then turning to Eddie he said, "Didn't expect you to win that race today, Eddie. I knew Marietta would beat Flying High. That's why I bought him this morning from these two friends of yours."

ENGLISH SPORTSMAN BACK AGAIN TO CHALLENGE AMERICA'S CUP

T. O. M. Sopwith, millionaire English sportsman, is again challenging the America's cup this year with two possible boats. He has reconditioned his first challenger, Endeavour I, and also built a new yacht Endeavour II, which he intends to race against his first boat. The fastest of the two will be used against the American defender. In this layout Mr. Sopwith is pictured along with Endeavor I. The boats will be towed across the Atlantic and will engage in trial spins off the American coast.

IL DUCE AND AUSTRIAN CHANCELLOR CHAT

Dr. Schuschnigg, the Austrian chancellor, left, and Premier Mussolini seem quite happy about something judging from the smiles on their faces. Il Duce flew from Roma to Venice to meet Chancellor Schuschnigg. The two statesmen had a two and a half hour talk at which time Mussolini stated he was definitely set against the Hapsburg's return to Austrian rule.

LEADS ITALIANS

Absence of General Attilio Teruzzi (above) former head of the Italian Fascist militia, from the funeral of his sister at Rome, has led to the disclosure he is leading Italian troops against the loyalist forces in Spain. Fascist circles in Rome stated the general, who commanded the Blackshirt forces in Ethiopia when they crushed the Eritrean frontier and attacked Adowa, had been sent to Spain by Il Duce following the defeat of the Italian forces at Guadalajara.

With fingers crossed to emphasize their sincerity, Manager Jimmy Dykes, left, of the Chicago White Sox and Manager Mickey Cochrane of Detroit Tigers, shake hands and wish each other luck in the baseball season. Incidentally Dykes and Cochrane were both members of the Philadelphia Athletics when that team won the world series for two consecutive years. Now they are rival managers.

PICTURE STARS MAY STAGE SYMPATHY STRIKE

Warning that striking technicians could not guarantee protection to motion picture stars who walk through picket lines formed about the major Hollywood picture studios was served upon such famous stars as Great Garbo, Bing Crosby and Jean Harlow by leaders of the strike which has spread swiftly among the men and women who design costumes or prepare scenery for the film industry. The warning was delivered at a meeting Screen Actor's Guild when 3,500 actors and actresses decided to withhold action for a week on a possible sympathy strike with the technicians. The above photograph shows, left, to right: Francis Lederer, Alan Mowbray, Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone as they left the mass meeting. Meanwhile it was up to the stars to make themselves up as the make-up artists had also gone on strike.

WARRANTS FOR THEIR ARREST WITHDRAWN

Bernard Shane

Raoul Trepanier

Warrants for the arrest of Bernard Shane, manager of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and Raoul Trepanier, president of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council, on charges of "conspiracy against public order" have been withdrawn according to reports from Montreal. The warrants were issued on the request of Premier Duplessis who claimed union leaders and workers were intimidating non-union employees in textile factories where strikes are now in progress. When the warrants were first issued Shane and Trepanier were determined to stay in concealment until such time as their attorneys could arrange to get bail following their arrest. The two men, however, disregarded the warrants and both appeared at a public meeting held in Montreal. Neither was molested by police officers.

UNKNOWN GUNMAN WOUNDS MIMICO MAN

MASKED GUNMAN POURS 4 SHOTS INTO MEDIATOR

Martin O'Brien of Mimico in Serious Condition in Hospital

ASKS FOR HUSBAND

Gunman Uses Two Revolvers And Escapes in Waiting Car

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Police said two men were held today as material witnesses in the hope they may lead them to the gunman who shot four shots into Martin O'Brien at suburban Mimico last night. Six shots were fired by the masked man but two of them went wild.

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Shot four times by a masked gunman, Martin O'Brien of suburban Mimico was reported in "very serious condition" by hospital attendants today. Six shots were fired by the masked man, four entering O'Brien's body.

The intruder last night entered the home of Edward Cressy, who adjoins O'Brien's house and asked: "Is Ed in?" when Mrs. Cressy asked him what he wanted. She said her husband had not yet arrived home and the gunman said he would wait.

Mrs. Cressy told him she had to go to a back room to see if her children were all right. She went out a back door and entered O'Brien's house and told him by phone the police. O'Brien did not wait to telephone but crossed the yard and entered Cressy's home.

Questioned Intruder.

"Well, George, what are you doing here?" O'Brien is said to have asked the gunman. The intruder pulled two revolvers from his pockets and started to shoot. Mrs. Cressy said O'Brien's ankle, leg and abdomen and he slumped to the floor. The gunman jumped over O'Brien's body and escaped to a waiting automobile.

Mrs. Cressy described the gunman as about 21 years old and five feet six inches tall. He was further described by a handkerchief, she said.

Edward Cressy, for whom the gunman was waiting, said he had learned from a railroad man a man answering that description was seen loitering near the railroad tracks earlier yesterday and if not for the story was the motive the gunman would have been disappointed as he had handed most of his money the previous day.

CHILD FALLS INTO 40 FOOT WELL, NOT HURT

Port Hope, Ont., May 5 (CP)—A two-year-old child fell to the bottom of a 50-foot unused well here last night without apparent serious injury. With two older brothers the child, Donald Briand, was playing on top of the well-covering when a plank loosened and the baby slipped through, dropping 30 feet to land on debris accumulated on the well bottom.

The other children ran to tell the father, Firemen were summoned and Chief Jack Record was lowered by a rope. He found the child laying face downward, smeared with blood.

Cherry Valley Gets Electric Lighting

Mr. Milton Cork, Toronto, Mr. Wm. Thompson, M.P.P., Cherry Valley and Mr. J. Wilson, Picton, are having electric lighting installed in the Cherry Valley Methodist Church and parsonage. Hydro has just been secured by the Township Glenora Ferry Does Record Business

The new scenic highway No. 33 from Picton to Glenora was the most popular drive in this country on Sunday. By three in the afternoon, Ferry Master Bob McLeod reported he had carried more than 100 cars across on the free government ferry between Glenora and Adolphustown. All afternoon the ferry plied the mile stretch of the bay and back carrying six cars each way, with as many as 30 cars waiting in line on either shore. Many Prince Edward cars visited historic Adolphustown and Bath and even travelled as far as Kingston. On Saturday night, Mr. Cork reported 86 cars from "across the bay" came to Picton to shop. It is reported that a meeting has been called by Napanee and Desoronto citizens to try to establish a free ferry at Green Point in the hope of diverting some trade from this county to those towns.

RULER APPROVES COLOR CHANGE IN O. B. E. RIBANDS

Changes Are Announced Also in Respect to Insignia

MANTLES AND RIBANDS

Present Colors Are Purple For Civil Division, Purple and Red For Military

London, May 5 (CP)—The king today approved a change in the colors of the mantles and ribands of the order of the British Empire to rose, pink and pearl grey. Changes in insignia also were announced.

Present colors are purple for the civil division of the order and purple with a narrow red stripe for the military division. Centres of stars are changed of the first two classes and of the badges of the third. Mantles and ribbon classes have been altered to include, in commemoration of the reign of George V and Queen Mary during which the order was founded, a design of their crowned effigies.

BALDWIN MAKES FINAL APPEAL

Pleads For Peace In Industry And Furtherance of British Freedom

By GEORGE HAMILTON

London, May 5 (CP) — In quiet tones of deep sincerity, Stanley Minister Baldwin made his final appeal in the House of Commons this afternoon. It was an appeal for peace in industry—an appeal that bore with it championship of British freedom.

Only in one phase did the Prime Minister give any hint of his coming retirement. "I am going to make my last speech," he said simply, as he leaned over the brass-bound box on the clerk's table, over which an unusual quiet has reigned before.

Yet in the scarcely suppressed murmur of sympathy that ran round the House and the keen interest with which Conservative and Labor members alike followed his every word, one felt that all realized these were words of farewell from a great statesman and lover to the greatest of democratic assemblies.

SIX-TO-ONE ODDS RAIN WILL FALL ON CORONATION DAY

If you have wagering propensities, take a chance on betting that May 12 will be a rainy day, it was revealed by a member of the city Coronation Committee at its regular meeting last evening.

Odds that rain will fall locally on the day of the King's crowning are six-to-one, the committee man stated.

"If I have placed a twenty-five dollar bet at these odds," stated the committee member, suggesting that there be made arrangements to take the service indoors in the event. The bet was later acted upon by the committee.

'Coronation Commentary' Will Be Allowed into Canada

Revenue Minister Says it is Not Treasonable Nor Immoral

HISTORY OF WORK

Ottawa, May 5 (CP)—The book "Coronation Commentary" by Douglas Reed, retired British League of Nations official, will be admitted to Canada, Revenue Minister Euler announced today.

The minister said he and officials of his department had read the book and found it was not treasonable, seditious, immoral or indecent. They had decided therefore, not to prohibit its entry into Canada.

Entry of the book, withdrawn from circulation in the United Kingdom after the Duke of Windsor protested and subsequently filed an action for libel against the author and publishers, was held up during its examination by national revenue department officials.

The copy on which decision was reached was obtained from the American publishers who decided to issue the book despite the withdrawal from circulation in Britain.

Robbers Loot Bank Taking $7,000 Cash

Plymouth, Mich., May 5.—(AP)—Two men broke into the First National Bank through a ventilator during the night forced the night watchman to vault with them, arrived today and escaped with approximately $7,000 in currency, forcing bank employees and a patron bound in the basement.

Strikers Parade Before Silknit Company Plant

Toronto, May 5.—(CP)— About 200 men and women, paraded early today in front of the Ontario Silknit Company where a strike is underway. The demonstration was in protest against dismissal by the company of all its striking employees. Miss Margaret Dow, employee, was hit over the head with an umbrella as she entered the plant and Nellie Griffith, 20, was arrested on a charge of assaulting a police officer when she refused to move on.

Coronation Briefs

London, May 5 (CP)—Already there are packing cases which will call up memories of the May 12 Coronation in years to come.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Let's All Go Down the Strand," were the popular tunes when King George V was crowned. "Good-bye Dolly Grey," will bring to mind the Coronation of Edward VII to the older set.

Here are the songs Tin Pan Alley believes will remind the present generation of the approaching Coronation: "Pennies From Heaven", "Red, White and Blue", "Good Night My Love", "When My Dream Boat Comes Home", "Magnolias in the Moonlight" and "At the Balalaika."

Wood Green, Middlesex, May 5 (CP)—As old Coronation mugs are offered at auction, a pressed jug to be claimed by the first one to capture it has been abandoned by the local council on the ground of cruelty. The mayor said that on one occasion a pig's tail had been pulled off by the roots.

London, May 5 (CP)—Sixteen mothers who lost sons and husbands in the Great War have received invitation from the King to the Coronation in Westminster Abbey. They will represent all the women of Britain who were bereaved during the war.

London, May 5 (CP)—Some idea of the proportions of the catering business on the Coronation procession route is given by the announcement that one snack proprietor on a section of the six mile route expects to sell more than $100,000 worth of food. The bill of fare he is offering are: 100,000 sandwiches at six cents each; cups of tea, made from 2,500 pounds of tea, 1,500 gallons of milk, five tons of sugar, at six cents each; 100,000 buns at two cents each; 100,000 cakes at four cents each;

Town Planning Committee Proposal is Explained by Alderman Burton Jennings

A recommendation that city council authorize the formation of a standing committee to be known as a "Town Planning Committee" with chairman and members appointed from year to year by the elected body of city council has left some doubts in the minds of local residents as to its purpose. No outline of the committee's activities was contained in the simple recommendation submitted.

In clarifying this matter, Alderman Burton Jennings, father of the recommendation pointed out last evening at the meeting of the Bay of Quinte Beautiful Association, Inc., that in an effort to build up Belleville on an organized plan the public should be taken into three divisions—the business section, the residential front, the east and west portions. These, in turn, would be divided again into sub-divisions. Under this system, complete records of all intended building, improvement and new projects could be more easily and rapidly worked to their ultimate conclusion, it was stated by Alderman Jennings.

Whether the long deferred matter of the esplanade would be included in the work of the committee was not specifically mentioned. But, it was intimated, if popular opinion became strong enough to demand its construction, then the council and committee would be readily organized to swing into direct action on the project. Full details of the scheme are already in possession of members of this proposed Town Planning Committee, as well as those who suggested for civic improvement, it was stated.

"We also have the waterfront property to consider," Alderman Jennings said, "and have been quietly mapping out our plans in this direction,' stated Alderman Jennings in closing remarks. "The formation of this committee would be one of the steps toward a better and more efficient council and a bigger and better Belleville," added the Alderman.

DR. EARL CLOUSE ACCEPTED

Toronto, May 5.—(CP)—Dr. Earl Clouse was appointed by Mr. Justice Ainslee Greene in Assize Court today on a charge of manslaughter arising from the death of a 17-year-old Picton girl. Dr. Clouse was accused of having performed an illegal operation, which he denied.

Choice of Future Home Creates Mild Argument At Chateau de Cande

Mrs. Wally Simpson Prefers United States or Canada, While Windsor Prefers to Return to Austria Report States—World-Known Lovers to Listen to Coronation Rites Over Powerful Receiving Set.

Monte, France, May 5 (AP)—A pair of world-known lovers at present secluded within the ancient manor and rusty grillwork of Chateau de Cande were reported today as blissfully unconcerned by the events of their future home.

Wallis Warfield Simpson — the former Baltimore belle—was understood to be urging Canada or the United States as a land in which the tumult surrounding her romance would be forgotten.

Edward, Duke of Windsor — the British monarch who abdicated the throne to wed the woman he might have worn one week hence—was pictured as wanting to return to his home in Austria, whose people, he feels, love him best.

Their trials of five months and one day of separation melted away today in a joyful embrace at the chateau. Persons close to the household said Mrs. Simpson confessed that after the wedding they might go to Canada or the United States to escape the memories and tribulations of royalty that still would bind them as a duke and duchess.

Edward was understood to want to return to the Austrian Alps whose mountains sheltered him during the period which followed his abdication December 10. Mrs. Simpson's divorce suit against a London "night spot" keeper will be the only bar.

Marry in France.

It was generally accepted the barriage would be performed at the chateau near here, a landmark in the old Provence countryside.

The two were not pressed for time in their honeymoon plans, because the chateau, empty but to dim the memories of the past, is equipped with a powerful radio receiving set on which they will call up memories of the May 12 Coronation in years to come.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Let's All Go Down the Strand," were the popular tunes when King George V was crowned. "Good-bye Dolly Grey," will bring to mind the Coronation of Edward VII to the older set.

Here are the songs Tin Pan Alley believes will remind the present generation of the approaching Coronation: "Pennies From Heaven", "Red, White and Blue", "Good Night My Love", "When My Dream Boat Comes Home", "Magnolias in the Moonlight" and "At the Balalaika."

ALBERTA PARK AFIRE

Tree Plantation Near Sault Ste. Marie Reports Fire

Four Canadian provinces today faced an early spring bush fire threat which appeared on the heels of warm, dry weather. The fires burned in Northern Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, and Alberta.

Light sleet and rain relayed fears in the Kirkland Lake district of Northern Ontario where the bush is drier at this time of the year than it has been for several seasons, Smail Fires near Sudbury are under control.

Change in Wind Expected.

A fire was burning in the government tree plantation in the Sault township near Sault Ste. Marie and another was reported west of Mc-Padden Lumber Company's Blind River, but neither fire was considered serious. A change in the wind is expected to check fires at Trout Lake and Pangis, north of the Sault.

Although several bush fires broke out in Manitoba yesterday after the week's hot spell, cold weather today and snow which blanketed the area eliminated the danger. The snow started to fall at midnight.

Fight Fires in Nova Scotia

Nova Scotia Rangers fought fires from Yarmouth to Tatamagouche where flames raged for the last two days. They were still battling to control last night but rain was required to definitely end the threat. Many fires were extinguished and closed to those not holding special permits by the Nova Scotia authorities. Port Medway residents for a while yesterday prepared to flee their homes but the firefighters closed the flames.

Elk Island Park Buffalo Reserve, 65 miles northeast of Edmonton, was the scene of one of Alberta's fires. The flames advanced into the south end of the park while all available rangers were rushed into the fire-fighting zone.

HUMAN BONES SAYS EXPERT

Examination Made by Dr. E. R. Frankish of Toronto

The bones found in the north-land brush which were identified to be the remains of Aubrey Sedore, drowned a year ago, belonged to a bachelor, submitted by Inspector Frank Gardner, of the Ontario Provincial Police to Dr. E. R. Frankish medico-legal expert of the Attorney General's Department on Tuesday were declared by him to be human remains Inspector Gardner stated at Ontario Intelligencer today.

Dr. Frankish and Jack knife found in the ash heap of the bush camp near Sedore's shack where Police have also been identified as the property of Sedore, Inspector Gardner stated, but refused comment as to the identity of the bones when asked if he suspected these articles.

Inspector Gardner and Provincial Constable Fred Barrett took the two quarts of charred bones to Toronto Tuesday for examination and today are questioning Rob. Woodman, 25, a partner of Sedore, the Sedore's and a neighbor, who lived with him in the bush camp on a nominal charge of vagrancy pending investigation looking into the mysterious disappearance of Sedore.

This afternoon Inspector Gardner and Constable Barrett will again thoroughly search the immediate ground in the vicinity of the bush fire, in which the charred human bones were found, in search of further clues.

COUNTY ROAD BOARD MEETS

With several items of important business to discuss, principal among which is the granting of tenders for the purchase of road machinery, the Road and Bridges Committee of the County of Hastings will go into session tomorrow morning in the office of the County Clerk.

Tenders for road machinery received will necessitate a lengthy session. It was announced Chairman James A. Moore will preside.

'United in Opposition To Regime of Hepburn', Hon. Earl Rowe Declares

'Whom Would we be Uniting Against if Coalition', He Asked

PARTY AND UNIONISM

Conservative Leader Speaks at Convention at Arthur Today

Arthur, Ont., May 5.—The Hon. Earl Rowe, speaking at the North Wellington Liberal - Conservative convention here this afternoon, reaffirmed his stand that the Liberal-Conservative party "will adhere to its traditions, and stand united in opposition to the Hepburn administration."

The Conservative leader made this point clear before the enthusiastic gathering when he addressed the North Wellington Liberal-Conservative convention at which a candidate was selected to contest the riding for the Liberal-Conservative party in the vacancy created by the death of Dr. George Nicholls Gibbs.

Any expectations entertained by Mr. Hepburn that the Liberal-Conservative party would enter a coalition government were completely shattered by the Conservative leader's definite and clear-cut pronouncements.

"If any suggestion of coalition were even considered, who would we be uniting against?" asked Mr. Rowe. "Coalition would either stifle constructive opposition in the legislature of this province, and give carte blanche to the establishment of a dictatorship, or it would be a definite refusal by those charged with responsibility to institute progressive legislation designed to better the welfare of the farmer and the laboring man of this province.

Law and Order.

"I hold no brief for communism. The party I have the honor to lead will always insist on the maintenance of law and order, but, at the same time, I feel that there are those who are only too ready to brand as communists any worker who seeks to better his position through constitutional means.

"The national policy of the Liberal-Conservative party is financial and dominion, for many years has been to foster industry for the purpose of providing work and wages for our workers and thereby create a profitable home market for our agriculture and other primary producers, and to stimulate the exploration and development of our natural resources. Our party's accomplishments in this attitude towards labor is evidenced by the social legislation on our statute books.

PAUL MUNI IS QUITTING SCREEN

Calls Stardom in Theatre A Slavery to The Public

Hollywood, May 5 (AP) — Paul Muni, who once called stardom a slavery to the public, is quitting the screen at the age of 42. He may return. He may not. That depends, he said today, on his success at leaving.

The slight, tense-faced actor pinnacled his career with the 1936 Academy award, but left for the stage in spite of his long confinement to the sound stages. He never bowtowed to Hollywood conceptions of a celebrity, he feels no qualms at defying the power that has forged an almost face.

Muni views the star system of the movies as "all wrong, because it glorifies the individual when the story should be first."

"I have been an actor since I was a boy, and, like my father, I wanted to become a star," he said.

LANTERN UPSET BY PHEASANT CAUSES FIRE

Lindsay, Ont., May 5—(CP)—A pheasant overturning a lantern in a barn on the property of Reginald Mark, two miles southeast of Little Britain, resulted in a fire which destroyed two barns and their contents. While pitching down hay for the cattle in the barn, Mark left the lantern on a beam. He did not see the lantern knocked off, but was startled when a pheasant had caused the flaw.

100 Reported Killed in Street Fighting at Perpignan

Cerbere, on the Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 5.—(CP-Havas)—The Barcelona radio station today announced that agreement had been reached between the Anarchists and the Catalan Generalidag for termination of the fighting in Barcelona and other Catalan centres.

Perpignan, Franco-Spanish frontier May 5.—(AP)—An anarchist revolt split the anti-insurgent leftist front of autonomous Catalonia today and left 100 reported dead in street battles.

Government tanks rumbled through the streets of Barcelona, Spain's largest city, and machine gun nests were set up at strategic points as the central administration strove to crush the civil war within a civil war.

Weekend Govt. Position

The strife weakening the Madrid-Valencia government's position against Generalissimo Franco's insurgents.

President Luis Companys of Catalonia, the northeastern section of Spain, a leftist stronghold throughout the 9 1-3 months civil war, was reported to have withdrawn troops from the insurgent fronts in an effort to heal the second capital Catalan labor and political chieftains appealed, in radio speeches, for an end to "the terrible and blood flowing in the streets."

One warned: "Don't waste your powder here" less the internal strife prove fatal in the war against Franco.

But latest advices said the anarchists kept up their battle.

15 MILLION PLANTS TO BE TRANSPLANTED

Grown by a large number of individuals and firms, fifteen million tomato seedlings will find their way to the "Plate" via the transplanting process from hotbeds in Prince Edward County during the next few weeks.

The large amount grown by an individual is five million, planted with others averaging from a quarter million upwards. It is expected that county state, that the plants are in excellent condition. In order to prevent a repetition of what occurred last year, when a late frost destroyed a large number of the tender plants, the Dept. of Agriculture through its representatives has instituted a new service for the protection of the grower of plants. If frost danger presents itself, local agricultural offices will be informed and action taken at once at Trenton. Farmers and growers will be warned in time, in time to take precautionary measures to protect their plants.

C. A. Cameron New President Of Concert Assoc. Branch

Principal MacLaurin Retires After Having Been President For First 3 Years

600 MEMBERS AIM

Belleville Concert Association which has been bringing well-known artists to this city for the past three years and which last week closed a very successful season of programs, organized on Tuesday evening at a banquet meeting at the Y.M.C.A. for the next season. President P. C. MacLaurin, who has been at the head of the local branch of the Canadian Concert Association since its institution, and has seen very successful seasons pass, retired as president and is followed by Mr. Charles A. Cameron, K.C., M.P. Mr. MacLaurin presided over the function last evening until after 8 o'clock.

A large number of members of the association were present, including music-lovers from Trenton, Picton, Napanee and other places in the district which have contributed much to the success of the association. For the first time George E. Mitchell, of Toronto, president of the O.C.A. was present. Miss Irmgarde Westerman, campaign director who organized with leading musicians of the city the association three years ago, was also present to take part in the sale of memberships for the next season of 1937-38.

Officers Elected

The officers are:

President—Charles A. Cameron, K.C., M.P., Belleville.

Past President—P. C. MacLaurin, Belleville.

Hon. Presidents—Lee B. Rigg, Q.C., P. Hunt, Col. W. N. Ponton, Mrs. A. E. MacColl, J. C. Herity and Hon. Dr. Leslie M. Frost, M.P.P.

Vice Presidents—R. Rachborn, Belleville; W. J. Morgison, Ontario School for the Deaf; Rev. Bert Howard, Albert College; S. B. Wright, Deloro; S. R. Burrows, Belleville; Principal C. E. Jamieson, Napanee, G.L. Wise (Dr.) Carrie Allison, Picton; Miss N. McLellan, Trenton.

Treasurer—B. C. Stiler, Belleville.

Secretary—Mrs. Bessie Reid, Belleville.

Campaign Secretary—Mrs. (Dr.) J. W. Kinnear, Belleville.

Campaign Campaign Committee—Miss Leona Riggs, Belleville.

Publicity Chairman and Chairman of Ushers—Alec Gordon, Belleville.

Principal MacLaurin on leaving the presidency was tendered warm gratitude by the members on the achievements in the most important period of the association.

Mr. Charles A. Cameron in taking the chair declared "It is the first musical organization I have ever been associated with. I feel you have given me very wonderful support in the executive you have chosen for next year.

"This association was founded three years ago. It was rather difficult to get the right man to plan it, but the association was fortunate in their unanimous choice of Mr. MacLaurin as that man. If you had had your way and I had had my way, he should not have been allowed to step down now. We all appreciate your fine efforts on our behalf." Mr. Cameron said, addressing the past president.

600 Members Sought

Mr. Cameron pointed out the fact that the campaign opened at the meeting and would extend to Monday evening. He set the goal of a membership of at least six hundred.

Principal Morrison of the O.S.D. pointed to the wisdom in the choice of Mr. Cameron as president who had been and would be of invaluable aid to the association.

Reference was made to the fact that the B.C.I.V.S. students had the privilege of hearing gratis the same artists during the afternoon of the concerts. "I have always felt that we have had not enough, music in the schools. There is no opposition to music except that of the cost in the schools, and is more easy it seems to convince the public that it is wise to spend money on arithmetic than on music.

"I do not know how you can have a full sympathy with and understanding of music without wishing to extend its blessings to others."

Speaks of Cultural Values

Director Milford of the Canadian Concert Association spoke briefly referred to Mr. MacLaurin's interest in the association and said "We are deeply grateful for all those who have taken part. Belleville is fortunate in having so capable a committee chairman as Miss Riggs."

The director stressed the afternoon recitals for students, saying that fifty years hereafter 10,000 boys and girls had heard the same artists as the members of the association. "We are going to have a part to play in making the afternoon recitals possible."

The association has added new branches during the year and Timmins, for instance has just formed its first season. "We now intend to bridge the gap between Sudbury and Trail, B.C." he stated.

Miss Leona Riggs, was very optimistic over the prospects of the present membership campaign, and pointed to the success of the past president in his office, and spoke on details of the campaign.

Miss Westerman described Belleville has been an inspiration to other cities in the establishment of branches. Mention was made of the artists and groups available for the 1937-38 season.

Saving on "Tax"

The president pointed out that the local branch would save money on every ticket this year as there would be no amusement tax in Ontario.

The treasurer, B. C. Stiler presented a statement showing a small surplus in the report it was shown that the artists were paid $925.00, and the amusement tax was indicated at $125.00.

At the close the president wished the canvassers success in their drive.

Motorists Beware!

Local motorists are complaining regarding an alleged "speed trap", that is reported to be in operation in the vicinity of Colborne. According to the motorists the alleged "speed trap" is located at the eastern entrance to the village of Colborne where two men are said to be stationed a few hundred feet apart and upon the appearance of a motorist, coming along the highway, one of the men, well secluded, is to reported, signals while the second man "clocks" the oncoming vehicle for a given distance and reports the motorist's plate number of the passing car. They say the motorist knows nothing of the proceeding until he is informed by court summons, that he has broken the speed laws of the village of Colborne and it remains only to have the offender fight the case by "paying up", the latter usually being the more convenient manner in which to settle the unfortunate condition. The alleged "speed trap" is operated inside the limits of East Colborne, Residents complain and not in the village proper.

Guns Will Boom Salute As City Marks Coronation

Celebration Will be Held on Victoria Park on May 12th

DETAILS ARRANGED

Weather permitting Belleville's coronation day celebration on May 12th, in which thousands of the city are expected to take part in the planned ceremonies, will be held on Victoria Park where 18-pounder guns of the local 49th Battery will roar out a full 21-gun Royal Salute across the water. A firing party of Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (Thanet) will also fire a feu-de-joie on the park and a salute to the coronation of the new King.

In event of rain the full ceremony will be held in the interior of the arena on the Market Square. Plans for this and the amplified system will be installed in duplicate on the park and in the arena as a precautionary measure.

The question was decided finally at the regular meeting of the City Coronation Committee held in the City Hall last night.

Permission to fire the Royal Salute by the battery has been granted and with the understanding that the city will pay for the cost of the ammunition which will be $2 per round or a total of $60.00 and pay also for the cost of a telegram from Kingston who will be in full charge of the ceremonies. Other members of the committee were advised in a communication received from the Department of National Defence.

Parade Plans Made

While full details of the parade and order of procedure of the various military and civic units of the city have not as yet been completed it was the special parade committee under Ross Hunter, Chairman and Miss Ruby Hall, later edition of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer, that the parade would be planned last evening was in the order as follows: At the head of the parade, the civic officials and military officials. This would be followed by the Belleville Municipal Band, the city council, the Board of Education, war veterans of the city, the Coronation Committee, Ministerial Association, Collegiate and Vocational School Band containing other ranking officers of the local militia, 77th Field Band; the 34th Battery; Argyll Light Infantry (Militia) Collegiate and Vocational School Band; Girl Guides; Salvation Army Band; King George School Band; Queen Alexandra School Band; Victoria School Collegiate and Vocational School Band; Queen Elizabeth School; St. Michael's Academy; Collegiate and Vocational School; Ontario School for the Deaf and Albert College.

Route of parade and actual order of procedure, however, will be as yet been completed, it was pointed out, and some changes in the order of march may be necessary.

Pupils of local schools of the second book and under will be exempted from the parade and will attend the ceremonies in company with their parents.

Dance Committee

Again the matter of location for the ceremonies of the coronation assumed a leading place in last evening's discussion. It was when the committee named had adjourned from the meeting and finally decided that the vote upon the open air location was taken, naming the park as the logical site upon its recommendation. The Belleville Agricultural Grounds had been proposed as second choice.

A plea for Belleville to make its celebration a memorable one was voiced at the opening of the meeting by Mrs. R. B. Payne. "It will be a rare experience in our lives, this crowning of King George and children, and we owe it to them to do our part to make it memorable."

"Belleville is fortunate in having a Battery and Belleville feels that it would be a great loss if we failed to take advantage of the opportunity of hearing the Royal Salute fired. The Royal Salute after all can be given to only one person—the King."

Public school cadets will parade without uniform and pupils under the second book will be not asked to parade, it was also decided.

Please Will Take Part

The Pipers of the Royal Air Force Trenton, may also assist in the observance of the day with an aerial display over the park if a request for the presence over Belleville by the committee is entertained by officials of the Force.

The parade will start at ten o'clock sharp in the morning.

The matter of admission to the small bridge at the entrance to the Park was referred to Mayor R. D. Ponton while permission for the use of the Park has been secured from the local Board of Parks Commission by the committee.

Hand bills making will be distributed to children through teachers and principals after the parade has been completed. Children not in attendance will receive their medals on the day following.

ALBERT COLLEGE 2ND YEAR ARTS RESULTS GIVEN

Nine Students Successful in Obtaining Second Year

Word was received from Queen's University this morning that Albert students' results in Second Year Arts were most satisfactory. Ten of the students registered in the Second Year Arts Class at Albert were successful in obtaining their year. On the basis of papers written twenty per cent. passed in good standing. Parrot in Elm Tree Quits Sit-Up Strike

Belleville's first "feathered" sit-down strike is over. The parrot owned by C. Smith of Dundas Street, decided to come to terms after sojourning in the Petty branches of a tall elm tree for a period of three days.

Last night while Smith was standing in the yard, a flash of whirring wings sounded the end of the strike and the irate squawk, Polly settled on her master's shoulder. A minute later the bird was hungrily devouring its first meal since it decided to take to the open spaces.

HAD AGONISING PAINS IN HER BACK

Free From Pain Since Taking Kruschen

Like many other sufferers from backache and rheumatic ailments this woman decided to try Kruschen Salts in a last attempt to obtain relief from pain. To her surprise the pains did grow less, and in a few months the backache had disappeared. Having made sure of the result, she now writes as follows:—

"For about four months I had agonising pains in the back, and could not turn in bed. During that time I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief, and was thoroughly considering going into hospital. However, seeing a case similar to mine described in an advertisement for Kruschen, I thought I would try it, and was more than surprised to find the pain getting less. I have been taking Kruschen for five months, and would not be without it for anything. I must say I am free from those dreadful pains." (Mrs.) T. G.

Kruschen is an excellent diuretic—that is, it helps to stimulate kidney functions. When kidneys are restored to healthy, normal action, poisonous matter is being purified, and you get welcome relief from the dragging pains of backache.

GOVERNMENT AID FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

Grants to be Given to Those Schools Forced to Add New Equipment

Toronto, May 5—(CP)—Correction of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario went into second day today, headed by news Hon. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, will announce shortly a plan for government aid to high schools forced to provide additional by A. G. Lewis, head teacher changes in first year courses.

Consideration of the scheme was revealed last night by Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education. The announcement of the proposed apprehension on the part of the Province in the matter of erection of shop work and commercial studies in schools lacking necessary equipment might entail added expense for the schools.

Low salaries paid teachers was seen as the reason for dwindling attendance at teachers' training clinical equipment because of lack of University of Toronto, who said Ontario faced possibility of new teacher shortage in the next few years.

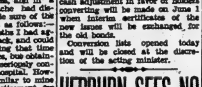
The Ontario government will be asked to increase its grants for education and to establish more equitable distribution of them to assure uniformity of salaries for teachers.

In another resolution the Minister of Education was asked to arrange a conference to consider a uniform compulsory contract for teachers. The association, however, maintained each board should have the right to make its own contract.

CONVERSION LOAN OFFERED TO PUBLIC

Dominion to Refinance Part of Victory Loan: Due December 1

Ottawa, May 5—(CP)—With the double object of reducing expenditure and increasing revenue the Dominion government today offers a new conversion loan to refinance a part of the $496,260,800 victory loan bonds falling due Dec. 1, next.



Hon. J. L. Ilsley, acting Minister of Finance announced the conversion last night. Holders of the 5 1-2 per cent victory bonds may before after the war will be given a chance to convert them into one per cent, two per cent, or 3 1-4 per-cent bonds subject to taxation.

The issue maturing in December is the last outstanding lot of tax-free bonds. By replacing them with securities bearing lower interest rates the government will cut down on its outlay. Income tax returns will be increased when the funds invested in the bonds are reinvested either in the new bonds or in other ways.

The bonds offered are two year securities with interest at one per cent at 99.25 to yield 1.38 per cent, five-year securities with interest at two per cent at 98.25 to yield 2.575 per cent and 13-year securities with interest at 3 1-4 per cent at 99.00 to yield 3.35 per cent.

With accrued interest the victory bonds will be worth 102.25 when they mature Dec. 1.' The resulting cash adjustment in favor of holders converting will be made on June 1 when interim certificates of the new issue will be exchanged for the old bonds.

Conversion lists opened today and will be closed at the discretion of the acting minister.

HEPBURN SEES NO 'REAL NEED' FOR GENERAL ELECTION

Announces Surplus of $9,313,000 or $2,313,000 Over The Estimate

NO COALITION

Praises Conservative Press For Standing Behind Government

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Premier Hepburn of Ontario said in a speech today with the statement that at present he see no "real demand" for an election and that he wishes to "dissipate any idea of a coalition government in Ontario." In a speech last night the Premier also announced Ontario's surplus for the fiscal year ended March 31, last, as $9,313,000, or $2,313,000 above his estimate.

"I don't believe at this moment there is any real demand for an election," he said the Ontario Women's Liberal Association. "The people will not ask for a general election unless some critical situation might arise."

"Any idea of a coalition I know of exists only in the office of the President of the Toronto Star," Mr. Hepburn declared.

Last Saturday the Star said "overtures" toward establishment of a coalition government in Ontario were launched, when the Premier asked Conservative leader Earl Rowe to visit him.)

Mr. Hepburn said succession duty collections for the fiscal year amounted to $15,981,000 and said there had been a reduction of $33,000,000 in the gross debt.

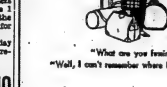
Mapped Out Course

"We have had to settle unprecedented problems in the last few weeks," said the Premier after referring to his "very humble part" in the General Motors strike. He made no direct reference to the resignations from the cabinet of Arthur Roebuck and David Croll, but added: "We mapped out our course and we followed it religiously in the public interest. There were some things we had to do which hurt and which will have scars for generations."

Mr. Hepburn said he had been delayed with letters from the United States commending his stand against the John L. Lewis committee for industrial organization. He said he believed "the attitude of the Province of Ontario has had a very beneficial effect on those who have activities on the whole continent."

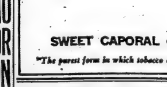
He praised the Toronto Star (Joseph K. Atkinson) "strangely enough marched out of step and I am glad of it," and Ontario, so far as the press of Ontario is concerned, I want to say, with one conservative press, that stood so loyally by the government in a crucial time.

"Sometime I may take the responsibility of telling you exactly what a man in public life has to endure when a newspaper editor tries to dictate to the government. I won't be much to the credit of Mr. Atkinson if and when I do, I'm going to do a good job."



Premises Eodection

Mr. Hepburn defended his governments method of labor legislation, declaring "any government that has accomplished what we have" was entitled to labor's support. He said his government had recognized the right of labor to form unions for collective bargaining had insured such affiliations.



"So long as it was with a respectable organization like the American Federation of Labor," he added, "that, apparently we want to make the province a safe place for decent citizens. We will resist any influx of lawlessness from the United States whether in the guise of Communism, Leadership or Al Capponeism."

Mr. Hepburn announced success of his labor department in concluding an agreement between pulpwood workers and employers in Northern Ontario, under the Industrial Standards Act, whereby the men got a 15 per cent increase in wages.

In an attack on the record of the former Conservative administration, the Premier declared there had been prodigality in expenditure and carelessness in bookkeeping. He contrasted his own record after recounting last year's deficit, said if revenues were maintained a reduction would be made in passenger car license fees in October.

BALBO MAY BE NEW VICEROY OF ETHIOPIA

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani

Marshal Italo Balbo

Poor health, as a result of the estimated 160 wounds he received when an attempt was made on his life at Addis Ababa, last February is rumored as probably forcing Marshal Rodolfo Graziani to give up his post as Viceroy of Ethiopia. Authoritative circles believe Marshal Italo Balbo, at present Governor of Lybia will succeed him.

Bideford, Devon, May 5 (CP)—A search in this district for tall, bearded men is being made by the citizens of the town's Coronation pageant, which will feature episodes connected with local history.

Sir Richard Grenville, Sir Walter Raleigh, and all the famous old seafarers of Devon will live again. They were men with beards but the mistress of the pageant cannot find enough tall, bearded men to impersonate them.

Sheffield, Yorkshire, May 5 (CP) —Mary Ann O'Connor, 66, is as proud as the day her five sons enlisted for service in the Great War. She has received a personal invitation from the King to attend the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey. Three of her sons were killed, another was gassed, and the fifth was severely wounded. They won nine medals.

London, May 5 (CP)—The initial issue of Coronation 13-sided "thrift coin" (worth 3 pence) ex-changed hands at the rate of 43 cents each on the Stock Exchange. The Royal Mint is turning them out rapidly.

Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, May 5 (CP)—Sentence of death summarily for all first offenders in Sunday on Coronation Day and serving sentences of three months or less was approved today by Governor Sir Herbert Stanley. Between 500 and 600 prisoners will benefit. Special recommendations will be made to reduce the sentences of long-term prisoners whose conduct has been good.

London, May 5.— (CP Cable)—A gossip writer in the Daily Telegraph today told a story about confusion aboard the Liner Empress of Australia, which brought the Canadian Coronation delegation to England.

Several passengers arrived in their cabins to find officials busily searching their belongings. Soon it was apparent the cabins was being ransacked.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King had mislaid a case of documents. A few of the passengers were tearful, a few affronted, but many were amused. Finally the case was found in the ship's hold.

London, May 5.— (CP Cable)— Official announcement was made today that medals and decorations may be appropriately worn with civilian dress by spectators on the route of the Coronation procession and other ceremonies May 12.

They may be worn by all whom they have been awarded, including ex-officers in the services and members of the nursing services. Holders of war medals and decorations awarded to relatives of deceased should be worn on the right side of the coat or outer garment.

New York, May 5.—(AP)— The last two Hunts in the United States that will reach London before the Coronation sailed from New York today.

They were the Bremen and the Queen Mary. They carried a total of 3,125 passengers—1,625 on the Queen Mary and 1,200 on the Bremen—many of them Coronation-bound.

London, May 5.—(CP Cable) —For the first time in history Dominion troops next week will mount guard at Buckingham Palace.

According to present arrangements only Australia will take over the full guard for 24 hours. Guard duties will be: Sunday, Canada, sentries, noon to 6 p.m.; Monday, Australia, full guard, 24 hours; Tuesday, New Zealand, noon till 6 p.m.; Thursday, South Africa, noon to 6 p.m. Indian troops probably will present guard May 12.

London, May 5.—(CP-Havas)— Lady Rachel Howard today took the role of Queen Elizabeth at a rehearsal of Coronation ceremonies in Westminster Abbey.

A large crowd jammed the surroundings of the Abbey as the rehearsal was staged inside under the direction of Lady Rachel's brother, the Duke of Norfolk, hereditary Earl Marshal.

London, May 5.—(CP Cable) —Coronation visitors expected to see heavy fighting in Spain. The insurgents are reported gathering their forces for the final bombardment of Bilbao. Unconfirmed reports speak of a German army crashing across France to help General Francisco Franco.

Anarchists and Socialists fought through the night in the barricaded streets of Barcelona, the British cruiser Despatch and the Destroyer Hostile are to arrive there today to protect the interests of British Nationals.

SINCERE TRIBUTE TO EMPIRE'S UNITY

Banquet at Canada Club, England Honors Dominion Ministers

London, May 5 (CP)—Sincere tribute to the Empire's unity was paid with jests at one another's expense as Great Britain's most distinguished men gathered at a Canada Club banquet to honor Prime Minister Mackenzie King, other Canadian cabinet members and 400 Canadian visitors to the coronation.

One of the outstanding pre-coronation events, the gathering, with Viscount Greenwood, a native of Ontario, in the chair, last night heard Mr. Mackenzie King, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Canadian Minister of Justice, and Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, proclaim Canada's belief in democratic government within the Empire.

Malcolm MacDonald, Dominions Secretary, and Lord Greenwood also spoke. The Empire, Mr. MacDonald said, was strengthened by Canada's representation, to be "not a land grabbing enterprise but an ardent fellowship of men and races."

The Canadian Prime Minister found it most significant the coronation and the Imperial conference would be held almost simultaneously. The joint event revealed the sentiment, traditional, economic and practical union of the Empire, enduring in the face of a changing world he said.

Eyes Forward

Reminding England that its equality of status was guaranteed under the statute of Westminster, Mr. Lapointe jokingly told Mr. MacDonald not to be afraid of the Canadian invasion.

Acclaimed as a symbol of the union of Canada's two races, Lapointe said Canada was attempting to follow England's example of "moral and public service," while retaining freedom of thought.

Lord Greenwood, reminded the gathering he had been an Undersecretary for war with Mr. Mackenzie King where the future Canadian, Premier had taken all pains to accept in Sunday school. The future Premier had, in fact, called "aldealps to hell." "And there I am," he said.

The Canadian Prime Minister said Canada, firm member of the Empire, maintained full individuality, independence and freedom. Lapointe added that because Canada followed English principles "the queer doctrines of the bad boys of Europe . . . will never get any footing on Canadian soil."

To the Silver Jubilee Celebrations of King George V.

On May 6, 1935, the British Empire celebrated the silver jubilee of the reign of King George V. It was a glorious tribute, in London, and reproduced in every country where the British flag flies, to a well-loved monarch and his consort, who had guided the empire through 25 of the most colorful and trying years in history.

Great changes had taken place between the May 6th, 1910, and Edward VII passed away and that day when London witnessed the procession, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, as they drove in the magnificent procession to St. Paul's. No shadow of the tragedy that was to fall, low of the high call of duty that would come, passed over them that day as they joined with their subjects in the impressive ceremonies. Thousands of those same subjects will be reminded of the jubilee pageant when their son Edward VIII leads the corporate procession this over two years later to crown the then duke their King.

W. H. MORTON, PUBLISHER

CANADIAN LOVE OF COMEDY

Gloom is not true to the character of the Canadian people, Lord Tweedsmuir said at the finals of the Dominion Drama Festival. The adjudicator Mr. St. Denis and the Governor General both remarked on the gloom of the series of plays in the finals and suggested that a little more fun would have been welcome.

Evidently this is true of Canadian character, for not less than twenty-three years ago a great actor was in Belleville and during an interview here remarked that the Canadian does not care for tragedy but shows a high sense of appreciation of farce and comedy. That actor was Laurence Irving (son of Sir Henry Irving) who played "The Unwritten Law", written by Irving himself on Dostoievsky's "Crime and Punishment." Just three months later Irving tragically enough, lost his life in one of the greatest of marine disasters in Canadian waters when the Empress of Ireland on which he was a passenger sank after a collision in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the loss of lives totalling many hundreds.

There is little doubt that the robustness required in the western world makes for a more robust life, a life that enjoys comedy and the happy things as well as the dramatic aspects of farce. Irving can be taken as one who knew whereof he spoke for he was trained in a great school of art. Lord Tweedsmuir also knows what the Canadian appreciates for he is one who knows his audience's demands. The adjudicator, Mr. St. Denis, also knows as a student and authority on drama.

How a preponderance of more serious works got into the Canadian drama finals may be realised as comedy and farce are most difficult to act. There is also the possibility that amateurs are apt to take their noble task very seriously and so find the more serious drama suit their mood rather than the gaiety and rollicking fun of comedy and farce.

MODERN RUSH

Modern rush was scored by Rev. Dr. Darlington at the Church of the Heavenly Rest in New York City on Sunday. He said that one of the weaknesses of our civilization in the failure to use increased leisure to think things through. "We have more time today than ever before and yet the rush of our age crowds us on. We are urged to get along, to keep moving. To what? What is our good? Commercial interests have not been slow to urge us to use this extra time. The whole tendency of this modern age is to rush into everything without taking time to think things through.

"Our tendency to be doing something every minute is a heritage from our Puritan ancestry. The Puritans were unable to distinguish between leisure and idleness, and so idleness was a sin they had to be busy every minute. We must pull ourselves away from this attitude, taking time out to be holy and to strive for perfection within ourselves."

The preacher said that the three "C's" which are almost lost to this age and which are a challenge to this time and to our civilization are, contemplation, correspondence and conversation.

Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick at Riverside church held a children's service on Sunday. In a photograph in the New York Times is Dr. Fosdick, the renowned preacher, surrounded by a group of children who had attended the service over which he presided.

Dr. Fosdick whose words on life problems are followed through church papers, through sermon reports in newspapers and through the instrumentality of the radio broadcast on Sunday afternoons could give time to the children.

Recalling that when he was three he had run away, he said "Deep in every child is this desire to take charge of his own life, to be independent, to run himself and not have anyone else run him. To be free—that is one of the deepest strongest forces in every healthy boy and girl.

"But boys and girls, if you really are going to be independent and take charge of your life you must have real stuff in you. Whatever else you can run away from, you cannot run away from yourself. You always have to take yourself along. You may some day not have to obey anything outside you, but you always will have to obey something inside you. And you can begin that now, obeying the inner voice, your best self, your conscience, 'the still small voice,' as the Bible calls it, in which God comes to each of us. That's being really independent and taking charge of your own when you begin to obey the inner monitor."

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF AND HUMAN BEINGS ARE MUCH THE SAME THE WORLD OVER AND HAVE BEEN SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN, subject to influences of climate, temperament and Heriditary tendencies. The Anglo-Saxon, as a rule, has been patient and long suffering, not rushing blindly into revolution and chaos like some other hot-blooded nations. Under monarchy and democracy the publics the Anglo-Saxon and his seed keep their head no matter how many soap boxes flourish. However, at various stages of the world's progress statesmen have looked with a jaundiced eye upon conditions around them and predicted dire disaster—viewing with alarm, etc. In view of present world-wide conditions, in general, and conditions on this continent in particular, the following copy of a letter from Lord Macaulay, statesman and author, written in London, May 23, 1857, to Hon. H. Randall, of New York, is interesting:

Dear Sir:—You are surprised to learn that I have not a high opinion of Mr. Jefferson and I am surprised at your surprise. Many years ago I used to wrote a like and that I never in Parliament, in conversation, or even on the hustings,—a place where it is the fashion to court the populace—uttered a word indicating the opinion that the supreme authority in the state ought to be lodged in the hands of the classes, not by the head, in other words, to the poorest and most ignorant part of society. I have always been convinced that universal suffrage is fatal to any civilized community, sooner or later, destroy liberty or civilization, or both.

In Europe, where the population is dense, the effect of such institutions would be almost instantaneous. What happened lately in France is an example. In 1846 a pure democracy was established there. During a short time there was a strong reason to expect that France would escape national bankruptcy, a new partition of the soil, a maximum of prices, a ruinous depreciation of the funds, the utter subversion of credit, and the ruin of the rich for the purpose of supporting the poor in idleness. Such a system would in twenty-years have made France as poor and as miserable as the Isle of the Carlovingians. Happily the danger was averted and now is gone, but destruction has been saved. I have not the smallest doubt that if we had a purely democratic government here, the effect would be the same. Either the poor would plunder the rich and civilization would perish, or order and property would be saved by a military government and liberty would perish. You may think that your country enjoys an exemption from these evils. I will frankly own that I am of a very different opinion. Your fate I believe to be certain, though it is differed by physical causes. As long as you have immense extent of fertile and unoccupied land and your laboring population of the old world, and while that is the case, the Jefferson policy will continue to exist without causing any fatal calamity. But the time will come when the New England will be as thickly populated as the Old England. Wages will be as low and will fluctuate as much with you as with us. You will have your manufacturers and your pauperism. Thousands upon thousands of artisans will assuredly sometime be out of work. Then your institutions will be fearfully tried to the test. Distress everywhere makes the laborer mutinous and discontented and inclines him to listen with eagerness to the voice of any fraudulent man who will promise to distribute property. It is a monstrous iniquity that one man should have a million, while another cannot get a meal. But in good years there is plenty of grumbling here and sometimes a little rioting. The supreme power is in the hands of a class, enlightened, I will readily admit, of an educated class, of a class which is, and knows that it is to be deeply interested in the security of property and the maintenance of order.

Accordingly, the malcontents are firmly yet gently restrained. But what if the day shall dawn when robbing the wealthy to relieve the indigent. The springs of National prosperity soon begin to flow again. Work is plentiful, wages rise and all is tranquility and cheerfulness. I have seen England three or four times pass through critical seasons as I have described. Through such seasons the United States will have to pass in the course of the next century if not this. How will you pass through them? I heartily wish you a good deliverance, but my reason and my fears are as I say and I cannot help foreboding the worst.

It is quite plain that your government will never be able to restrain a distressed and discontented people. For with you the majority is the government and has the rich, who are always in a minority, absolutely at its mercy. The day will come when, in the state of New York, a majority of people, none of whom has more than half a dinner, will choose the legislature. Is it possible to doubt what sort of a legislature will be chosen? On one side is a statesman preaching patience, peace, law, property, right, and the sanctity of public faith. On the other hand is a demagogue ranting about the tyranny of capitalists and usurers and asking every sufferer why he should be permitted to drink champagne and to ride in a carriage while thousands of honest people can not get bread. Which of the two candidates is likely to be preferred by a working man who hears his children cry for bread? I seriously apprehend that you will, in some such season of adversity as I have described, do things which will prevent your children from returning; that you will not act like people in a year of scarcity, devour all the seed-corn and limit make the next year not only a year of scarcity, but of absolute distress. The distress will produce fresh agitation. There is nothing to stay you. Your constitution is all sail and no anchor. As I said before, when Society has entered on this downward progress, either some Cromwell or Napoleon will seize the reins of government with a strong hand or your Republic will be as ruthlessly plundered and laid waste by barbarians in the twentieth century as the Roman Empire was in the fifth, with this difference, that the Huns and Vandals who ravaged the Roman Empire came from without, and that your Huns and Vandals will have been engendered within your country by your own institutions.

Thinking this, of course, I cannot reckon Jefferson among the benefactors of mankind.

Yours faithfully,
T. B. Macaulay.

Stray Bits

The First Motor Car—

On one unheralded day in May back in the early 1900's, Adolphus Burgoyne of this city at one time one of its best known liverymen unloaded from a 7th car at the North Station one of the first of the then modern automobiles seen in this city. An "open model" complete with well padded cushions, and guaranteed by the maker to "perform faithfully and satisfactorily under the roughest usage." It was a sturdy piece of machanism as older residents of the city will recall. Amid the gathering throng at the Station, the machine was loosened from its lashings, a mighty swing at the crank coupled the cylinders into ear-splitting action and away the passenger went down the streets toward the business section of the city to the peril of many horses and individual carriage horses who eyed the apparition in amazed and snorting fright. A trip to Trenton then was an adventure,a perilous journey over deep-rutted narrow roads, a trip in which time out was called and the pounding, rattling machine brought to a quivering stop at each approach of a wild-eyed team, which detoured with the usual bench-legged steps, while their driver, standing up in wagon seat, on the roads he had used as most such "dangled contraptions" on the next, on the roads he had used as most such "dangled contraptions" on the next, on the roads he had used as most such "dangled contraptions" on the horseless carriages, but inlended for natural things such as horses and occasional drove of sheep thrown in for good and then a thunderstorm. But the car had come to stay, even though its first appearance here was a signal for the mad blocks of Belleville to accept it as a challenge and have demonstrated over and over on other purpose than a ride and down the main streets of an evening in the accompaniment of honking horns and harmonica music played by the complaisant bellhops in the hotels.

o—o—o

Yale Review—In a recent issue, recalls the advent of the early automobiles, one of the first being the labored creation of Mr. Duryea of the Duryea brothers at Springfield, Mass., about 1900. The car was taken from a lady's phaeton, complete with whipsocket. Within a few years all sorts of horseless carriages were on the market—electric cars, steam cars, the internal combustion engine propelled by compressed air, kerosene, acetylene gas, liquid air and illuminating gas. A Belleville inventor built a multiple-cylinder engine, so designed that when the car was in motion the driver could disconnect some of the cylinders and give them a rest. But still more economy in transportation was promised by a spring-motor vehicle which was guaranteed to wind itself up by first running downhill. The inventor failed to explain what he would do when there was no hill to go down.

o—o—o

Learning to use the early car was a bewildering task. The driver had not only to contend with three hand-levers, three foot-levers, two hand-brakes and a horn, but he should the well behaved motorist act when approaching a skittish horse? This was just one of the supplementary lessons. Most often the chances were someone was going to be pretty mad,—either the driver of the car who had been forced to stall his engine and laboriously crank it again after the plunging horse or team had passed, or the driver of the team whose shakers bristled in indignation and was wont to spit lustily a shot of tobacco juice in the general direction of the offending machine as he passed. It behooved the motorist to be at least courteous.

o—o—o

Most of the repairmen of the early days were the locksmiths, the plumbers or the bicycle men of the city or town. It will be recalled how With little knowledge, but vast curiosity they usually tried their best, with at times unfortunate results. Often the car's ailments baffled the ingenuity of the whole community. Then it was necessary to telephone or telegram the manufacturers to find out what next to do. In those days the officers of a motor company might expect to be called out of bed at any hour of the night by one of their agents.

Many new regulations came in the wake of the early automobile. In the United States laws were passed requiring the lighting of automobile tanks when the machine was to be taken on a ferry boat. In the 90's the prevailing speed limit was eight miles per hour—a limit originally fixed to prevent anyone from racing on the city streets. Almost everywhere there were ordinances to stop and shut off the engine at the approach of a horse or team. The "chug, chug, chug" was suggestive of the sayings of the day. In Belleville it was illegal for anyone to carry a man with a red flag, who was to proceed the vehicle on the public highways.

In 1895 the Cobourg-Times Herald sponsored the first great automobile race in the United States. "Eleven entries were promised but only three could get started. One of these never got beyond the city limits; another ran into a ditch trying to avoid a wayward farm horse and the third made a spectacular finish, but only space of 13 hours. After each breakdown the machine, had only to keep going to win. Even that was a gruelling proposition. Rules called for a distance of 62 miles within the 13 hours. FIRST PRINCIPAL OF GRAND CHAPTER VISITS MOIRA

W. Y. Mills of Kingston, Heard by Splendid Address

MANY PRESENT

Moira Chapter Also Celebrates 82nd Anniversary of its Founding

The honors and aims as fostered by him in his high office to which he was recently elected were given in a brief, but impressive, inaugural address by W. Y. Mills, of Kingston, Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Royal Arch Mason, to sixty members and guests of Moira Chapter in the Masonic Temple last night when they celebrated the 82nd. anniversary of the institution of the chapter by Ancient Frankonse and Calaraqui chapter in 1866.

Stress was given by the speaker to the close connection between Craft Masonry and Royal Arch Masonry, and the responsibility that devolved upon the Royal Arch Masons to live up to the high principles that were inculcated in the Craft Lodge throughout the Masonic world.

In his first public appearance as a speaker since his appointment to his present honored position, he urged that a suitable date be set so that every chapter could meet on common ground and renew all their obligations.

"We must not only do this," said the speaker, "but we must urge the fundamentals and stress the principles so that we may carry them with us in our every day life so that the community in which we live will benefit."

Urged to Attend

Following the honored speaker, Mr. J. O. Herity in a brief address impressed upon his listeners the importance of attending the Royal Convocation ceremony to be held here next week.

"During the past year," he said, "incomes have toppled and fallen but today are higher and more than much stronger than ever before. Without the Crown the Dominion Empire could not have existed. Let us think of the Coronation Week when we join with our fellow citizens in that solemn ceremony."

Several toasts were drunk during the second part of the evening's program. The toast to the Ancient Frontsenc and Calaraqui Chapter, the mother chapter of Moira, was proposed by Ex.-Comp. V. H. Graves. This was responded to by Harvey Milne of Moira. Comp. W. Y. Ponton in an impressive address, proposed the toast to the Grand Chapter, with the Grand First Principal responding.

The toast to Prince Edward district was proposed by Ex. Ex.-Comp. Dr. Carleton, of Keyston Chapter, Stirling.

Interspersing the various addresses and toasts was a highly entertaining and lengthy musical program. Miss Mildred Lloyd, one of Belleville's outstanding elocutionists, delighted her listeners with two delightful recitations. The Moira Chapter orchestra under the baton of Ex.-Comp. H. E. McBrath, furnished excellent music, and were heard in a number of selections. The trio consisted of Harold Howard and James Bankier blended in melodic duets, while both singers sang solos which were loudly applauded by their listeners. Mr. Alec Goldon played the piano accompaniments in his usual capable manner. Ex.-Comp. H. E. McBrath presided at the meeting.

During the first part of the program, two newly appointed Companions were installed and invested by the First Principal. These were Very Ex. Comp. Dr. Carleton of Keystone Chapter and Ex.-Comp. V. H. Graves of Moira Chapter.

BEVERAGE ROOMS OPEN ON MAY 12

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Liquor licenses, permitting the sale of beer in tail wine shops in Ontario will be issued Coronation Day, May 12, but sale of beer and wine in authorized premises will be permitted, Edmund G. Bayly, Chief Commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board said yesterday.

BOOM COLLAPSES, ONE KILLED

Halifax, May 5 (CP)—Two men were injured, one fatally, when a boom collapsed and crashed among a 15-foot steel span of the Dartmouth ferryway.

Shouted warnings sent most of the group scampering across the deck, but Allan Sinclair, a neighboring Armadale, was struck on the head and died in hospital. Harry Lewis, 30, Dartmouth, was injured about the legs when struck by a flying cable.

LIFE SAVINGS TAKEN

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Life savings of Mrs. A. Judd, Toronto rooming house proprietor, were stolen last night when a thief took $2,000 in bonds, she told police today. Police said the thief, or thieves, Mrs. Judd thinks took the securities from a bedroom while she was in the kitchen. She believed the bonds were non-negotiable.

London Ready to Celebrate Coronation With Foam, Bubbles

London, May 4 (AP)—London is ready to celebrate the coronation with foam and bubbles.

No less than 350,000 extra barrels of beer, by a conservative estimate, will be consumed before the coronation is over, and the leading hotels have stocked up heavily with champagne, wine and liqueurs.

The toast to "The King" is going to be drunk from one end of London to the other.

There is plenty of precedent.

Samuel Pepys' record of the crowning of Charles II. for example, shows Pepys sent his wife to bed, and went out to enjoy himself. The result was that when he got to bed his head "began to turn" just a little.

"I wondered," Pepys wrote in his diary, "to see how the ladies did tipple."

This year there will be at least two nights of extreme gaiety. At midnight May 11, as coronation day begins, there will break loose, the night of May 12, after the king is crowned, will top the extravaganzas of letting the bars down.

Licensing laws for liquor will interfere to a certain extent with the night spots. Drinks may be served in restaurants and cabarets only up to a certain hour—usually midnight —unless special permission has been secured.

But London has got around that through the so-called "night clubs" or "bottle-party clubs".

Visitors to those clubs must "join" for a nominal fee—usually about $1 to 2.50.

VIEWS EXPRESSED BY RATEPAYERS

Thurlow Association Holds Interesting Meeting

A meeting of the Thurlow Ratepayers' Association was held in the Prince of Wales school which was well attended by its members.

The meeting was called to order in the chair being occupied by the President W. Meara, the Secretary W. Nickle read the minutes of the previous meeting which were adopted. The Secretary then read the correspondence which proved to be of value and interesting to the members of the association. The Right Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, informed the members of his willingness to co-operate with the members of the association in any matters that were of interest to them.

A letter was also read from Mr. Shiell, President of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association in reply to a letter from the Ratepayers' Association to the effect that any comments that the local association may offer will be gladly received.

It was moved and seconded that the condition of East College Street be again brought to the council as to its deplorable state. Considerable discussion was centred around this matter.

The chairman gave his views on the deputation before the Hon. H. Nixon which they read in the local press and was of interest to the taxpayer in general. Mr. Nickle called upon Mr. B. Martin to explain the reason of equalization of the townships this he consented to do and it proved of interest to all. He was asked if the members of the council used every effort to avoid this and he answered in the affirmative, the assessment of properties are taken through before the meeting. Some of members considered that they were assessed too high. In discussing this matter Mr. Martin said he thought the town assessors had done their best to be fair to all; the question was then raised in regards to fairness. Did he, "Mr. Martin", think it right that because a taxpayer keeps his place in good condition and appearance he should be assessed more than a person who had allows his property go or be more of an eye sore, just to save money and get low taxes? It was the opinion of the members present who were trying to beautify their homes and the community should be given benefit and encouragement by lower assessment.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Martin for his presence and his explanation of his earnest and sincere co-operation with the taxpayers and the community in an endeavour to understand better the position of the members of the council.

The chairman explained his interview with Mr. A. Ross, Vice-President of the Ontario Property Owners' Association in regard to becoming a member of the said association. In this respect, the chairman thought the matter should be left to the members to decide, but it was the opinion of the chairman that no class distinction should be shown, as he considered that the owner of a small home was entitled to as much consideration as those who have in large ones, and above all, political views should be scrupulously free from discussion.

In closing the meeting the chairman thanked all the members for their interest in their association, and solicited the continuance of their co-operation in a spirit of good will and faith, that the truth may be known and not evaded in the interest of all taxpayers.

Maybe!

Stone throwing porcupines have been located in Raglan Township.

The story is attested by John McIntoy of Marmora, who with his brother, Gerald, had been engaged in cutting wood on the woodlot of Dave Quinlan, in Raglan.

At work on Friday afternoon the youths discovered two porcupines ambling through the brush. Giving chase they managed to tree one of them, which settled on a large limb. In an effort to dislodge it a stone was thrown, but was promptly caught in the paws of the porcupine. A moment later when one of the brothers passed under the tree, the animal began unloading his head by scant inches.

BEAUTY SALON IS VANDALIZED

Flares of Violence Appear as Pickets Close Before Gates

Hollywood, May 4 (AP)—Friction and a flare of violence appeared as the picket "scare" began to gather in the walled film studios of Hollywood today.

The friction was between the striking federated motion picture crafts and the Conference Association of Theatrical Stage Employees, which yesterday signed an agreement with the producers.

Federation spokesmen said "scabs" would be used at the studios gates to take pictures of members of the conference. The Federation of Labor affiliate passing through the lines of striking Set Strikers telegraphed Wm. Green, A. F. of L. president, protesting the I.A.T.S.E. agreement and to stem them as members. Charles Lessing, federation organizer, left today for asking the Los Angeles central labor council to maintain picket lines if company union, because of its anti-strike attitude.

One of Hollywood's most luxurious beauty salons, operated by the four Westmore brothers, famous beautifiers in four film companies, was splashed with two gallons of creosote last night by three vandals.

Ernest Westmore estimated damage at $15,000. He told police he blamed "racketeers" and said not before the destruction was done by members of any striking make-up workers.

BEVERAGE ROOMS HOURS

UNCHANGED IN KINGSTON

Kingston, Ont., May 4.—(CP)—City Council last night decided to make no change in the hour of closing of beverage rooms. The beverage rooms close at midnight and there had been some agitation that the hour be made 10 or 11 o'clock.

TRUCK WEAVING' SAYS WITNESS

Also Testified That Vehicle Was Travelling Over 50 Miles an Hour

Winchester, Ont., May 4—(CP)—"The truck was weaving from one side to the other of the centre line of the road," Rev. D. W. Summers testified today at the inquest into the death of his cousin Glenn Summers, 18, of Winchester, Ont., killed instantly when an oil truck crashed into a funeral procession here on April 1.

"In my opinion," Mr. Summers said, "the truck was travelling at 50 miles an hour." Mr. Summers was in charge of the funeral procession.

Alison Summers, father of Glenn Summers, and Albert E. Thoms, of Ottawa, were fatally injured in the collision. Seven others received serious injuries.

Physician Testifies

Dr. Neil Melloch, Winchester, the first witness said he was the first physician to reach Glenn Summers after the accident and found he was dead of a fractured skull.

Silas Baker of Cass Bridge, driving a horse and rig said he was obliged to get off the highway to let the oil truck pass.

Asked by Coroner Peter McLaughlin why he got off the road, Baker said "If I hadn't I would be where Summers is."

Baker testified that the truck was weaving from side to side in the centre of the road.

Edward Flynn, bartender in a Chesterville Hotel, said he served Joseph St. Amour, driver of the truck and a companion named Shaver with a large bottle of beer each on the afternoon of April 1. "What effect on you has a bottle of beer would have on a man" he asked.

"It would make him drive better" the witness replied.

BETTY DAWSON SOME GIRL

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Betty Dawson, 20, was fined $100 and costs today, accused of assaulting a police officer and maliciously damaging his uniform. The case was adjourned a week as Sgt. William Hall, the officer involved, is in hospital.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food just decays in your bowels. It ferments and poisons your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful bacteria go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. To get rid of these conditions you need something that will make bile flow freely. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is famous for this purpose. Just a few spoonfuls of this doctor-type laxative will make bile flow freely. Then the world looks bright, and you feel like a million dollars. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse substitutes. Only 25c.

Plans Complete To Entertain Canada's Youth

By MOLLIE McGEE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

London, May 4 (CP)—Plans are complete for entertainment of Canada's 250 children, chosen from schools all over the Dominion to attend the Coronation as representatives of the younger generation.

But, though they will see London's Coronation from their own stand in Hyde Park, the boys and girls have not left school behind altogether and have serious duties to perform.

Before they left Canada the children signed a promise that their behavior in England will be of the best, "Realizing as I do that I represent not only my school but the Province and Dominion of Canada, I shall do my utmost to live behind nothing but the best of impressions of Canada's youth."

Accordingly, lectures have been planned on Canada so that they can answer questions intelligently.

Leader Over England

After the Coronation they will be scattered all over England in groups from two to twenty as guests in outstanding English schools, where they will take part in lessons, games and outings of regular schoolboy life. Among the schools acting as hosts are Rugby, Wellington, Malvern, Cheltenham Ladies' College, Shrewsbury and others equally important.

After three weeks schooling, with no end-of-the-term exams to face as they have been conceded these at home, the young Canadians are to go to the seaside.

The boys will be quartered in Folkestone where every morning they are to be given an illustrated lecture on some part of the Empire.

The girls are to go to Eastbourne and will be given a course in English literature as a vacation task with hikes over the downs and sea bathing to vary the program.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED

St. George's, Que., May 5 (CP)—Nine-year-old Jeannine Gilbert and her six-year-old brother, Jacques, were burned to death here Tuesday in flames that destroyed their father's little home.

SMITH—GRAHAM

The marriage of Miss Eda Graham of Kingston, and Mr. Percival Smith of Oshawa, was solemnized at the Baptist Parsonage on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., by Rev. A. G. Sinclair.

CENTRE

Centre—Farmers are smilingly welcoming the bright sunny weather of the past few days. Seeding will be in general this week if no heavy rainfall occurs.

Mr. and Mrs. Black of Huff's Island spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stewart and daughter Grace of Turnbull St., Bellesville, visited Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fox during the week end.

This vicinity is following the fashion and every farmer is yielding to quota of old iron etc. Small boys spend Saturdays peering in fence corners and wood lot corners and dragging their finds to a central farm point for sale later.

Mr. Melvin Pulver and Mr. Donald Spencer attended the temperance Sunday tangle at Picton and report a very enthusiastic gathering.

Anita Redner spent the week end with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Black, Huff's Island.

Quinte cheese factory began the season's operations Monday morning.

Mt. View factory also started the season. With cream prices going down and cheese at the present price it should be a paying proposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Moy also Mr. and Mrs. Morley Moy spent Thursday afternoon at Picton.

KING GEORGE OFFICIATES AT OPENING OF MARIT IME MUSEUM

Receiving a foretaste of the crowd he will have to face at his coronation, May 12, King George VI is shown here as he officiated at the opening of the national maritime museum at Greenwich, Eng., to which he travelled down the Thames in an admiral's barge the first time in 16 years that a monarch has followed this procedure. With him as he made his address are Queen Elizabeth and his mother, the Dowager Queen Mary.

KING GEORGE TO REVIEW BRITISH FLEET OFF SPITHEAD

All the power and majesty of Britain's naval forces will be gathered off Spithead, England, on May 20, when King George VI reviews the British fleet from the royal yacht, Victoria and Albert. The review will be the largest since that held during the silver jubilee celebrations of King George V. When the King comes in sight of the fleet, which will be augmented by mercantile and fishing vessels, and 17 foreign warships, a royal salute of 21 guns will be given. The review begins at 3.30 p.m. and is expected to last until 5.15. At the top are shown the H.M.S. Renown, the Hood and the Prince Duke in that order, trimmed with flags from stem to stern, as they stood by for the last review by King George during his silver jubilee. At the lower LEFT is King George in the admiral's uniform he will wear for the occasion. Squadrons of aeroplanes from the R.A.F., similar to those shown in manoeuvres over Salisbury, England, will fly above the royal yacht in formation. At the lower right is seen a destroyer unit of British ships as they sailed off Spithead in review formation.

NILES' CORNERS

Nile's Corners—Mrs. Sykes and friends from Trenton called on Mrs. H. Lunn on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Dafoe visited relatives at West Huntingdon on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Channell entertained relatives on Sunday.

Owing to the extremely warm weather over the week end a great amount of milk was returned from Cloverdale Factory as unfit.

Mrs. Jean Baird of Wellington is spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. Earl Ellis.

C. B. Clapp is at present spending an indefinite time at Camp Wealthy.

On Monday night at Hillier Town Hall a shower and social evening was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith (nee Edna Dafoe) who were married on Wednesday last.

The Town Hall was beautifully decorated. The evening was spent in card playing and dancing to an orchestra. Also there was guitar solos and singing. Many and costly were the presents receiving by the happy young couple who accepted and responded graciously. A most sumptuous repast was served and enjoyed by all.

WILL MARRY FOR $1,000

An offer to marry any man between the ages of 20 and 45 for the sum of $1,000 with which to pay off the mortgage on her foster parents' home at Stratford, Ont., is the strange condition of Miss Allen Belle (above) of Windsor, Ont. Though no suitor has yet appeared, the foster-mother claims the money is not needed that badly. Miss Belle, however, claims the foster-mother is just being noble about it all.

KIWANIS OPENS WELFARE CLINIC

Miss Ferguson, Supervisor of V. O. N. Addresses Luncheon

With Miss Mary Ferguson, V.O.N. supervisor for the district in attendance, the Kiwanis Baby Welfare clinic, situated on Pinnacle Street was officially opened on Tuesday after the Kiwanis luncheon at the Queens Hotel although the clinic has been in use for the past couple of weeks. TheV.O.N. nurses were provided with a couple of rooms suitably decorated and fitted. Dr. R. A. Flynn and Gordon Reay being in charge of the work and who were congratulated by the president Eddie Logan for their fine interest and splendid results. Miss Ferguson was the principal speaker at the luncheon and in no uncertain manner congratulated the Kiwanis Club for their efforts in V.O.N. work and their co-operation in any worthy cause. The community singing was led by Arthur Sills with Leo B. Riggs at the piano.

The Kiwanis Club was unanimously in favor of the City Council adopting Daylight Saving Time for the summer months after a show of hands had been taken. There was no discussion on the matter. A. B. Collins K.C. who celebrates a birthday on May 6th was guest of honor and was presented with a pair of theatre tickets by George Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre. Eddie Logan congratulated the club on their fine showing at the inter club meeting of a week ago and praised Joe Shortt, who was directly responsible for the fine evening.

Brief History Given

The speaker of the day was introduced by George Griffin, Dominion representative on the V.O.N. board for two years and a former president of the local V.O.N. who in a pleasant way gave a brief resume of the part Kiwanis has played in the building up of the fine home nursing system now established in this city and district. He stated, that the first service was given in 1922 with the late "Bill" Laighter as president of the club and Miss Shane as nurse. He was glad to see the club launching out on a new project, nursing service for children.

Miss Ferguson told of the splendid work Kiwanis Clubs were doing all over the Dominion, mentioning particularly the club at Liverpool, N.S., which supported and assisted in the forming or a V.O.N. branch in that town. She declared it was a generous gesture of the local club to establish a Child Welfare Clinic in Belleville, explaining, that the surroundings were ideal and the arrangements excellent."Truly club does nothing by halves," said the speaker, "and I am given to understand they are going to pay for the incidental expenses and I am sure both Miss Boulter and Miss Webster will keep these to a minimum." The clinic has nothing to do with sick children but the care of well children by their mothers. She believed the time had come when mental health training should be given because of the large number in mental institutions throughout the Province and Dominion. "The logical place to start this training is with the children," said the speaker. Miss Ferguson brought the best wishes of Miss Smellie, General Superintendent at Ottawa, who was unable to be present due to business reasons. Joe Imlah expressed Kiwanis appreciation for the services rendered. At the conclusion of the luncheon, the members with Miss Ferguson and the V.O.N. nurses journeyed over to the clinic for an inspection and the officials opened after which a group photograph was taken.

SOCIETIES

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The annual meeting of Melrose W. I. was held on Thursday afternoon, April 29th, at the home of Miss Lily Weese. Thirty-nine members and two visitors were present. The president had charge of the meeting and after the opening exercises dealt with the business of which was the appointment of delegates to the District Annual. The following are the names of those who will represent Melrose Branch: Mrs. Thos. Leslie, Mrs. Harry Murphy, Miss Bernice Robinson and Mrs. Grant McLaren. The secretary read the report of receipts and expenditures for the year with an itemized account of each. The result left a balance of $44.70. Following this the auditors' report was given. The book had been examined and found correct.

Mrs. R. Gilroy, the district president, was called on to conduct the election of officers. All were in favour of having the officers of the previous year re-elected for 1937-8.

Judges were appointed to examine the display of luncheon cloths at the close of the meeting. These were, Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. B. Sherman and Mrs. E. M. Daughtry.

Roll was called and each member responded with a "time saving hint."

The leader, Mrs. Harry Davis, now took charge of the meeting. "The Maple Leaf" was sung following which Mrs. S. Denville gave a humorous reading. Mrs. Davis gave a specially prepared paper on "What We Can Do For Our Girls" after which the social leader, Mrs. C. Haight, gave a fine outline of the steps to be taken in preparation of room. Samples were shown of various types of display and the production and samples were shown of the finished product. This was followed by a display of table setting or the series given by Mrs. Haight.

The report of the secretary of the cemetery fund was given at this point in the meeting and $15 was been overlooked in the business period. Cemetery work was to be continued and $15 was added to the fund. The wives of the men composing the cemetery board were appointed to act with the board in deciding on the work to be done this season.

The collection amounting to $1.90 was taken and the National Anthem closed the meeting. Following the singing of "Grace" the hostess and ladies of the third the served lunch.

The proceeds of the sale of seeds, slips and plants which had been arranged for this meeting were $5.90.

The following ladies received prizes on the competition: Mrs. Russell MacFarlane, first; Mrs. O. Walker, second, and Mrs. H. Davis, third.

Guy Kibee and Alice Brady the screen's new screen team, featured in "Mama Steps Out," coming to the Belle tomorrow with Charles Laughton in his greatest role as "Rembrandt."

"Rembrandt" Love Story of Genius and Beauty Coming

Only out of the colourful life and loves of the world's greatest lover and painter of beauty could Alexander Korda have drawn the exgrandiosity canvas of motion picture beauty and entertainment that is "Rembrandt", his new starring picture which brings Charles Laughton to the Belle Theatre, tomorrow and Friday, matinee daily, in the greatest of his many screen roles.

"Rembrandt" is the story of a genius of his struggles, his triumphs in a world that would not fully understand him for a hundred years after his time. "Rembrandt", too, is the story of three women whose beauty lighted his way . . . whose love inspired him to paint as no man before or since.

Gertrude Lawrence — disease, comedian and stage star of two continents—makes a triumphant motion picture debut in this screen masterpiece. And the haunting appeal of Elsa Lanchester is fully realized in the important feminine role of Hendrickje Stoffels.

The film marks the top achievement of Laughton, its star, whose performance in Henry VIII", "Hoglen of Ron Gap" n "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", "Les Miserables" and "Mutiny on the Bounty", are all eclipsed by the magnificent impersonation of this tempestuous Dutch genius of art.

There is vitality and charm in the fabled Rembrandt's love life in his bustling seventeenth-century Holland, and entertainment that in no way Alexander Korda could achieve. A distinguished cast appears in the film, including a group of players who help Laughton bring "Rembrandt" to life on the screen.

"Mama Steps Out"

Rare is the combination of chuckling humor, effervescent melody and a really amusing story plot. Such combination are the new Twentieth Century-Fox Galdwyn-Mayer picture, "Mama Steps Out", announced as the same panion feature comedy on the same program.

Joe Sibbee is seen with Allen Brady in a new screen pairing. Another new member, young discovery of Mary Garden, the Metropolitan opera star, plays his first feature lead since "The Great Ziegfeld" with Betty Furness opposite.

The balance of the cast is competent in every way, particularly Gene Lockhart, remembered for "Mama Steps Out" is Anita Louise with Joe Sibbee, "San Francisco" player screen romance.

"The Grand Fusiliers"

Two grand features will be presented at the Belle tonight for one night only, Friday, May 7th, one featuring Don Ameche, Ann Sothern, Slim Summerville, Jane Darwell and Stephen Fetchit. "Nancy Steele is Missing" a powerful drama featuring Victor McLaglen, Walter Connolly, and June Lang is the second feature and an Associate Screen newsreel. The last show starts at 8.30.

Merchants Decorate Premises with Gay Coronation Colours

With the Coronation of Their Majesties a few days away, Belleville merchants are entering into the spirit of the occasion and are busy to decorate lengths on a scale selected by the Board of Trade, in the majority of cases windows of the business places are being given over to unique and novel arrangements in the form of miniature floats.

"Dazzler" Clark, Scot Champ Gives Finished Display in Defeating Pugnacious Katan

Katan Disqualified When He Used Unorthodox Methods

REFEREEING POOR

Piers Scores Surprise Win Over Strack in Semi-Final

Living up to all advance notices Georgo "Dazzler" Clark, the Scottish wrestling champion, gave the finest display of modern wrestling ever seen in Belleville and was declared the winner of last night's main bout in Jack Corcoran's Queensbury A. D. wrestling show at the Arena, over John Katan, the former Canadian titleholder. Clark won the first fall of the main affair in a decisive manner and with the appliance of his world-renown hold, the "Highland Fling". Katan returned to form, to give many favorable illegal attack and was finally disqualified, Clark being declared the winner by the referee's decision on the mat writhing in pain as the result of Katan's brutal and unorthodox attacks. The decision proved most popular at the patrons, some 500 in all, stormed the ring and shouted disapproval toward the pugnacious and villainous Katan. The defeated one was escorted to his dressing room by police but no trouble developed.

Incidents of screening on the part of Referee Johnnie Tunney, who replaced Jack Forbes, literally spoiled what should have been a natural knock-out affair. Tunney's inability to handle the mammoth grapplers from the outset was quite in evidence, when Joe Maynard and Roy Dunn wrestled to a draw in the curtainraiser and was more marked, when Henri Piers won a surprisingly quick fall over Charlie Strack in the semi-final go. Although all wrestlers seemed willing to obey the rules and give stellar exhibitions of modern wrestling, Tunney's inability to cope with the gladiators literally spoiled the first two bouts and resulted in a general hooting from the gallery.

Finished Exhibition

Clark, who continued his string of victories on this side of the Atlantic and moved one more stick towards his ultimate goal, the world's championship, gave the most finished exhibition of wrestling ever seen in these parts. The powerful Scot never stopped workout from the initial grip of the main bout and had his opponent, Katan, the villainous Winnipegger, practically on the canvas at all times, except when the latter reverted to the practice of illegal and unorthodox measures the second round Katan was disqualified. Coupling speed, agility and dexterity with his knowledge of how to apply and display many sensational holds, the tenth of which came within the first the initial fall with his famous "Highland Fling" hold, which in reality is a combination of a head lock and swinging body hold, followed with a toss, that leaves his victim easy prey for the fall.

Clark opened with a cautious endeavours, that made the villainous Katan attack first and the Scot and Clark loosened his hold and gained a full arm spread, that had the appearance of conceded fall, but Katan gained the ropes to stave off defeat only to be returned to the mat by Clark ridiculously and apply numerous illegal practices that were overlooked by the referee, much to the disapproval of the patrons. Clark weathered the attack and retaliated to give the most dazzling display of holds seen locally. In many moments Clark had tied Katan up into the proverbial knot with leg splits, arm locks, half Nelsons, Japanese figure fours, step-over double toe holds, and other punishing and ingenuity finally gained a headlock and lifted the pugnacious Katan into the air, swinging him high into the ozone and after three masterful swings, dropped Katan to the mat here he pounced upon him and rolled him over in exactly 20 minutes and pinned the Winnipegger after a Highland Fling hold had been shown locally for the first time.

Given Rough Passage

Returning to the ring for the second round Katan opened with a rough attack upon Clark and continued in kick, punch, and gouge the Scotman and finally hanged him, a la Howard Chatonwine. The crowd was in a frenzy and shouting for a disqualification, when Referee Tunney finally stepped in and after warning Katan once for hitting in the groin, disqualified him as Clark lay writhing on the floor. After being declared the winner, Clark rose to his feet and furiously attacked Katan, as the patrons clammered around the ring and shouted encouragement, but the villainous Katan again floored Clark with an illegal attack and was finally escorted to his dressing room by local police officers.

The semi-final bout of the evening came abruptly to an end when Henri Piers flattened Charlie Strack with a flying tackle, with a series of elbow smashes and fell upon the unfortunate Strack for a surprise fall in exactly eleven minutes. Strack's superior weight seemed to make him a slight favourite, except with the fans, and he at bot forced Piers to concede as he gained a pleasing double wrist lock, but Piers weathered the attack, gained a body Nelson and stepped back to lower the boom with a series of scissors smashes and win amid public approval.

In the opening bout Joe Maynard and Joe Dunn, a newcomer from Toronto, tried to please the patrons, but inadequate officiating mitigated the efforts of the contestants and they wrestled to a thirty minute draw. The youthful Dunn displayed a series of fine holds, but Maynard's excessive weight proved too great a stumbling block.

New York, May 5 (AP)—Just as everyone suspected, Max Schmeling's hitting he'll do a bit of using if Jimmy Braddock isn't walking at the end of the Madison Square Garden Bowl the night of June 3 .. His manager, Joe Jacobs, says Schmeling he is under-rating Lou Ambers plenty too much. . . Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock will become a trunk driver, . . Over in the Pacific Coast League Ernie Lombardi Goets (Burleigh Grimes' pal) Larry Guess .. ouch!

The current Detroit team is outfielder Gerald Walker. . . Jimmy Durrell, St. Louis boxing matchmaker, has grown fond of Referee Ray Steward or War Admiral is home first in the Derby. . . He is loaded for both, with odds as high as 15 to 1 for Reaping Reward and 12 to 1 on War Admiral. . . Today War Admiral is the favorite at 3 to 1, with Reaping Reward the leading second shot at 4 to 1. . Happiest bookie of 'em all is Benny Davis of New York now that Mrs. Parker Corning's Up Stage Doing is listed as a contender. . . Benny had laid $60,000 against it on the colt, or $1,000 to 1. . . An upset by Up and Doing would have ruined him and he didn't mean maybe.

There is a possibility (it's hardly more than that, yet) that the Garden will leave its fight privileges next season, with James J. Johnston, present Garden matchmaker, having the inside track. . . Judge Landis' favorite slang word is "nutty". . . What pitchers are doing to some of the big shot hitters in the National League is a shame. . . Just look at the averages. . . Hank Leiber is hitting less than .100 and lots of others are sporting marks they don't care to write home about.

LACROSSE LOOP IN CITY SCHOOLS

George Laughlin Acted as Chairman For The Session

Negotiations to sponsor a bantam lacrosse league with the schools of Belleville were opened at Queen Alexandra School yesterday afternoon with representatives from Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, Queen Victoria, St. Michael's Academy and the Belleville Collegiate Institute being present.

Owing to school regulations and technicalities that surround the sponsoring of team games outside of the jurisdiction of the Board of Education, however, the delegates present deemed it advisable to call an open meeting of the student body of the above-named schools at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night at 7.00 p.m. at which time a league comprised of school boys, under the age of 14 years, could be organized and the players grouped so as to ensure the teams entered of possessing the players, that represented the particular school section in which they resided, with the exception of the Belleville Collegiate and St. Michael's Academy.

George Laughlin, physical director at the Y.M.C.A., acted as chairman and urged the playing of field lacrosse. "If we play bantam lacrosse, that is for boys 15 years and under and affiliate with the Ontario Lacrosse Association, that body will provide us with a trophy and individual medals for the respective players of the winning team, thus giving the boys some initiative towards playing the game. Lacrosse holds a Canadian heritage and supplies good physical development for the players," pointed out Mr. Laughlin.

Lacrosse sticks are being provided through the O.A.L.A. at the minimum cost of 75c each. The players having to purchase their own outfits, however. All local high school boys, who are interested in playing lacrosse in a proposed school league are invited to the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night. The proposed league will operate in a field lacrosse league and play under the O.A.L.A. rules. Coaches for the various school teams will be provided by the Belleville Collegiate. Forming the Belleville Collegiate Lacrosse Club met at the home of George Laughlin, Church Street, and elected officers for the ensuing season. Those elected were—President, Dick Logie, Vice President, W. Brown and Secretary Treasurer, H. Baird.

WAR ADMIRAL IS FIRMLY ENTRENCHED AS DERBY FAVORITE

By Orlo Robertson

Louisville, Ky., May 5 (CP)—Once again Kentucky is the centre of three pasts as the Kentucky Derby, has been called, the United States turf's ultimate classic.

While yesterday it appeared that the "Dardanelles" would be the first derby in stride for change, today there was a definite swing to the feeling of a storm ready to let loose with a fury. There is no need to tell casual visitors that ranking three-year-olds will settle their differences for $50,000 at historic Churchill Downs Saturday.

More than forty thousand spectators some 75,000 Kentuckians and horse lovers from all parts of the country are out the country are expected to pack the quarter-mile long grandstand and enclosure for the fateful three days hence.

More than ever, it seems, this Derby has everybody guessing, and every one past performances and workouts in an effort to come up with a winner. Convinced horsemen, bookies, barber shops and on street corners centre around at least five of the favorite, Reaping Reward's Kentucky Derby chances in spite of the "trial." The defeat of Reaping Reward served to establish War Admiral more firmly as the favorite.

Bosses Give Serious Thought to Instal Hurlers' Storm Cellars As Players Pound Horsehide

Carl Hubbell Shellacked But Gumbert Saves Game For Him

INDIANS ON SPREE

Stage Triple Steal And Seven Run Rally in 11th Frame to Win

(By Bill Boni)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The major league managers never anxious to be stamped as radicals, today considered a startling innovation.

Moved by the barrage of baseballs that has marked the opening of inter-sectional strife in both circuits, the big bosses gave serious thought to the installation of storm cellars in their 18 ball parks.

Not even King Carl Hubbell was immune as the American and National League boys let loose in earnest. The 14 teams that saw action produced 172 hits yesterday, an average of better than 12 apiece, for 101 runs, a shade more than seven each.

The only safe spot was Chicago's Comiskey Park, where rain kept the Athletics and White Sox from opening their series.

Hubbell Stranded Hard

The biggest blow to tradition was the nine-hit, seven-inning lambaste the celebrated Hubbell gave Hubbell. The Oklahoma screwball ace fanned ten Philadelphians but had to be lifted in favor of Harry Gumbert so the Giants might get out a 7-6 decision. That victory kept intact Hub's two-year league winning streak, which now stands to 13 games, and, unofficially, ties him with Tim Keefe and Rube Marquard.

Keefe, in 1888, and Marquard, in 1912, won 19 in a single season. All three of these performances, oddly enough, have been chalked up to the credit of Giant pitchers.

But Hubbell was not alone in his failure to stay a full nine innings. There were only three hurlers who did—Lon Feffe, who turned back the Cardinals with three hits and won his second game for Boston Bees 8-1; Lefty Gomez, who fanned nine on the way to his second triumph, a four-hit, 10-1 trimming of Detroit Tigers, and Leroy (Tarzan) Parmelee, who felt the heavy-hitting pressure but managed to scatter the Phillies' 18 hits well enough so his Chicago Cub teammates might gain a 14-7 verdict.

Seven Runs in 11th

Something entirely new in the way of an explosion occurred in Cleveland. Touched off by the everexplosive Ben Cantwell, it took the shape of a triple steal and seven-run, 11th inning rally that completely broke up what had been a fairly peaceful ball game. By virtue of those seven runs, the Indians came out on top 13-3 despite the efforts of five Indian pitchers, three of whom toed the rubber in that fatal 11th inning.

The Red Sox, who felt the hitting urge—a bit more so than the Senators, whom they trimmed 6-4 and out-bit 18-13, The Dodgers also had the hitting urge, combined the pitching of ex-teammate Ed Brandt and Bill Swift for ten hits but Cincy again Burleigh Grimes failed to find a pitcher who could stop what he started, and the Pirates included four triples and a homer by Johnny Dickshot among their total hits to stay at the head of the parade with a 10-3 victory. Brooklyn's four pitchers brought their two-day total to nine, their total for the 13-game season to 35.

George "Dazzler" Clark, the Scottish wrestling champ, rassled his way into the hearts of local grapplng fans at the Arena last night. This boy Clark is undoubtedly the essence of perfection when at work in the ring. There is never an idle moment when he goes to work, regardless as to the circumstances. The Scottish titleholder gave the fans their money's worth of applying different holds and reducing them in the art of torture we have seen in many years. Jack Corcoran should be proud of one of the leading four rasslers in the business today and we can readily agree with Jack Corcoran when he's seeing him in action last night. The Dazzler took all the punishment the pugnacious John Katan could dish out and finished finished, while on the contrary the erstwhile Winnipeg mat-villain was repeatedly unable when Clark reversed matters.

Clark's rassling bag of tricks was unexhausted; how such a spectacular bulk of a man could move with such agility, speed and dexterity is astonishing to say the least. Clark won the first fall with what proved to be a familiar hold to wrestling, as he lifted Katan bodily from the floor after gaining the back headlock and hurled him around and around. We gained the impression Clark was reaching roon relative to the correct name of the hold and he promptly replied with "Highland Fling". "That's my favorite "Highland Fling" hold. I let them think I am filing them far and hard," smiled the wrestling son of Scotland's superstitions. Katan's illegal attacks and final disqualification seemed to be to be the only way he could avert a sound thrashing at the hands of Clark and he took the easy way out and tried to maim his opponent in the bargain.

In reality Promoter Jack Corcoran has a fine three-bout card lined up, but the inadequate manner in which Referee Johnnie Tunney handled the bouts, especially the first two, was far from pleasing. Tunney claims to be a thing or fourth cousin to the former heavyweight boxing champion, Gene Tunney, but was perhaps the most unpopular referee ever in Belleville last night. Tunney seemed helpless and at times did not seem to know what it was all about. His inadequate refereeing in no way assisted the show, but in fairness to the rasslers we must say they were willing to give their very best, however.

In a recent issue of the St. Catharines Standard appeared the following two column picture of the Thorold "Mountaineers", interlocking Big Six finalists, who were pushed into oblivion by the champion Welland Tigers. In the caption below the cut a glowing account of the accomplishments of the "mountaineers" appeared. The Thorold team was banqueted and feted and presented the beautiful leather windbreaker sporting the Big Six emblem. And Thorold did not only second to Belleville, but is only a small town, where such athletic achievements are apparently appreciated.

George Stockwell, who has been in the public eye for many years, first as a player and then as an official in the Intercollegiate Union schedule, Pressing business will keep George from being the favorite sport. He is in charge of the Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Belleville Softball Association practically adopted a 60 game schedule for the season of 1937 at a hostilities on May 12th. The league moguls voted on their umpires for the season and Secretary Todd informed the meeting the city would have a diamond in the centre circle softball diamond on the Collegiate Institute grounds next year. "The city is grading and leveling the diamond and next year will be the first patrons along the first and third base lines," assured Premier Ellis and the league schedule will be released soon.

The first definite move towards the organization of softball in the schools was made yesterday when five schools were represented at a meeting held in the Queen Alexandra School. Tentative plans to organize a bantam league were discussed, with final efforts to put the game over in the schools next month. Two events meet at the "V" on Friday night. Already four entries have been received and distributed among the various schools with orders for their players being received soon. The lacrosse moguls of this city have given a good deal of their success for their pastime on the head through the medium of introducing the fundamental summer pastime into the schools.

Dan Howley's Toronto Maple Leafs opened their home diamond in third position Thursday, the Leafs relinquishing their hold on the top rung of the league ladder by virtue of losing to the Bears in overtime. Weather permitting one of the largest opening day crowds in years will welcome home Dan Howley's Leafs in 1937. Newark and Syracuse top the Leafs, who open with the lowly Orioles at Maple Leaf Stadium.

With Lefty Gomez hurling four hit ball, Col. Rupert's Yanks walloped the Detroit Tigers 10 to 1 yesterday and now we find these two clubs sharing the top rung of the American League, while Pittsburgh continues to rule the roost in the National hook-up. Every member of the Yankees registered at least one hit with Crosetti leading the remainder of the day with three, including a circuit blow. In the National the Cincinnati Reds drove Carl Hubbell from the hillton, but a sic run rally in the final frame gave the Giants a Reds to overcome, result Reds 6, Giants 5.

In the International League they are calling the Jersey City Club the "Little Giants" these days.

George "Shrimp" Phillips, brother of "Wayny" Phillips of Wellington, has accepted employment in the Crosse & Blackwell plant at Oakville, we hear. "Shrimp" whittled quite a name for himself during the Lake Shore baseball poll last summer while hurling for the Picton Blue Jays. Surely the Oaks are not thinking of sneaking Phillips into the fold at this late date, although it would be a ten-strike if they could. We've heard of the same "Shrimp" is a fairly good lefthander in any man's league.

NAPANEE TO HOLD DISTRICT MEET

C.O.S.S.A. Delegates Convene in City to Arrange Schedules

The semi-annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte group of the C.O.S.S.A. was held at the Belleville Collegiate Institute last evening and the district field day of track and field events was awarded to Napanee for the first time in several years in succession. The meet in 1937 was to have been held in Picton, but owing to the fact there is not adequate grounds to stage such a tournament, the meeting accepted Napanee's proposal to hold the district field day there. The day in June will be announced later.

Jimmy Deshong, Senators— Held Senators to four hits in relief role as Nats won in 11 innings 12-3.

Lefty Gomez and Joe DiMaggio, Yanks—Former fanned Tigers with four hits; latter drove in four runs in 10-1 victory with triple and single.

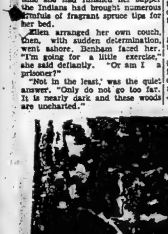
Ellen gets Her Man

PAS

THIRD INSTALLMENT

With axe and hammer and a handful of spikes, Benham went silently to work at the front of the scow. With three poles spiked upright and a length of tarpaulin meanthread down the gaps, he fashioned a small enclosure. To finish it off he brought out the blankets Pierre Buschard had provided for her and placed them in a new-built cubby.



"When we lie up for the night the men shall gather you enough spruce tips for a comfortable bed couch," he announced. "This will afford you reasonable privacy."

Then, without another word or look he stowed the axe away, strode among his men and stood there, bringing out a short black briar pipe which he clutched affectionately in his teeth, to smoke calmly and disinterestedly.

The next halt was made at sundown. The scows were tied up, fires lit and the evening meal prepared. Benham himself did not come near her, but he sent Pierre Buschard to her with several heaped dishes of savoury, steaming food and a pannikin of scalding hot tea. By the time she had finished her supper the Indians had brought numerous armfuls of fragrant spruce tips for her bed.

Ellen arranged her own couch, then, with sudden determination, went ashore. Benham faced her. "I'm going for a little exercise," she said defiantly. "Or am I a prisoner?"

"Not in the least," was the quiet answer. "Only do not go too far. It is nearly dark and these woods are uncharted."

Ellen looked across the flame at this strange, still man.

Unconsciously, Ellen stayed longer than she had intended. When she finally threaded her way back to the fire but a single figure remained seated before the fading flames. It was Benham. He looked at her without speaking.

A stir of response gripped Ellen. She knew he had been awaiting her return. "I'm sorry," she said quietly. "Sorry if I've kept you from your rest. But somehow it seemed that I had at last come home, after being away too long. I won't offend this way again. I realize I am very much in your debt."

Benham nodded. "I understand," he said, softly. "I too have been away—and come home. And I often sit late like this. It is at night that all this speaks." A brief gesture encompassed the wilderness about them.

Ellen was startled. Most men she had known in the north country became hardened to its beauties. But there was something almost poetic in John Benham's simple words and tone. In some intangible way it seemed that a bond of friendship of common understanding between them was born there at that moment.

For a long time Ellen stood there, across the flames from this stranger, still, elemental man. Her mind seethed with truant thoughts, and words that frightened her lay close to her lips. Then one of the sleeping Indians stirred in his blanket. The spell was broken. Ellen moved away.

"Good-night," she called softly.

"Good-night—John Benham."

The low, silver log buildings which constituted the Hudson Bay Post at Fort Edson, were spread out against the rising slope of a low, thickly-wooded ridge which bounded the north shore of a shingle on the west shore of the Mackenzie River. Over the river and those three great streams which carried the brigades of the fur traders into the heart bosom of the north.

Between the Athabasca, from there along the broad, smooth reaches of the Slave River to Great Slave Lake fathomless. "I would save you from that payment if I could now, Ben. I am afraid that you must pay, just the same. Not to me—but to others."

"I—I don't understand—"

"You will." He held out his hand. "Good-bye, Ellen Mackay."

For a moment her hand trembled in his. Then he had stepped back on to the scow. His deep voice called orders. The Crees leaped to the sweeps and a moment later the huge grey river current was shuffling off into the mists.

Something gathered in Ellen's throat. She looked away and started feverishly up the slope. And now, coming towards her from the buildings was a little group of Indians led by a stooped shambling, whiteheaded figure.

"Ellen looked aghast. "Father!" she cried. "Father!"

She flew to him, to this stooped figure of unearthly pallor. "What has happened? When she had left, four years before, this father of hers had been tall, ruddy and erect. Almost as tall and stalwart as John Benham. And now he was old—and bore his hunched shoulders! How feeble his step! How thin his hair! It seemed that neither could speak intelligently now. Slowly they approached the sloop before she entered the factor's cabin.

It was dusky in the cabin. The door closed behind them and the old man sank into a chair with a deep, quavering sigh. "I knew you'd come at last, lass," he said, and his voice was thick and husky. "I was afraid—afraid ye had forgotten me, when De'Soto passed through. I'm glad you remember him wide-eyed. "Father—could you believe that?" Her voice reproach her own voice. "I came immediately! I am a blackguard to—to neglect you."

"Thank God for that, lass. And who was it that brought ye?"

Before she could speak the name slipped out "John Benham."

The old factor seemed to reel in his chair. His sagging head came up. His hands gripped the arms of the chair. He stared intensely. He stared at her like a man glimpsing his father's ghost. His tongue flickered over his lips.

"You—you met Benham?"

Something icy closed about Ellen's heart. Yet she had to answer. "Yes, father. I met him. He—he was very kind to me, where he could, perhaps, to be other than wise."

The old man started to his feet and began to laugh, in high, shrill senile cachinnations. He stumbled to and fro across the confines of the room. Suddenly the laughter ceased and he began to curse—curse with a venom that was ghastly.

"Damn him!" he shrilled. "Damn him! He's ruined everything for me now. All he had left to me was my last bit of pride—and now he has taken that. You—the daughter of Angus Mackay—travelled from yon distant landing to this fort with that squaw's whelp, that thieving fur-trader. And now, a little fool, he'll boast of it. Great God! Why did not the hitchings of last winter take me off? I would have been spared this—spared this."

Ellen was both sickened and frightened. There was something terribly wrong about this old man's wild rags and his imprecations. And this father of hers, who had wagered away to such a shell, seemed almost like another person to her. Yet, as he stood there, his strength and went to him. Quietly but remorselessly she forced him back into his seat and dropped upon her knees beside him. She attempted to soothe him with words such as she would have used on a child.

"You must rest, father. You are not well. You have been too long alone. I am young and strong. You must let me take most of the load from your shoulders. I have forgotten how to handle the Indians or to grade a fur."

Again the old factor laughed and it seemed to Ellen that all the elements of despair were in that laugh. He was shaking; a man palsied by the scalding outpourings of rage and hate. Over and over again he muttered the name of John Benham, cursing and reviling. It was long before he quieted and reaction left him weak and shrunken. His eyes, staring out beneath shaggy brows were glazed and bloodshot. He panted weakly for breath.

At that moment all the murky shadows in the world seemed to close in on Ellen Mackay. During those thoughtless, careless years which she had spent at school, some great tragedy had been enacted here in the fastnesses of the north. Alone and in silence this father of hers had fought some great, overwhelming misfortune, to be slowly beaten down and shattered until it seemed that even his reason was tottering. And the cause of his misfortune had been John Benham, John Benham!

Something stirred and surged through her veins. Behind her was a long line of fighting ancestors, a lineage reaching in the far, grey mist-covered highlands of Scotland. Here before her lay battle of another sort, yet testile none the less. With a click of her white teeth the line caught up the gage. Gone in an instant were all memories of that thousand-mile trip from the north. In a flicker of an eyelash she placed John Benham in new status—an enemy now — an enemy who had shattered and brought near to death—her father.

At last the insanity of rage left Angus Mackay. His high hand came out and rested on Ellen's dark head caressingly. "Forgive me, lass," he murmured. "But only the great God knows what I have been through. It is hard to go to see defeat and disgrace looming just ahead."

It was late when she kissed her father good-night and went to her own room. Supper and bed had been hers since a babe in swaddling clothes. In one night she had become a woman.

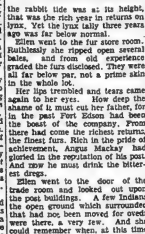
Ellen's window looked out upon the post buildings. A few Indians in the open ground which surrounded that had not been moved for months were there, a very few. And she could remember, in the past years of the year, there would be hundreds. And that, now carpeted there were of the poorest. Dogribs and Yellow-knives and Hay-river Indians, notoriously lazy and unthrifty. Their tepees were ragged and filthy; their families plainly undernourished; their dogs mere perambulating skeletons. And the scanty furs they brought in for trade would, in the older, better years, hardly have been considered.

An overpowering discouragement flooded Ellen, particularly when she was unable to toss to understand this terrible decline.

support, yet there was something tragic also. These men, men like Angus Mackay, were hurling their frail old bodies against the ponderous, inexorable, blank advance of progress. It was hopeless, it was tragic, but splendid in its blind fervour.

Ellen turned back into the dusky reading room and read, for the hundredth time it seemed, a brusque, authoritative letter, written on the dignified parchment used in official communications. The message did not hide the fact. It contained less than a dozen lines. Yet the words, if it seemed to Ellen, fell like a knell. In effect it stated that unless Angus Mackay could, by the following spring, bring back the production of Fort Edson to something approximating its old standard, he would have to be replaced.

Sudden, hot anger gripped Ellen. A year—only a year—in which short year to fight back and recuperate. One year! To this man who had given them a lifetime of faithful, resourceful service. Then, the letter hinted also of a pension, a pitiful dole that was more insulting than it was comforting. A pension! The mark of the old and useless. Charity! Ellen stood on the open wounds of her father.



Ellen lifted her head defiantly. A year! Very well, she would show them what a Mackay could do in a year. She would fight back, fight to the last ounce of strength and will. She possessed that. And if anyone, John Benham in particular, opposed her, she would bring back the methods of open battle the very earliest days of the fur trade had known. She was a corner, her back to the wall. Her father's reputation; his life his welfare were at stake. So with there would be nothing she would not dare.

It was that moment that Mackay turned savage. Her face settled into hard, cold lines. The youthfulness of her fled, somehow.

She put away the books and papers, locked the storerooms and strode off to the home cabin. As she went she became aware of shouts down upon the beach. From the doorway of the cabin she surveyed the scene below. Several scows and a York boat or two were moored on the shore. A crowd of Indians and rivermen were grouped about the shore. Her sire, her father talking to one of them, a big burly figure who towered above the rest like a giant among pigmies.

Presently these two advanced up the slope towards the post. Angus Mackay with a toiling effort that almost brought a flush to Ellen's cheek, and momentary dimness to her eyes, staggered up with a listless ease which belied the impression of clumsiness his huge bulk gave. Once, when the old factor stumbled, his companion steadied him with one powerful hand and after that helped the old man over the steepest part of the trail. This gesture slight as it was, brought a warm glow to Ellen, and when the two finally entered the cabin Ellen's eyes were bright and she was palpitating.

While they were still some yards away Ellen felt the impact of the

"This is Bernard Delere ur lass," said the factor.

John Benham was the cause, her father claimed; John Benham's methods, his fur trading methods, had enticed the Indians from him, who had formerly been richest and best furs and left to him only the ragged remnants.

Ellen wondered if such a thing were reasonable, that one lone man could move into a territory and in three short years overthrow the reputation and prestige of such a post as Fort Edson. She voiced this wonder to her father just once, and his answering glance of fury made her trembling and disheartened.

Angus Mackay hated all free traders violently and unswervingly. All his life had been spent in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company. He was of the old school who, though he knew full well that the Hudson Bay Company had parted with its old franchises in 1869, thought in his blind fervour and faithfulness, that any free trader was still a trespasser, a poacher, and a schemer against the interests of the mother company.

There were many others like him, scattered about in the numerous posts of the north—stern, uncompromising men who had grown old in the service of the great Hudson Bay Company was both life and religion. There was something appealing in this blind faith and the rabbit, tide was at its highest, that was the one year in return on lynx. Yet the lynx tally three years ago was far below normal.

Ellen went to the fur store room. Rubbishly she ripped open several bales, and from old experience grasped the furs disclosed. They were all far below par, not a prime skin in the whole lot.

Her lips trembled and tears came again to her eyes. How deep the shame of it must cut her father, for in the past Fort Edson had been the boast of the company. From there had come the richest returns, the finest furs. Rich in the pride of achievement, Angus Mackay had gloried in the reputation of his post. And now he must drink the bitterest dregs.

Ellen went to the door of the trade room and looked out upon the empty buildings. A few Indians in the open ground which surrounded that had not been moved for months were there, a very few. And she could remember, in the past years of the year, there would be hundreds. And that, now carpeted there were of the poorest. Dogribs and Yellow-knives and Hay-river Indians, notoriously lazy and unthrifty. Their tepees were ragged and filthy; their families plainly undernourished; their dogs mere perambulating skeletons. And the scanty furs they brought in for trade would, in the older, better years, hardly have been considered.

An overpowering discouragement flooded Ellen, particularly when she was unable to toss to understand this terrible decline.

Agricultural Reports

Reports to the Department of Agriculture in this district include the following counties:

Hastings—Considerable new seedings of hay will have to be re-seeded. Seeding operations have been held back 10 some extent due to wet and cold weather, farmers now able to get on land.

Northumberland — Weather has been ideal for spring wheat and hay fields. Wheat fields are looking fine and any alfalfa and clover that was alive last fall is now coming along very nicely. All seed grain and potatoes have ceased in price.

Prince Edward—Fall wheat and rye look promising. Alfalfa is beginning to green up. Little seeding was done last week due to frequent rains.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 5—(CP)—After maintaining a steady to strong tone in a draggy market, prices eased off in the last hour on the Toronto Stock Exchange today to show a preponderance of narrow losses over gains. Trade slackened off to the smallest volume for a full session this year, the entire turnover totaling only about 500,000 shares. Foods, steels and the western oils were the only groups holding to the up side at the close. All the canners stocks ruled higher by 1-2 to 3-4 and higher. Prices were posted for Fanny Farmer, Loblaw A and Hiney Dew.

Brazilian Traction slipped back nearly a point. Shawinigan and Union Gas held 38 minor gains. C.P.R. and Ford A lost fractions.

Distillers firmed about 1 1-4 points.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 5—(AP)—Traders felt their way cautiously today and the stock market drifted a little lower in lethargic dealings.

Offerings were not plentiful but those that appeared met few buyers and prices sagged fractions to as much as 3 points in some instances.

Toward the fifth hour the tape was sluggish, with long waits between transactions. Turnover was about 850,000 shares.

Dominion of Canada Conversion Loan

The Bank of Canada is authorized by the Acting Minister of Finance to receive applications to convert Dominion of Canada 5½% Victory Loan Bonds maturing December 1, 1937, into:

Two-Year 1 per cent. Bonds, due June 1, 1939

Issue Price: 99.25%

yielding approximately 1.38% to maturity;

OR

Five-Year 2 per cent. Bonds, due June 1, 1942

Issue Price: 98.25%

yielding approximately 2.375% to maturity;

OR

Twelve-Year 3¼ per cent. Bonds, due June 1, 1949

(Callable on or after June 1, 1946)

Issue Price: 99.00%

yielding approximately 3.35% to maturity.

Victory Loan Bonds accepted for conversion into any of the maturities of the new loan must have attached the final coupons due December 1, 1937, and will be valued at a price of 102.25% (the coupons due June 1, 1937, detached).

Bonds accepted for conversion will be exchanged for interim certificates of the new loan on June 1, 1937, when the resultant cash adjustments in favour of the applicants will be made.

Bonds will be dated June 1, 1937. Principal and interest will be payable in lawful money of Canada. Interest will be payable, without charge, semi-annually June 1 and December 1, at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

Denominations:
1 % Bonds, $1,000
2 % Bonds, $1,000
3¼% Bonds, $100, $500 and $1,000

No part of this loan will be offered for cash subscription.

Applications may be made to the Head Office of the Bank of Canada through any branch in Canada of any chartered bank or through any recognised dealer, from whom copies of the official prospectus containing complete details of the loan may be obtained.

The application lists will open on May 5, 1937, and will close as to any or all of the maturities, with or without notice, at the discretion of the Acting Minister of Finance. The Acting Minister of Finance reserves the right to limit the amount to be issued in any maturity.

CHILD SAVED FROM DROWNING

Under Water Three Minutes But Chums Apply Artificial Respiration

Oshawa, Ont., May 5—(CP)—Under water for three minutes when stunned while diving in Oshawa Creek, five-year-old Billy Goulding was saved from drowning by Clarence Black last night. Billy's brother Jack, 14, and John Burch, also 14, applied artificial respiration to the lad until Dr. B. A. Brown arrived.

Blaze in Trailer Narrowly Averted

Unaware that smouldering blankets on a folding cot in his aleek cabin trailer had been ignited by a short circuited wire leading from a storage battery after it had been frayed on the edge of the steel bed, a Hamilton motorist travelling on No. 2 Highway just east of this city early last evening, had this danger averted when his attention was directed to smoke oozing from cracks in a rear window of the trailer by a second motorist who "cut in" ahead and pulled the equipage to a halt.

Quick work on the part of the trailer owner with a hand extinguisher ended the menace of fire, with only the loss of a few blankets.

The offer of $5.00 for his assistance was refused by the motorist who raised the alarm.

POLICE BLOTTER

A visitor in the city, who had imbibed freely, but not well, was apprehended as he stumbled across flower beds and lawns of residents of the west hill sector yesterday afternoon. The drunk was apprehended and today appeared before the Justice of the Peace and was remanded in custody until Friday.

"I want's any more drunk yesterday than I am right now," complained the inebriate as he appeared today.

"Don't you remember trampling over people's flower gardens?" prompted a police official.

"Oh, did I?" came back the astonished reply of the accused as he was led back to the cell block.

Mrs. Phippen, 220 Dundas Street, reported the theft of a quantity of clothes from a shed at the rear of her home last night. The party responsible is believed to have been a transient.

Only eight transients sought shelter at the police station last night.

5 PARTIES SEEK OFFICE IN B. C.

150 Candidates Enroll For Nominations on Tuesday May 11

Vancouver, May 5 (CP)— With nomination day next Tuesday, May 11, candidates of five parties and other groups seeking seats in the next British Columbia legislature today rolled toward the 150 mark.

On June 1 Premier T. D. Pattullo will take the Liberal government to the country and at the same time ask the electorate in a plebiscite if it favors a comprehensive health insurance plan progressively applied."

Seeking office also are the British Columbia Conservative party, the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation, Conservatives and the British Columbia Social Credit League. Other groups are Independents, Labor, Communists- and Socialists.

Enterprise Factory Opens 67th Season

Opening for its 67th consecutive season, the "Old Reliable" cheese factory at Enterprise, one of the oldest in the Dominion, is now in 1937 production, starting yesterday.

Built in 1871 and operated in that season for the first time by Thos. Clancy, this factory has established a Canadian record for continuous management by the same family. The oldest living person connected with the early days of the factory is believed to be Mrs. John Clancy of Centreville, now in her 83rd year. Before her marriage she had been cheesemaker in the factory and recalls when cheese sold at six and seven cents the pound. The factory is now under the management of Thos. Clancy, son-in-law of the late Mr. Clancy.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Killing

By Grace Shaver

It was not yet dark but the lightning was so rapid and vivid that it might have been midday. The thunder reverberated through the little valley as continuously as if produced for a radio broadcast. My engine stalled just as I came up to a group of cars parked at the foot of the hill.

"Two light poles down, said a strange driver. "We may as well turn back. Rain was pouring down in sheets. Car after car went around me and soon I stood alone in front of a dark little house.

I decided to seek shelter for the night. It did not occur to me that anyone would act as surly and inhospitable as the boy and old woman from whom I asked a night's lodging.

"The wires are down and there's no telling when the light will come on again," the old woman complained ungraciously. "We ain't got no bed ready made up for strangers."

The water has flooded my engine." I explained, "and I can't start my car. I am weary enough not to be particular. Just give me a candle and a bed. I'll be asleep in five minutes."

The boy said something in Pennsylvania Dutch to his mother of which I understood enough to gather that he thought it would look suspicious to turn me away. I should have been warned of something sinister but the rain came and thunder and now it was pitch black within and without the house. I dreaded trying to find help elsewhere.

A single wax candle of the kind intended more for ornament than light stood flickering on the table. Its feeble illumination gave some idea of the terrors of dark on these lonely farms in days long ago.

In spite of their protests the spare bed without any further preparation received my weary frame. Already the light company had sent a truck with workmen to the fallen poles. I watched them from my window for a minute. They moved through the dark enveloped in raincoats looking like gnomes whose flashlights and lanterns showing here and there might have been seeking some mysterious dreadful thing.

The lights came on again suddenly in the middle of the night. The brilliant unshaded globe dangling from its cord in the centre of the room must have been turned on when the power went off. Its glare woke me. For a long time I had been semi-conscious listening to a persistent dripping. A leaky roof, I thought.

I lay looking curiously about the neat little room. Drip, drip, drip! Overhead was a ceiling of grained southern pine which seems to be common in that section of Pennsylvania. Many a fine old beamed ceiling is concealed behind such shining boards. Drip, drip, drip! The bed that the roof should call and rot that beautiful wood. Drip, drip, drip! It must be coming down right in my room. Must be making quite a puddle. Drip, drip!

The drops were forming between that board with the wide waxed graining and the one next it with fine lines. What a wonderful thing electricity is! By the candle light I lay sleepily counting the lines of graining on each panel overhead. Strange color the drop of water that is forming. It is red!

My God, it is blood!

With a sudden jerk I sat up, instinctively I put out my hand to catch the falling drop before it should join the terrible puddle on the floor beside my bed. The pool was darkly red. The drop was warm and sticky and as I put my hand to my face with the impulse to wipe it I smelled fresh blood! I called loudly to the old woman in the next room while I pulled on my clothes. The frightened boy and his mother appeared at once as if they had been waiting for me to make an outcry.

"Oh, mister, don't tell on us", begged the boy. "We sling got no money to pay a fine and that'll kill my mother."

"Fine!" I shouted, pulling open the attic door at the foot of my bed. "Do you consult a murder and expect to get off with a fine? Bring up the candle here — there's no light up in this hole!"

"She had her leg broke, mister! An' I shot her, I mean to get right in to town an' give myself up but the storm came up an' mother got scared an' we hid her."

I stood on the attic stair with an old flattened candlestick in my shaking hand listening to this strange, cool account of a "mercy killing."

My head and shoulders were above the attic floor. I held the candle high and its light fell on the body of a fair young doe. The clain deer's blood continued dripping through on the floor below. In the days when candle beams were the only ones that shone on lifeless men had been crimes and quartered for lesser crimes.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma was swarking around looking for dust and I had a splinter in my thumb, saying, Ma, pa, I seem to have a little splinter, do you think I better have it took out?

Well naturally of course, of all things you crazy thing, ma said. The idea of anybody deliberately leaving a forrin body in their blood system. Come here to me. I have a needle rite here, she said, and I will get it all aw G, ma, you're going to make it sting 10 times worse.

I've taken many a splinter out for you and I dont remember killing you yet, ma said, and pop said, Bring the splinter over here and the needle. A splinter needs a man's sure masterful touch, I've always had an idea that the dainty feminine approach is the most painful, he said.

You're welcome to the pleasure, I'm sure, ma said.

And she sent me over to pop with the needle and my splinter, and after about 5 minutes he said, Now look here, how am I going to get anywhere if you keep on squealing Gwtch owtch like a confounded parrot when the needle's not even touching you?

Well it wunders, pop, the needle's wease than the splinter, I said, and pop said, And you're more than the 2 of them put together. It takes 2 to take out a splinter, one to do the extracting and the other to do the standing still. You gota learn I am a hornbilling wreck and it's not even my splinter or my needle either for that matter, he said.

Come back here with that splinter and that needle for land sakes, ma said.

Wich I did, saying, Owtch, ma, maybe we better wait till tomorrow, I think maybe I'm mistaken about having a splinter, and ma said, I'm sure you are, because I've just taken it out, and if you think my method was too calmy I'll put it back for your father to take out.

Being sourcastic and a good sport.

MARMORA

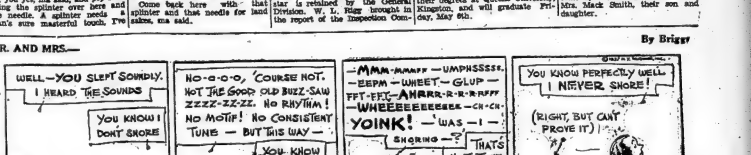
Marmora.—The regular monthly meeting of the Belcon Safety Committee took place in the Electric Shop on Monday afternoon with R. A. Elliott presiding. Five suggestions were reported as having been received during April. Three suggestions were given awards. The star is retained by the General Division. W. L. Edger brought in the report of the Inspection Committee. J. Judge is floating member for May. Frome method practices were held by the committee in charge and will be continued monthly. The monthly statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds was reported for the Publicity Committee. The report of the two deliveries to the recent Industrial Accidents Prevention Committee in Toronto, namely Messrs. E. R. McNally and G. Brooks, was given in interesting style by Mr. McNally.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Rogers of Petersborough, visited Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Elhatrick at Detour on Sunday.

Mr. Jack Hickey, of Toronto, is visiting his brother, Warren, for a short time.

Friends and acquaintances of Lawrence Paquet, Douglas Airhart and Mary Hemphill will be pleased to hear that they have obtained their degrees at Queens University, Kingston, and will graduate Friday, May 6th.

7 PERSONS VICTIMS OF MONOXIDE POISONING



Calgary, May. 5 (CP)—Seven persons, members of two families, were in hospital here today, victims of carbon monoxide poisoning and a sparrow was responsible for their plight.

The chimney of the house, occupied by the two families, was blocked by a sparrow's nest, and fumes from a gas heater backed into the house.

Sidney Smith, returning from his night job at a packing plant, found his wife and two sons unconscious. In another room overcome by the fumes were Mr. and Mrs. Mack Smith, their son and daughter.

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

The three travellers swung rapidly along the trail, which might lead them to safety, or new dangers, and behind them, silently through the trees followed a tireless stalker, whose cruel eyes seldom wandered from the slender figure of the girl.

But while this phantom enemy followed her, Tarzan's search for his mate was balked by Nkima's failure to recall where he had found Jane's note. Finally the ape-man suggested that the little monkey retrace his adventures in the forest, and he would follow.

Nkima, feeling very important, welcomed the idea excitedly. Tarzan turned to Muviro. "Lead your warriors to the land of the Kavuru. If you cannot enter to recover your daughter, wait for me there." Then the man and the monkey leaped into the trees.

Hastingly, often confused, Nkima led the ape-man by a circuitous route to the shelter which Jane and her companions had abandoned. Now the trail was plain before him.

Tarzan leaped treetward and swung toward the east. "His was a race with disaster.

UNITED

"The Liberal-Conservative party believes that labour should receive a fair share of the fruits of industry, and is entitled to organize in order to improve the lot of the worker with regard to wages, hours, security in old age, and all other conditions of industrial life.

Rights of Employees.

"The Liberal-Conservative party reaffirms its traditional policy of insisting upon the maintenance of law and order in all industrial disputes, and pledges itself firmly and equitably to uphold the laws of Canada.

"The Liberal-Conservative party stands for the right of employees to bargain collectively through their own representatives, chosen by the workers through the medium of secret ballot free from improper influence, coercion, or intimidation.

"The choice of affiliation and the selection of their representatives is the right of Canadian workmen as has been recognized by our federal governments for many years. These rights can be safeguarded only by the democratic exercise of the secret ballot, in all decisions of a local union. With this new safeguard firmly established I will trust the Canadian workman against the invasion of foreign agitators.

"The Liberal-Conservative party also believes that the primary duty of a provincial government in all industrial disputes is first, to take no sides, secondly to maintain law and order without the display of unnecessary force, and thirdly, to enact and impartially administer, adequate legislation for the prevention or conciliation of industrial disputes.

Confidence in People.

"As leader of the Liberal-Conservative party I have confidence in the judgment and common sense of all classes of our people and their adherence to British principles in the exercise of their democratic rights and privileges.

"Had these today cheated with public responsibility had this faith in the integrity and loyalty of our people, no threat would have been heard of the licensing of trade unions nor would there have been any hasty mobilization of that new addition to the provincial police force which has become known as "Hepburn's Hussars."

"Industry today must assume its fair share of its obligation towards labor and labor in turn, I feel confident, will show its reasonableness.

"I do not propose to be stampeded by the hysteria of the past few weeks in Ontario. I am prepared to trust the people of Ontario, confident to take care of his connection and to clean house if such necessity arises through the activity of undesirable, agitators who in no way represent Ontario labor.

Government and Industrial Disputes

"What is the proper place and function of government in relation to disputes which from time to time arise in industry? It is to safeguard and conserve the rights and interests of the public.

"Capital is organized in its management machinery. The workers are organized in their unions. The general public is represented only by its government. Yet that public pays all the salaries of management in industry; all the wages of the industrial workers; all the profits of shareholders. And may I point out further, that it has paid the millions of dollars for relief—that great wet blanket which bears so heavily and crushingly upon the taxpayer, especially in the industrial centres.

"Sympathetic understanding of the problems of both labor and industry cannot do else but bring about desirable conclusions to such industrial disputes. Neither the display or unnecessary force nor the threat of licensing trade unions, or the curtailment of the rights which Canadian labor has enjoyed for so many years, has any place in a British democratic state."

Turning to the administration of the Liquor Control Act, Mr. Rowe gave indications of possible preventative policy in this phase of government activity.

Profit System

The open declaration of the Hepburn government that the administration of the Liquor Control Act was conducted for profit brought from the Conservative leader the charge that "human values, which are the responsibility of government were forgotten in the introduction of a profit system to balance a political budget."

"When the boasted goal of any administration is more money in the coffers of the government rather than the maintenance of the control features of the act, no one can be surprised to give to the best interests of the people of the province at large.

"Where the ruling principle is profit human values are dismissed ed. Since the advent of the Hepburn administration the control features of the act have been sadly neglected and profit made the paramount consideration.

The practice of the present administration has become a scandal throughout this province through the multiplicity of beverage rooms in places where they are neither wanted or needed. As evidence of this we have the appearance of more cafes, garages and apartment houses being established as licensed beverage rooms. After the next election the issuance of licenses by the patronage system will end; mushroom saloons will be closed and the control features of the act will be restored and enforced.

School Taxes

"By the recent about-face on the question of school taxation, Mr. Hepburn has again demonstrated to all that he cannot be trusted. Last year in payment of election debts he ruthlessly forced the amendment to the assessment act through the house in the dying hours of the legislature. This year in fear of an election he frantically accepts its repeal in the dying months of his floundering government. Last year his supporters in the house were blindly whipped into line to support this iniquitous piece of legislation; this year these same supporters were hastily mustered to accept the repeal of this clumsily drafted, unworkable product, of their own administration.

"Before the last election he foolishly pledged himself to support the public school supporters. Before this election he betrays the separate school supporters.

"Previous to the last election only a special few knew Mr. Hepburn's scheme. Previous to this election nobody knows his design. On this issue I solemnly warn the people of this province that Mr. Hepburn cannot be trusted."

"Another reversal of policy is to be found in the administration of the Hydro Electric Power Commission. The black emblem of cabinet repudiation was nailed to the mast-head of this government when contracts entered into by a previous administration were cancelled. We were then told that not a single horsepower of this energy would ever be needed. This was but two short years ago. To date the government has re-negotiated for 498,000 of that unneeded and unwanted horsepower, and it is generally understood that further contracts are under negotiation.

Power Contracts

"Forty year contracts for the security of industrial development in Ontario have been broken and replaced by ten year contracts for the purpose of lowering hydro rates before an election. Security and stability have been sacrificed for political expediency; industrial development endangered in a vain effort to further the interests of a political party.

"The three municipalities whose co-operation made hydro possible have no representation on the board of that great enterprise. If the provincial government continues to shirk their responsibility in this regard I shall consider it one of my first duties to see that the municipalities are given the representation to which they are justly entitled.

"In the very near future Mr. Hepburn through the medium of paid advertisements, will politically whitewash a sum in excess of $8,000,000. Many essential services have been curtailed or abolished while taxation has soared from $50,000,000 to $80,000,000. This apparent surplus was made possible through the introduction of a novel system of bookkeeping which, if the books were open to the public, would show a deficit for the 11 months and expenditures for only eleven months."

Reasons for By-Election

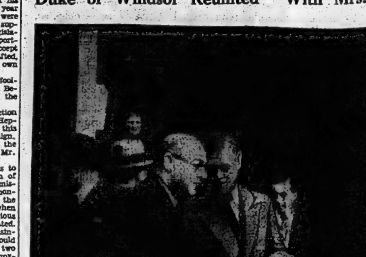
Mr. Rowe challenged Mr. Hepburn to call for a by-election in North Wellington. He stated that even if Mr. Hepburn does refuse to call a general election he should have sufficient courage left to test the strength in this traditionally Liberal riding that gave him the second largest majority in the general election of 1934.

"When Mr. Hepburn calls for an election we will as a party lay before the people of Ontario a constructive and progressive program. We will enunciate policies to remove patronage from the civil service; politics from the hydro; interference in the administration of the liquor control act; neglect of the highways and noise and burlesque from the government."

In conclusion Mr. Rowe made a strong appeal to the better element of Liberalism in North Wellington and Ontario to support the Liberal-Conservative party, emphasizing that the true spirit of the name of the party was to incorporate the best efforts of both Liberals and Conservatives in a common desire to restore sound and decent government to the Province of Ontario.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—About sixty boys and men representing the four appointments of the Plainfield pastoral charge gathered in the United Church on Saturday evening for a social evening sponsored by the boys and young men of the Sunday School.



The program was in charge of the minister who conducted the worship service with James Arkins as pianist. Solos were rendered by Oscar Moore, Clifford Holmes and Joseph Orr. Laureson Ketchenon and Martin Pierce contributed a guitar duet. The guest speaker for the occasion was Rev. R. S. McLean, of Toronto, Provincial Secretary of Religious Education, who chose for his subject, "What the Church Offers Boys, Training in Fellowship, in Self-Government, in Public Speaking, in Athletics and in Prayer." The refreshments were served by the Plainfield group of boys and young men who although it was their first experience, acquitted themselves in a very fine manner.

On Sunday morning Mr. McLean was greeted with a large congregation when he gave a talk to the children with the grown ups listening in. In the afternoon the Mound Pleasant congregation enjoyed an address from the visitor who in the evening addressed a large congregation in Bethel Church when he spoke on the subject, "Others have labored and we have entered into their labors." The speaker pointed to several areas of life where the present generation is reaping from the sowing done by their forefathers but reminded his hearers that they must also sow seed that some day others will do the reaping. What will the harvest be?

Mrs. John Shaw has returned home after spending the winter with friends at Corbyville.

Mrs. Edward Collins left on Saturday to spend the summer with her brother, William, in Prince Edward.

Police Examine Charred Bones

Provincial Police are carrying on an extensive investigation following the finding of a heap of charred bones and a kit of clothing in the woods near Northbrook in Lennox and Addington, 46 miles from Belleville. The ashes are believed to be the remains of Aubrey Sedore, 29-year-old trapper. Robert Woodman, Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond of Madoc. In the lower picture Inspector Frank Gardner and Constable Dymond are shown sifting through the small pile of ashes, bones, teeth and a piece of clothing. The bones found have been legal expert to be human bones, it was stated at police district headquarters today.

MARKET COMMENT

The world is becoming "gold" conscious and every pronouncement on the metal receives considerable publicity and attention. The Bank for International Settlements, in its annual report surveying the monetary position of the market finds that the lowering of the price of gold would help cope with the serious problem created by the over-abundant production. But it points to the difficulties and has no recommendation.

England has been calling the speculative tune and now she is paying the piper. It is estimated the devaluation of the franc will cost the market value of London assets in a single month, as prices plunged down to the level of last summer. Revision of values on so colossal a scale is serious, to say the least, from the point of view of shrinkage, and the belief is arising that the end is not nearer in sight. Collapse of the English speculation in commodities and securities is serious and removes Europe as a potential force in the New York stock market for a long time to come.

Market observers are of the opinion that prices will continue to move in a narrow media for the next six weeks to two months and then a tendency of the forward movement will get under way. The sharp break of the past few weeks has carried out a large number of weak accounts and although the general position of the market has improved, the confidence of the public has been shaken and it will require about two months, it is figured, before appreciable demand for securities will again make its appearance. In the interval, investors may be rewarded with some interesting bargains.

Dominion Textile

Dominion Textile Common has won the regard of many investors by its performance during the recent decline. Undoubtedly, the stock has reflected the more protracted earnings picture that may be shown from the fiscal year's end, and the belief is arising that the dividend may be increased in the not to distant following months.

London, May 4 (CP)—Reuben Lerr knows nothing about football. But he should care! He won $153,000 in a pool that cost him sixpence (12 cents) to buy a ticket. Reuben is 53, a cabinet-maker and father of a 17-year-old son and 25-year-old daughter. He's never been to a football match, doesn't read the advance "dope" but just picked out four teams, haphazard. Says he: "I have been unlucky all my life. I have never won anything before." He wants to see the world and to cure his asthma. His odds were 1,300,000 to 1.

CORONATION SOUVENIR FROM HIS MAJESTY

Here is the medal struck in commemoration of the coronation of King George VI at the Royal Mint in London. Each guest will be issued as a personal souvenir of the event from King to all persons in the crown service in all parts of the British Empire. Though the medal engraved above has the broad ribbon for women, the medal for men has the usual long narrow ribbon. At left is shown the reverse side of the decoration, which is 1 1-4 inches in diameter.

BASQUES TURN TIDE OF BATTLE; ATTACK REBELS

Rebel forces storming Bermeo, on the bay of Biscay, some eight miles from Bilbao, are said by last news item with such overwhelming counter-attacks from the Basque defenders that they jumped into the sea and attempted to swim two miles to Guernica. Reports state government forces, on the defensive for some weeks, had begun counter-attacking the Basque capital.

TORONTO EX-POLICEMAN HELD IN BANK ROBBERY

Arthur Evans Arrested As He Requests Remand On Theft of Car Charge

Is Charged With Armed Hold-up of Bank at Schomberg

HOLD-UP STORY TOLD

Evans is Refused Bail on Charge of Car Theft

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Arthur Evans, former Toronto policeman, was arrested on an armed bank robbery charge in the corridor of the city hall today. It is alleged he was one of two armed, masked men who robbed the Royal Bank at Schomberg, just north of here, of $3,000 Tuesday.

Detective Robert McMaster arrested Evans as he was on the way to men's police court to seek a remand on a car theft charge. With Donald Adair, Edward Marshall, James Sharpe and William Membery, the former policeman appeared on that car theft charge.

"The crown is asking that bail be refused in the case of Arthur Evans," said Crown Attorney F. J. Hartley, "the charge being that he, equal an anarchist uprising still out of control in the city's streets, remanded to July 5.

Telephone and telegraph connections with Barcelona still were cut, making it impossible to verify the report directly.

A force of 1,000 men was said to have started from Valencia, ten-gateway to the east coast Mediterranean, to suppress the anarchist uprising and guerilla warfare in Barcelona in which more than 100 persons were reported killed, with casualties still mounting.

Another column, the reports said, was withdrawn from the Aragon front by Luis Companys, President of the autonomous Catalonia, supporting Valencia's efforts to

NEW WEDDING MARCH

Duke of Windsor Composes Piece That Will be Used at Ceremony

Monte, France, May 6 (AP)—Police fear bombs might be disguised as a wedding gift, police maintained a close scrutiny today on packages addressed to the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Another report from the Tours post office to Mrs. Simpson at the Chateau de Candé, where she inspects the senders' addresses. If she does not recognize the name, instructs that the package be returned unopened.

Composing Wedding March

The Duke was said to have composed the wedding march he will play Mrs. Wallis Simpson will march to the altar.

The Duke played the march on his bagpipe last night for his bride-to-be, in the turreted Chateau de Candé, their pre-marriage retreat, echoed to the shrill music.

Meanwhile, the Candé household said Edward had written the invitations to the wedding by his fiancee. Years ago he composed a military march for bagpipes, adopted by London regiments.

Preparations for the marriage, meanwhile, seemed virtually ready for the ceremony soon after Edward's proclamation as VI, is crowned in London next Wednesday.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent and Princess Marina of Harewood, [illegible] the Countess of Edward's sister Mary, the Princess Royal) will be the only representatives of Britain's royal family at the wedding, a source close to the Chateau de Candé said.

Edward's youngest brother, the Duke of Kent, probably will be best man, and Herman L. Rogers, friend and spokesman of Mrs. Simpson and her former host at Cannes, will give the bride to the groom.

Soon after the wedding the couple are expected to join Edward's Redecoration of their prospective honeymoon retreat, Fort Belvedere, Sunningdale Castle, will be completed about June 1, Edward rented the Austrian castle last fall for $600 a month.

Private Manufacture Of Armaments Allowed By British Decision

Necessities of Imperial Defence Require Peacetime Collaboration of Gover nment And Private Industry in Supply of Arms and Munitions

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
CANADIAN PRESS STAFF WRITER

London, May 6.—(CP Cable)—The British government has decided against public ownership of private industry in the manufacture of munitions of war. In this the government accepts the finding of the recent royal commission. The commission found that abolition of the private arms industry in the United Kingdom and substitution therefore of a state monopoly might be practicable but was undesirable.

"We are of the opinion," the commission held, "that the necessities of imperial defence cannot effectively be met in existing conditions except by the maintenance in time of peace of a system of collaboration between the government and private industry of the country in the supply of arms and munitions."

Small Hope of Progress Seen

The government's attitude towards the commission's report was outlined in a White Paper issued today. On the question of international control of the arms trade in White Paper observes:

"It must unfortunately be recognized that present international conditions are such that hope of making forward initiation or reduction of armaments are not likely to be immediately realized.

"The main object of the government's foreign policy is to improve the international situation as to provide conditions where, in such progress would be possible. In the meantime they (the government) are not entirely convinced of the necessity of pressing forward with any isolated aspect of the armaments problem.

Research Workers Find Cause of Appendicitis

McGill Scientists Hope to Obtain Results by Laboratory Research That Will Eventually Prevent The Disease

MONTREAL, May 6 (CP)—Discovery of a method for producing appendicitis in rats and later transmitting them to the disease has been made in the Biochemistry Department of McGill University, Dr. Hans Selye, Assistant Professor of Biochemistry, announced today.

It is the first time appendicitis has been produced and controlled in any animal, he said, and the prevention in human beings may result if subsequent research upholds experiments so far carried out.

"Naturally we do not want to raise false hopes," the Viennese Professor explained. "But it never before has been possible to create the disease in an animal nor to directly cure it. We are still in the experimental stages, however, so we do not know definitely that this treatment may be applied to humans.

Appendicitis in rats was first produced by Dr. Selye last November after research he had been carrying on for about a year showed that certain tube animals contracted the disease when, under certain conditions, too much histamine, a physiological substance, was present.

The young biochemical and his assistants then discovered that histamine affected the appendix directly and apparently no other part of the body. Quantities of the substance were injected into the bloodstream of several rats and appendicitis was produced.

By administering antidotes of histamine to the rodents and allowing them to overcome mild attacks of appendicitis, Dr. Selye found it possible to render them immune.

He explained that still [illegible] scientifically too soon" to attempt to prevent or cure appendicitis in human beings by the same method but further experiments may lead the way to such an achievement.

The treatment has been tried on rabbits but there is not yet any definite results because experiments have not been completed.

Discovery of immunization of rats opened a new approach to study of this disease, Dr. Selye explained, and was no possible means of direct attack.

The discovery of appendicitis has been studied only after its removal from the body, the professor said.

Now appendicitis can be investigated as it occurs. "Our research will continue to keep up the work if we have successful," Dr. Selye added. "We cannot yet predict a cure for appendicitis in human beings but prevention of disease in humans is always the ultimate goal of medical experiment or research work."

RE-CONDITIONING JOBLESS VETERANS AIM OF TRAINING

Announcement is Made of Probational Training Plan

COOPERATION AIM

Three Conditions Govern Eligibility of Probationer

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—Scheme of probational training aimed at re-conditioning unemployed war veterans in the regular forces of which they were formerly accustomed, but which years of unemployment have made them "rusty" has been announced here today.

The scheme embraces both Canadian and Imperial ex-servicemen who served in a theatre of actual war.

For this purpose, Parliament $250,000 was appropriated for this year, with the terms of the disbursement being "to provide for the payment of allowances to veterans during a limited period of probational training under arrangements with prospective employers."

The project will be supervised by the War Veterans' Allowance Commission, jointly with the Employment Service of Canada.

The scheme contemplates co-operation between industrial employers and the [illegible] Administrative set up throughout Canada by the veterans assistance commission. In those smaller urban centres where such Reconstruction committees do not exist the work will be undertaken by the local branches of the Canadian Legion in conjunction with other incorporated ex-servicemen's organizations.

Prospective Employers

Before an unemployed veteran is placed in employment the prospective employer under the plan of which the employer will agree to pay some portion of the wage or salary of the position. The balance will be paid by the government up to a maximum of $30 a month. The training period may, as the individual case requires, extend from a few days to maximum of three months. The government's allowance will cease when the employer hires the veteran at a fair wage of salary.

Three conditions govern the eligibility of the probationer. He must be registered for employment with the National Employment Service of Canada or the Veterans' Bureau, considered by them fit for "employable," and he must require some technical or industrial training to fit him for employment with an industry or firm.

Seasonal Vacancy Starts

The training may be started when suitable vacancy is available where there is reasonable assurance of continued employment in the vacancy at a fair salary or wage.

ATTORNEY RENEWS PROBE OF DEATH

Slaying of William Desmond Taylor Again Before Courts

Los Angeles, May 6 (AP)—District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today a renewed investigation into the unsolved, 15-year-old slaying of Director William Desmond Taylor in his Hollywood home.

The prosecutor said Mary Miles Minter, motion picture star, and Charlotte Shelby, her mother, and Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, her sister, "have information" which they have refused to give, the County Grand Jury.

He declined to disclose more before disclosed." This included two diaries.

Mrs. Fillmore was questioned last night by Fitts, then placed under the protection of a woman investigator until the Grand Jury session start is over at 2 p.m. today.

Fitts said information would be given the Jury which was contained in [illegible] diaries of Mrs. Fillmore as part of a civil suit against her mother, Mrs. Minter is seeking to recover $46,000 which she claims Shelby took from a safe-deposit box in a downtown bank prior to August 8, 1936.

Mrs. Fillmore's lawyer said he had access to the box in joint tenancy with Shelby and that her action claims all of the money as her own.

Fitts declined to say whether the real name was William Daner Tanner, directed Miss Minter in pictures produced by Thomas H. Ince, was involved in the case.

He was shot in the back and killed Feb. 1, 1922.

RELEASED FROM CUSTODY

Windsor, Ont., May 6 (CP)—Clement Langlois, 36-year-old Windsor automobile worker, was released from custody today when he appeared in court on a vagrancy charge. Langlois was taken into custody after the death of Rebel Rickford April 27. Police said he was the girl's "boy friend."

Assistant Crown Attorney Rogers Dan Reaiers said there was not sufficient evidence to hold Langlois.

C. N. R. Flier Crashes Into 8 Runaway Cars At Springhill Junction

Fruitless Attempt Made by Shunting Engine to Overtake Them

6 ARE KILLED

Reckless Bravery That Just Failed to Accomplish Purpose

Springhill Junction, N.S., May 6 (CP)—Workers examining the wreckage of the engine and three coaches of the Montreal-Halifax Express of the Canadian National Railways reported today they had recovered two more bodies, bringing the death toll of last night's wreck to six.

The workers also reported they had recovered the charred body of Constable Camille Leblanc, police of Moncton, N.B., trapped in an express car and burned to death when the car plunged over a 40-foot embankment.

Bodies of two additional victims were discovered by searchers as they slowly worked their way into the tangled wreckage. Both bodies were so badly burned they were unrecognizable, the report was said.

The Canadian National Railways crack flyer, the Halifax-Montreal express, crashed head-on-into a train with eight loaded coal cars a mile and a half west of here last night, after a tiny shunting engine had made a fruitless attempt to overtake the runaway cars, which rolled out on the main line from the impetus of shunting operations.

Engineer Clarence Bauer of Moncton, N.B., was found under the wreckage after it had plunged down a 40-foot embankment, pulling the first three cars of the 15-car train with it. Searchers still struggled to find Express Messenger, Charles Mowatt, Moncton, whom they were positive perished in a flaming inferno.

TENSION EASED IN FIRE ZONE

Edmonton, May 6 (CP)—Tension eased over central Alberta's bush fire battle front today as hundreds of settlers, settlers and villagers counted their losses. Exact estimates were not available today but reports indicated a fire zone, however, placed damage as high as $500,000 since flames and blazes broke out Sunday and Monday.

Widespread rain last night and today, touching most of the affected area, brought relief to residents in the menace of smouldering stumps and heavy peat fires burning over a wide front.

Telegraph companies today said one line remained north to Athabaska, west to Edson, east to Vegreville, south to Wetaskiwin. It fell steadily near the village of Norbuck, seven-five miles south-east of Edmonton, almost wiped out yesterday by flames which sent scores of farmers fleeing to Wetfield, six miles to the south.

'Royal Weather' Predicted for Coronation Day

By Edwin S. Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, May 6.— (CP)—Amateur weather prophets have reached the cheery conclusion that the law of averages favors "royal weather" for the Coronation next Wednesday.

They base the forecast on the fact 1937 has so far produced one of the heaviest rainfalls on record, Meanwhile the populace hopes against hope that it will not have to do its Coronation cheering and singing in the rain.

But whatever the day may bring the great event will proceed according to schedule, though drizzling skies would rob the pageant of much of its splendor with brilliant uniforms hidden under great coats.

Weather speculators are optimistic. They have delved into past records and discovered that May 12 has usually been sunny. They point out that May 12 normally is one of the sunniest months of the year. Yet, their researches have convinced them that May 6 also is a treacherous month for temperature.

EASED SITUATION IN STRIKE ISSUE

Possible Business May Go Back to Work on Saturday

LONDON, May 6.—(CP)—Easing of Great Britain's industrial strife took place on two fronts today while leaders of both sides of the greatest issue cost of all, the threatened Coronation strike, pondered how Prime Minister Baldwin's plea for industrial peace.

Announcement was made the London bus conductors of London would not leave work at present to demand a 1 1-2 hour cut in their working day, at least was kept 25,000 bumen out of their transporting vehicles since last Saturday.

The truce was declared in the 12-county strike, that has lasted several weeks, tying up highway traffic in the 12 surrounding counties. It was decided at a meeting in London between officials of the Transport General Workers Union and Provincial delegates to reconsider the action the branches have empowered the Union to arrange for work to resume on Monday.

Efforts to avert the May 22 National coal strike were redoubled following the eloquent appeal of the Prime Minister—"My last appeal"—that he has made to industry in the House of Commons before his approaching retirement.

MIDNIGHT JAUNT HALTED

Windsor, Ont., May 6.—(CP)—Midnight jaunts in an enclosed automobile were brought to a halt early today as police arrested five Windsor youths and held them in custody on charges of auto theft.

Those being held at headquarters: Dennis Emery, 17; Leonard Cardinal 17; and Norman Cartier, 17, are being held at headquarters.

Detectives plan to question the youths in connection with other thefts.

HOLDOUTS CAPITULATE

Chemisford, Essex, May 6 (CP Cable)—Seventy holdouts, who refused to return to work under terms of the truce negotiated in the southern counties bus strike, capitulated this morning and returned to work on the same conditions as existed prior to the start of the strike April 1.

Present 70 Canadian Women To Their Majesties Tonight

Buckingham Palace Scene of Royal Court

DOMINION VISITORS

London, May 6 (CP) — Seventy Canadian women will be presented to the king and queen at Buckingham Palace tonight.

The first court of the season was held last night, but was confined to a few from the United States. Tonight visitors from the Dominions and colonies.

Mrs. Vincent Massey, wife of the Canadian High Commissioner, will present most of the Canadian women. Three Canadian mothers, who have already been presented, will attend to introduce their daughters. They are Mrs. Leonard Tilley of New Brunswick and Mrs. Douglas Cameron and Mrs. Jonathon Rogers of Vancouver.

A second batch of 35 Canadians will be presented at the court to be held July 1.

Garment Strike in Montreal Settled

Montreal, May 6 (CP)—Settlement was reached early today ending the Montreal cloak and suit manufacturing strike, three weeks exactly from its start.

A five-hour meeting between representatives of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the Montreal Dress Manufacturers' Association resulted in the agreement to end the dispute that closed down 200 of the International Union as its main point.

Details of the agreement were not announced, but spokesmen said a collective contract covering the settlement would be drawn today. The 2,500 women strikers, they said, would be at work by tomorrow afternoon as well as cutters in the affected shops who walked out in July 1.

LONE GUNMAN SECURES $15

Robs Proprietor of Jerseyville Store at Late Hour

Hamilton, May 6—(CP)—Armed with a revolver and a knife, and clad with a black cloth, a lone gunman walked into the store of Roy Black, Jerseyville, at 11 p.m. and stole $15.

Clarence Black, son of the proprietor, had just said goodnight to six customers and after cleaning the money from the till and depositing it in his pocket turned to see the bandit standing with a revolver in him.

"Stick 'em up Buddy, I need the money," said the gunman and without any hesitation Clarence turned the lad's pockets inside out and stood with his arms high in the air as the intruder backed to the door of the store and made his escape.

Black immediately put in a call for Constable Harry Bennett at Ancaster and 15 minutes later the police officer was at the scene of the hold-up. A search of surrounding roads failed to disclose any trace of the hold-up man.

WARNS OF DANGERS OF EARLY SWIMMING

Warning that early season excursions who dare the ice-cold waters of bay or river in an attempt to set a Spring record for bathing may be doing irreparable damage to their constitutions, opting for the sudden shock of immersion, it was pointed out by a local medico today.

"Those who are troubled in the least with heart disease, should never attempt early swimming, but wait until the water is sufficiently warm for comfort. They might give once and never come up."

Other complaints may follow in the wake of an early dipping in cold water, it was added.

In the Junior Class, Arthur Huff, Bloomfield, topped his classmates with a percentage of 77.7. Percy Tweed was in seventh position with 69.7.

LARCOMBE COACH CALLS PRACTICE

Harry Moore, coach of the Belleville Lacrosse Club, today announced the first practice of the Bellevile team, in the Central Ontario Lacrosse League, would be held on the College Field Campus on Friday evening. Efforts to revive lacrosse, Canada's National summer pastime, are being made throughout the entire Central Ontario district and concerted efforts this season and all players interested in playing this game are urged to attend the initial practice of the Belleville team. Lacrosse officials further announced today they had dispensed with their plans of erecting a grand stand box on Mary Street, but would cooperate with the Kemptville Fair Commission and erect their playing field in the Belleville Exhibition Park grounds. Efforts to have floodlight lacrosse are also being directed by the local executive.

STILL HALE AND HEARTY AT 83

Hale and hearty and still able to give graphic accounts of interesting events in his long career in the army, Sergeant-Major W. Aris one of the oldest residents of this district celebrated his eighty-third birthday on Monday.

EVERYTHING QUIET ON FIRE FRONT

Spring cleaning apparently is having a double effect this year. Not only are fires and soot-pots wearing a better appearance but many fire hazards have been removed. The annual clean-up of chimneys has reduced fire outbreaks from this source to a minimum. Belleville fire department officials report that only one call has been made since the last day of April.

PICKEREL SPAWN IS TAKEN AT NAPANEE

Pickerel spawn totalling 272 quarts taken from the Napanee River at Napanee, where spawning operations have been carried on for the past three weeks under the direction of Wm. H. LaRue of this city have been received by the Government Fish Hatchery this week for culture this week.

Trap nets have been used in the river to catch the fish and the nets are lifted daily, the fish stripped of their spawn and eggs rushed to the hatchery. Only a small run of pickerel in the river is reported this year believed due to the backwardness of the early Spring season and the cold water temperature of the lake. Fishing headwaters are believed to have spawned more freely than in the river at Deseronto instead of going further upstream it is reported by Mr. LaRue.

It is believed that approximately fifteen million eggs will be secured at the Napanee hatchery.

SURGICAL DRESSINGS DONATED TO V. O. N.

The Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 435 held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening in the Moose Auditorium with Senior Regent, Mrs. J. R. McGinnass, Reports were given and considerable business discussed, a donation of a year's supply of surgical dressings was voted to the V.O.N. instead of the customary social at the close of the evening, the time was spent working on the dressings and completing them for contribution from women of the Moose. A suggestion was made, that this work be carried out in commemoration of Mother's Day.

CHANCES OF JOB ON BRIDGE SMALL

"The chance for a job on the Trenton-Glenora International Bridge upon which construction will commence tomorrow, is very small," warned a local resident who journeyed to Lansdowne over the week-end to find that a waiting list of men for work has already been placed by numerous applicants.

"They've come from all over in hopes of getting a job there, but they're going to be disappointed, because I was told there wasn't a chance, that the men of that district would be given first choice, anyhow."

ALASKA OATS TO BE GROWN IN DISTRICT

Alaska oats, the ninety day crop, will be one of the chief harvests in the rural areas of this section this year, it is indicated by the huge amount of seed grain now being sold by local and district seedsmen.

"We've never had such a run on this gain as we are having at the present time," declared a local supply man. "Farmers have learned their lesson of drought, dry weather and other factors mitigating against successful crops well within the past few years. Most of them are planning Alaska because it's a quick crop and more likely to give better results," stated James Bonne of adjacent district finds.

LUSH PASTURAGE IS DUE TO WARM RAINS

Warmth and moisture of the past few days has resulted in a large proportion of the pasture lands turning into leaf and full blades of green which have appeared almost overnight are promised within the next few days. Beautiful velvety green leaves, the characteristic of other growing things in the city and district have been other results of the warm rains.

BUILDING RUSHED IN MONTH OF MAY

The month of May long regarded as the building months as a "construction month" may set a new record for building in this city if is indicated that up to the present date two new building permits have been issued by the office of the city engineer, and three new applications have been received.

Permits so far have been issued to Anna Downing, 180 George Street, alterations to home, estimated cost $1,800 and a one-storey garage to Mrs. Stewart, 16 Mast Mora Street, unestimated.

Applications have been made for the construction of an addition over the boiler room entrance at the Collegiate Institute, by the Board of Education; installation of a new store front for Eaton and Hagerman, Front street, and the consution of a bungalow by Mr. Allison, 90 Dundas Street East.

FINE IS IMPOSED FOR ILLEGAL FISHING

Two Woodville residents, Prince Edward County, were convicted of fishing with nets and without a government licence, when they appeared before Magistrate Birdsall in Picton Police Court yesterday. They also were found guilty of the theft of fish from hoop nets and were sentenced to serve ten days in the Belleville Jail or to pay the payment of the fine imposed under the Game and Fishery Act.

Inspector Herb McCabe, chief Game Warden for this district, stated today that other charges were pending, relative to the theft of fish from commercial nets, these robberies being reported to have been committed by other offenders, other than the two convicted yesterday.

CATTLE SHIPPED FOR DAIRY PURPOSES

Purchased in the vicinity of Belleville and other parts of Hastings County eighty head of pure-bred and high grade Holstein cattle left for Glasgow, Scotland, this week in a shipment forwarded by Scott Brothers of Belleville.

The cattle were all tested by certified veterinary surgeons and are indicative of the splendid grade of cattle being raised in these parts. They will be used in Scotland for dairy purposes.

OPENING OF CAMP POSTPONED WEEK

Backwardness of the weather, the comparative absence of tourists and the fact that up to the present few, if any, requests for the facilities of the camp have been made by travellers resulted this week in the decision of Aldermen Harry Greenlaw to defer the official opening of the city tourist camp on East Dundas Street until one week from Friday of this week, or May 14th, it was announced today. The official opening on that date will be marked by the attendance of the Municipal Band with the first open air concert of the season, is is expected.

LOCAL RESIDENT GIVEN CERTIFICATE

In an announcement of the Radio Division of the Dominion Department of Marine, issued in the name of J. Godier, well known radiotrician of 21 Yeomans Street, this city is entitled to the fact of those who have been successful in passing their test of commercial proficiency. A certificate to this effect has been forwarded by the department.

POLICE BLOTTER

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, although Provincial Police today are investigating the theft of fish in the vicinity of Hawkin's township last night.

A minor motor accident happened at the intersection of Pinnacle St. and Victoria Ave. early last evening when a motor car being driven west on Victoria Ave. by George Parsons, 13 Ctraichan St., collided with a north-bound automobile, being driven along Pinnacle St. by Stanley O'Brien, 93 Chatham St. Both front cars of the right side of Mr. O'Brien's car were badly damaged during the impact.

P. C. Thomson investigated and reported to his superiors, the fact, that O'Brien apparently failed to observe the stop street sign at the intersection. The matter is still under investigation by police officials today.

Last night's drop in the temperature is believed to be the cause of an increased number of transients seeking warm dry sleeping quarters at the police station, a total of 17 being accommodated.

EXAM SYSTEM CALLED WRONG

Trustee H. B. Fetterly of Belleville Expresses Views

Maintaining that some professors of Universities of Canada alone should be superannuated, and that the ability of these professors should be tested, a recommendation to this effect was passed at the annual meeting of the Ontario Public School Boards of Ontario held in Toronto yesterday.

The recommendation contains the request that the manner in which examinations are conducted in the Province should be examined and that the results should be used for own entrance examinations in order, that the necessity of entrance testing would be limited at the start, and not be plucked in their first and second years.

Exception to the recommendation was voiced by Mr. H. B. Fetterley of this city, trustee of the local Board of Education who is standing for re-election as an official delegate from this city.

"The whole system of examinations is wrong," stated Mr. Fetterley. He stated that he could not vote for such a motion until the university changed its system of examinations.

"I think the Department of Education is right in basing the exams on the teacher", added Mr. Fetterley. "Examinations are always based on common sense questions and not test the full knowledge of the student. Students are more than about their subject can, by studying examination papers of past years, pass their tests.

FIRE MARSHAL BISHOP ISSUES STERN WARNING

The Department will take action till this practice is stopped," Fire Marshal Lionel Bishop of Toronto, who is on a tour of Eastern Ontario, stated today, in issuing a warning to car and truck drivers who leave their vehicles standing motors running, when refuelling their vehicles.

"Yesterday" Flier Marshal Bishop said: "I approached the driver of a transport whose motor was running while gasoline was being poured into the tank of his truck. I asked him why he left his motor running, and whether he knew he was liable to a fine of $100. He disclaimed any knowledge of the fine, but hurriedly shut off his motor, when he learned my identity. Motorists in general do not think of the risks they are taking when doing this, and the practice is steadily on the increase. It is particularly noticeable in Belleville and stern measures will be taken if the public does not adhere to the law".

Norfolk Ceremony Explained

London, May 6 (CP)—In an introduction to its series of articles in the official Coronation program, the Archbishop of Canterbury tries to task persons who may ask, "are not all these ancient rites and ceremonies out of place in this modern world?"

The question says the Archbishop "surely argues a singular lack of imagination—of that faculty which visualises the significance of history.

"It is no mere paradox to say that the very merit and meaning of these rites is precisely that they are in a sense 'out of date.' How could we have the stability and continuity of the national history be more impressively shown? But another sense also in the most truly—to use the common phrase—'up to date.'

Obituary

MISS HANNAH THOMPSON

Miss Hannah Thompson passed away this Thursday morning, May 6th, at her late residence, Cannifton Road. She had been in failing health for some time.

The late Miss Thompson was born in Ireland and when a child she came to Belleville with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thompson. Previous to her mother's maiden name was Miss Julia Hall. Practically all her life was passed in Belleville. In religion she was a member of Bridge Street Reformed Presbyterian Church and by all who knew her she was held in high esteem. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thompson and the late George Thompson were brothers of the late Miss Thompson.

Miss Lily Lowe, with whom she resided, is niece, and Mr. George Lowe, of Mirror, Alberta, is a nephew of the late Miss Thompson.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

MRS. ELIZABETH THRASHER

After being in failing health for about a year, Mrs. Elizabeth Thrasher, widow of John Gilbert Thrasher, passed away at her late residence, 112 Cannifton Road, on Wednesday afternoon, May 5th.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thrasher, who was in her 78th. year, was born in Thurlow Township, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter MacDonald. Nearly all her life was passed in Belleville and she was highly esteemed by all who knew her. In religion she was a member of the United Church.

Surviving her are two sons, George MacDonald, Thurlow Township, and James Thrasher of Belleville. Her husband passed away about a year ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

H. N. Society "At Home" A Most Enjoyable Affair

More Than 500 Attend And Enjoy Cards And Dancing

PRIZE WINNERS

A flag-draped platform with the brilliant red, white and blue of numerous Union Jacks excelgive a framed photograph of His Majesty King George VI, provided a fitting coronation setting for the "Coronation At Home" given by the Holy Name Society of the Parish of St. Michael to five hundred members and guests in St. Michael's Academy Tuesday night.

Not only did the conventional black and white of the members of Bud Haines and his Commodore Orchestra afford a vivid contrast to the patriotic background of the stage, but the whole was enhanced by colored spotlights which hung in festoons across the spacious auditorium. The gayly colored dresses of the ladies added a further touch of color as they were and interwove in a kaleidoscopic pattern to the rhythms of the dance.

There was at all times a lagging moment from the time the first cards dropped on the many tables in play until the majestic notes of the National Anthem which seemed to have a fuller, pleasanter tone last night, announced the finis to one of the most enjoyable events of this nature held in the city so far.

Under the capable jurisdiction of Messrs. Maurice Callaghan and Jack McVeigh, ten tables of bridge and twenty-five tables of euchre got under way at the appointed time. Play continued until eleven o'clock when a delicious luncheon was served to the guests.

Special Organization

Splendid organization and cooperation of the various committees in charge kept events moving along in a well-ordered manner. Dancers swept on the floor as soon as luncheon was finished and indulged in their favourite pastime until the stroke of midnight when the various prize-winners were announced and the prizes presented.

The various prize-winners were: Euchre—Ladies' first, Mrs. Moran; second, Mrs. Chas. Doran; third, Mrs. P. Thurlton; fourth, Mrs. L. Adamson. Gentlemen's first, Al Parry; second, George Miller; third Mr. A. Parrell; fourth, W. Holland.

Bridge—Ladies' first, Mrs. A. B. Collins; second, Mrs. Daly. Gentlemen's first, Leo Flagler; second, Joseph Wilson.

Door prizes—Ladies, ticket No. 1272, Miss Margaret Houle; Gentlemen, ticket No. 1530, Mr. T. Donnelly.

In keeping with the decoration motif, a true Coronation spirit seemed to permeate the affair which evidenced itself in the keen enjoyment shown by the guests, both old and young when dancing was resumed until an early hr. in the morning.

Chairmen of the various committees under General Chairman Ed McQuaid, which were mainly responsible for the success of the "At Home" were: Bridge—Jack McVeigh; Euchre—Maurice Callaghan; Dancing—Jack Darlington; Refreshments—Don Chappell; Decorations—Morrell, A. Dutton; Advertising—J. Murphy.

MELVILLE

Melville—Mrs. Chas. Kinnear and Gladys spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. C. Hardy.

Messrs J. Rood and Jas. Wickson were at Wellington on Wednesday.

Keith Young, 3 1-2 year-old son of Mr. Gen. Young met with a painful accident on Thursday morning while quietly playing, when he suffered a severe cut on his forehead. He was immediately rushed to the office of Dr. R. Davies, Wellington where six stitches were required to close the wound. At time of writing Keith is recovering rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Ferguson spent Friday afternoon in Belleville.

Mrs. Warner Wood spent a few days last week with her daughter Mrs. Don Matthews, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Marpetoet and Chas. and Ralph Marpetoet spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Colin Hardy.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Carley have returned home after a few days spent with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Reddick, Yrrexville.

Recent callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Young were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Young, Trenton; Mrs. Jason Tice, Hamilton; Mr. Finley Young, Saginaw, Michigan, and Mr. Hiram Young, Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Root and boys were Monday evening guests of Messrs S. and T. Kinnear and Miss Maggie Kinnear.

WEST LAKE

West Lake—The W.M.S. meeting will be held this week on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mesdames Cunningham and Blakely.

Mrs. Fred Hook, who underwent an operation for appendicitis, in Prince Edward County Hospital is expected to return home at the end of the week. Mrs. George Rutter has been caring for baby Donnie during his mother's absence.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Mansid and Betty attended the funeral of his mother the late Mrs. Herman McQuaid, in Picton on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Rankin, accompanied by Mrs. Hyatt and Barbara and Mrs. Haycock, motored to Belleville on Saturday to see Mr. Fred Haycock who is in Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Haycock is expected to be able to return home by the first of the week.

Miss Verna Keller has returned from Belleville and will assist Mr. A. J. Lake, "Whiting Tree Lodge" for the summer.

Mrs. Fred Haycock spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. White, and Mr. Jackson.

John Dalnard of Picton who had been employed by Mr. D. Maitland for the summer had the misfortune to injure one of his eyes quite badly and was taken to Picton Hospital, where an operation was performed, which was hoped to save the sight of the eye.

Mrs. Ryan has gone to spend the summer with her daughter Mrs. D. W. May and Mr. May, near Bloomfield, after being with Mr. and Mrs. McConnell for the winter months.

BAYSIDE

Bayside—A play entitled "Cheerio My Dearie" was presented at White's United Church on Tuesday evening by the Smithfield young people. The play was much enjoyed by the large number in attendance. The proceeds were twenty four dollars.

A large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Boulsted on Monday evening May 3rd, and presented them with a chair and a fern stand in token of their recent marriage.

On Tuesday evening, May 4th a large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Frost to present their daughter Helen with a miscellaneous shower. An address was read by Mrs. M. Bird to which Helen replied, thanking everyone to visit her in her new home in Belleville.

MALONE

Malone—Mr. and Mrs. Sgn Van. Alstyne, Kingston, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McCrimmon.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Delore called Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gawley last Sunday.

Mr. Gordon Dafoe was in Hamilton the latter part of last week attending the funeral of his uncle.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gawley and family, Belleville, spent Sunday in Malone.

Mrs. H. Weese is spending a few days in Belleville.

Mr. Sim Ellis is spending some time in Marmora and Madoc.

Messrs W. D. Hickle and Walter Gawley spent last Monday fishing.

Ladies' Aid was held last Thursday afternoon with nine members present. A quilt was finished for a Frankford Woman and a discussion was held on the plans for a coronation entertainment. The minutes were read and roll call given. The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem and Benediction repeated.

Mr. Marvin Dafoe is very busy these days delivering orders in this vicinity which of course is something new here. Malone will soon be up to the minute as well as her neighboring towns.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Gawley and family spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weese.

Mr. J. M. DaFoe, Frankford, was in town last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gawley and sons spent Saturday evening in Madoc, Mr. H. Gawley returned home with them.

Mr. Fred Boulter opened a calcium quarry on what is known as the Malone commons. Two samples have been shipped and if satisfactory, operations will be continued and a number of local men will be employed.

This past winter has been a bad one for "colds" and other weakening illnesses. Get yourself in shape for spring. Keep in mind that "spring fever" is usually the tag-end of a winter of sluggishness.

Give your system a gentle spring cleaning with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Eaten regularly, this food corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs at least twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. In severe cases, with each meal.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into recipes. Isn't this food better than dosing yourself with pills and drugs?

Buy a package of ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, and put spring in your step this spring. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

W. R. MORTON, PUBLISHER

THE PRINCESS'S CROWN

"Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown" is a phrase coined many years ago and since that day it has been proven truth. Kingship imposes heavy responsibilities even in these modern days. Thrones and crowns have been swept away in this momentous twentieth century and the times lay untold burdens on those rulers who remain.

But there are some who wear crowns and are not kings and queens. There are the two British Princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. Margaret Rose is too young to have a very real appreciation of what is to be doing on May 12th at the coronation and will wear a crown, which will rest lightly on the little flaxen-haired daughter of His Gracious Majesty King George. Her head will rest easily no doubt, even if she does not understand why she must don the unusual headdress and she would perhaps be happier without it.

With Princess Elizabeth, now eleven years old, the wearing of the crown which has been made for her to wear at the time of the coronation of her parents, it is quite different. She knows enough of history of her native land to realize quite a bit about crowns, rulers and princes and princesses and it will be strange if she does not enjoy the event far more than any other person, even her young sister, whose training has not reached the stage when she realizes what a crown means. Princess Elizabeth has been shown in countless pictures and there is in them such a spirit of open-hearted delight of the child indicated in these that no one has any doubt that she will be the happiest person in the vast abbey church of Westminster next Wednesday. She will wear a long trailing robe of purple velvet and ermine and look like a princess of olden days. But she will be the delighted modern child. She has shown herself to be of the type which thrills with expectancy and one can imagine the countless questions she is asking her parents and those who surround her. It will be herself that will be living out a fairy-tale of old romance, as all children do as they read books of stories of the days in the past. She will be a reality with a real coronet, she will be attended and she will live in the realm of fact and imagination.

Some day she will probably come to the throne. But long before that day, will come the inevitable growth of knowledge and experience of life which will take some of the romance out of that fairy-tale. She will have learned sympathy with the throbbing heart of humanity, will know her imperial responsibilities and the day of the little fairylike princess will at that time appear far away.

Light as is the crown, it has borne down on many a head. In the modern kingship the crown is a symbol the adult knows what it means. But for the little princess still short of her teens to whom fact and imagination are one, it will be a never-to-be-forgotten day.

FROM PETTICOAT LANE

Pictures from holiday London show glimpses of East Side and West Side, typical of all around the town. West Side was Buckingham Palace, with the coronation coach staging one of its rehearsal trips. East Side was Petticoat Lane, which is a street in Whitechapel, the Jewish district of London. In the matter of Union Jacks and loyal mottoes Petticoat Lane had it all over Buckingham Palace.

But that was not the chief contribution from Whitechapel. More than flags and pageantry and ancient symbolism is the name itself—Petticoat Lane. In such street and place names is the authentic smell of Old England of very long ago—Petticoat Lane and Cheapside and Strand and Poultry and Bishopsgate Without. Not the least of the charm is the origin of such names. It is full of traps. The Strand was really the strand or bank of the Thames, and Poultry was the street of the poulterers about five hundred years ago. But they say that Rotten Row in Hyde Park was route de roi, where the King went riding. So there is no telling whether on Petticoat Lane they really sold petticoats once upon a time or whether it is a philologist's tid-bit. —New York Times.

A very honest man and a very good understanding may be deceived by a knave. —Junius.

A knave thinks himself a fool all the time he is not making a fool of some other person.—Hazlitt.

MEMORY

I wonder, in the days to come,
In winter's withered bourn,
If we will sometimes dream of this—
The Southland fair with flowers;
When burdened by the heavy weight
Of all the passing years,
Will memory of our sojourn here
Relieve the eyes of tears?

Oh yes, we'll keep a vision rare
When ageing eyes grow dim,
A vision of the Southland fair
When days are dark and grim;
We'll feel again the warm sunshine,
We'll hear the mocking-bird,
And list the music of the pines
By southern breezes stirred.

For memory is a precious gift
That gilds the fleeting years,
It spreads a glamor o'er the past
Conceding toils and tears.

St. Petersburg, Florida.

BELL ON A BANK DOOR, suggesting the invitation "Ring the Bell and Walk in", an electric bell is at that. Next thing we know the banks will be sporting WELCOME mats at the door. Surely times have changed since the glass-eyed banker died. Banks hereafter may be banques and if a bank is a banque why not serve tea and call it banquet?

WOMEN OVER FORTY ARE SAID TO SPEAK KINDLY OF MRS. WALLIS SIMPSON, just permanently separated from her second husband by process of English law. Young women are not so friendly, it is said. For women over forty she is a bright and shining beacon crying out the glad tidings that perhaps, after all, LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY.

"GONE WITH THE WIND" WON THE PULITZER PRIZE—a surprise to many people but to the author, Margaret Mitchell, (Mrs. John R. Marsh) most of all. Said she: "I'm astounded, I'm overwhelmed". Margaret Mitchell's first book, and probably her last, which took ten years of her time from household duties to write has sold over one and a half million copies, to her great surprise, and motion picture rights have been sold for a large sum. With the famed Pulitzer prize goes $1,000 in cash, chicken feed to the author now that she is a "best seller" and soon to be a Hollywood hit. Fame is an elusive jade and chooses to alight in strange places, but it can be freely conceded that "Gone With the Wind" is the best book published of the United States Civil War from the standpoint of the South. All the "Best Seller" Civil War books heretofore have glorified the North and belittle the chivalry and courage of the South, and it is a splendid tribute to the fairness of the North that even with the virulent hate expressed in the book against the North and all that pertained to it the folks north of the Mason and Dixon line took "Gone With the Wind" to their hearts and even joined in the chorus of "Those Damned Yankees" as the Northerners were called, all through the old South and in most parts of the new South as well—so don't ever call a Southerner a Yankee unless you want to fight.

BELLEVILLE HAS NEVER HAD A PERMANENT BATHING BEACH, and has envied Cobourg and other more fortunate neighbors who are favored with bathing beaches where the young folk can enjoy bathing without danger of drowning. Several citizens of Belleville caught the beach idea and determined to work for a bathing beach. All kinds of criticism and discouragements were met with even to having the site selected banned under a public health order. All obstacles have been swept away, now, and it is full speed ahead for Reg Moncrieff, original promoter, and his enthusiastic associates. The beach has been secured and improved and with some work done on it very year it will develope into a splendid asset for this city and without any added burden being placed upon the shoulders of the tax-payers. Let's all get behind these patriotic citizens who have been giving their time and work to make this pleasure park on the shores of the Bay of Quinte available for all citizens and an attraction for out-of-town visitors.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 6TH, 1917

On May 1st the price of coal in Belleville was advanced to $6.50 per ton.

A meeting of returned soldiers will be held at the Corby Building on the evening of the 10th inst. for the purpose of organizing a Belleville Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association.

The Jubilee Mission Circle in connection with Bridge Street Methodist Church held their annual meeting recently. The reports submitted showed that the year's work had been most successful. Following are the officers: Hon. President, Mrs. O'Flynn; President, Miss Sanders; First Vice President, Miss Alford; Rec. Sec., Miss Anderson; Cor. Sec., Miss Lasier; Tyasurer, Miss Campbell; Supt. Mite Boxes, Miss Clarke; Systematic Giving, Miss Craig.

Corp. Vernon H. Clarke and Bombardier Bullock, of this city, who are members of the Cobourg Heavy Battery were recipients of tuniahs pens last evening from the Epworth League in connection with Bridge Street Methodist Church, of which they were officers.

30 YEARS AGO

MAY 6TH, 1907

One of our oldest inhabitants says there was just such a spring as this one in the year 1846 when she came with her family to Belleville. There has not been one like it until this year, and here's hoping we get no more for another fifty-nine years.

Miss Cotter, Moira Street, has returned to the city.

Mr. W. A. D. Hardy has gone east on business.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint will shortly convert his fine residence on Charles Street, into a double house.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Chess Board the following officers were elected. President, D. H. Young, Prince Edward County; First Vice President, S. White, Sidney Township; Second Vice President, J. Miller, Grafton, Ont.; Secretary Treasurer, D. J. Fairfield, Belleville.

Bidding was spirited at the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board and the high price of 12 5-16 cents was reached; all cheese boarded were sold at the price.

Mr. Frank Dolan of this city is at Peterboro on business.

Miss Mary Falkiner, Toronto, is here on a visit to her mother, Mrs. N. B. Falkiner.

40 YEARS AGO

MAY 6TH, 1897

"Arbor Day" tomorrow.

The Forest and Stream Club will hold their annual meeting to-night.

The Board of Health met yesterday afternoon and reported the city to be in a good sanitary condition.

Mr. D. H. Sergeant, who has been car foreman at the G. T. R. here for fourteen years, left this morning to assume the position of foreman at the Grand Trunk Shops, Ont. This move is a deserved promotion, while a large circle of friends will miss his genial face, it is a pleasure to them to know that by the promotion is a recognition of his worth and will congratulate him upon his promotion. Mr. Sergeant will be greatly missed in Bridge Street Methodist Church where he was an active worker and a member of the Official Board. He has served also as a Sunday School teacher and President of the Epworth League of that church. Endeavor. The family will follow Mr. Sergeant in about two weeks' time.

50 YEARS AGO

MAY 6TH, 1887

A high school is to be built at Stirling.

Peterboro is getting to be a big place and is growing over its growth. It claims a population of over 10,000 souls and is assessed for $4,000,000.00.

The village of Marmora is growing so rapidly that there is talk of incorporating.

The work has commenced of excavating for the foundation for a handsome residence for Dr. Farley at the corner of Bridge and George Streets.

The ladies of John Street Presbyterian Church have formed what is known as the "Queen Association" with the object of raising funds, for the purchase of a pipe organ. A few years ago the cost of an organ was not allowed in this church.

The receipts at the Belleville post office during the month ending June 30th, 1886, were $14,-521.31 and $14,249.71 at the Belleville Station post office. The salaries at Belleville office amounted to $6,049.50 and $13.00 at the Station office. The number of money orders issued was 2,685 for $48,-618.90, the commission on which amounted to $236.34, and the amount of orders paid was $63,-365.53.

LONSDALE

Lonsdale—The cheese factory started on Monday morning, May 3rd, with the same cheese maker, Mr. Clare Brezin at the helm.

The farmers are making preparations to start their spring work in fact a few have already sown potatoes planted.

Service was held in Lonsdale Church on Sunday afternoon and a student officiated, Mr. Aston.

On Tuesday evening, the W. A. of Shannonville, put on a play in the hall here which was well attended, good music was furnished and the name of the play was "The Ladies' Beauty Parlour."

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Craig called on some friends on Tuesday and also attended the social evening in the hall here.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Diamond and son of Belleville visited friends in this vicinity on Sunday.

Mr. J. W. McCullough, Belleville, visited his brother one day lately.

Friends are pleased to see Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Waddingham are able to be out again after being ill for a length of time, also to know Mrs. Arthur Waddingham is slowly improving and it is hoped she will have a speedy recovery from now on.

A great many have been one the sick list.

Mr. Frank McCullough at present is quite poorly with La Grippe, friends hope he will soon gain in health.

Mr. J. M. McCullough spent one afternoon in Belleville recently and called on his brother and sister Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leavens at Corbyville.

Miss Bernice Dowdell and brother Mr. Wilbert Dowdell, also Mr. Jesse Archer of Melrose called on some friends in the community on Sunday.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCullough and sons who have so lately moved to Whitby that they are quite settled in their new home. Before going away quite a number of their friends and neighbors gathered and had a presentation and address which is as follows:

To Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCullough and sons:

This community sincerely regrets that it will lose your fine family.

Your family has been connected with many of its enterprises.

Your family has been friends with everyone. Your family has been always eager to welcome and has been eagerly welcomed by its many friends and neighbors; Your family has always possessed a cheery disposition which will long be remembered and its absence will be quickly perceived.

Yes, we will miss you but those regrets are overshadowed by our well wishes.

Our heartiest wishes are that the future will unfold much happiness, a kind future, a governing prosperity, and may the good fortune not only attend you the parents, but also the two sons.

Intermediate presentation was made of two walnut tables, one centre table and one corner table. May these presents serve to remind you of the people of this community and to recall their good wishes for your health and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the community, your friends and neighbors, T. T. Doyle, J. M. McCullough.

HILLIER 3RD.

3rd of Hillier—A young son has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burris, Consecon Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Benway and family spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Camberlain of Pleasant Bay.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Ernest Terry was held at Christ Church, Hillier on May 1st. The family have the sympathy of the community in their loss of a kind and loving wife and mother.

Several from this street attended the kitchen shower on Monday night of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith (nee Edna Dafoe) at the town hall, Hillier.

The women folk are all busy cleaning house these days.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hoole and boys of Consecon Lake, spent Friday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benway.

The men that gather up the scrap iron are busy these days. Several trucks seem to be on the go most of the time.

Mr. C. B. Clapp of Hillier is at the "Orchard" this week.

HUFF'S ISLAND

Huff's Island—Miss Anita Redner spent the week-end with her grand parents Mr. and Mrs. W. Huff.

Miss Mildred Hall attended a meeting of the Girls' Work Club at Victoria one day recently.

Mr. Douglas Black spent Sunday with Mr. Louis Wight, Wellington.

STIRLING

FINAL MEETING OF PRESBYTERY AT THOMASBURG

Pastoral Changes Are Confirmed Before Conference Moots in June

SELECT CANDIDATE

Stirling Baseball Club Elects Officers For Town League

Stirling, May 6 (Special)— The final meeting of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada before the conference was held in Thomasburg United Church on Tuesday May 4th. Rev. W. R. Merrick of Cannifton, chairman of the Presbytery was in charge of the proceedings and nearly one hundred ministers and laymen of the district were present. Pastoral changes to become effective after the conference convenes include the following exchanges of pulpits: Rev. W. D. Craig, B.A., of Roblin, will go to Shannonville; Rev. R. W. Harding of Bancroft to Springbrook; Rev. J. A. Plant, of Bayside, to Norham, and Rev. J. W. Hall, of Norham to Bayside charge. Following are the requests received from several ministers for pastoral changes. Rev. P. T. Gardner of Cherry Valley; Rev. J. C. Lowe of Consecon; Rev. C. J. Smith of Brighwater. Ministers of the Presbytery, who are slated for superannuation include Rev. W. H. Foley of Springbrook, Rev. W. H. Clark of Shannonville, Rev. W. F. Keough of Belleville and Rev. Edwin Smith of Milford. The usual interesting features of the sessions were the address by several of the veteran ministers of the Gospel who related their unusual experiences in their work.

Ordained in June

Mr. Wm. Sunter (recently transferred from the Newfoundland Presbytery will be ordained to the ministery at the conference to be held in June. Student ministers of the Belleville Presbytery include Mr. Grant McKitrick who left recently for the Mission Fields of Western Canada for summer work; Mr. Matheson of Stirling, and Mr. J. A. Turner who at the present time is taking his courses at Durham-University in Durham, England, will return to Canada for his course in theology and ordination.

The Belleville Presbytery will recommend and nominate Rev. Maxwell Allen of Pembroke for president of the Bay of Quinte conference for 1937.

The names of Rev. James Semple of Belleville and Mr. W. S. Gordon of Tweed appeared as nominees for the Settlement Committee of the Bay of Quinte conference.

Rev. W. F. Fletcher was chosen as chairman of the Belleville Presbytery for the year 1937 his duties in that capacity to commence on the 30th of June. Other prominent churchmen of the district who will be present at the conference in an official capacity are Messrs. Ackerman, Cook and Kerr of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville; Mr. R. J. Smith of Dundas Street Church; G. T. Woodley and James Hodgins of Holloway St. church and Mr. G. F. Lent of Tabernacle Church. Mr. Hector Wood of Ivanhoe; Mr. Ben Bleecker, Foxboro; Mr. K. W. Babbitt, Marmora; Mr. C. Hall, Plainfield; Mr. F. Clark, Point Anne; C. U. Heath, Bawden; Mr. T. L. Pringle, Shannonville; Mr. Arthur Bunnett, Sidney; Mr. Robt. Mumby, Springbrook; Messrs. H. C. Martin and J. B. Thompson, Stirling; Mr. Blake Ketcheson, West Huntingdon.

W.M.S. Report Received

During the afternoon session an interesting report of the activities of the Belleville Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society was presented by Mrs. W. S. Gordon, During the Laymen's hour two fine addresses were given by Messrs. H. E. Hulls of Stirling and Percy Holland of Madoc, who spoke on the subject of "Adult Education". Rev. Bert Howard of Albert College also spoke during this period.

Another recommendation placed on record to be presented at conference was for placing Deaconess at large in the northern area of the Kingston and Belleville Presbytery to work with both bodies and the W.M.S.

A splendid dinner was served to the visiting clergymen and laymen by the ladies of the church in the I.O.O.F. hall, and the next meeting of the Presbytery will take place next fall in Tweed.

Baseball League Organized in Stirling

An enthusiastic group of baseball players and fans gathered at the Municipal Hall on Wednesday evening for a meeting held for the purpose of definitely organizing a town league. Constructive discussion was entered into by the majority of those present and the outlook for the formation of three local baseball teams to compete in scheduled games seemed very bright. The election of officers resulted in the following group of men being selected to guide the destiny of the league:

President: Mr. Chas. Draoup.
Vice-President: Mr. Sid Williams.
Secretary: Robt. Jones.
Treasurer: James Ward.

The managers of the teams to compete in the schedule which is to be drawn up at a later meeting will be Messrs. Frank Butler, Sid Williams and Gordon Bailey.

The management committee will include the executive and the managers of each team. Mr. H. Moore was selected as coach for the players, and the primary object in the formation of the league is to stimulate interest in the sport and develop some good local talent in baseball.

CHILDREN love the "Snap, Crackle, Pop" of Kellogg's Rice Krispies in milk or cream. First they listen. Then they eat.

'A ready-to-serve rice cereal, extra delicious with fruit or honey added. Easy to digest. And there's nothing crisper under the sun!

At grocers everywhere. Served by restaurants and hotels. A Mother Goose story panel on every package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Services for April: Rev. Bishop Marshall.

FOXBORO

Foxboro, May 6—The Young People held their regular meeting on Monday evening with a good attendance. After the usual worship service the topic was led by Miss Phyllis Defoe and a solo by Mrs. C. Gerow. Miss Kay Kirkham gave a reading and Mr. L. Wilson furnished some comic relief. The scripture was read by Miss Marion Daniels, after which an interesting contest was held between Miss Helen Davis and the current events were given by the Misses Marjorie Gerow and Doris Defoe. As this was the last meeting until fall, plans were made to retain the winning side via leaders, Misses Doris Wilson and Helen Davis. The Meeting closed in the usual way.

Mr. and Mrs. Oakley Gough and family of Stirling visited at Mr. Frank Wilson's over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Howard were Sunday evening tea hour guests at Mr. H. Howard's.

Mrs. Fred Prindle and son of Plainfield is spending a few days in the village.

Mrs. John Eggleton is improving the appearance of her home with a new roof.

We have been enjoying wonderful weather for May and the warm sun and gentle rains are causing a rapid growth of grass, bulbs, etc.

3RD SIDNEY

The Busy Bee Mission Band took the service at Alders on Sunday, it being the special tenth anniversary service. The superintendent Mr. Edgar Ray presided. Appropriate songs were sung between the readings. Leaders of the Band during the past ten years assisted in the program, being Mrs. Fred Mumby, Mrs. Bunnett and Mrs. Cyril Mackenzie. Recitations were given by Helen Ketcheson, Gordon Grills, Arnold Ketcheson and Florence Ketcheson. Misses Marion and Marjorie Allan sang a duet, also the Misses Emma and Dorothy Ray. There was a song by the Mission Band, Ella Card was asked to tell how the money given was spent. In a very interesting manner she told of work in the Japanese and Chinese kindergartens in Vancouver and among the non-English Saxon children in Winnipeg. Most of these children are born in Canada and are British subjects and they carry the Gospel story home to their parents who are willing to hear them taught the Bible. An inclusive and offering of Band members here bring this pleasure to these people who are children of the same Heavenly Father.

At this time, Mrs. Spafford was given the present Life Certificates that had been donated by Mrs. Frank Grills. Baby Band certificates to little Lorna May Ray and Gerald Kenneth Leslie and a Mission Band life certificate to Gordon Carman Grills. Mrs. Fred Mooo, the superintendent of the Band when first organized, read the minutes of the first meeting ten years ago with the following list of officers appointed at that time: Superintendent, Mrs. Fred Moon; Assistant, Mrs. C. Mackinnon; Secretary-Treas., Gertie Innes; 2nd Vice-Pres, Marjorie Kells; Treas., Frances Ketcheson; Cor. Sec., Ella Ray; Treas., Murney Jeffrey; Organist, Assistant, Organist, Ethel Duffin; Pianist, Ella Wheeler.

At the close of the Sunday School on Sunday, Miss Edith Hogle presented a spray object lesson which was most interesting and appealed to both young and old. Mrs. Parry Hamilton sang a solo which was much appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Adams attended the dedication service at Wesley Church on Sunday afternoon.

Miss May Hubble, of Belleville was a Sunday guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. Westover.

Miss Fratzow (Hinchliffe of Toronto spent the week-end with her father, Mr. T. A. Hinchliffe.

Quite a number from this line attended the shower given for Mr. and Mrs. Ray Palmer on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. F. Wellman.

Mrs. Harley Hubble spent last Thursday with Mrs. John Orr.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Caughey and Earl, and Mrs. Caughey, Sr., visited Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Adams recently.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mrs. Everett Hubble and Mrs. Stanley Spafford, and Ilva, returned to their homes on Saturday after attending the triennial meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch of the Women's Missionary Society held in Ameliasburgh last week.

Sidney Cheese and Butter Co. with Mr. Wm. Wheeler as cheesemaker, has opened for another season and Earl is now running every day.

Aikens Young People's Society were privileged at their weekly meeting on Tuesday in having missionaries from the Sudan Mission in Toronto, who gave splendid lectures and pictures of the work being done.

An all-day meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Tom Irwin when quilts were quilted and the regular meeting held in the afternoon.

This pleasant, Charis all-in-one presents such exclusive features as: Separate, adjustable hip control; Hand-Easy boning; comfortable, adjustable shoulder straps; Long skirt for smooth dress lines; Best section cut is approved, 'divided-split' manner.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

The engagement is announced of Helen Victoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. Travis, Albert Street, to James Logan Hannah of North Bay, only son of Mrs. Catherine Hannah and the late Mr. M. Hannah of Elmvale, Ontario. The marriage to take place early in June. mt-1t

Miss Dorothy Zufelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Zufelt, 9 Octavia Street, has successfully passed her third year in Arts at Queens University.

Miss Blanche Coulter, nurse-in-training at Hamilton General Hospital is spending her holidays at her home, 260 Ann Street.

Miss Mary Davidson and Miss Ruth Howard, both of this city, were successful in passing their year at Queens University.

Miss Marion Fairbairn, Charles Street, left today for New York City where she will spend a week's holiday.

The home of Mrs. William Hart at 67 Burden Street, was the scene of a happy occasion yesterday afternoon when members of the "Goodfellows" Ladies Bowling Team of the Y.M.C.A., presented Mrs. Jack Morris, a member of the club with a silver bon-d'ouvre dish on the eve of her departure for her new home in Ottawa. The presentation was made by Mrs. S. Cherrie team captain, who expressed the regret of the club in losing the valuable services of Mrs. Morris. While the element of surprise was complete Mrs. Morris made a brief reply in appreciation of the beautiful gift. Refreshments were served at the close of the affair by Mrs. Hart, Members of the team who were present were Mrs. Frank Leslie, Mrs. Jack Shaw, Mrs. Wm. Hart, Mrs. Percy Kerr, Mrs. Fred Jobson and Mrs. (Captain) S. Cherrie.

REJOINS MRS. SIMPSON

The Duke of Windsor, former ruler of Britain, shown in this red, to picture after he had left the Orient Express at Vernouill, France, and hurried to the waiting automobile which carried him to Monte France, where Mrs. Wallis Simpson awaited him. The reunion took place at the 16th century castle of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bedeux shortly after Mrs. Simpson's divorce was made final at London.

AIRLINER COMES TO EARTH IN BLIZZARD —ALL SAFE

Thrilling chapter in aviation history goes into the record books as two transport aeroplanes safely landed in a blizzard during a raging hailstorm at Cheyenne, Wyo. One of the airplanes, carrying two pilots and two passengers, was saved when two high school teachers at Sterling, Colo., intercepted its distress signal on an amateur radio set and aroused the town until 1,000 automobiles were gathered at the airport to furnish light for a landing. The other, shown above carrying nine passengers and a crew of three came to earth a mile from Cheyenne without the benefit of automobile lights.

"BIRD CAGE" LATEST AID TO ROYAL LADIES WEARING CORONETS

No more will Britain's royal ladies be perplexed over the problem of slipping, sliding coronets and crowns. For the forthcoming coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, Emile, the hairdresser, has devised a "bird-cage" device for the head. First a hard lurfed plait of hair is wound on the brow just behind the tiara. On this is placed the "birdcage" court arrangement made of muslin over wire. The cage is fixed on the tuft and the coronet is held in place with two hat pins fitted through holes in it. This series of pictures depicts the three steps in the new "non-skid" coronet.

Ruffing Signs Contract and Yankees Appear Cinch to Duplicate 1936 Performance

Defeat Tigers Twice in Row to Move Into Top Spot

Gas House Gang Smack Five Homers Against Bees

By SID FEDER

Associated Press Sports Writer

Even the most veteran viewer—with—alarm couldn't find a thing to worry about today for those New York Yankees.

Barring the vague possibility of a couple of broken legs or a club-wide all-down strike, which are about as likely as the Dodgers, chances of winning the National League pennant, there wasn't a dark cloud within shouting distance of the sturdiest pair of lungs.

On top of the return of their hitting power and the unusually early production of their supposedly question-mark pitching staff, the world champions were as full of cheer as a Christmas goose, even over the overnight signing of Charley the Man Ruffing, that No. one hurler last year.

The end of Charley the Red's persistent holdout left only one complete command of the diamond spotlight but it more than forced to attract with that "original spot-light, Dizzy the great Dean, who turned in his fourth victory of the year yesterday with a 13-1 win over Boston Bees.

Signs For $15,000

Ruffing's return, at a $15,000 salary, along with the fact that the Yanks are apparently out to duplicate their 1936 annihilation of second-place clubs, makes the outlook anything but rosy for seven other American League outfits.

They started their first western invasion three days ago in second place, a game back of the Tigers. Given an ad that they love best to crack, they walloped the Detroits twice in a row, turning in a 7-2 win yesterday, while the Canadians, George Selkirk, socking two homers, and Monte Pearson pooling an eight-hit, eight-plus performance, that dropped the Tigers into second place and pulled the whole squad to the top by a full game.

Although pitchers generally cause a dime-a-dozen on yesterday's big league program, Dizzy Dean and Ray Hamilton along with Pearson were notable exceptions. Dizzy had little trouble with the Spiders, and his second and shutout in his fourth straight victory by five Gas-House Gang homers.

Blanton of Pirates Tops

Blanton, top flinger of Pittsburgh Pirates' crack staff, fanned eight and allowed but four hits in pitching the Bucs to a 5-1 win over the Brooklyn Dodgers, their fourth in a row, to keep the Pittsburghers 1½ games in front of the National League.

New York Giants' pitching, in the person of Pat Freddy Fitzsimmons and Carl Hubbell, was given a thorough going-over by Cincinnati's Reds. Alex Kampouris clubbed two of four Giant homers and the roughhouse Reds won their second victory of the season, 8-5, over the Western-al League champions. Also in a homer-hamstringing mood were the Cubs, who beat the Phillies 17-4, to stretch their streak to five straight.

Outside of the Yanks-Tigers tie, do, the only other American League game was in Chicago, where the Athletics staged a six-run rally in the eighth to top the White Sox, 7-6. The Red Sox 5, Louis Browns and Washington-Cleveland Indians tilts were rained out.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

J. Dean, Cardinals —Fanned 11 and allowed six hits in 13-1 win over Bees.

Arky Vaughan, Pirates—His triple and three singles paced Bucs to 5-1 win over Dodgers.

George Selkirk, Yankees—Hit two homers, double and single and drove in four runs to whip Tigers 7-2.

Alex Kampouris, Reds—His two homers led way to a 8-5 victory over Giants.

Frank Demaree, Cubs—Drove in six runs with home run with bases loaded and single in 17-4 win over Phillies.

Chubby Dean and Bill Cissell, Athletics—Each drove in two runs to beat White Sox 7-6.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by GEO. E. WATKIN

The officers and members of the Club join with me in thanking The Ontario Intelligencer for this cosy corn again this year. It is the intention to publish everything of interest to our bowlers and would ask the members of the Club to help in this work.

Our membership drive is well under way and will far exceed our objective.

The weather in the past few days has Fred Harper smiling all over his face. Let us hope it keeps up.

I have an interesting story from one of our canvassers for new members. This is how the conversation was supposed to have taken place:

(Can.)—Bill we would like to have you come up and join us at the bowling club this year.

(Bill)—Well that might be a good idea you know I used to bowl before your time. As a matter of fact, once game I was in the water was four inches over the ice and it was all one could do to get the stone down the rink. I think I was playing Bob Wray at the time but it is so long ago I forget. Anyhow Bob was laying stone right on the button. They were one stone up and it was the last end. I just grabbed the stone sent it flying through the water. Took out Bob's stone and laid, shot and won the game.

(Can)—Getting a smell of Bill's breath—well you come on up we provide the tennis balls and rackets all you do is provide running shoes.

(Bill)—Well I will have a talk with the wife tonight and if she says "O.K." I'll be there.

(Can)—All right Bill, Badminton, Lawn Tennis anyone pat. See you on the 24th. Goodnight.

We are pleased to welcome Harry Ackerman back to the game. Watch him bore he has been bowling down south all winter.

If any of the members have any prospects for new members get in touch with Charlie Sulman as soon as possible. Our lists will soon be closed.

The Canadian Departmental Store will have a full team consisting of Harry Bryant, Mr. Sproule, Mr. McCrea and Mr. Correll.

I will publish a list of the new members as soon as the lists are complete.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Looks like Lou Ambers will be at least 12 to 5 over Tony Canzoneri tomorrow night in Brooklyn, the boss, like his pals the Dodgers, has passed out of the picture.

Tris Speaker should have got tough a couple of years earlier. . . . He's been what the boys call a hard-boiled egg for baseball players where those Buccos are roosting. . . . Lee Handley and Johnny Rizzo shot him surprised the Winnipeg punch. . . . If the Dodgers never see Pittsburgh again for the Pirates again it will be soon enough. . . . He got 13 hits off the Flatbush pitchers in six games.

They're really going to charge $100 tops for Bob Pastor and Bob Pastor is going to be worth it, too. . . . Promoter Tom Gallery has his press agents driving home the fact that those two fight out a century note for ringside seats can deduct $90 from their income tax because the show is for charity. . . . A certain New York fight manager may have his eye on Pastor but at Friday's meeting of the State Athletic Commission Chairman Harry Hanser didn't lose any time getting acquainted with the Dodger pitching ace. . . . Pete was rushed to the hill to greet him the first day he worked behind the bat and four the second.

Golf's Greatest Analyst Changed Teaching Method

Alex Morrison, Daily Ontario Intelligencer Feature Writer, Eliminated "Don'ts" From His Lessons

(By Central Press Canadian)

With fairways greening up again and golfers eager to banish during their early season practice, Alex Morrison, golf-dom's wisest teacher, steps back into the sport picture.

Probably the most widely read daily newspaper writer on the subject of the royal and ancient game, and raised by the style of professional and amateur players as the king of all coaches, Morrison long ago extended the personal instruction he which he devoted his career, to the printed page gathering on the way a continent-wide following of readers who profited by the value of fundamental principles in the teaching of many would-be golfers, and the devastating effect upon his own sind his pupils' play when the bogey of weakness was allowed to dominate.

Remember that no player on earth could remember the long creed of "don'ts" that old-time pros drilled into their pupils; that the creed hindered rather than helped the ambitious golfer. So he started out to change the system. First he analyzed the swing, the part of the golf game that he still considers the most vital of all movements, and from which he consistantly drills his pupils. He took it apart, found that ordinary golfers were the things that made a swing and proceed all accepted teaching accordingly. Golfers who practised under him were amazed at the improvement.

The system worked right through the golfing curriculum. Golfers began to learn that once Morrison taughe them what to do and how to do it, they just didn't have to know what not to do. And tenseness departed at once.

To his classes have flocked sons of the best (and some of the worst) players in America and without exception they have improved with his teaching. The demand for his services grew and Morrison finds farewell forever to a tournament career to teach the other fellow how to play.

Since then his job has increased tremendously; he has turned out books on the game that carry the stamp of approval of some of golf-dom's ace players; he has demonstrated his ability on stage and screen and radio and proved beyond doubt that his principles are sound. For the daily newspapers of America he has written hundreds of thousands of words that have made the golf day brighter for his readers.

This year he is back again still writing his easily understood columns for the average player and still handing out information that will help him normalize get (if at all) only from the very best professionals. The Ontario Intelligencer is happy to announce that starting tomorrow, Morrison's daily column, "Golf Facts, No. Theories," will appear regularly for the rest of the season.

LOU AMBERS DEFENDS TITLE FRIDAY NIGHT

(By Drew Middleton)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Lou Ambers, a sandy-haired Greek with the energy of a bumblebee and the persistency of a mosquito, fights Tony Canzoneri in defense of his lightweight title Friday night, but unless you read the papers carefully you'll miss his name.

Canzoneri, the grand little man of Mayhem, is taking most of the boos now, but along cauliflower ears they're picking Luigi—the man nothing can stop.

Lou's the same the hard way. Private Zivic broke his jaw when Lou was on his way up. Ambers won the fight. Scarpati died after Lou had knocked him out in the ring. Lou fought to benefit the family and kept on coming.

At last he got a shot at Canzoneri for the title. The master strategist of his day was no match, too strong for the youngster from Herkimer. So Lou went back to the draughty arenas of the small clubs. But they fought again and Ambers beat Canzoneri, the man he had idolized, and took the title.

Since his career has continued in the same manner. He lost terrible bouts to Eddie Cool and Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin. The boys started to call him a cheese champion. Then a month ago, he came fighting in the ring for 15 rounds, as a champion should, to gain respect. If not the decision against Pedro Montanes.

Selkirk Joined Wrong Club But With Right One Now

Yankee Outfielder From Canada Making Good

STARTS AS CATCHER

Detroit, May 6 (CP)— George Selkirk, the Hinterville, Ont., outfielder who hit two home runs, a double and a single in four times at bat to lead New York Yankees to an American League baseball game triumph over Detroit Tigers here yesterday, is probably the only man who ever joined the wrong ball club and made a success of it.

"But I'm on the right club now," Twinkletoes said with a big grin after the game.

Selkirk not only played for the wrong club in his professional debut several years ago but played a position he had never tried before. That was back when he was a lad of 17 around Rochester, N.Y. where his family moved from Hinterville when he was 12.

Selkirk had made quite a success as a sandlot amateur catcher and Rochester Red Wings of the International League signed him up. But no sooner signed than Manager Bill Mc. of the Eastern Shore League lured the Rochester management to rush them a good catcher, that great George is away he went to Crisfield and entered the dressing room.

Entered Wrong Room

Imagine his surprise when the manager asked him to play left field.

"After all I was a catcher," Selkirk said. "You couldn't blame me for wondering what I'd be doing in the outfield. It wasn't until after the game I discovered I'd entered the wrong dressing room. I was supposed to have reported to the Cristfield team playing against Cambridge. As it happened, the Cambridge club had a man playing an outfielder from Rochester. When I reported, they thought I was the man and put me in left field.

Selkirk played so well that first day he never went back to catching. That night the Cambridge management made a deal for him with Rochester.

FAVORITES HAVE LITTLE IN COMMON

War Admiral And Reaping -Reward Differ in Many Respects

Louisville, Ky., May 6—(AP)—Two horses, having been in common, held the spotlight today as the rapidly increasing Kentucky Derby crowd bestirred long and vociferously over the probable outcome of the $50,000 turf classic Wednesday Downs Saturday.

They pair were Samuel Riddle's War Admiral, red-hot favorite, and Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Reaping Reward, still the second choice despite his defeat in the derby 'trial.' Both are famous racehorses of other eligibles not, withstanding, they stack up as the horses to beat when the normally get off Saturday sends the score or so of three-year-old aces away from the barrier about 5:45 P. M. EDT.

Yet seldom have two horses differed more widely in disposition, racing mannerisms, size and mode of living.

War Admiral is so small he looks almost like a pony alongside Mrs. Mars' son. Reaping Reward, the famous daddy, Man O'War, the Riddle colt prefers runway faster than to get out in front and run his rivals into the ground.

PLAY OPENS ON NORTH SECTOR

60,000 Expected to File Into Grounds at Four Parks

(By Alan Randal)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Some 60,000 "fans" will move today from the heat to the ball parks today, abandoning their worst games of the thing as the International baseball league opened play on the annual opening with engagements at Toronto, Montreal, Buffalo and Rochester.

Maple Leaf Stadium on Toronto's lakefront expected the record-crowd when the Leafs tilt with the bottom-rung Baltimore Orioles.

Among those watching Dan Howley's "Kids" will be League Baseball Commissioner Baughmann, who last night spoke as a banquet in honor of the Leafs. Max Interest jockeyed when Howley's wonder youngsters won their first seven games last season.

At Buffalo the 1936 champion Bisons anticipated 18,000 customers as they faced Syracuse chiefs while at Montreal where Ronald retains Newark Bears, and at Rochester where Red Wings play Jersey City Giants, crowds of 5,000 were expected to move through the turnstiles.

Quite a bunch of the "hot officers" could postpone their first game of the season in Toronto and Montreal and the crowds would still be expected to turn out. Fans that saw the first International league games in the Canadian cities about the middle of April.

Only 2,000 climbed up on the Toronto Island park in 1936, the year the Queen City's first team defeat genders anyway later than to get out in front and run his rivals into the ground.

PLAYFAIR BROWN ENTERS PROTEST

Claims He Has Right to Services As Ease at Canadian Welterweight

Toronto, May 6—(CP)—Claiming priority to services of Gordon Wallace, Jack Corcoran, of the Canadian Welterweight Championship bout, Playfair Brown, promoter, has entered a protest for a special meeting of the Ontario Athletic Commission to restrain Jack Corcoran from staging the Wallace-Canadian Genovese bout here May 14th.

Wallace signed to defend his title in the Playfair ring and was matched for the bout were submitted to the Ontario Athletic Commission. But Brown claims that he has first rights on Wallace's title performances in Toronto. Canada and says Jack Allen, the champion's manager had no right to match his charge with Genovese.

"I have no claim on an overweight match," said Brown, "but I do think I'm within my rights when I ask for an investigation to determine if Allen can do business with somebody else when I had an original contract for Wallace's services in the east."

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

This evening George Pepper leaves Belleville on the first leg of his journey to compete in the Isle of Man world's championship motorcycle race in June. George will have all day Friday in Montreal and will sail aboard the Duchess of Bedford on Saturday morning and is scheduled to arrive at Liverpool on May 16th, just four weeks prior to the big motorcycle races. George shipped his new Excelsior machine to England something that is to be reconditioned by manufacturing officials. He also took along his Norton machine, which carried him into heights in the winning of the Canadian motorcycle championship and the same machine he rode while establishing a record at Daytona Beach. George will attend all three major events, the 250, 350 and 500 C. C. classes, but still has to procure a 350 class machine, when he arrives in England.

Thanks to the generosity of many sport-minded local citizens, service clubs, and interested persons approximately $250.00 has been raised, and George will now be able to attend to the many details that are necessary to make his trip a success. The Belleville Intermediate baseball team will be cared for by the Canadian Legion, while other sub, sequent stops will be mailed to this office. George's final remark as he was wished him "Bon voyage and good luck" was about what he expected from a lad of his type, "If was swell of the citizens to help me make this trip and I'm going to try and not disappoint them."

The only thing I worry about is the finishing and finishing," apologized George. "Don't worry about that, give your best, that's all the citizens desire of you," we assured him.

It must be remembered that Pepper is competing against a field of the finest riders in the world and to reach as far as third in the Isle of Man race is an accomplishment in itself. We understand from authentic sources that any rider to finish in the first ten in any one event is recognized as being among the greatest riders in the business and to be so we wished him the best of luck and hope that he will be rewarded with the honor of being the first Belleville boy to win a championship.

Belleville baseball fans are interested in the first league game of the season between Belleville and Trenton on Tuesday night are appearing as top-notchers in the Maple Leaf Gardens tonight.

M. J. "Mike" Rodden, veteran sports writer and coach, has returned to his old love, the Hamilton Tigers. Mike will coach the Tigers this fall in the Interprovincial league. He was at the helm of the "Cats" from 1927 to 1931 for a five year stretch, when the Tigers won four group titles, and two Dominion championships. At the same time it was announced that Ross Trimble former plunging half of the Rainy River team will coach the Ottawa Rough Riders in 1937, replacing Billy Hughes who has retired.

The New York Boxing Commission made its first definite move towards the appearance of a Schmeling-Braddock bout in June when that body instructed the challenger, Max Schmeling to commence training and be in readiness for what now appears to be the "payday." Continued reports are to the effect that Braddock will meet the German boxer in June while Chicago late in June. It seems the Louisville Slugger has decided on ace in the sleeve. If Braddock fails to meet Schmeling, as per contract, the Kentucky State boxing officials will strip the champion, who has been defending his title and handing it from Maxie Baer, of his reaped laurels and titles. It's quite a contract, however, but everybody should be recognized, if they are to get anywhere in the fight business.

With Dizzy Dean hurling his fourth consecutive victory, the Yankees blasting the Tigers, and Red Ruffing at last filing his signature to a Yankee contract, things are beginning to take form in the big tent of baseball, but the weather continues to smile on Dan Howley's hopefuls for the big opening at Toronto today.

INJURED BY FALL

Victim of a broken arm suffered but a few weeks ago as the result of a heavy fall to her home, Mrs. Wm. Gaebel, of Bancroft, is again laid up at her home with a number of severe bruises received in a second fall this week.

Ellen gets Her Man

Ellen knew immediately what Deverout meant. Shame and doubt-less through the channels of gossip, or because Angus Mackay had confided in him. His agonizing moment knew of the threat which hung over the old factor. Through all his woe and misery Ellen realized that the task of rehabilitation she had set herself loomed as well nigh impossible. Therefore she seized upon Deverout's suggestion with unconscious eagerness.

FIFTH INSTALMENT

"I have thought of little else since learning about it," she said wearily, "I refuse to give up without a battle, but it seems almost beyond hope to think of averting it."

Deverout's cold eyes gleamed in open admiration. "You are very courageous, mam'selle. And generous. Deverout will be most happy to help you in any way possible. Now because I have been much through all the country and you have probably come back to it, it may be that I could give you information of many kinds, should you desire it. Ask me what you will. I promise that your confidence will not be abused."

Ellen looked at him seriously for a moment. She sensed nothing behind Deverout somewhere. The man did not take like the usual run of river-men. His brain was plainly keen. His tongue fluent.

"Very well," said Ellen presently. "In a case of this sort it is well to know one's enemies in their true light. My father feels that John Benham, the fur trader, is to blame for all his woes." Is it possible that one man can come into this district and in three years upset the reputation of an old, established post like Fort Ingonish?"

Deverout shrugged. "It would seem so, mam'selle. I know of no other free trader in your territory but John Benham."

"But how can he do it?" persisted Ellen. "He cannot afford to offer more in trade than can the Hudson Bay Company."

"True," nodded Deverout. "Yet perhaps, it is not how much he offers for his furs, but what he offers."

Ellen stared at him for a moment. "I do not understand," she said slowly.

"I forget, mam'selle," went on Deverout swiftly. "I forget that when you left this post four years ago, the old order still existed. But in four years many things may change, as you know. In many ways our Indian is a child, who has ideals that are strange, mam'selle, and which we cannot grasp. One of his weaknesses upon which the unscrupulous may trade. An Indian value more than mam'selle, but most of all he values—whisky."

Ellen's eyes widened. At last she saw. "Whisky", she murmured. "John Benham trades whisky for furs? But that is against the law. The Northwest Mounted Police will not permit selling whisky to the Indians."

Deverout laughed softly. "You forget, mam'selle. You forget that though they are a great organization, the red-coats are, after all, but men. They are few and the north country is measured in miles not square miles. They cannot be in all places at once. And if Benham is cunning, as we know he is, he can do much that the law cannot prove. And the law must have proof."

Deverout gave vent to another of his expressive shrugs. "What can we do without the law? And then also—what can we prove? We know, but we cannot prove—yet. Perhaps, later, this weapon may lie in our hands. And then—there is another thing."

"What is that?"

Deverout looked at Ellen steadily. "You must understand, mam'selle, that I do not like gossip. But in my desire to help your father and—I will speak of it. John Benham trades well with the Indians, not only because he is of their blood. He is one of them."

For some strange reason Ellen felt almost angrily at this accusation. The reaction was unconscious, yet none the less intense.

"Is this also something you know, but cannot prove?" she asked, and her manner was cold.

Deverout looked at her with inscrutable eyes. "Does it matter?" he asked answering question with question.

Ellen felt the hot blood rushing through her cheeks. Shame gripped her. Why had she flared so quickly in defence of a man towards whom all things pointed as being the cause of her father's misfortune; a man who stooped to the most dastardly of all tricks, bestializing and robbing the Indians through the medium of forbidden whisky?

"I wish merely to be fair," she stammered.

Ellen Mackay was crouched in the bow of a slender birch-bark canoe.

"You are admirable, mam'selle. You would be a gallant enemy in any battle. But this thing I know—and I repeat—you can furnish proof."

Ellen's truant impulse died hard. "Is it reasonable that he, being of their blood, would deliberately betray their trust and rob them for his own selfish gain?"

"Unreasonable?" said Deverout with a short, barking laugh. "Not to us, perhaps. But what is there which is reasonable to the half-breed? He has all the vices and none of the virtues of either side of his heritage. Perhaps in John Benham this is also true. The Indian in him schemes to satisfy the greed of his white ancestry. If you had known men as I have known them, mam'selle, you would not wonder at anything they do."

Ellen was silent for a long time. She knew Deverout was watching her closely. Grudgingly she gave in. "You must be right, Mr. Deverout. There is no discovery in which he could have stolen the trade from us in so short a time."

"For reason correctly, mam'selle," said Deverout, and it seemed as though there was an unconscious note of triumph in his voice. "I hope you will not think me rude, but just a gabbling old woman, but one who sincerely wishes to help your father and you. Facts, though unpleasant, are best faced squarely and unconcernedly. Instead if at any time I can be of further help to you, you have but to command."

"Thank you. You have already shown me a way out of my dilemma."

"May I presume to ask what that is?"

"Of course. It is to furnish proof to the law that John Benham is trading whisky to the tribes. He will then be removed quickly and for good."

Deverout seemed to hesitate. Something flashed in his eyes, which passed momentarily to show emotion for the first time. Then he caught the guard again. "I hesitate to warn you, mam'selle. But you must always remember that John Benham is fighting for high stakes. In a pinch he might become quite ruthless."

"I am not afraid," said Ellen quietly. "I, too, can be ruthless."

"That is true," nodded Deverout thoughtfully. "Well, duty calls, and the river trails are long. I will see you again, mam'selle—when I return."

Ellen suffered him to bow over her hand, though at the contact of his hard, calloused palm she could hardly repress a shiver. Strangest of all, perhaps, was the fact that she could not analyze that flurry of feeling. It might have been repugnance, or then again it might have been something else. There was no denying the magnetism and virility of this man. Then another strange happening occurred. Deverout swung his huge bulk through the doorway. Ellen caught a glimpse of old Moosac's wrinkled face just beyond, and Moosac was openly gnarling.

At sight of the Indian, Deverout seemed to hesitate, then with a swift, cold laugh he elbowed the old Chippewyan aside and swung off on his way. Ellen darted to the door. At sight of her Moosac shrank away also, and when she called to him he did not answer.

For a long time Ellen stood there, slowly furrows wrinkling her smooth brow. Distinctly she sensed some ominous undercurrent of stark conflict and hate swirling about her. It was inexplicable, but it was there. The more she tried to draw strange ends together and make some true picture of it, the more confusing it all was.

Finally she sighed and drew her thoughts back into more direct channels. Here at least she had a clear, disarming issue to follow. The action of the Fort Edson territory was plain. Her course of attack was plain. Her made of attack was simple and direct.

Deverout looked at her with inscrutable eyes. "Does it matter?" he asked answering question with question.

Ellen felt the hot blood rushing through her cheeks. Shame gripped her. Why had she flared so quickly in defence of a man towards whom all things pointed as being the cause of her father's misfortune; a man who stooped to the most dastardly of all tricks, bestializing and robbing the Indians through the medium of forbidden whisky?

"I wish merely to be fair," she stammered.

Ellen Mackay was crouched in the bow of a slender birch-bark canoe.

And he was a half-breed!

Feverishly she began her preparations. Her father objected strenuously to what she had in mind, but she over-rode his objections with firm determination. And that evening when the hush of the short night settled down over river and forest, Ellen Mackay was crouched in the bow of a slender birch-bark canoe, her face turned towards the north. In the centre of the canoe was a heap of supplies. In the bow was a rifle. Ellen's face was wrinkled, hunched old Moosac, wielding a dripping paddle.

Lightly the canoe slipped away into the darkness. The dim lights of Fort Edson paled and faded from view.

Twelve days after leaving Fort Edson, Ellen found her first evidence of John Benham's nefarious trading activities. She came upon a small camp of Laird Indians, and saw there the influence of "firewater" in all its hellishness. Less than a dozen families made up the camp. Their poverty was heartrending. The bucks were bleary-eyed and besotted, sullen and stupid. Gaunt, stony-faced squaws stared at Ellen in silence as she picked her way through the filthy jumble of the camp. It was the plight of the children, of apathetic, half-starved papooses which particularly tore at Ellen's heartstrings. Unable to understand the brutishness of their elders, the look in their little eyes begging mutely for food and still more food, their plight was pitiful in the extreme. And if they were starving now, in the midst of spring and plenty, what would their future be when the cold, merciless hand of winter shut down again?

A quick survey and a question or two, to which she received hardly more than a grunt in answer, showed Ellen that their winter's catch of furs were gone. These furs had gone to purchase "firewater," which they should have been used to trade for food and blankets, clothes, ammunition, and other supplies to carry the camp through another winter.

There was nothing Ellen could do. She left presently with the whole tawdry picture etched upon her brain, beyond all forgetting. There was no mistaking this evidence. It lay all about the camp in the form of bottles and empty whisky flasks.

Ellen travelled ceaselessly. Sending her strong young body, till the ache of paddling, she drove Moosac to his labours until the old Chippewyan was hunched with weariness. She found camps of Yellow-knives and Dogribs, of Rae and Simpson and Hay River Indians in which conditions approximated to the horrors of this first camp. Everywhere lay the evidence of the white man's murderous greed and the Indian's sinful weakness. She shivered whenever she thought of what would happen when winter shut down again. Everywhere she looked, instead of seeing the rioting splendour of the spring, she dread spectre of famine and wholesale death seemed to loom. It was there before her eyes as she dropped to sleep at night, and was still with her when she awakengd at dawn.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

The market continues to act well and although little is expected of it in either direction in the immediate future, the opinion prevails that better things are ahead for the summer before the end of the current year. A rising market for a month or two enables the public to quickly forget any previous breaks and confidence returns.

Directors of Imperial Oil and International Petroleum are slated to meet for dividend action next Monday and it can safely be assumed that no change in the present regular rate and extras will be made. Imperial disbursed 62½ cents every six months and "Inter" $1.50.

The Gold Situation Has Improved The Last Few Days

According to the latest information reaching Financial Service from New York there has been three distinctly favourable developments in gold over the last few days. In the first place, offerings of foreign gold to the United States have slowed up sharply; secondly, world offerings of gold on the British market have likewise congested after the announced decision of Washington that the price was to be increased—thirdly the British Exchange control has been buying gold on the open market and has been paying slightly in excess of the current rate.

Coupled with the above was the statement in the British House of Commons by Neville Chamberlain that his Government is buying gold when necessary and that it is in close touch with Washington and that no change in policy is contemplated.

Copper

Our friends in the copper industry think that the metal market has probably bottomed and steadied. Copper is presently around 14c, but most of the large American companies have sold their first six months output in the neighborhood of 12c. Price for the last six months should be better. Pencils are busy these days working out what nickel and Noranda can earn with the price of the red metal 14 cents a pound.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Close

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Interest almost faded out today on Toronto Exchange, the turnover getting down to about 30,000 shares with price moves barely firm. Industrials were irregularly lower as the only base metals were showing as many losses as gains while golds and western oils displayed spotty strength. Interest in the golds centred in Lake Shore with gain or more than two points was posted on a trade of about 4,500 shares.

Although buying orders were scarce, prices held to the up side in Hosk, Consolidated, utility and bank groups. Building products added two points and Dominion Tar a point.

Mining issues predominated among the senior oils and in the western group the tone was barely firm. Wasp Oils at 26, up 8 cents and losses of a few cents each were bounded for Consolidated Mosher, Dalhousie, Home and A. P. Consolidated.

Nickel, Chrumium, Pend Oreille and Sudbury Basin were gainers in the base metal group while Noranda was heavy, showing a loss of half more than a point and Hudson Bay was down a half.

GOLD SITUATION ALARMS SMUTS

Gen. Smuts States Greater Measures For Safety Are Badly Needed

Cape Town, May 6—(CP Cable)—General Jan Smuts, Minister of Justice, today described as "absolutely absurd and fantastic," charges that the recent crash of the Johannesburg stock market was due to manipulation by the Government.

Answering questions in the House of Assembly, General Smuts said the collapse had been caused by a rumor that President Roosevelt of the United States had changed the price of gold. The rumor had been subsequently denied, the Minister added, but markets throughout the world had suffered.

The South African Statesman declared it was not manipulation by companies in South Africa that he was worried about, but rather the doubtful future of gold in the world. It was necessary, he added, to place gold on some reliable basis, in which confidence could be placed.

"The position is that the gold hoard of the United States is increasing very rapidly," General Smuts went on. "The gold is simply locked away and is not taken into the credit system. All this shows the uncertainties and precariousness of the present position of gold."

Southern Golds Reports Progress

In a progress report to officials of Southern Gold, Ltd., the superintendent in charge of work at the company's South Carolina property, states that since the first of the current year 9 veins numbers 1, 2 and 3 have been opened up for considerable lengths in the underground workings showing satisfactory ore and mineable width. During the course of this work, it is stated, a new vein was discovered and drifting is now being carried out.

In view of the results obtained during the early part of the year additional equipment is being developed in the underground workings with the object of speed up underground work, and it is now the opinion of the management that sufficient development has now been made to warrant further additions to the underground equipment. A word in this connection is expected from the mill shortly when it is hoped mining developed in the underground workings will have progressed sufficiently to permit the possibilities following the further enlargement of the present campaign. The crew at the property has recently been increased.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 6—Local produce markets were quiet and under restraint today. The butter market was an easy tone again, the wholesale market being a fraction lower while small lots to the retail trade were purchased by jobbers under 1-3c per lb. Cheese prices were also a shade off again. Egg trading was dull and prices not too firm. Potatoes and poultry showed little change. Receipts were 1,198 cases of eggs, 295 boxes of butter and 235 boxes of cheese, including 7 cars of arrivals.

Eggs—Up to 21 1-4c was quoted for Quebec fresh buyer's inspection with similar quotations given on the open market. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 21 1-2c for solids, and 24c for prints.

On the egg market graded shipments in 1-Cl lots were quoted 21121 1-2c for A-large, 19 1-2c to 20c for A-medium, 18 1-2c for A-small and 17 1-2c to 18c for C, with carlots of storage packed at the maximum levels to slightly higher. Offerings were posted at the Commodity Exchange at 21 1-2c for A-large and 20c for A-medium.

YOUTHS ADMIT SELLING SCRAP

Alleged to Have Dismantled Steam Hoist Owned at Latta

Three Thurlow youths were apprehended by Provincial Police today and questioned regarding the recent theft of a quantity of metal, the greater part being the ironwork of a steam hoist, the property of Barney Latta, which the lads admitted the stealing of the iron and also to selling it as scrap iron in Belleville. Provincial Constables McBrien and Smith stated after their interviews that the lads were subsequently permitted to return to their respective homes on their own recognizance and will be summoned into police court, to appear on their charges Monday, police stated.

The iron-work of the steam hoist was reported stolen recently and it was following further investigations that Constables McBrien and Smith finally questioned the trio of Thurlow youths today who at first denied all knowledge of the incident, but finally admitted their part in the affair. The parts of the steam hoist stolen and sold for scrap iron included the drum, two large steel cog wheels and other metallic parts. The hoist was used by Mr. McCrory in his stone quarry near Latta and had not been in use for some time, however.

Provincial Police stated it was the first offence known to have been committed in this district necessitating the authorities to grant the removal of juveniles, the lads their personal liberty until they appeared officially before the court.

The increased number of robberies of metallic goods, especially the iron-work of farm implements, has been a general scource of worry to police forces during the past few weeks, as the price of scrap iron soared to previously unknown heights.

Agreements Reached On Drought Aid Fund

Ottawa, May 6—(CP)—Needs of people in drought-stricken districts of Canada are being used as the basis for agreements which the Federal Government will spend this year on conjunction with the provinces, it was learned today at the Labor Department.

Agreements have been worked out with all Provinces except Nova Scotia, and Prime Minister and Ministers from those Provinces may be here later this week. Exact nature of the agreements will be made public by Labor Minister Hoeyns, Department officials said.

The reduced amounts the Dominion is providing this year for grants-in-aid and relief and employment bears testimony to the Government's belief that improved economic conditions have lessened the need.

closed. "We'll give you a break," the manager said the bandits told him as they left the door ajar to permit entry of air.

Evans managed to free a hand and saver his bonds. He then freed the manager.

Police said Evans' original arrest followed discovery of a $5 note that, ying in the city. Evans, free on $6,000 bail, appeared cool when the charges were repeated in the city hall corridor.

In investigating the holdup, police stated fingerprint experts examined the bandit car and that other clues included a pair of overalls, found two miles from the car. They said the holdup men wore overalls when robbing the bank.

CLOSE SCRUTINY

Perhaps a week will elapse between the Coronation and Edward's marriage, in line with the Duke's request that as little attention be as possible from the London celebrations.

Plans for after the honeymoon, it was said authoritatively, were still uncertain, though under stood to be under consideration would take the Duke and Duchess on a good will tour of African and other British colonies.

Mrs. Simpson, the wedding gown, the creation of a Paris fashion house, is stated to have ordered new clothes and that the order "includes the trousseau she will wear at her wedding."

Furnishings of the bride's costume were being made at the Chateau, but no other details were disclosed.

Parliament Will Be Approached

Apparently, the former monarch had in a manner won his first argument with the future Duchess—if an argument it was—for it was stated that the couple had consented to an Austrian honeymoon of several months duration in the gray, 15th century Schloss Enzesfeld, amid the Alpine lakes of Austria.

Previously the couple had been described as discussing the comparative merits of a future home in Austria or North America.

A week ago, before Edward left St. Wolfgang, Austria, he hurried his Christmas present, Diver, became absolute, the Duke permitted his suite to announce he had rented the castle from his friend, Count Paul Munster, for the honeymoon months. Yet it is by known he intended to go there after the wedding.

While waiting for the present of her wishes on their future home, Mrs. Simpson was described as still holding out for a home in Canada, or the United States.

Austrian Castle Historic

The Wasserleonburg honeymoon castle to which Edward and his country he has come to love, Mountain climbing, swimming and golf will be the principal sports, the castle would make an ideal headquarters for yachting trips on the Adriatic.

The castle, a 40-room structure built in 1250 and rebuilt in 1767, has beautiful gardens and a simple chapel. It stands near Arnoldstein, Carinthia, near the junction of the Austrian, Italian and Yugoslav frontiers.

Rogers said no press representatives would be received by the Duke for at least a fortnight. A superintendent of police would follow the bride if he and Mrs. Simpson were photographed together before the wedding, it was reported, but Edward's decision not to pose with her now.

Publicity as Factor

"Nevertheless, I am very confident that the question of publicity for National defence expenditure might be considered, and the possibility explored of attaining a general agreement on this point, convention on this subject, drawn up by a competent subcommittee of the disarmament conference, to enforce it if accepted by the principal powers.

"Should a general agreement be reached on it, reconsideration of the question of creation of international regulation of arms manufacture and trade should be possible. Should progress be made even on these modest proposals for publicity of national defence expenditure and armaments, then the way would be opened for further progress in the wider question."

Government's Responsibility

The Committee's report recommended that the Government should assume complete responsibility for the arms industry in the United Kingdom and should organize and regulate the necessary collaboration between the government and private industry, and that this responsibility should be exercised through a controlling body presided over by a Minister responsible to Parliament.

The Government believes the needs of the case have already been met by the appointment of a Minister, Sir Thomas Inskip to coordinate defence and the additional appointment of a chairman of the Supply Board.

There is no present case on its merits for the radical change suggested" the White Paper adds. "It is further to be remembered that the whole organization at present working at very high pressure on the defence program and that sweeping changes therein may delay progress and could only be justified by the strongest grounds of public interest, which His Majesty's Government as at present advised, has not been discovered.

Regulation of Profits

"The Government therefore, does not propose to establish as a precedent the principles laid down in the body recommended by the Royal Commission."

The Commission contemplated that regulation of profits would come within the jurisdiction of the proposed control body. The Government does not feel that regulation of profits under such system would be more effective than the system actually in operation.

"His Majesty's Government recognize," the White Paper concluded, "that if ever this country should again become involved in a major war the whole question of control over industry would be needed than in peace time. Indeed this conclusion is plainly indicated from the experience of the Great War. Provisions plans for such purposes, ready in case of need to be presented for parliamentary approval, have necessarily to be prepared beforehand."

Licenses for Export of Planes

The Government has decided that special regulations shall be required for the export of aircraft of military types, between aircraft and lances. But civil aircraft may still be exported under the existing system of licenses.

The Commission recommended that control should be exercised over exports of all aircraft, whether military or civil, and that specific export licenses should be required.

Motor Accidents Increase 29.5 p. c. For Jan. and Feb.

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Motor vehicle accidents in the first two months of this year increased 29.8 per cent over the same period for the same period last year. There were 75 fatalities, 60 more than in January and February, 1936.

Accidents totalled 1,561 and property damage $181,756. The number of persons suffering injuries, says the department of highways report, was 1,275 or 375 more than in the same months last year.

Stirling and District

Stirling—Climaxing one of the most successful years in the history of his being St. John's A. Y. P. A. held its final meeting before the summer recess in the form of banquet.—Characterizing the spirit of the fellowship—with were gaily decorated in appropriate colours and burdened with plenty of tasty dishes, which were arranging by the ladies of the congregation. Very few members and friends were present. Mr. Kenneth Morgan, president of the young men acted as toast master for the evening. After the toast to the King, all joined in lively community singing under the leadership of Mrs. Fred Hoskin. Mr. Richard Chard very ably proposed the toast to the Church and the response was made by the rector of the parish, Rev. A. S. McConnell. Coupled with the toast to the A.Y.P.A. were the names of Miss Lorie Fairs and Mr. Howard Morrow, a Past President both taking their respective part in a most capable manner. At this time Mr. Ross Scott was introduced and gave some interesting imitations of bird songs. Ross is well known for his ability at whistling and his bird songs were very realistic.

Guest Speaker is Rev. N. E. Steet

The guest speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Steet of Consecon who was introduced by Rev. A. S. McConnell, in his fine introduction he spoke of the different citizen of the district expressed happiness in returning to Stirling especially to address the young people where his chief interest lies. He offered encouragements to them in the years for the future. There may be time when a lack of interest in the Church will show itself among the members but those who remain steadfast to the last will be richly rewarded. Youth has an important place in the life of the Church, the world, and all young people should be active.

Service is based on devotion they go hand-in-hand, we owe devotion to our God, our fellowmen and to ourselves and the very highest devotion to Jesus Christ. A shining example of steadfast devotion was exemplified in the life of General Booth of the Salvation Army, who said "once sinner—that his cause along with everything else he possessed was made possible his every Christ. In concluding the fine address Mr. Steet spoke in high praises of the Youngfolk program of A.Y.P.A. work set forth by a capable executive in charge of the work. Worship, fellowship and edification are rightfully placed in service. The toast to the guests was proposed by Miss Alice Calow, and the response made by Miss Eleanor MacDonald of Frankford. Other speakers included Mrs. H. H. Alyea and Mr. J. B. Holmes.

Expression of gratitude on behalf of the gathering to the speaker of the evening was made by Rev. A. S. McConnell who also presented Miss Louis Fairs with a fitted dressing case on behalf of the A. Y. P. A. and also Thurman Heal Jr. Miss Fairs leaves next week for England. Taken completely by surprise by the event she thanked the members for the lovely gifts. A vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Mr. Steet and Mr. Fred Houchin brought this very enjoyable evening to a close.

St. Paul's Young People's Union

Hear Mr. Robert Ford of London

The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Y.P.U. was held in the Church parlors on Monday evening under the direction of Miss M. Bulin, president of the organization. Preparatory to the approaching Coronation, Miss Thelma Fenwick gave one of the most interesting readings on "The Coronation and its Meaning". The true significance of this ceremony which doubtless the oldest in the world was very vividly set forth.

Robert Ford is Speaker

The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Robert Ford of London, nephew of Rev. W. J. Scott, who spoke on the subject "Canada and peace". The final number on this interesting program was the "Will Making" contest directed by Miss Bulin and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

MUTUAL LIFE CO. SHOWS INCREASE

Highest Point Reached by Sales in Many Years

In honor of Mr. R. O. McCulloch, President of the Mutual Life of Canada, who has just completed 30 years as a Director of the Company, special efforts were made in the field force to increase sales during the past few months.

So successful were their efforts during this period that policies totalling over $6,500,000 were placed on the lives of citizens of Canada.

This amount represents the highest point reached by sales in many years during a similar period.

It has been announced by the Federal Department of Insurance that sales of ordinary life insurance made in this country in 1936 by The Mutual Life of Canada, exceeded those of any other Canadian company.

His Majesty (Closest Camera) with Brothers, Edward and Henry.

Only a few months after the Silver Jubilee celebrations which had climaxed the 25 years of his reign, King George V died. An entire Empire and, in a slightly lesser sense the entire world, felt the passing of the quiet, simple and kindly man who led his nation through the most trying years in the world's history, and while throne fell around him he cemented even more solidly the love of his people for the British Throne.

To the sad gathering in London, when the nation bore its late monarch to his last resting place, went representatives of all the nations of the world, to mourn for a great king and to hail his successor. With his brother Edward, known and loved far and wide as the Prince of Wales, upon the throne, Prince Albert, Duke of York, became the next in the line of succession and his daughter, Princess Elizabeth, a probable future queen of the realm.

As he has throughout his entire life, Albert accepted the responsibility, quietly and unostentatiously but with a deep appreciation of the high qualities required of him. England turned to the new king with hope and expectation, though with a keen feeling of loss for a man who had become to his millions of subjects a personal friend.

As the body of King George V, lie in state, thousands paid their last respects to the late king and the empire was touched by the intident when his four sons stood with bowed heads at the four corners of the bier one night for a guard of honor. Sympathy went out to them and a great wave of feeling for the bereaving queen. At the funeral, the four princes marched directly behind the bier.

Today we show the present king, then still the Duke of York, in that and march with his brother who succeeded to the throne, and Henry, Duke of Gloucester.

Burdened as he was, that day with the sadness that came from loss of a kind and wise father and adviser, he, nor the multitudes that grieved with him could see that soon he would be called to take up the crown so lately laid down by the dead monarch. But when the call came, Albert, who had shirked a job in his life, bowed his head; the Empire soon gathers to crown him King.

PRE-CORONATION SERVICE PLANNED

Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce Sends Message to United Churches

A call to Christian people throughout Canada to celebrate the Coronation of King George VI by a rededication of their own lives to the Service of God and their fellowmen will be sounded in nearly every Church on Sunday, May 9th.

A special Coronation message of 850 words has been sent out to every minister of the United Church by the Moderator, the Right Rev. Peter Bryce.

Diocesan churches in different parts of the country will hold special services on May 12th, and in many cases the special message will be read them.

"The inspire in these crucial days has a right to expect from the Christian Church a more modern and clearer witness than has yet been given," says Mr. Bryce, in his letter. "But the Church herself is powerless apart from her faith that God can work through consecrated lives."

"That is a faith not merely to be proclaimed but to be demonstrated in an order of life which the will of God for men shall be regnant in all relationships."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma had to cook supper today on account of pa being sick and laid off, and we was eating it and ma said, No wonder Nora has a perfect husband. Believe me, a cook's troubles are far from being airy fairy. Quite in the imagination if my experience of this afternoon are any indication. Ma had company, doorbell kept ringing practically continuously with the telephone joining in the refrain. Then mad and somebody pounding at the door for quite 5 minutes like a regular anvil chorus. No wonder nothing turned out quite no wonder. Some bachelor's alakes are horrible examples personified she said.

O, they're not so bad, pop said. A little on the dry side, perhaps, he said, and ma said I dont blame you for criticizing them, you're perfectly justified, but if you'd been through what I've been through, any bambery alakes of yours would look like dis appointed cinders, she said, and pop said, I admit it, and I'm not criticizing, I'm condoling.

I'll bring in the salad, ma said.

And she went and brawt in mins and pop's and went back for her own and ma and pop started out, tasting more like a salt salad than a lettuce salad, and pop swallered to me. No more feces now, well just let us finish and salute it.

Meening the salt and ma came back with her own salad and started to eat it, saying, Well this is the last possible straw, I knew I'd spoiled the salt if I had no idea that this had happened.

Why, what's wrong, I dont notice anything, pop said, and said, it seems okay to me, and ma said, Well of all things, now I know what people mean when they say men never really know what they're eating. Hee hee hee just look at your self

DAILY SHORT STORY

Swell Idea

By Evelyn Voes Wise

Peter Deisfield Harringforth was working his way up in one of his father's chain store number 39. He had done a job and his father wished to advance him, but Peter refused to leave this particular place.

"One of his 'swell ideas' beginning to bud", his father mumbled suspiciously.

It was true, but now it took a totally different form from any of his perverse ideas. This time it was a girl. He didn't know her name nor where she lived and she was too sacred to discuss with the clerks. So each morning he waited for her little dog's nose which rounded the corner first and then he worked in front of the store until she passed on her way to the letter box at the end of the block.

"Gee," he thought, "she has the cutest turned-up nose and the sweetest mouth!" The cool smile she gave him when he beamed on her dog sent thrills racing up and down his spine.

Days passed. Whenever he shut his eyes he saw her slim figure, her glistening hair, and small firm hands clinging to a leash. But that was as far as he got, for not once did she enter the store.

Peter learned the meaning of desperation. For the first time ideas deserted him, all except parking his car before the front door. He lifted to look at it, waiting confidently, just as he waited.

A familiar bark caused him to look down the street one afternoon about five. She wasn't coming around the corner taking him unawares. This time she was approaching from the front.

Peter leaped to the most ornate.

"Winners! Quick! Wieners," he demanded of old Mr. Klopp.

"Wieners!" Mr. Klopp looked confused. "Wieners?"

"Yes—wieners! Give them to me! Quick! Lots of them."

The old gentleman handed them over eyeing the young manager as if one or the other of them had suddenly lost his mind.

Suddenly he felt mean.

"See here," he said, bringing the car to a stop beneath a big tree. "They weren't poisoned and he didn't even eat one. I took it away from him. I've been wanting to meet you so darn much. It was just one of my ideas."

"You mean you knew they weren't poisoned?" Her chin lifted.

"Yes", he admitted miserably.

"And you wanted to meet me?"

"Yes. Every day I've watched you go to the mail box."

The corners of her mouth grew soft. "You did meet me—a couple of years ago. I'm Nina Pendleton's sister—I've grown up since then."

He looked at her in amazement.

"I was scared for Nibs. But oh Peter, I'm glad you did it. I think it was a swell idea."

She looked down at the little dog and sighed with happiness. "Well," she thought, "it's happened. I simply couldn't go on mailing myself a letter every day."

Peter sped to the front door. Look was with him. Not another dog in sight. He gazed up and down the street tossing the wieners surreptitiously in all directions.

"Pup" he muttered, "if you get sick, I promise I'll make it up to you afterward."

His was back at the window to see the little dog sniff the air, saw the little beast slip elderly out of his collar in his avid quest for meat. He heard the girl's cry.

"Nibs! Come here! Nibs." She tried to catch the wriggling body in her hands.

Peter rushed to the door.

"Oh," she cried, "he'll be sick."

Peter caught the squirming body. His face grew serious, "Pooka, it's no doubt. How terrible! You'd better let me drive you straight to the vet's."

They hurried into the car and he put Nibs in her arms. From the corner of his eye he watched the tears run down her face as he headed for the country. But his heart sank a bit. Pshaps it wasn't such a bright idea after all. She did look so dreadfully unhappy.

4TH SIDNEY

Fourth Line Sidney, May 5—Minister's Day service was held at this appointment on Sunday evening and was largely attended. A pageant was put on by the Sunday School which was enjoyed by all.

Miss Margaret Johnston of Queen's University, Kingston, has returned home for the summer months.

Mr. J. Garrett, of Bowcanville, is the guest of Mr. Robt. McPherson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Langabeer and family Mr. and Mrs. H. Corden and daughter Bernice and Mrs. M. Harris were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris.

Miss F. McIntyre has returned home having spent the past few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Reid.

Mr. Molden Johnston has gone to Kirkland Lake where he has secured a position at Lake Shore Mines. Holden will be greatly missed this summer as he was a great ball player but he hopes to plan on a team where he is for the summer.

Mr. Leslie Thompson is moving to Mr. C. Vermilyea's where he is employed for the year.

Mrs. S. Lloyd is spending a week with her son Mr. Merritt Lloyd of Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lough and children were recent guests of the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood.

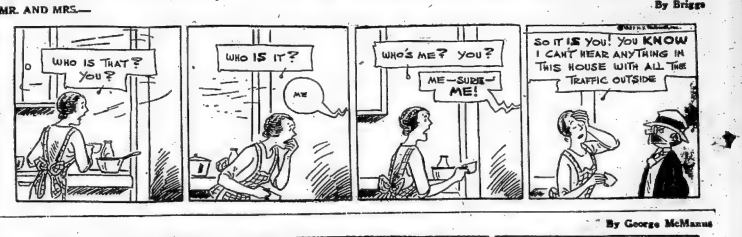
The farmers are busily engaged on the land as the weather has been ideal during the past few days and a great edal of sowing will be done this week if the weather continues fine.

TRY NEW ALFALFA

Melfort, Sask. (CP)—Harry Coun, farmer in this district 100 miles northeast of Saskatoon, is planting Ladak alfalfa seed from India. It is well adapted to regions where summer growing season is short.

REGINANS SEND DONATIONS

Regina—(CP)—Regina citizens paid $175 cash, and pledged $60 to help the government forces in war-torn Spain at a rally here at which Dr. Anna Louise Strong, journalist and lecturer spoke.



Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never learn to get a good night's rest. They have kidneys in revolt and cannot sleep. Often they blame it on "nerves"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisonous matter in the system and sleeplessness, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—over half a century the favorite remedy. 105

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Of all men, none could travel faster through the jungle than Tarzan of the Apes. And now that he was at last on the trail of his beloved mate, he travelled neither like man nor ape, but like the swift wind sweeping through the trees of the wilderness.

Far ahead, those he sought were moving at ordinary speed, except Jane. She seemed lost in dreadful reverie, and she had slackened her pace until she was well behind her friends. And above her, as before, moved the unseen stalker, silent as a phantom.

At last Brown stopped and wailed for the weary Tibbs to catch up with him. "Where's Lady Jane?" "She was behind me last time I looked," Tibbs replied. They waited. Jane did not appear. They called, frantically at first, then louder. There was no answer.

The two men started along the back trail, Brown leading and Tibbs staggering behind. Time after time their voices rang through the forest in frantic shouts, but there was never any response from the missing Jane. It seemed that the jungle had swallowed her!

DARING NOON TIME BANK ROBBERY NETS TWO MASKED BANDITS $2,000

Herding the manager and teller into the bank vault, two masked bandits scooped up the contents of the till and escaped with an estimated $2,000 after a daring noon-time robbery of the Royal Bank at Schomberg, Ont. The thieves fled in a light sedan automobile, which was later found seven miles from the scene of the daring robbery. At the right is shown the sedan after it had been abandoned on the highway. Person-al clothing found in the car led police to believe at least one ban-dit changed clothing in the speed-ing machine. At the RIGHT is seen an interior view of the bank. The robbers, who entered the build-ing with drawn guns, clambered over the counter and left the two employees bound in the vault.

SOCIETIES

CHATTERTON W.M.S.

The Chatterton W.M.S. held their monthly meeting Tuesday, May 4th, 1937, at the home of Mrs. Marisette. Call to worship by the president, followed by a hymn, "The Apostles' Creed and Lord's Prayer in unison. Roll call, minutes and business. Scripture readings were given by Mrs. Meale, Mrs. Hudson and Mrs. Mills. Mrs. Tanner, group leader, took charge. A hymn was followed by a reading by Mrs. Hollinger. Mrs. Marisette gave a reading on the Coronation followed by the Mizpah benediction. The meeting closed with prayer. Coloc-tion Rec. The hostess served a deli-cious lunch. Moved by Mrs. Mills and seconded by Mrs. Tanner, a vote of thanks was given the host-ess.

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH W.M.S.

The President, Mrs. Cordes, pre-sided at the May meeting, Wednes-day afternoon, which was held in the church parlours. Satisfactory reports were given from each office, after which Mrs. Holmes' group took charge. Devotional Leaflet by Mrs. Kilback. Peace and Temper-ance Secretary read short sketches. The Study Book was given by Mrs. Cordes, Mrs. Hubbs and Miss Adams.

Reading by Mrs. Holmes "Fam-ous Mothers of History", which was very appropriate.

MOHAWK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Annual Meeting of the Mohawk Women's Institute was held at the Council Hall on May 4, 1937 with eighteen members and four visitors present.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. H. J. Eade and opened with singing the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer re-peated in unison. Community sing-ing was enjoyed by all.

Roll call was answered with the payment of fees. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. Minutes of the last Annual May 5th, 1936 were also read.

A duet by Keitha and Lloyd Louis was very much enjoyed.

In a few well chosen words the President, Mrs. Eade vacated. Mrs. Amey taking the chair for the election of officers selected as follows:

President, re-elected — Mrs. H. Eade.

First Vice President—Mrs. R. H. Hill.

Second Vice President—Mrs. Her-bert Claus.

Secretary—Miss Elma M. Bell.

Treasurer—Mrs. Clinton Marsden.

Miss Elma M. Bell moved that East Tyendinaga be invited to a social evening to be held in the Council Hall soon. Mrs. W. John sang a lovely solo accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Brant at the piano.

The meeting closed with the sing-ing of the National Anthem, after which a dainty lunch was served by the conveners.

DR. J. M. McQUIBBAN IS NOMINATED

Life-Long Liberal to be Conservative Candidate N. Wellington

Arthur, Ont., May 6.—(CP)—A self-described "life-long Liberal" will carry the Conservative Party standard in the Provincial by-elec-tion to fill the vacant Wellington Northeast seat in the Ontario Leg-islature, a candidate who said he knew he had "not chosen an easy path."

Dr. James McQuibban of Elmira was selected at a nominating con-vention here yesterday to contest the seat his brother, Dr. George A. McQuibban, has held for the Liber-als for ten years. The by-election, to be held on a date yet to be set, was necessitated by the death of Dr. George McQuibban last Janu-ary.

In accepting the nomination, Dr. McQuibban said "had my brother lived, he would have been standing on the same platform today". He promised to maintain the "great traditions" held by his brother, first elected to represent the riding in 1926 and re-elected in 1929 and 1934.

Dr. McQuibban criticized Prem-ier Hepburn in his address, and said, "I know I can enlist under the leadership of Mr. Rowe and still remain a man in the true sense of the word and not a servile Hep-burn slave". He said he "grew up the torch", and now "am a fol-lower of Thel Rowe whom, I be-lieve, will restore in this province a full measure of responsible gov-ernment".

C.N.R. FLIER

Bodies of Alfred Legare 17, and Ernest Long, 22, were found between the charred engines and mail cars.

Eighteen miles away ten persons were in the hospital in Amherst, four of them reported to be in a serious condition. Fireman G. M. Steeves of Moncton was one of the most seriously injured in Amherst hospital, with scalp and chest wounds and a possible broken back.

Story Told

A tragic story was told by those who saw the wreck—a story of reck-less bravery that fail failed to ac-complish its purpose. The loaded coal cars were being shunted in the Junction yards just before the Limited was due, when eight of them broke loose on the main line and began the fatal roll down the long grade westward.

With steam valves popping and exhaust roaring, the tiny shunter was hurled down the line after the fleeing cars, gaining speed with every turn on the wheels. On the road beside the track other rail-waymen drew an automobile in breakneck speed over a bumpy road in an attempt to flag the Limited.

Both attempts failed by narrow margins. Five minutes behind schedule and speeding 50 or 60 miles an hour despite the upgrade, the passenger train rushed headlong into the runaway cars travelling al-most as fast. The crash, that fol-lowed telescoped the engines, mail and baggage cars of the Limited, and sent them hurtling down the embankment amidst the wreckage of the engine and four coal cars.

Crew Had No Chance

Crew of the Flyer had no chance to avert disaster. Engineer Baurr and Fireman Steeves stayed with their train, fighting desperately with throttle and airbrakes, cutting but little off the speed of the 1,100-ton train. Beyond the coal cars screaming brake-shoes brought the shunter to a stop just in time to avoid ploughing into the wreck, while on the roadway below other men looked on helplessly.

Wreckage was hurled 40 yards away, and lumps of coal were found as far as 300 yards from the scene of the wreck. Splintered first car of the Limited burst into flames as they struck the bottom of the bank.

Travellers in the passenger coaches behind, their first warning of danger, that sudden short grinding of brakes, were thrown against each other, against seats, windows and walls and to the floor. Cooks and waiters in the dining car suf-fered most when food was scattered all over the cobby-hole kitchen.

Those in the first and second class coaches suffered most among the passengers, with pullman car occupants receiving a lesser shaking up.

Guy Kibbee and Alice Brady are appearing in the year's best laugh riot, "Mama Steps Out" with Charles Laughton as "Rembrandt", lord of beauty, now on Ab Bell screen.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

London, May 6 (CP)—Depreci-ation in the value of Rembrandt Rembrandt's works was seen in a $60,000 sale of old masters here recently. "The return from Egypt", which in 1921 got a price of $7,875, only realized $1,522 while "The Holy Family" sold for $7,300 when it was last in auc-tion, also realized $1,522. However, another Rembrandt painting, a por-trait of Princess Brigida Spinola Doria, brought the top price of the sale, getting a bid of $13,500.

Carp, Ont., May 6 (CP)—When a load of hay he was driving on a bride over the Carp river slipped and fell into the water a district farm worker known only as "Bill" was drowned yesterday.

"Bill" was working on a farm owned by George Walker and had been employed for the past three weeks. He refused to give his name and said he could be called "Bill". A French-Canadian, he was about 70 years of age.

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—A mena-gerie—including 33 elephants—was lost in Toronto's fire for several hours. The collection was finally located—hidden in the folds of a 1mm table cloth. The elephants were ivory ones part of Jules Chaterson's "world's largest col-lection of smallest curiosities."

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—An excit-ed Chinese laundryman's voice came over the wire to the police station last night. Someone had thrown an explosive in his store.

Thinking probably a laundry racket with bombings had come to Ottawa police dispatched to the scene.

Some boys celebrating the 24th of May in advance had thrown a firecracker in the shop.

Lenoir N.C., May 6 (CP)—Wil-liam "Uncle Billy" Washington, 71, came to town for the first time in 30 years and said he was worried:

He complained that the tax collector hadn't been around yet this year and he wanted to pay his assessment in the farm where he lives alone.

The last time he came to town, he recalled, was to get the latest news of the Great War.

London, May 6 (CP)—Dr. W. F. Whamphon-Ingram, Bishop of London, in a coronation article in the Diocesan Chronicle, said:

"I carried the Bible in the coronation of King Edward VII and was to have preached the sermon, but, owing to the curtail-ment of the service, in conse-quence of the King's dangerous illness, the sermon was omitted and I found it in a drawer the other day, the only coronation sermon written, printed and never preached."

CANNIFTON CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

George Shorey Named Prexy And Ab Eaves as Coach

With early spring practices being ordered for next week, the Can-nifton Baseball Club elected officers and cleared the decks for a hopeful season in 1937 at the Cannifton Town Hall last night.

George Shorey was selected as manager of the Cannifton Club for 1937. Ab Eaves was named coach of the team, while Lionel Slacker as captain and Jack Bush as secretary-treasurer. Don Thomas, of Belle-ville, was selected as the umpire for the club during the season. A second official will be appointed at a later date.

Discussion on the advisability of playing home games on the new Corbyville baseball diamond was held, but no definite decision was reached. Opening game of the lea-gue will be played on May 24.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Charles Laughton Scores Greatest Triumph as "Rembrandt"...

To that colourful company of unforgettable screen characters peopled by the merry lusty "Henry VIII", the relentless "Hunchbacked Javert of "Les Miserables', the brutal Captain Bligh of "Mutiny on the Bounty", the unfathomable Henry Harriet of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and the cherubic butler of "Ruggles of Red Gap" Charles Laughton has added a new member . . . a member who tops them all.

The addition is "Rembrandt"—the greatest painter the world has ever known, who is on the Belle screen tonight and Friday, matinee and evening, in Alexander Korda's personally directed production of that name, and offers Laughton his most human and colourful characterization. The film which reunites the great producer-director and actor combination of "Henry VIII" follows the great and much misunderstood Dutch master's life and loves from his early triumphs at 30 to his early decline and the poverty of his old age.

Love His Inspiration

Here was a genius who understood and appreciated beauty as no man ever has. For his love and inspiration was unattainable and when death claimed his beloved wife Saskia at the height of his fame his whole world crashed about him. It was then he painted the "Night Watch" which was misunderstood, ridiculed and caused his decline.

Gertrude Lawrence, the charming stage star, is introduced as Geertje, the housekeeper who lured him, worked for him and scraped and pawned for years to keep Rembrandt" and his son in food and clothing. But, alas, she did not inspire him and it was not until his eyes lighted on the shining face of the little country girl, Hendrickje that he was again to know love such as he had known with Saskia and was again inspired to paint the matchless masterpieces that have sent his name thundering down the years to immortality.

Picture that will thrill you with its splendour and warm your heart with its human appeal Laughton's portrayal of "Rembrandt" must go down as perhaps the greatest screen characterization of all time.

"Mama Steps Out" Funny

Laughter and music mingle in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new comedy "Mama Steps Out" presenting the new screen combination of Guy Kibbee and Alice Brady, on hand, announced as the companion feature attraction on the same program. These veterans of stage and screen do a scintillating caricature of a familiar American type. Stanley Morner, protege of Mary Garden, the opera star, and last seen at the Belle in an important role in "The Great Ziegfeld" appears in his first featured role, and sings well.

MARTIN O'BRIEN MUCH IMPROVED

Police Continue Search For Masked Gunman Although Two Held

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Martin O'Brien showed slight improvement in hospital today while police continued to search for the gunman who felled him with four bullets in suburban Mimico last Tuesday night. His wife and mother were hurried to the bedside last night when his condition turned for the worse.

Meanwhile police held two men on municipal charges of vagrancy, William Hamilton, 39, and Joseph Meikle, 36, were remanded for a week with bail set at $2,000 when they appeared in Magistrate's Court yesterday. Police said they were not under suspicion of the actual shooting but might be needed as material witnesses.

O'Brien was shot as he went to enter a neighbor's house after being summoned by a woman who suggested that he telephone the police that a masked man had entered her home.

MAY PICKET ALL MOVIE HOUSES

Reject Proposal, That Omitted Mention of Closed Shop

Hollywood May 6 (AP)—Striking motion picture craftsmen appealed today for a nation-wide boycott and picketing of movie theatres after rejecting a peace proposal that omitted mention of the closed shop and union recognition.

Producers accepted unequivocally the terms of the peace plan submitted by the Los Angeles Central Labor Council American Federation of Labor unit with which the striking craftsmen are affiliated. The proposal provided that:

1. All striking crafts return to work immediately without prejudice and no

2. Negotiations be conducted by representatives of each of the 13 striking unions for establishment of wage scales and working conditions.

"The strike is still on", said Charles Lederle, head of the Producers' Motion Picture Crafts, which called the walkout.

"I am is no way interested in this plan of settlement. It's a closed shop signed sealed and delivered, or we don't go back to work."

ITALIAN LEGION TOLD NOT TO FAIL

Concentrating on Bilbao Front For The "Big Push"

Rome, May 6 (AP)—Italian war correspondents in Spain reported today the "Black Arrow" Legion—mostly Italian volunteers with the Spanish Insurgents—is being concentrated on the Bilbao front for a "big push" which they have been told must not fail.

"Legionaries of the 'Black Arrow' and other volunteers are flocking to the Bay of Biscay Coast sector," the Fascist Stefani agency reported from Bermeo, near Bilbao, in La Trocha.

"They will oppose warlike, well-armed troops. But the Legionaries know that having made enemies means having much honor and Italian Legionaries are waiting to write on their banner a new name and a new date—of a new and victorious battle."

Franzetti reported the "Black Arrow" volunteers captured Bermeo, Biscayan coastal city in the line of the Insurgents' attack on Bilbao.

NO DATE SET ON BONES PROBE

Evidence Not to be Taken Until Investigation More Complete

The authorities will await complete findings of Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Attorney General's Department before there is any decision on an inquest into the finding of bones in a possible human bones, found in a brush and hay mow Northbrook on Sunday, stated Inspector Frank Gardiner of the Provincial Police today.

Yesterday it was stated by the Provincial Police here that the charred bones found in the ashes had been examined by Dr. Frankish and were said by him to be human bones.

Further examinations will be completed before the authorities enter into the matter of an inquest on the case.

On Wednesday, Inspector Gardiner and Provincial Constable Robert Woodman, 23 years old Northbrook youth, who is held in Napanee jail on a charge of vagrancy pending investigations over the fire and the finding of the bones. Woodman denied, the police inspector stated all knowledge of August Rondore's movements since last February. Woodman and Rondore, it is said, were working a hemlock bush last winter, being engaged in taking out wood.

Police Constable Barrett is conducting an investigation in the vicinity of Northbrook and the scene of the fire in the glade in the woods near the premises of Rondore, who has not been seen for some time. The constable has interviewed a number of nearby residents.

INDIANS TO FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

Jury Finds Tom Martin Died From an Assault in U. S.

Hogansburg, N. Y., May 6—(AP)—Agents of the United States Department of Justice and State Police hurried their investigation back to the St. Regis Reservation today only after an inquest at Cornwall, Ont., into the death of Tom Martin, 45, St. Regis Indian.

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that the Indian died from an assault committed by Lewis Herne, 52, and Joe Casey, 50, fellow Mohawk Indian, on the Reservation side.

Martin, a resident of the Canadian side of the Reservation, died in a Cornwall hospital last Friday as a result of a beating suffered in a brawl on the American side. He was rowed across the St. Lawrence River in a boat and left at the hospital. Police were notified of the case by Ontario Provincial Police last Sunday.

State Police began an investigation and arrested Herne and Casey, who were arraigned before a Peace Justice on a charge of manslaughter first degree.

Federal men said the men would be arraigned before a United States Commissioner.

The Federal Agents entered the case after United States Attorney Ralph Timmons received instruction from Washington to send the agents here from Syracuse.

BILBAO REFUGEES ABOARD STERMER

5,000 Non-Combatants Will Be Taken to Bordeaux,

Bilbao, Spain, May 6 (AP) — Two Spanish liners loaded with 5,000 women and children bound for refuge in France planned out of the Biscayan war zone under British naval protection today.

The Habana and Isarra headed from Bilbao, with the battleship Royal Oak and two British destroyers to convoy them.

The insurgent cruiser Almirante Cervera hove out of the mist in an effort to overhaul the refugee craft, while still in view of shore, but the Royal Oak formed a protective flank.

The insurgents warship turned back and disappeared in the distance. The insurgent destroyer Velasco hovered in the background but refused also to cover under the mists.

The Habana, carrying nearly 4,000 of the refugees, was painted with a huge red crosses on her sides and flew the Red Cross flag.

Meanwhile Bilbao's defenders clung to the lines of a trap sprung on two thousand insurgents northeast of the city.

Steadfast under a hail of bombs and machine gun fire, artillery and "Guidaris", or militiamen, tightened their grip on the encircling insurgents who, with their backs to the sea, faced slow starvation unless the siege within a siege was crushed.

The beleaguered insurgents, reported to be Italian units of the broad offensive Gen. Emilio Mola has thrust toward Bilbao, were isolated on the Bay of Biscay coast, near Bermeo, sixteen miles northeast of Bilbao. Their food supplies were dwindling.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, don't suffer another day or use the usual treatment. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, or a natural looking appearance should be secured at once. For this purpose get from a druggist or any druggist, a package of Peterman's Ointment. Peterman's Ointment, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spot. Remold is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the heights of folly to suffer when relief is at hand. Even when a simple remedy fails, which is unpleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

No blame could be attached to anyone, the jury concluded.

Wash-Out Wreck Termed Act of God

Ingersoll, Ont., May 6—(CP)—The Beachville washout-wreck on the Canadian National Railways main line which resulted in four deaths April 26 today was labelled as an act of God. Two Trainmen and a transient died in the wreck. While an Ingersoll Doctor was drowned while on a mercy trip to the scene.

The washout became a tragic prelude to the Western Ontario floods that had risen that day and which, a coroner's jury sitting here last night found, were the cause of the wreck. Waters of the Thames had undermined the tracks near Beachville, three miles west of here, and they collapsed under the Chicago-Montreal flyer.

Enquiry under coroner Dr. H. G. Furlong was made into the three deaths directly due to the wreck—of Engineer Malcolm Isbester, Saskatoon; Fireman Norman Aiken, Sarnia; and Harold Brett, the transient. No inquest was considered necessary in the death of Dr. J. H. MacDonald, the fourth victim.

SAVES FALLING DIVER

Drama under the "big top" was enacted at Welland, Ont., when Leo Lalonde (above), sword swallower and glass eater, caught Miss Peggy Loomis, rookie tank diver, as she plunged to almost certain death during a practice dive. Miss Loomis, unjudging the height of 36 feet where she was standing on the tower, was falling to the ground when Lalonde caught her in his arms, breaking the fall. Miss Loomis suffered a broken jaw and a swollen eye while Lalonde received a badly wrenched shoulder.

AIRSHIP HINDENBURG CRASHES IN FLAMES NEARING MOORING MAST AT LAKEHURST, N.J., THIRTY DEAD, MANY INJURED IN AIR DISASTER

Scenes of Indescribable Horror As Passengers and Crew Caught In Flaming Mass Leap for Safety

Spark From Static of Electricity or Engine Spark May Have Caused Hydrogen to Explode in Tanks—Blinding Flames Encircle Whole Ship as It Partially Buckles in Centre and Plunges to Earth.

Eye-Witnesses Describe Scene

Emergency Call Brings Ambulances and Trucks Racing to the Burning Ship—Naval Reservation Closed to Public as Inquiry Opens into Fatality—Injured Burned Severely Walking Around Afraid to Take Off Clothing.

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 7 (AP)—Gaunt-ribbed, a skeleton of charred and twisted metal was all that remained of the silver sky liner Hindenburg today in the wake of an explosive holocaust that sent the transatlantic giant plunging to earth last night.

The death toll was tentatively set at 34 as U.S. army troops poked through the still smouldering debris in a search for missing bodies. Thirty-nine passengers and a crew of sixty-one were on board.

With hints of "anti-Nazi" sabotage being aired, a federal investigating committee began to probe the disaster which struck the "queen of the skyways" at 6:23 p.m. E.S.T., a few minutes before it was to have moored at the end of its twenty-first voyage across the North Atlantic.

Intimations the explosion "might have been caused by sabotage" came from widely-separated points—from Dr. Hugo Eckener, 69-year-old aeronautical pioneer and former commander of the ill-fated craft, in Berlin; and from Count C. C. von Zeppelin, a nephew of the German inventor of the dirigible, in Chicago.

Scores of spectators witnessed the sudden, shocking tragedy. One instant, they waved greetings up to passengers standing in the windows of the observation compartment.

CANNONADING EXPLOSION.

Then, in a flash, a cannonading explosion jarred the huge cigar-shaped craft, a streak of flame lashed out, and the Hindenburg plummeted clumsily to earth.

Tiny black objects—bodies—hurtled from the flaming craft. On the ground, women spectators screamed and covered their eyes in horror.

Today, a few hundred yards from the blackened tangle of wreckage, the dead lay row on row in the oil-stained garage that was hastily transformed into a temporary morgue.

And in the hospitals of little neighboring communities were crowded the injured, the burned, passenger and crew alike, some of them in dying condition.

Still numb was the air station from the impact of the disaster which struck so suddenly and consummated itself in fire with such awful speed.

In the span of seconds before flames enveloped the silvery fabric of the world's largest dirigible, some of the passengers and crew jumped, crawled or were hurled clear of the falling ship. Captain Ernest Lehmann, a zeppelin commander in the great war, and commander of the ship on previous voyages, stumbled from the wreck, gravely injured.

So was Captain Max Pruss, the veteran airman making his first voyage as Lehmann's successor in command. Lehmann made the trip in an advisory capacity. Others were trapped in the blazing stern.

What happened to the airship that had made so many safe crossings in fair and stormy weather remained a mystery.

HINDENBURG MISSING

Lakehurst, N.J., May 7 (AP)—The following were reported dead or missing today in the zeppelin Hindenburg's destruction:

Passengers: Ernest Rudolf Anders, Dresden; Joseph Spah, Berlin; Hermann Doehner, Mexico City; Burin Dolan; Richard Douglas, New York; Fritz Erdman; Moritz Feibusch, San Francisco; John Pannes, New York; Mrs. Ernest Pannes, his wife; and Otto Reichold, Vienna; Irene Doehner; Allan Hagaman, Lakehurst, N.J.

Crew: Walter Bernhofer (died of injuries); Ludwig Felleher (died of injuries); Hans Hugo; Stach; William Steil; and Franz Werner.

(This list does not account for eleven crew members included in the 97 listed as aboard the Hindenburg but those names were not available).

PROSPECTORS RUSH OVER ALASKA'S SANDS

Bethel, Alaska, May 7 (CP)—Prospectors flocked over the sands of remote Kuskokwim Bay in southwestern Alaska today following reports of gold, platinum and palladium strikes.

Platinum strikes are said to have been made on a narrow strip of beach at Goodnews. Gold in small quantities was reported found on the shores of Eek River and Togiak Bay.

First boat of the season brought more than 300 prospectors yesterday.

CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY

Galt, Ont., May 7 (CP)—Hospital officials today described as satisfactory the condition of Carl Schebiel of St. Clements, shot and wounded last night in a chase by Motorcycle Constable Jack Scott. Schebiel will recover, it was said.

The bullet entered the back of his neck and came out in his mouth. Constable Scott said he shot was fired as a warning to Scott when he allegedly failed to heed the officer's warning to stop.

Frankfort-on-Main Plunged in Grief

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 7 (CP)—Residents of Frankfort-on-the-Main, home terminal of the Hindenburg, wrecked at Lakehurst, N.J., were plunged into deep mourning today. Many relatives of crew members live here.

Some persons stood beneath flags at half mast in wonder of "sabotage".

"What else could it be," they asked.

But there was no official expression of such suspicion. A zeppelin official said a static spark somewhere in the dirigible's metal structure was in all likelihood responsible for the explosion.

Berchtesgaden, Germany, May 7 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler started a fund for bereaved families of the Hindenburg disaster victims today with a gift of 10,000 marks.

Lakehurst, N.J., May 7 (AP)—Captain Max Pruss, commander of the Hindenburg, was reported by the Ocean County Coroner today to be in a "critical condition" at Fast Kimball Hospital. The Coroner, Dr. Raymond Taylor, said the condition of Captain Pruss' A. Lehmann, whom Pruss succeeded as commander, was also serious and he "was not out of the woods yet".

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 7 (AP)—Dr. Ludwig Duerr, chief designer of the Zeppelin dirigible Hindenburg, today asked workers on the new "LZ 130" to "put over backs into the job, men, so (Continued on page ten)

VICTIMS DIE IN HOSPITALS

Three Bodies Taken From Wreckage of Giant Airship

Asbury Park, N.J., May 7 (AP)—An unidentified man, badly burned in the explosion of the Hindenburg, died today in Pitkin Memorial Hospital.

It was not known whether he was a passenger or member of the crew.

Lakehurst, N.J., May 7 (AP)—Three more bodies were taken from the ruins of the Hindenburg today. They were among those killed previously as missing and were not immediately identified.

Lakehurst, N.J., May 7 (AP)—Miss Irene Doehner, 16, who was horribly burned in the Hindenburg disaster died today at Beach Borough's Hospital, Miss Pleasant.

Insured for $2,500,000

London, May 7 (AP)—Insurance authorities here said today the Hindenburg was insured for $2,500,000 with the $2,000,000 spread among Lloyds and Lloyds underwriters, the remainder held by German interests.

AIRSHIP FUTURE CALLED CERTAIN

J. P. Bickell Sees Tragedy as Step in Evolution of Transportation

New York, May 7 (AP)—An expression of confidence in the ultimate future of dirigible transportation was made last night by J. P. Bickell, Toronto financier, the president of McIntyre-Porcupine Mining Company had been booked to leave this week for Germany on the zeppelin Hindenburg.

"I was looked to go on the Hindenburg and anyone who was used to air transportation would feel equally safe on such an expedition," he said.

"The tragedy that has occurred probably will be unfolded since some one was on board to see it.

"This is part of the evolution of transportation. Many people have paid the price that others may travel and finally that it will become safe for the rest of us.

"Many wild rumors will circulate throughout the world as to why and how it should happen. Undoubtedly the reason will be unfolded and steps be taken to prevent a recurrence."

A Stricken Giant Falls To Her Doom

This remarkable picture shows the huge Zeppelin Hindenburg an instant after an explosion blew sections of the huge ship to pieces, and a sweeping cloud of flame enveloped the huge bag and framework. The photographer snapped his camera at the same instant that the huge ship nosed down and crashed to the ground at Lakehurst, New Jersey. A moment later the twisted and tangled beams of the ship were imbedded deeply in the earth of the naval air field, while an estimated 30 members of the passenger and crew list were classed as dead.

RITSON CHARGED UNDER GAS ACT

Case Will Be Heard in Week Before a Magistrate

A charge laid by Fire Marshal Lionel Bishop, of the Fire Marshal's Department on the Ontario Government against Gordon Ritson, Belleville, was today read in open police court before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., the charges being laid under the Gasoline Handling Act and Regulations. Ritson was not present, when the charge was read he having previously been served with a summons to appear one week hence. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., explained to the court.

Ritson was charged, "that he did unlawfully handle inflammable petroleum products to wit gasoline in the presence of an open fire and in the location where inflammable vapours from such gasoline may be communicated and were communicated to an open fire contrary to Section 40 of the Gasoline Handling Act and Regulations of 1930."

The charge arose following lengthy investigations carried out by Fire Marshal Bishop assisted by Fire Chief Wm. Lynch and looking into the recent fire at 142 1-3 Front Street and during which the building in which Ritson conducted a body repairing establishment was completely razed during the fire which is reported to have ignited after Ritson had accidentally spilled a quantity of gasoline which splashed over upon an open stove and ignited causing the fire that destroyed the building.

The evidence in the case will be taken in a week from today.

Power Line from Chats Falls Brings Power to This District

Line Will Run From Falls to Trenton, 125 Miles

WORK IS RUSHED

FOXBORO, May 7.—(Special)—Hydro users in the Belleville district will at future low water periods experience no noticeable dimming of lights when an extra heavy load is suddenly switched on. As in order to remedy this trouble and also to prepare for servicing numerous local rural lines, which will be constructed this coming summer Hydro officials have purchased a sizable block of power from the Chats Falls power project which is situated a few miles above Ottawa City, and are striving to have the transmission line completed by August, so power can be turned through before low water conditions begin to take effect.

Rushing Work

Construction of the 125-mile transmission line is being rushed as rapidly as conditions will permit but adverse weather conditions have kept swamps and low lying sections so badly inundated that work has been held up considerably. Starting at Chats Falls, the line will continue in a southwesterly direction, crossing No. 7 Highway in the vicinity of Actinolite, running through Fuller, crossing the Madoc-Belleville Highway, one mile north of Halloway. It passes over No. 14 Highway midway between Stirling and Foxboro at the foot of Sandman's Hill, ending at No. 2 power house north of Trenton, where voltage will be stepped down for transmission over local lines.

The line will be of double pole construction, each structure having (Continued on page three)

SPANISH WAR RUMBLINGS

Bordeaux, France, May 7 (AP)—Two shiploads of Spanish refugees from Bilbao, more than 2,000 in all, reached safely in France today. Women with babies in their arms, old men unable to fight and children chattering with excitement came to the French ports of La Rochelle and Pauillac aboard two Spanish ships. Behind them they left almost all they possessed.

With the insurgents outside Bilbao and the Basque capital, capital of the Basque Republic. The offensive had been halted for three days to permit consolidation of gains that have carried the insurgents within sight of the city.

Cerbere, on the Franco-Spanish frontier, May 7 (CP-Havas)—Armed anarchists today seized control of Gerona, important railway city 30 miles south of the French frontier. Fighting between anarchists and Valencia assault troops was also reported going on near Tortosa.

With reports here of continued fighting in Barcelona, the situation seemed to be taking serious proportions throughout Catalonia.

DISASTER CAUSE WILL BE PROBED BY U.S., GERMANY

Identification of Dead Difficult, Airship's Manifest Destroyed

NAVAL INQUIRY SEEN

Lakehurst, N.J., May 7 (AP) — Fixing destruction of the seemingly impregnable dirigible Hindenburg brought swift action today by the U.S. and German governments to determine the cause of the disaster.

Thirty persons were known dead or missing.

Of the 97 passengers and members of the crew aboard when the greatest of all airships exploded, burst into flames and crashed to earth last night—just as it was lowering to the mooring mast, and only 200 feet above the ground—68 persons survived. One of those killed was a spectator, burned to death in the falling, fiery debris.

Identification of dead was difficult. The ship's manifest was destroyed in the holocaust. Zeppelin officials were in frequent communication with Germany, checking last minute changes in the passenger lists. Reservations had been made for 39 persons, but cdfupany officials said only 36 were aboard, and 61 members of the crew.

Ruins of the luxurious liner of the skies lay crumpled on the landing field at the naval air station.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist
Radio-lectures—Canada

As early as 1749 Dr. Alexander Wilson of Glasgow raised thermometers into the air by kites. From then on many attempts were made to solve the mysteries of the upper air. In 1894 the first continuously recording instrument was raised by a kite at Blue Hill, Mass. At present there are efforts on several fronts to conquer the problem of getting upper air data by radio-meteorographs. These meteorographs instruments are borne aloft by rubber balloons. They automatically radio back the pressure, temperature and humidity at pre-determined intervals. This plan does away with the necessity of sending up airplanes which many times is impossible because of bad weather conditions.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 7 (CP)—A trough of low pressure moving from Hudson Bay into the Lakehead and Manitoba to the southwest States and pressure is also low over the lower Lake region and to the southward of Nova Scotia, while moderate to high over the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Alberta. High levels were reported in southern Ontario, western Quebec, the Maritimes and in the Prairie Provinces.

Lake Superior—Moderate winds, shifting gradually fair to cloudy and warm. Saturday—Moderate to fresh winds, fair and warm. Saturday—Fair to cloudy with scattered showers and temperature cooler.

Manitoba—Mostly cloudy and unsettled, few scattered showers; cooler tonight. Saturday, mostly cloudy and cool.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Fair and cool, a little frost in exposed areas tonight, a little higher temperatures.

GIANT EEL CAUGHT OFF GOVERNMENT DOCK

Eel steaks for a week are promised from a monster specimen landed at the government dock early last evening by Wm. Dingman, local resident. Though in imminent danger of breaking both line and pole in his struggles with the writhing catch, the sixteen pounder was finally landed was found to measure almost three and one half feet, with a thickness through the body of nearly five inches. It is believed the species is rare.

'LIFER' PASSES THRU CITY ON WAY TO 'PEN'

En route to Kingston Penitentiary where he will begin a life sentence after being convicted at Oshawa on same time ago of manslaughter in the death of a storekeeper, Joseph Lashbrook, farmer of "Land of the North", passed through this city at noon yesterday under heavy guard on the Canadian National Railways. No-one reported by officers that Lashbrook intended to double a fifty cent piece with his fingers.

Collection Ore Bearing Rocks to Be Shown at City Tourist Camp

Physical wealth of Hastings County as well as its scenic advantages from a vacation viewpoint will be shown to the public this year at the city tourist camp on East Dundas Street through a complete collection of mineral specimens taken from the mineral fields of the county by Frank Wills, camp manager, with the co-operation of Hastings County council officials. The display will be arranged in detail on maps of the county, showing the source of origin of the various minerals.

FEW CHEESE READY FOR LOCAL MARKET

Though the first of the season's sale of cheese is expected to take place on the Belleville Cheese Board tomorrow, Saturday, few lots will be offered by district makers. It was indicated by local buyers today. Sales has been carried on for several days past, but sufficient quantities of cheese have not as yet been produced to merit boarding, it is reported.

Radio Commentator To Make Tour of Local Cheese Factories

For the purpose of obtaining complete information and data on cheese making through this central district, Miss Claire Wallace, well known Toronto radio commentator, will arrive in the city late this afternoon and will spend the evening on Saturday on a conducted tour of cheese factories of the district. Miss Wallace will be accompanied on her trip of inspection by Mr. L. A. Rorick, superintendent of the Eastern Ontario Dairying School and by J. L. Irwin, Dominion dairy products inspector here.

In commemoration of his active service and promotion of the cheese industry in this district, J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner 1905-23 will be honored by the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association by having his full-face likeness reflected in the 1938 calendars, proofs of which were received today at the local office of the Association.

BUOY CARRIER WAITS REPORT ON WEATHER

Making use of spare time while berthed at the local government dock this morning while awaiting weather reports before continuing east to Prescott, its home port, crew of the government buoy carrier, Grenville, filled in the time swabbing and cleaning decks and superstructure of the vessel. The boat is engaged in the annual work of buoy setting in the bay.

SEEDING OPERATIONS HELD UP BY RAINS

"While the rains of the past few days have held up seeding operations, it has benefited the farmer to some extent", a Prince Edward County farmer stated this morning. "Around Miller and the northern parts of the county alfalfa is attaining a growth seldom seen at this time of the year. In some places it is over knee high, is in bright and is growing rapidly. Present indications point to a bumper hay crop, which will be greatly appreciated especially since cattle breeding and raising has received such a decided impetus in our county."

Hobo Impertinence Annoy Local Merchant

Is there a hobo's convention somewhere in town today? questioned a Front Street merchant this morning, slightly rebellious over the fact that on his way to work shortly after eight o'clock he had been "stemmed" three times by ragged bandits for cash donations.

"The first one just wanted a cup of coffee. The second one was hungrier; he wanted me to take him in and get breakfast. The third one would have been satisfied with a quarter.

"But the pay-off came shortly after nine o'clock when a fourth one entered the store and wanted the price for a package of cigarettes," he related.

SINGLE UNEMPLOYED MOVING TO FARMS

A tendency on the part of the unemployed of the district to seek work on the farm is alleviating the difficulty hitherto experienced by farmers in securing adequate help, officials of the Employment Bureau stated today. Of late many applicants have shown an inclination for things agricultural with result, that many farmers are going about their Spring seeding with a smile on their face. However, there are a few vacancies left but these will be filled within a few days, it is expected. As a general rule farmers and potential help meet in the Employment Office on Saturday morning, where arrangements are made to the satisfaction of all concerned.

CORONATION STAMP ON SALE MAY 10-15

Information of special interest to local philatelists to the effect that a special commemorative stamp will be issued by the Post Office Department and will be used only from May 12th to Saturday, May 15th has been received by J. V. C. Truhlsch, Belleville Postmaster.

The stamp which is of three cent value bears the picture of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, and is being issued in commemoration of their coronation.

Special cancellation dies bearing a design of the British flag and a description relating to the coronation have also been issued and will be used in the prominent cities of the Dominion. These dies come into use the same day as the stamp and will be used for the same length of time.

YORKSHIRE BREEDERS TO HOLD FIELD DAY

Tentative plans for the holding of a Field Day in the Agricultural Grounds here some time in June have been made by members of the newly formed Quinte Association of Yorkshire Breeders. Formed last year the association embraces breeders from Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, and Durham and Northumberland counties.

Representatives of the Association conferred with Mr. Joseph Wilson, Agricultural representative of Stirling, in the County Clerk's office today with a view to selecting a venue, and making arrangements for the Field Day.

EXPENSIVE GIFTS
In this age of speed, fast talk and life pretty much in the open behind the wheel of purring motor cars, does the appeal of home and mother mean as much as in the horse and buggy days?
Emphatically "yes", say florists, candy shop proprietors, druggists and even book store and novelty shops, stocked for the past week or more with suitable gifts of remembrance for one of the greatest days of the year—Mother's Day—Sunday.
Girls and boys, young and old, fathers and husbands and all who go to make up the great family circle are prepared to spend more on their gifts this year as a token of fondness to the most important member of the household, if is anticipated by the local shops. They judge their predictions by the amount of orders for flowers and candies that have already been received by telephone, personal appearance or written notes.
Candy coupiers are stocked high in the confident belief in anticipation for the rush at the tag end of the week, with Saturday predicted to be the biggest day for business in gifts which will reach Sunday. "Our candies have already reached sizable proportions" comments the proprietor, pointing to the many packed boxes. "We expect big business".
Along the boundary of candy and novelty shops, books vases, artificial flowers and odds and ends are presented in profusion. It's a must be the coronation urge to buy this year, for we also present a big trade in little things that will make suitable gifts", declared a clerk busy unpacking odor novelties from their tissue paper wrappings.
At the florists' shops perfume blooms extra plants, extra amounts of cut flowers are being prepared for the Saturday rush. "We don't expect the sale of our flowers until Saturday so they will be fresh and firm for mother's place at the breakfast table on Sunday morning", observed, we, too, have already had several orders for delivery.
But are the gifts for mother confined to the usual ones, generally purchased in a mercenary segment of last minute thought? Not at all, report merchants of Belleville and other cities. Some gifts will be expensive ones.
"Consider the case of one of our customers who has on order a brand new electric washing machine to be delivered to his home in the city on Saturday evening, suitably tied with ribbons and a card bearing the words "To Mother".
"The machine was purchased with money donated by the children and the father, from his bank balance. While mother is downtown on Saturday evening the machine will be delivered and hidden until Sunday morning", stated a downtown department store manager.
Last year, it will be recalled, a local citizen purchased a brand new automobile, had it wrapped in cellophane and red, ribbons and instructed the salesman to deliver it early Sunday morning with a suitable tag. So far this year, say dealers in report for such expensive gifts.
Included also among courtesies extended mother this year will be a Sunday evening motion picture. It is indicated by reports of one restaurant owner, who has received reservations for "mother's night". It will be one evening of the year in which the dish washing will be done by someone else for a change, commented the proprietor.

Masked Intruder's Victim 'Very Ill'
Toronto, May 7 (CP) — Martin O'Brien, shot four times by a masked intruder Tuesday night, was reported "quite ill" in hospital here today. He may go under an operation later in the day to have one of the bullets removed from his lung. The other slugs struck him in both legs and an ankle. O'Brien was shot when he rushed to the defence of his suburban Mimico home answer to the call of Mrs. Edward Creary.

THREE STRAY CANINES IN CITY DOG POUND
Thos. Thorne, custodian of the local dog pound, announced today that he was in possession of three stray canines, all valuable dogs. Two red colored spaniels, one bearing a 1936 dog tag number 162, while the other had a dog collar but no tag. The third is a red retriever. Then dogs will be held in custody for the conventional 48 hours following the announcement in order to give their owners an opportunity to claim them before they are destroyed.

GARRISON TO PARADE SUNDAY

R. C. A. F. Band From Airport to Head Parade

Headed by the band of the R.C.A.F. of Trenton, members of the garrison of this city will march in the annual church parade on Sunday morning, The Argyll Light Infantry Band, under the command of Lieut. Col. A. B. Gribble, the 15th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, with Major Van Steenburg in command, and a representation of officers and men of the R.C.A.F. will form the nucleus of the parade. The parade will be in charge of Wing Commander E. L. Godfrey, R.C.A.F., but in the event of his being unable to attend the command will be taken over by Lieut. Col. Gribble.

The parade will form at the armouries shortly after ten o'clock and will march to St. Thomas' church where the service will be conducted by Major (Rev.) Murray Reaichamp Payne Chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry (Militia).

The service will be that commended by the Archbishop of Canterbury and York for general use on Sunday, May 9th, it being Sunday preceding the coronation of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Obituary

LATE JONATHAN LATTA

Many friends were present at the funeral of Jonathan Latta, late of Big Island, Prince Edward County, which took place from the Bellville Rural Company Funeral Home, Canniff Street, Thursday afternoon, May 6th. An impressive service was conducted in the chapel by the Rev. R. S. Wright.

Interment was made in Victoria Cemetery where all the pallbearers also was conducted by the same minister.

The bearers were Messrs. Raymond Sullivan, James Sullivan, Floyd Richardson, Percy Hubbs, Frank Pinkle and Douglas Atkins.

MRS. MARGARET FRAUTS

Trenton, May 7—(Special)— Suffering for the past two years with lingering illness, Mrs. Margaret Frauts aged 72, well respected resident of Trenton, died at her home on Dominion Street early yesterday morning. Mrs. Frauts was the wife of the late William Frauts and leaves a number of years ago. She lived here for eighteen years and was a resident of Wellington for 30 years formerly. The daughter of the late George and Ellen Smith, Mrs. Frauts was a native of Ontario. She was a faithful member of Grace United Church. Surviving are one sister surviv, They are one daughter, Mrs. William Frauts, Trenton, one son, Allan at home, and a sister, Mrs. Jacob Wager of Cornwall. Two of Mrs. Frauts' sons, William and Charles were killed fighting in the World War. On Friday at 2.30 p.m. in the afternoon the funeral will be held from the deceased late residence and will be made in Front of Sidney Cemetery.

HENRY BRENNAN

Henry Brennan, a life-long resident of Tyendinaga Township passed to his reward early today following an illness of lengthy duration. Death occurred at the late Mr. Brennan, that all his home near Lonsdale. He was in his eightieth year.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brennan, Mr. Brennan was born near Lonsdale, and resided in Tyendinaga Township all his life. Educated there, he chose agriculture as the life work and remained on the farm during his many years of life.

He was a devout Roman Catholic and devoted much of his time to his furtherance of the church. He was a member of St. Mary's Church, Marysville.

Left to mourn his passing are three sons, Joseph and Edward of Lonsdale, and Andy, of Tyendinaga, one brother, Edward, of Lonsdale, and one sister, Mrs. McConnell of Picton. Funeral notice will be in tomorrow's edition.

POLICE COURT

The services of two magistrates sitting in sequence on the local police court presented to complete Belleville this morning. His Worship, Magistrate R. J. Bird, K.C., presided during the larger portion of the day's proceedings, with Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, Northbrook, conducting a subsequent case at the request of the first magistrate.

A charge of the theft of a radio car was dismissed against Harry Spencer, Prince Edward County, Spencer appeared and pleaded not guilty to the charge one week ago, stating he had taken the radio for use, thinking it was his brother's. "Further investigations revealed that there was a mistake made by this young man and as he had been sent by his brother to get the car, he got it from the wrong accessory, there was apparently no intent to steal," explained the Magistrate.

A number of minor cases were disposed of in order of calling, including a charge of intoxication heard against a transient, who pleaded guilty but asked for clemency. "I was arrested on May 4th, could you make the time I have been on remand in my sentence, you see I want to get out of the Coronation celebration", suggested the accused before sentence was passed.

"That's an original request at least", interrupted Crown Attorney Donnan after which His Worship granted the prisoners desired wish. A spectator tattered the court's officers after pleading guilty to speeding and paying ten and costs.

In the domestic court that followed and was held in camera before Magistrate Lloyd at the request of Magistrate Butler, Garnet Walsh, Belleville, was found guilty of intimidation and was bound over to keep the peace for a period of two years. When the plaintiff in the case, Mrs. Sara Walsh, his wife, informed the court she was not receiving support from her husband the court gave her no satisfaction. Mr. R. D. Arnold, appearing for the defendant, establishing the questionable behaviour on the part of the plaintiff, which was admitted and resulted in the court not legislating further in the matter of support coming from the accused.

MAN WILL BE OUT IN TIME FOR CORONATION

"I've been in jail since the 4th of the month, could you let that time be included in my sentence as I want to get out of jail in time for the Coronation celebration?" pleaded Thurlow Township man present after he pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication before Magistrate R. J. Bird, K.C., in today's local police court.

"Well, at least that request is original. Do you think you could" sentence the accused seven days dating from the time of his arrest? It would let him out on May 11th," suggested Crown Attorney R. D. Donnan.

"Well, under the circumstances, yes. Seven days, to commence from May 4th" replied His Worship.

"Thank you, sir. You see I'm a war veteran and was a member of the Princess Pat, could and would to be in on the Coronation doings," explained the man after having pleaded guilty to the L.C.A. charge.

HE HAD A HUNCH, CANCELLED BOOKING

Winnipeg, May 7 (CP)—William A. Anderson, grain company president, believes in his "hunches". His had booked passage on the ill-fated dirigible Hindenburg on its return flight to Europe from Lakehurst, N.J., He said he had no special reason for cancelling the booking. "I just didn't think I'd go," he said.

DREW RESIGNS PARTY ORGANIZER REFERS TO C. I. O.

Says He Does Not Agree With Rowe's View on Party Policy

URGES FIRM STAND

Col. Drew Denies Overtures Made to Him By Liberals

Toronto, May 7— (CP) —Col. George Drew has resigned as chairman of the Ontario Conservative Party's Campaign Committee because he does "not agree with the recent statements of policy enunciated by the Hon. Earl Rowe (Provincial Leader) on behalf of the party."

Reiterating his stated belief "Labor should be better organized in Canada," the party organizer declared in a 500-word statement issued last night: "I do however believe that a firm stand should be taken against the Committee for Industrial Organization before it is too late. I am unable to understand the argument that because the C. I. O. has not generally adopted the use of methods of violence in Ontario, we should disregard its records of lawlessness and sabotage in the United States."

Rowe's Words at Arthur

In his address at the Wellington North Conservative nomination convention in Arthur yesterday, Mr. Rowe, not specifically mentioning the recent Oshawa Automobile Workers strike nor the stand taken by Premier Hepburn against the C. I. O., said: "The Liberal-Conservative party stands for the right of employees to bargain collectively through their own representatives, chosen by the workers through the medium of secret ballots, free from improper influence, coercion or intimidation.

("The choice of affiliation and the selection of their representatives is the right of Canadian workmen, as has been recognized by our federal government for many years. . . . I will trust the Canadian workman against the invasion of foreign agitators."

Cecil Frost New Organizer

Col. Drew's resignation was announced yesterday, along with appointment of Cecil G. Frost, K.C., vice-president of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association and former Mayor of Lindsay, to the post.

In his statement, Col. Drew, ousted from the chairmanship of the Ontario Securities Commission after the Hepburn victory in the Provincial election of 1934, declared himself "in entire agreement with him (Premier Hepburn) that the C.I.O. should be prevented from exploiting Canadian labor if it is humanly possible." At the same time he said: "I disagree with Mr. Hepburn's views as strongly as I ever did in regard to those questions of policy upon which I have based my criticism."

No Question of Good Faith

Col. Drew, runner-up to Mr. Rowe for the Provincial party leadership at last year's convention, to choose a successor ot George S. Henry, declared he did not question Mr. Rowe's "good faith in arriving at his decisions," and said he had "no reason to think that our friendship will continue."

He denied "any overtures had been made" to him by Mr. Hepburn. He had not seen nor spoken to the Premier since last December.

(Both Toronto afternoon papers, The Daily Star and The Evening Telegram, suggested that Col. Drew had been offered the Attorney-Generalship of Ontario in a Union Government proposed by the Premier. The Telegram said "it is also reported that Col. Drew and Premier Hepburn a lengthy letter last week in which the premier tried to explain apologizes for many of the things he has said about the "Tories".)

"There has been no correspondence between Mr. Hepburn and myself since 1934," said the Drew statement. "I have made no apologies to Mr. Hepburn nor has he made any to me."

GIN PILLS for the KIDNEYS

DR. HUGO ECKENER FAVORS HELIUM FOR DIRIGIBLES

Aeronautical Pioneer Can't Comprehend Wreck of Hindenburg

CONTINUE POLICY

Insists Airships Only Safe With Helium Gas

Berlin, May 7 (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, designer of the Hindenburg, was moved to tears today by news of the Lakehurst tragedy but quickly drew from it an argument for use of helium—which Germany lacks—to float lighter-than-air craft.

Word of the, disaster smote the 68-year-old aeronautical pioneer at the Graf Zeppelin hotel. When he was awakened to be told that the Hindenburg was a mass of smoke-blackened, twisted girders, Eckener walked to his own, the hotel proprietor said.

At first, the grizzled doctor seemed unable to comprehend what had happened.

"I can not grasp that flames have turned 'our pride' into a smashed skeleton," he muttered.

Given the first sketchy reports, Dr. Eckener said "it might have been sabotage."

"There can be several reasons for the wreck," he explained.

"The reports are still too indefinite to make any announcement."

Goes to Friedrichshafen

He said he would leave immediately for Friedrichshafen, where the Zeppelin docks are located.

"We have received several anonymous warnings of possible reports to damage the ship," the doctor added. "One mysterious warning told us not to attempt landing in America. Every precaution was taken but the only rational conclusion was that the veiled threat came from cranks.

Meanwhile, Germany officially vowed an unfaltering pursuit of lighter-than-air navigation. The nation was shocked. A rigid censorship was imposed on press accounts of the disaster.

"The veteran Eckener told newspapermen:

"I always insisted airships are safe only with helium, ever since the English dirigible exploded in France five years ago."

He turned to the future:

"I will go ahead with construction of dirigibles and send them around the globe.

"The new German Zeppelin (latter ship of the Hindenburg now under construction) will be filled with helium if we can get it from America," he declared.

Commission to Sail

A commission to investigate the wrecking of the Hindenburg was to sail for the United States today on the Europa. Investigators include Dr. Eckener and Ludwig Duerr, constructor of the Hindenburg.

The names of the other members of the commission were not disclosed but it will include representatives of the Zeppelin Construction Company, Zeppelin Airlines and members of the Air Ministry and German Institute of Aeronautical Research.

Duerr worked all night over the airship's construction chart, trying to discover a clue to the cause of the explosion. He did not believe a static current could have ignited the Hindenburg's hydrogen.

He said the cause could be established only through interviews with the surviving passengers and crew.

Dr. Eckener's new dirigible, now bearing the designation "L.Z. 130" is scheduled to be completed next autumn.

The new ship will carry 75 passengers and will have more space, although its outside dimensions are parallels, that of the stricken Hindenburg.

Berlin's populace was awakened by newsboys' shouts of "extra! extra! Airship Hindenburg destroyed!" Early editions of morning newspapers had carring no mention of the disaster.

Crowds Gather Quickly

Crowds quickly collected in the streets and discussed the tragedy. Many—men and women—shed tears. Later papers devoted entire front pages to the explosion, saying all Germany was in mourning.

Chancellor Hitler learned of the disaster early today through a telephone call from the propaganda Ministry in Berlin to his Berchtesgaden Mountain retreat. He was too stunned for words at first and whatever comment he finally made was not disclosed by his entourage.

Upon receipt of a message of sympathy from President Roosevelt, Hitler wired back.

"I thank your excellency sincerely for the words of sympathy you express to me and the German people on the occasion of the disaster of which the airship Hindenburg was the victim."

A government communique expressed Germany's and the world's distress at the tragedy but pointed out that a sister ship was under construction "to carry the German flag as ambassador from continent to continent."

POWER LINE

two lofty 60 foot poles set 12 feet apart with 24 feet crossarm attachments. Structures will be placed 600 feet apart and will carry three one inch aluminum cables. Completed the line will be 110,000 volt capacity.

Five Camps en Route

Situated at convenient places along the route are five construction camps, each camp having approximately 30 miles of line to construct. The extreme western, distribution extending from Actinolite to Tweed, has its camp on the 5th of Sidney about three miles east of Frankford. These camps are the last word of efficiency, being a new portable model built exclusively for the Hydro. The Sidney Camp with its seven individual buildings has the appearance of a very up-to-date village in miniature, having log bunk houses, cook house, dining room and office.

From this camp the men are transported in trucks to the point of works. One gang in the van clearing the right-of-way, while a second and larger gang are following up behind setting the poles. No cable has as yet been strung for stretching as they do, three to four miles at a time makes it necessary to have poles erected far in advance of the wiring gang.

With the exception of the usual corps of regular employees, all line to be recruited from local centres, Belleville sending ten men, Trenton ten and the balance from Sidney township.

ANCESTOR SAVED BY LAURA SECORD

Grandfather of Mrs. Charlotte Dunn Was in Command of Thorold Post

Quebec, May 7 (CP)—Mrs. Charlotte Dunn, whose grandfather's troops were saved by Laura Secord in her famous march of the war of 1812, died Wednesday.

The 80-year-old Quebec widow was a granddaughter of Col. James Fitzgibbon, to whom Laura Secord brought the news in June of 1813, that the Americans were planning a surprise attack on his post at Beaver de Cew's house, near Thorold, Ont.

As the outcome of the heroine's information, delivered after a perilous, 20-mile trudge through the woods from Queenston, Fitzgibbon delivered a sudden attack on the Americans and captured them in the Battle of Beaver Dams.

Fitzgibbon, a young lieutenant then, went down in the history books for another exploit 24 years later, now a colonel. In the Rebellion of Upper Canada in 1837, his loyal troops supressed William Lyon Mackenzie's rebels and forced the leader of the uprising to flee across the border to the United States in woman's clothing.

Mrs. Dunn's mother was Susan

HOUND REPORTED MAULED BY WOLVES

Severely mauled by wolves after he had trailed them to cover on his owner's farm, just south of Enterprise yesterday, a hound owned by John Kyman managed to crawl away and was found later to be in serious condition. The wolves have been raiding sheep flocks of that district for some time past, and are believed to be descendants of the same animals which were active in Tyendinaga about two years ago, but were chased from the district by annoyed farmers.

WHAT A FAMILY CLUB HAS DONE

In the New York Herald Tribune of Monday, May 3rd, appears an editorial tribute to the Ethan Allen club of Burlington, Vermont, which celebrated its eightieth anniversary the other day.

The Herald Tribune notes that this club has set many good conservative precedents in its eighty years, "conservative in the sense of preserving old values that grow increasingly valuable as time ripens them to greater authority and mellowness; the kind of conservatism that does not empty the cellar of an old vintage, and a good one, because the new pressing has promise of being possibly some day as good: the Vermont kind of conservatist."

What this conservatism is is interesting to see. It is something that other clubs of this kind, which bind descendants of a common ancestor together and pay honor to a founder, might consider.

Here in the words of the Herald Tribune is what the Ethan Allen Club has done. "There have been good and bad vintages in American architecture, heaven knows. It is always a melancholy sight, though, when the second-hand building material sign is raised before some good early Federal, Georgian or genuine early Colonial piece of public or domestic architecture because expensive repairs are needed to preserve it or because it is crowded out by the needs of business, private or public.

When the city or the state or the Federal government cannot find money to conserve such buildings, it is good fortune for every one concerned when a club like the Ethan Allen can step in and make a home for itself in one of them. In preserving the old Peck homestead in Burlington as its clubhouse, judiciously restoring it to something very like its original condition, the beautiful old rose-red brick 'sandblasted from behind drab Victorian paint, interiors, divested of other souvenirs of bad architectural vintages, the Ethan Allen Club has once again evidenced that conserving and renewing old values of the kind that ripen with age is a worth-while job."

Some such tasks are awaiting other such clubs; if they do not do the work, the pioneering relics and treasures will be dissipated and be lost to memory, the New York editor points.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Lucius E. Allen, formerly a resident of Belleville for some years, where he practiced the profession of engineering, is associated with the Ethan Allen organization in the United States. He is the editor and publisher of the "Ethan Allen Family News", Fort Lauderdale, Florida, published for "the entire Allen family."

The name Allen appears in early records in Europe as Alain, Aleyne, Alyn, or Alan. The name of Alain appears after in the history of Brelsgne or Brittany, France.

Ethan Allen was a prominent figure in New England in the days before and the days of the American Revolution.

APPEAL TO BRITISH MOTORISTS

From England over the signature of Rt. Hon. Leslie Hore-Beliaha, Minister of of this city, a former president of the this city a former president of the Belleville Motor Club a copy of a personal message from the Minister of Transport to every British driver renewing his licence. This was sent to Mr. Ruston by a friend.

The message tells the familiar story of death on the roads, nearly twenty a day or 6,500 persons in a year. "In most cases the driver's action was not criminal, but deaths were generally due, directly or indirectly, to a motor; and when this powerful machine hits, it can be as lethal as a shell," it is pointed out.

One striking phrase is this "He prepared for the mistakes of others."

Another is "Children cannot judge as well as grown-ups and they often forget the need for caution; their safety at those moments depends on you. Nearly 900 children under the age of 11 years were killed on our roads last year, nearly three a day."

The warning goes on:

"Elderly poople may be slow in hearing, thinking or moving; they must depend partly on you for their safety. Nearly 1,500 persons aged 60 or over were killed on our roads last year, well over four a day.

"Cyclists are apt to swerve—give them plenty of room. Nearly 1400 pedal cyclists were killed, three quarters of them in collision with motor vehicles.

"Most accidents occurred at times and places which are not themselves dangerous, on straight roads and in good light.

"Please be courteous as well as careful. One inconsiderate hundreds of people in a day and by so doing add greatly to the dangers of the road."

TO AN INVALID FRIEND

Dear heart, held down and circumscribed by fate,
Please do not worry that the days seem long;
Within that little room, unknown to you,
I've often heard the veriest angels' song;
And when my heart was weary and afraid
You gave me strength to go along the way,
Nor ever deemed that you were doing aught
But just the common duties of the day.

Dear tired one! You've passed along to me
An offering far greater than you knew,—
A vision of the waste of discontent,
The grandeur of a heart that sees it through.
Now I am far away from where you are,
And all that part of life is just a dream,—
All but your cheerful room, your flowers, your books,
Your snowy curtains, and the sunshine's gleam.

And all your lovely thoughts! Your wholesome faith,
All clean and free from foolish bigotry;
Your eyes, that bravely look ahead, and face
The truth, knowing the truth shall make you free;
Your heart, so big that you can understand
The tendency of mortal man to sin;
And yet, despite all that, can open wide
Its doors, and let the honest sinner in.

A NEW RADIO PROGRAM FEATURE ON CRCT, Toronto, is worthy of note—Phillip H. Goodsell, well known author, fur trader and Hudson Bay Company official, gives a half-hour talk. This program comes on every Tuesday night at 10.30, when the author of "Arctic Trader" tells a tale of the far north from his experience of Hudson Bay men, Mounted Police, Indians, Eskimos, etc. Tuesday night he told the tale of a very interesting character, a Norwegian sailor, called "The Sea Wolf" who amassed a fortune in the far North, by methods at once bizarre and spectacular upon the principle, or lack of principle, rather, that "there is no law north of 53, whatever that means. "Arctic Trader" Goodsell's weekly talks will be well worth listening to, being an essential part of that great saga of the Canadian Northwest which can never be written in one volume.

TIME MARCHES ON, indeed, when out of Canada's Northland comes a daily paper of 28 pages, the Timmins Daily Press, which expresses the virality and progressiveness of the greatest gold belt in the world by publishing a special "Motor Edition of 28 pages. Standing on the brow of the hill overlooking Golden City, Porcupine District, Dominion Day, 1911, with a vision of flimsy shacks and many men scurrying about, with a glimpse of Porcupine Lake in the near distance, with Mrs. Todd's island and hostelry in the foreground and South Porcupine in the rear, who could have dreamed that Golden City would disappear, South Porcupine become a memory, and a beautiful city of twenty or more thousand arise from the bush in so short a time to perpetuate the name of Timmins, pioneer miners of La-Rose, Cobalt, and Hollinger Mine, Porcupine. All this is brought back vividly by a copy of The Timmins Daily Press, which has opened a branch at Kirkland Lake and purposes to cover the whole north country. Shades of ruddy Cobalt days and nights when the Cobalt Nugget was the mirror of the greatest silver camp in the world, the trail of empire leads ever farther into the northland, where now there is no habitation or hardly a trail. Congratulations to those hardy pioneers of the art preservative of arts.

DIPLOMACY

Seated before a grizzled group of directors who believed him to be the man they wanted to hire as sales manager, the candidate was asked by one of the group, "Who is the boss in your home?"

"I am" was the reply, "but I keep my wife thinking she is."

That was one of the answers that won a $25,000 job for him.

BOAT OVERTURNS

Tweed—Mrs. Maria Morton of Tweed, Grand Organist of the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star assisted at the installation of officers of Belleville Chapter No. 55 on Friday evening in Belleville.

Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales motored to Toronto on Monday morning. Mrs. J. H. Dales, Dr. Dale's mother, and Mrs. D. Johnston, mother of Mrs. Dales who have been spending the winter in Tweed returned to Newmarket and Belwood.

Mr. and Mrs. T. McCray, Miss Mildred McCray of Toronto and Mrs. R. Milton of Elmwood were week end guests of Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Hope Swayne.

Mrs. George Clark was the delegate representing the Deaneries of Hastings County at the annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries of the Anglican Church held in Brockville Trinity Anglican Church. Mrs. M. Wallace and Mrs. J. J. Luttman were also in attendance, the latter as official delegate of the local W. A.

Considerable damages to the district roads caused by the spring floods is being repaired by a large gang of men under foreman W. G. Marlinis. Considerable improvement is also being made to some dangerous corners.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Lawlor of Norwood visited Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales on Monday for a short time.

Mr. W. D. Courtney and Mr. Walter Courtney of Tweed attended the funeral of their brother, Howard, on Sunday in Frankford.

Divisional Commander, Brigadier Riches and Mrs. Riches will be in charge of special Mother's Day and Coronation Sunday services to be held at the local Salvation Army Citadel on Sunday, May 9th.

Twenty priests attended the conference at Tweed when Trenton Deaneries held on Tuesday evening at the Convent Hall. His Grace Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston addressed the Priests.

Peterboro Boys' Band will present a fine concert in Tweed under the auspices of the local Salvation Army Corps on Sunday evening, May 23rd. They will give a short concert on the street on Saturday evening, May 22nd. Assisting at the Sunday evening program will be Tweed Citizens' Band under Bandmaster W. E. Dark with Reeve Gaylord as Chairman.

Wednesday afternoon was the beginning of the local mid-week half-holiday. Merchants closed their places of business at 12.30 p.m. and devoted their afternoons to various pursuits, particularly around home where an accumulation of ashes and other rubbish was given special attention.

Eddie Rushlow of Actinolite narrowly escaped drowning on Sunday afternoon when he fell into the river. His rescue was effected by Kempton Woodcox who was fortunately at hand at the time. It appears that Rushlow rowed into the river in an old boat which, overturned in the rushing torrent. He was unable to swim and but for the timely appearance of Woodcox would undoubtedly have drowned. The latter in a canoe, with a stick for a paddle, on reaching Rushlow, the canoe also capsized placing both lives in jeopardy. Woodcox rescued the unfortunate boy. After great difficulty Woodcox reached the shore with Rushlow, neither suffering any ill-effects from their unschooled swim.

Mr. Tom Chase is slowly settled in his summer home on Sugar Island. He is the first to arrive in the spring and the last to leave in the late autumn.

Mr. Ira Lowry, caretaker of Tweed Memorial Park, with the assistance of Tom Breen, constructed several large cement anchors to hold the swimming float in place at the lake shore. The chain which secured the float during previous seasons, rusted through and broke off with the action of the waves and high winds shortly after the ice went out in the spring, with the result that the old anchors were lost and new ones required to replace them.

Wm. Newman, M.P.P. and son Allan, Mr. T. B. Newman and daughter Kathleen and Mr. H. Newman of Lorneville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sim McCrea.

Mr. W. E. Tamblon represented Tweed United Church at a Presbytery meeting held in Thomasburg on Tuesday evening.

Special Mother's Day and Coronation Sunday services will be held at Tweed United Church on May 9th. The choir will provide special music suited to the occasion and the Rev. R. R. Nicholson will deliver appropriate addresses.

Miss Lois Ketchenson spent last Sunday with her sister Elizabeth at McDonald College in Quebec.

Mr. Robbin Dulmage of Ottawa, formerly of Tweed, is still quite ill with rheumatic fever.

Mr. Ernest Hall of Tweed has been confined to his bed for the past eight weeks.

Miss Mavis McGuire, B.A. having successfully completed her recent examinations at Queen's University will receive her Master of Arts Degree at Convocation on Friday.

Miss Gertrude Cassidy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cassidy of Stoco, was operated on for removal of appendix at Hotel Dieu, Kingston this week.

Rev. F. Dennis A. Cullinane of St. Edmund's Church, Stoco will succeed the late Very Rev. Dean J. P. O'Riordan as Dean of the Carlbagh'n Church, Tweed. Rev. Fr. Meagher of Madoc will go to Stoco, Rev. Fr. Hyland is Brewer's Mills goes to Stoco, and Rev. Fr. Shannon, Curate of Tweed R. C. Church will be stationed at Spencerville.

The Tweed News celebrates this week its fiftieth year as a newspaper. Founded in May 1887 it has withstood the vicissitudes of time and fortune for half a century and is today under its capable editor R. R. Curry, one of the finest country weeklies in the Province of Ontario. It was established by W. W. Little who sold out a few months later to C. J. White, P. J. Taylor, who later edited the Campbellford, Lake Shore Gun, purchased the Tweed News and continued to sell it until exchanged for the Embro and Thamesford Weeklies, owned by O. M. Alger. Two later owners of the editor until he moved with his family to Ottawa, where he established the Alger Press. Tweed News was purchased by a stock company, Tweed Publishing Co. Ltd. H. Morrison, editor of Bancroft Times was engaged as manager, assigning later. His place was taken by J. H. Davis of Madoc. In 1920 the other Tweed weekly paper the Tweed News from Tweed News Limited and has continued to publish the past six years to supply "the news while it is new" in an attractive and interesting manner.

SCENES

S. Deutschland, who rushed to Peel Kimball Hospital at Lakewood to see Captain Ingram, gasped out as saying:

"I don't know what happened. She just went up."

"Something strange caused that tragedy," said Lieut. Col. Wilson, state aviation director, announcing immediate federal state investigations. There was an explosion, he said, in No. 3 gas cell stern.

"In all my 21 years of flying experience I have seen crackups, explosions, flaming airplanes," he said, "but nothing measures up to explosion of the Hindenburg."

Fred D. Fales, chief engineer of the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce, arrived from New York and said the inquiry would be held today or tomorrow.

Curiosity Seekers Barred

The warped wreckage remained where it fell, pending inspection by a court of inquiry. The naval reservation was closed to all spectators and curiosity seekers.

Dazed and bleeding survivors didn't know what happened, didn't know, in fact, how they had survived.

The 500-foot long Swastika-emblazoned ship, graceful despite her bulk, sailed into her North American port in a rain storm, more than 12 hours late because of headwinds, which cut down speed over the Atlantic.

Unhurried despite a planned quick turn-about with a record list of passengers booked for the trip back for the Coronation, the ship nosed up toward the mooring mast.

Passengers Spotted

Passengers, spotting relatives and friends below, waved gaily. Three minutes later—explosion.

The ship settled to earth, its bag now a mass of flame, its terrified, bewildered passengers shrieking.

The stories of the tragedy were all the same.

"Bluish flash," said Herbert O'Laughlin of Chicago, a survivor. "Then 1,000 candles in charge of ballets coming out of the gondolas." said Robert Seelig, a photographer on the ground. "I saw the ship go just sink down and the flames go through it."

The disaster, writing a fiery finale to the Hindenburg's 125,000 miles of safe transit across the Atlantic, was the first major wreck to involve a lighter-than-air ship carrying paying passengers.

Fourth Major Tragedy

All other crashes, in the 78 years since Count Zeppelin began the use of dirigibles, involved military or naval craft.

It was North America's fourth major tragedy of its kind, the other three being the United States naval dirigible Shenandoah, which broke in tow during a storm over Ohio, Sept. 2, 1925, with a death toll of 14; the destruction of the Akron off Barnegat Inlet, April 4, 1933 with 73 killed, and the plunge of the Macon into the sea, off the California coast early in 1935.

Tearfully, in long unitary lines streams of thousands, poured into Lakehurst, eager to gain in awe on the scene.

Motorists Stopped

Ten miles out, on roads radiating from the nine-hemmed airport, guards shouted in vain at the oncoming hordes of motorists:

"Nothing to see. Breakdown down this road."

The determined crowds abandoned their cars and pressed forward on foot through wood and thicket to the spot where lay the fused, aluminum skeleton of the once proud ship.

At the big gate, ¾ mile from the hangar, troops milled in the darkness of early dawn, probing with flashlight, peering closely for a sign of life, commanding the long way back.

Other men patrolled the high fence, which many agile spectators had broken down in their rush to see. Here and there, silhouetted against the sky, were lazy figures, undamaged by the guards trudged a mile around to the unfenced section behind the hangar, where the vast, ragged lines were set up.

In the Zeppelin Company's office, beside the hangar, a score of Germans, grim and nervous, conversed in low tones. An officer with his head swathed in crimson-stained bandages moved about, talking into a telephone.

Then men lined a truck backed up to the hangar. Each time, it brought another charred body.

Graphic Descriptions Come

Graphic descriptions of the disaster came from eye-witnesses.

"All was serene on the ground and calm when suddenly flames burst from the zeppelin's tail," said Dr. Carl A. Cranwell, a physician. "Her rear half puffed up and burned, then the front bulged out in huge fiery flame. In less than a minute she was on the ground, dropping like a deflated parachute."

As the flaming mass plunged downward, there rose a cry to the ground crew: "Run for your lives."

The first bewilderment gone, they ran back to the blazing, still explosive wreckage.

The men in the top, grimly bore into the flames like dogs after rabbits," said Gill Robb Wilson, New Aviation Director, in lauding their rescue work.

The passengers and crew, those that were not trapped in the blazing belly, sought escape.

Mrs. Herman Doehner of Mexico City and Lolo Point Pissani Hospital aides she and two sons were in the dining room when the first blast occurred. She threw her sons out of the window and then, with the ship six feet off the ground, jumped herself. A daughter also escaped but her husband was not reported in the early survival list.

Landed on Stomach

"I landed on my stomach and crawled 30 or 40 yards to escape the flames," Philip Mangone of New York told reporters at Red Bank Hospital.

The big, sandy, pine-bordered plain, a few minutes before gay with the laughter of relatives envisioning a happy homecoming, became a place of death.

Doctors and nurses, summoned by a State-wide alarm, sped in ambulances from many sections of the State. Fire trucks, pumped water for hours into the crumbled hulk.

Anxious and tear-faced relatives of those aboard the ship streamed into Lakehurst, another hospital, viewed the dead.

Theories, some from various sources on the cause of the disaster such as had stricken down the Hindenburg's sister ship, the Graf Zeppelin, officials burying to the scene to make the inquiry said it was "too early" to try to fix the reason.

Some Causes Given

F. W. Von Meister, vice-president of the American Zeppelin Transport Company, United States agents for the German Zeppelin Transport Company, the Hindenburg's owners, said the rain may have created a spark of static electricity when the landing ropes were dropped, touching off the highly explosive hydrogen gas.

He said the tragedy may have resulted also from a spark from one of the engines, ignited one of the hydrogen, which the ship had been valved to maintain its level. Officials have gathered in a packet under the Hindenburg's keel, salt, and detonated from the spark.

The Hindenburg left Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, 76 hours before; had cruised majestically over the skyscrapers of New York and headed to Lakehurst for an evening landing.

Then the ship was sighted at Lakehurst soon after three o'clock, but hovered over the plane, looking much like a big cigar, awaiting favorable landing conditions and the clearing of a light rain and electrical storm.

Had Greater Control

The ground crew of 80 navy men and 110 civilians in charge of Lieut. R. K. Tyler, former Pilot officer who flew in lighter-than-air craft during the Great War, moved toward the mooring mast—seven feet lower than last year's to permit greater control of the craft as she was wound in by the nose.

The motors droned as she approached the mast. Two nose lines were dropped through trap doors. The lines were attached and the bigger silver bag gleamed despite fast-falling darkness. A light rain was still falling.

Lights gleamed from the gondolas.

Then came a crackling roar, and the few hundred spectators—a thankful compared to the thousands who watched the Hindenburg end her maiden North Atlantic flight a year ago this month gasped.

Flame had broken out from the ship in half. She burned as she crumpled. Tail of the ship settled 200 feet to earth she was a blazing tomb.

Clothes Burned Off Body

At first it was feared that all aboard had perished.

Various humanity, in long unitary streams of thousands, poured into Lakehurst, eager to gain in awe on the scene.

Then a man crawled out of a gondola, his clothes burned off his body in shreds. A woman leaped from a window. More came stumbling out. Then the ground crew found the dead, as well as the living.

It was the job of the first watch, as F. J. Lehmann, first class machinist's mate, related, "to haul the dead off the field and get them."

"Have you ever seen a guy burned so you think that he shouldn't be walking, but he does?" he said. "We found a sailor who knew if there were any more aboard so him we would be stripped, taking his flesh with him, so he had taken off everything except his underclothing.

"We saw him wandering around all black from the hands to the elbows, and from the feet to the knees, and still he walked. He looked no more than an inch of ash all over him."

Early today it was discovered that the lead-in conductor was among the dead.

Inquiry is Opened

Officials opened their inquiry into the cause of the crash while the still warm ruins held the bodies of disaster victims.

Three agencies planned to question those survivors able to talk in Washington, Senator Copeland (D-NY) Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee proposed a sweeping study of the crash.

Many questioned the Lakehurst Station said a Board of Inquiry would be named. Fred D. Fagg, newly appointed Director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, reached the scene late last night. He was advised of the accident while speaking at a luncheon in New City auditorium and hurried to Lakehurst by plane.

His first words were that an official inquiry would start today or tomorrow.

A representative of the American Zeppelin Corporation also said a "thorough investigation" would be launched immediately.

E. Z. Matthews, First Class machinist's mate, in his report gave this vivid eyewitness account of the disaster:

"I saw the explosion, the whole thing, since I was underneath the port centre of the dirigible when it fell.

Knocked Down by Blast

"I was on the portside. I heard a terrifying explosion overhead and I was knocked down by the blast. I caught my balance and started to run when the second explosion hit me and no more had I got up from that than another blast hit me, and at the end I was no more than 100 feet away from the burning ship.

"The port side of the ship gave way first, and then the opposite side, both opposite the motor nacelles on the big balloon.

"That was only the beginning of the trouble. As soon as the ship came down, the first watch had to haul the dead out of the wreck, and it was the most horrible experience I ever expect to go through.

"At the end, after we had taken all the living and the injured away, there were still the bodies in the wreckage, and with most of them we had to burrow with our hands to find enough of the poor fellow to carr away and cover with a blanket.".

Master John Hills son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Doyle, Albert Street, who was operated upon for appendicitis at Belleville Hospital recently, is recovering nicely at his home.

A pretty afternoon euchre and tea featured the regular weekly meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Grand International Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers held at the home of Mrs. H. Varley, 165 Yeomans Street, on Wednesday. Five tables of euchre were enjoyed by the many guests present, with the pretty favors being awarded to Mrs. R. Snell and Mrs. W. Morgan. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess at the conclusion of play, rounding out a delightful afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall of Foxboro entertained in honor of the birthday of Mr. Hall, Sr., on Saturday evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Adams, Sr. Redneersville; Mrs. Moore, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker, Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sills, Mr. and Mrs. Eva. Sills, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Davis and Miss Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Murney Reynolds and Jaune, of Foxboro. A very enjoyable evening was spent and all wished Mr. Hall many more happy birthdays.

MRS. W. FINKLE TO HEAD CLUB

Popular President Re-elected by Home And School Club

Election of officers was held at the regular monthly meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Club in the School Auditorium, May 4th. The following slate of officers was presented by the nominating committee.

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. R. R. Logie.
Pres.—Mrs. W. H. Pinkle.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Weller.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. C. A. Cannon.
Treas.—Mrs. S. Hagerman.
Cor. Sec'y—Mrs. R. R. Gibson.
Rec. Sec'y—Mrs. Morden.
Chairman of Refreshment Com.—Mrs. Clarke.
Chairman of Programme Com.—Mrs. Truesdale.
Chairman of Finance Com.—Mrs. Pratt.

Members of the Executive—Mrs. H. Smith, Mrs. W. Bird, Mrs. M. G. Cook, Miss Lillian McGuire.

Pianist—Mrs. Ross Hunter.

A very splendid musical program was enjoyed by the audience. Jim Hunter, accompanied by Mrs. Hunter, presented a cornet solo.

Mrs. Pinkle harmoned to the audience Mrs. Alexander, of Madoc, supervisor of music in twenty schools in East Hastings. Mrs. Alexander outlined her method of teaching music theory to Public School children. The aim of the curriculum is to teach the children to read simple music. Mrs. Alexander had with her the pupils of Roslin, Marsh Hill, Wallbridge and Ivanhoe Public Schools. These children presented a varied programme of song:

Chorus of four schools.
O Canada.
Peace Song.
Belleview Song — Wallbridge School.
Hark! the Lark! and Gliding O'er the Meadow, in two-part harmony—Wallbridge School.
Heigh-ho! Come to the Fair, in Unison—Roslin School.
Missouri Waltz, in two-part harmony—Marsh Hill School.
Stars of the Summer Night and Old Folks at Home—Marsh Hill girls' quartet.
Lullaby, three-part harmony and Billy Boy—Ivanhoe School.
Coronation Hymn.
God Save the King.

Miss Melbourne, of Roslin School was the accompanist for some of the numbers.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, Inspector of Public Schools, stressed the fact that none of the children taking part was over Public School age. The choruses were not picked but consisted of entire schools. Mr. Clarke expressed the hope that other School Boards in South Hastings would seek to provide similar musical training.

Mr. Anderson, principal of Queen Alexandra School, moved a very hearty vote of thanks to those taking part in the programme.

WEDDING DATE IS AFTER CROWNING

Duke of Windsor And Mrs. Simpson Pose For Photographers

Monte, France, May 7 (AP)—Date of the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson will be announced after the coronation.

Herman Rogers, their spokesman, said the announcement may be made Friday, adding it certainly would not be on Thursday, May 13, for that is the day of the coronation in London on Wednesday.

A friend of Mrs. Simpson intimated the marriage will take place at the Chateau de Cande, near here, some time between May 23 and June 3.

The Duke and Mrs. Simpson, hand in hand, posed for photographers beneath a chestnut tree on the lawn of the chateau.

Inside, invitations were being prepared for their marriage.

"We are very happy. We always are very happy," the Duke said, smiling.

The bride-to-be's trousseau, including a wedding gown in Nile, is virtually complete. On the day she becomes the Duchess of Windsor Mrs. Simpson will wear a white afternoon dress, part of an ensemble with a jacket to match in soft silk.

TABERNACLE W. I.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Association of Tabernacle Church held on Thursday evening, Mrs. A. Palmer and Mrs. M. G. Burgess, were appointed delegates to attend the Women's convention being held at Demorestville on May 26.

The usual business of the Women's Auxiliary was transacted and the treasurer's report received following the reading of the minutes. J. A. Mosher's May program was in charge of Mrs. E. Taylor's group.

Appropriate readings were given by Mrs. French, Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Taylor. Mrs. Percy Cornell sang "That Wonderful Mother of Mine." A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Taylor for her efficient manner in conducting the meeting, which closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

D. D. G. M. PAYS VISIT TO LODGE

Rt. Wor. Bro. Harry Redner Guest at the Belleville Lodge

"The Landmarks of Masonry" was the subject of an address delivered by Rt. Wor. bro. Harry Redner, D.D.G.M. of the Prince Edward District upon the occasion of his official visit to The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A.F. & A.M., G. R. C., at the Masonic Temple last night. One of the largest gatherings of the season welcomed the distinguished visitor, who was accompanied by other Masonic notables of the district. Delegations of different lodges were represented as visitors.

During the course of the evening and for Masonic educational purposes, the first degree was exemplified and commended by the visiting officials. Wor. Bro. Clinton McDonald presided at the banquet, that followed in the auditorium. Toasts to the Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge Officers was responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. Redner, D.D.G.M. and M. W. Bro. Col. W. N. Ponton, It was following this toast, that the speaker of the evening delivered his enlightening and edifying talk on "the landmarks of Masonry."

The toast to the visitors found, many called upon to reply and congratulate The Belleville Lodge for a splendid evening of fellowship. The toast was proposed by Bro. L. A. Hills and responded to by Wor. Bro. Fred Chapman, Moira Lodge, Wor. Bro. Jack Andrews, Eureka Lodge, Bro. Rev. Beazer and others. The toast to the newly initiated candidate was proposed by Wor. Bro. W. Embury and was responded to by the candidate. During the evening the lodge choir assisted in the ritual, while at the banquet community singing was enjoyed with James Bankier delighting all with two solos, being accompanied by Mr. Geo. Maybee.

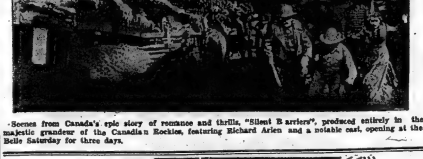
THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

"Ladybet"—and a Party (LEFT), and viewing the model Village of Bekonscot in Buckinghamshire

THERE is little that can be written about Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, heir presumptive to the British throne, that has not been said and repeated many times. The cynosure of the empire's eyes since her birth in April, 1926, this charming little daughter of King George and Queen Elizabeth has been fated to grow up her every move noted and her every gesture commented upon. Yet in gazing along the road which has led her father and mother to the throne, the fluffy-haired darling of millions cannot be ignored. She has meant too much to them, to their country and empire and to their place in England's heart. Almost for the first time since she was born, the spotlight of publicity has turned for a time more fiercely upon her parents than upon the princess, yet the coronation over and England looking ahead once more with the hope that a lengthy and happy reign lies before the King and Queen, Her Royal Highness cannot but move back into the forefront of the empire's thoughts.

Her, unless unforseen fate makes monarchy once more its plaything, this pig and tackling sibling will some day hence take up the crown that her grandma wore so well in past centuries and, give Britain a Queen again as her sovereign.

Already it is said she is aware of her destiny; her mother and her grandmother have trained this child as a future queen. Her sense of responsibility and her dignity upon occasion are astonishing. Yet at heart she is still a fun-loving carefree child. She loves to ride and has a pony of her own; she goes dashing around her playground astride her bicycle like a boy; she likes to chase and romp with her father and her dogs, and she wishes most of all to ride in an aeroplane. This greatest wish has not yet been granted.



Fitting perfectly into the role she has been compelled to play, however, this child who was born that was Queen Mary, seeing afar what this child would be called upon to assume, has chosen. Her tuition calls of course for adequate instruction in the usual schoolroom subjects and like millions of her sisters she has her likes and dislikes.

In her brief span of life thousands of her future subjects in many walks of life have seen her, welcomed her, cheered her and loved her. She has been taught to appreciate their interests and their interest in her and while her parents' service to the empire has been added to a hundred fold by their station in life, they too will place as a foremost part of their service the task of rearing their daughter to some day rule as a queen.

Realism Features "Silent Barriers," Canada's First Million Dollar Picture

One of the obvious characteristics of Silent Barriers, Canada's million dollar production depicting the dramatic story of the building of the C. P. R., across the Dominion in which Richard Arlen, Lilli Palmer, Barry Mackay and J. Farrell Macdonald portray the star roles, is its stark realism?

To achieve this end, Gaumont British Picture Corp. sent from London to Revelstoke, B. C., a distance of 6,000 miles, the largest production unit ever to film a picture on Canadian soil so that the actual locales of the difficult and dangerous building of the railway 50 years ago would be used in the screen epic. Because of the desire for authenticity, the making of the picture required no less than 19 months before its world premiere in the New Gaumont Theatre, Haymarket, London, in the presence of Queen Mary when it was accorded an ovation.

Apart from the love angle which features the story, Silent Barriers is literally an historical document dealing with the turning point in the development of Canada as a nation when the Provinces became united through the spiking of the line to the Pacific Coast. An example of the care in the reproduction of historical incidents is the scene showing the driving of the last spike of the railway at Craigellachie in the British Columbia Interior. A photograph of the ceremony was followed minutely with the result that theatre-goers will be able to see a re-enactment of the scene with Hon. Donald A. Smith, later Lord Strathcona, and the Governor on the golden spike in the presence of other C. P. R. notables of the day.

Original equipment, such as the actual first locomotive and coaches, construction machinery and tools which had been used in early days were brought out for this rebuilding of the cross-Canada line. A raging forest fire on the slopes of Mount Revelstoke, near Golden, B. C., last summer was utilized for one of the thrilling sequences while a huge snow slide at Rogers provides one of the many stirring episodes.

Cubs Show a Lot of Health For a Bunch of Cripples by Winning 6 Out of Seven Games

Defeat Phillies 1-0 With Lee Allowing One Hit in Five Frames

THREE WAY TIE

Yanks, Tigers And Boston at Top of American Loop

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

For a bunch of cripples who were supposed to need wheel chairs and stretchers to get around the circuit, those Chicago Cubs show a lot of health.

In spite of a casualty list, that makes Wrigley Field resemble a base hospital, the Cubs travelled to the fastest pace in the National League at the game have climbed from sixth place to a tie for third in the last week and are showing no signs of letting up.

When Pitcher Larry French and second baseman Billy Herman were on the hospital list with Tex Carleton, Curt Davis and Gabby Hartnett last week, the experts figured it was curtains as far as the Cubs were concerned.

Since French went out with three broken fingers, the Cubs have won six of seven starts with a combination of powerhouse offense and tight defense, that has given the opposition a chance.

Their second up in third place yesterday, when rain cut their tilt with the Phillies to five innings with the Cubs winning 1-0 for their sixth straight triumph. Bill Lee, who pitched for the second time in the week, muffled the Phils with one lone hit.

Three Way Tie

The big change in standings for the day came in the American League, where the Tigers topped the Yankees 11-9 and the idled Red Sox moved out into a three-way tie with Boston and Cleveland. Jo Browns 2-1 to throw the lead into a three way tie. Hank Greenberg, with a homer, double and triple led the drive against Yankee pitching at Detroit, while Footsie Marcum hurled his third straight win to give Boston its victory and a share in the top race.

For the first time this season, the Cincinnati Reds showed a winning streak of two by blanking the Giants 4-0 behind Lefty Lee Grissom first hit hurling. Dodgers snapped the Pittsburg Pirates streak at four straight by staging a seven-run rally in the fifth inning for a 9-3 victory. Cards and Boston Braves were rained out.

Connie Mack's upsetting Athletics topped the Chicago White Sox for the second day running, by a 3-1 margin. Roy Weatherly's home run with a mate on base in the eighth gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-2 win over the Washington Senators.

In the Major "A" group the Christie Cakes won the second half of the schedule and the playoff honors although the Belleville Crushettes took seven out of a possible eight points from them. The latter ended in a tie, missing out by tying the Major "A" champions, however, in the final game, when the Pruitts took three points to the Christie's one, the former won 2390 to 2186; in the second game the Pruits won 2. to 1. points by the score of 2456 to 2102.

Other major league games resulted as follows—Grads' 2956; Secretaries 2805; Textiles 2739; C.I.D.E. 2704.

In the junior League championship series the 34th Battery R.C.A. won the league honors as they defeated the Bankers in the final game of the season by the score of 2736 to 2242. It was the first season the "Gunners" won the junior league honors.

In the Major "B" league, however, Corbins win over the Nashua's 2923 to 2182. George Supply 2642, Corbins No. 2, 2569, Schneiders 2657, Rovers 2657. The championship in this group will be announced next week. Dan Strannan, Corby's, was the high scorer of the night with a score 704.

So exact are the specifications of a tennis ball today that, if a ball is dropped from a height of 100 inches onto a concrete base in a room where the temperature is 60 degrees, the perfect ball will bounce between 53 and 58 inches....if the temperature is raised 15 degrees, the ball will bounce 57 or six inches higher.....Joe Dimag's lazy off doesn't seem to have impaired his batting eye.....Bob Feller, Rex Weatherby and Geoffrey Heath, the three Cleveland Juveniles, have rented a house, and live together with a house-keeper on hand to see they get good food, looking when the Indians are at home.

Only four Dodger Pitchers have gone the route this season and Van Mungo is all four of 'em.....Here is one for the book in the way of long distance travelling.....Alabe Blaza, since 1919 a regular on the Sing Sing baseball team, has been sent to Albania (we said Albany of the New York—Penn League) to head Albania's League of Nations.....Governor Lehman pardoned Blaza's condition, he departed immediately.....Blaza was a 10-year man at Sing Sing, but that didn't keep him from leaving for Albania in charge of a Federal Immigration Officer.....It is said at Louisville today, Military, is the best horse in the Derby field in this book.....Call us, write your own ticket if the track is fast. We still think Col. Bradley's Billionaire is going to run better than a lot of people think.

FIVE TEAMS IN LOOP

Montreal, May 7—(CP)—Martin E. Conway, Secretary-Treasurer of the Quebec Lacrosse Association, announced last night the five teams that will make up the Senior group this season; with this schedule opening sometime after June 1.

Canadiens, Verdun and Shamrocks from Montreal district, Cornwall Ont., and Dalhousie, Quebec—Cornwall border team will form the group, he said.

Though arrangements are still only in the tentative stage, it is planned to have one of the outside teams visit Montreal once a week and Montreal teams playing away during the week-ends.

Trouble Arose in Lake Shore League Over Final Game

SCHEDULE DRAWN

Five Teams Ready to Face The Barrier on May 24th

Cobourg, Ont., May 7—(CP)—With 20 delegates in attendance, the Lake Shore Baseball League drew up its schedule at a meeting held here last night. Oshawa, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Cobourg comprise the league, Grafton dropping out for this year.

Roy Dodge, Cobourg, President of the league, was chairman. Due to the cost of travelling so far out of the district, the league decided to refuse the applications of Stouffville and Sunderland for entry in the Lake Shore League and pending a satisfactory accounting of the Picton-Bowmanville game of last fall, Picton is barred from playing in the league.

There will be a triple schedule, affording each team, nine home games, 2nd and 3rd playoff for the best two of three games and the winner meets the team in first place in best three of five games for the championship.

Schedule

May 24—	Port Hope at Cobourg
	Bowmanville at Oshawa
May 29—	Oshawa at Port Hope

Saturday games at 3.15; other games 6.30 p.m.

KI-Y LEAGUE

The Kiwanis and the Y.M.C.A. are again sponsoring softball teams for the young boys of Belleville. Every boy wishing to participate in the games must sign the registration card at the Y.M.C.A. immediately.

Schedules will be drawn up for Monday. Any team not having its entry form filled out and in the "Y" by Saturday evening will not be included in the schedules.

CALLING 'EM

with Ken J. Colling

The gutted-stick exponents will get a taste of the season's initial practice tonight at the Collegiate campus. Coach Harry Moore sounded the starter on the last wide to-and-fro together those interested in lacrosse and commences tri-weekly practices tonight. With the opening of the current lacrosse season only a little more than two weeks in the offing the lacrosse aspirants will have to get in some really good evenings of workouts. At a recent Central Ontario Lacrosse League meeting Mr. Kelly, Mr. Cain, official stressed the need of strenuous pre-season training. "Unless a player is in good condition and physically fit, he should not be permitted to play lacrosse, simply because players under-conditioned are usually the players to resort to illegal tactics and unorthodox attacks upon their opponents," pointed out Mr. Kelly and to which we add a hearty "amen."

Although baseball lacrosse club is to train at the Collegiate campus for the next fortnight or so, the teams will have their home games in the C.O.L.A. at the Fair Grounds. President Cecil Bowen informed us today. The lacrosse club is working hand in hand with the Fair Commission to have the playing surface right foot fence in to be erected inside of the Fair Grounds fence and directly south of the present grandstand. Inside of this enclosure the lacrosse box will be erected with bleachers for the patrons of the game. Floodlights will be used for lighting system and play floodlight lacrosse on the same way, incidentally nocturnal lacrosse would be best about the middle of June, really, as it would give the laboring class and those otherwise employed during the day time an opportunity to enjoy an evening's sport and recreation without the loss of time.

With the announcement of the Bay of Quinte interscholastic group in the O.R.F.A. stating this year's sectional field day would be held in Napanee on June 8th, local schools are preparing for their respective field days and also the district meet. Frank Thompson, athletic director at the O.S.D. announced today field day and athletic meet would be held on Tuesday, June 1st., while physical instructor Norman Fenwick announced to favor May 31st as the most logical day for the Belleville Collegiate field day although there is a remote chance that the Collegiate meet might be postponed until the autumn semester, which would not give the students a chance during the summer an opportunity to compete, so all in all it looks like May 31st after all.

Joe Shorti is in the field for a couple more juvenile teams in the local city league. Joe will have six teams in the local business section, seven teams in the midget section, but only two or three in the senior section, that is the group under 18 years of age. We have drafted our bantam and midget schedules and they will be released soon, but regarding the juvenile group we are also in the field for more clubs to round out a group that will accommodate the "Y" by Saturday evening will not be included in the schedules. Saturday evening at 3.15; other games 6.30 p.m.

Johnson in a pitcher's duel at Washington 30 years ago today, Both, who later joined New York Yankees and became a right fielder and headliner, was allowed only two hits while his teammates nicked Walter Johnson's hurler for four. Boston won 1-0.

In an impromptu measure the Bay of Quinte Tennis Club will open its current "racket" season on their improved courts with a singles tournament on the afternoon of Coronation day. The tournament will be for both ladies and gentlemen and handicaps will be allowed, judged on the merits of the individual player during 1936 competition. Tennis players desiring to compete should contact the team captain or some club official H.A.P., which decidedly means "soon as possible."

Three bowling championships were decided at the Recreation Alleys last night when the Corby Battery, R.C.A., won the Junior League and the Corby's quintette, headed by Dan Strachan with 704, took the Major "C" honors, the Bankers being the losing clubs in both incidents. In the Major "A" series the Belleville Fruit needed eight points to tie Dave Tobe's Christie Cake team in two games played. The Fruiteers won both games over the Cake-eaters, but only secured seven points in all as the Christie Cakes 'quinie' won the Major "A" honors in both fabrics, the Tobe-led squad having won the fall league. There is still the Major "B" tilt to be decided and then the gala trophy night for the bowling fellows get together.

Dan Howley's hopefuls gladdened the hearts of a large opening day crowd and added to the thrills by staging a tenth inning rally to come from behind and win, 5-4 over the Belleville Orioles. The Leafs hopped into second place in the league standing. The Tigers clawed the Yanks 12 to 6 and the Red Sox also won to create a three way tie among those clubs for first in the American League, while the Chicago Cubs took top spot in the sixth straight victory in the National and are fast gaining on the Pirates, Cards and Giants.

Bay of Quinte Tennis Club to Open May 12

An active tennis season was planned last evening at a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. of the Bay of Quinte Tennis Club.

The Courts will be officially open on May 12 when a handicap tournament will be held. All playing members and members who wish to participate in the tournament should sign the sheet posted at the Courts or hand their names to Orace McCreery or Art Cole.

It was decided at the meeting, that the fees would remain the same as last year, namely $5.00 and must be paid to Godfrey Scott, at the Y.M.C.A. on or before June 1st. A social event will be held after June 1, on all unpaid members.

FANS DELIGHTED WITH HUSTLE OF TORONTO LEAFS

Defeat Orioles 5-4 in Ten Innings in Opening Home Game

IN SECOND PLACE

Umpire Sustains Broken Jaw When Hit With Foul Tip

By the Associated Press

Toronto fans are convinced the accounts they have heard of a hustling, winning Leaf team are anything but a myth.

In a game enlivened by home runs, the injury of an umpire, and a thrilling rally by the home team, the Maple Leafs yesterday offered 15,000 opening day fans a 5-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles as proof of their new found prowess.

Tied in regulation into the 10th inning, Ab Wright heavy hitting Toronto outfielder, smashed one of Paul Sullivan's offerings for a homer to put the Orioles in front. The Leafs flashed their spirit in their half of the inning. Four straight hits, climaxed by first baseman Jim Walsh's line drive that went over Woody Abernathy's head in centre field, accounted for the winning runs.

The Buffalo Bisons pleased a crowd of about 3,000 fans turned out despite a rainy morning, with a 3—2 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs.

Rain postponed the home openers for the Rochester Red Wings and Montreal Royals.

I NOT AFTER DOLLARS WITH MY GOLF

NUMBER 1216

A player often will say that his club turned, or he did something that as he was hitting the ball. Another will tell you that the loose grip of the left hand at the end of the swing only shows that this hand loosened after he hit the ball. This is a couple out of ten players would have you believe that errors occur just as, or after the clubhead strikes the ball!

This is a decidedly false notion. It isn't humanly possible for anyone to do anything in the small fraction of a second that it takes for the clubhead to dislodge the ball from its resting place. Furthermore, the feeling of the clubhead striking the ball registers strong enough to justify the player that the deed has been done and nothing he can do after this point can help the shot.

Slow motion movies bear out these statements. If the average player would only realize this he would be more before the ball is hit, then he would be on the right road to reversing such errors. It is safe to say that 90 percent of the errors originate in the backswing, and this goes for those the player thinks he feels at the moment of impact.

LADIES' BOWLING TEAM ARE DISTRICT CHAMPS

After having won the ladies bowling league at the Y.M.C.A. alleys this season, the Mayflowers ladies team continued their triumphant march in the inter-city play with Trenton ladies and intermediate ladies' teams.

Against the Trenton ladies the Mayflowers won on their home alleys at the "Y", but lost in Trenton during a return match. With the Kingston ladies, however, matters were reversed, Kingston taking one point in the local alleys, while the Mayflowers duplicated this feat and took the advantage of the odd point during the return game in Kingston.

Versus the Peterborough lady bowlers tournament, the Belleville Mayflowers rose to heights on the alleys and toppled the 'maples' with consistency, winning both games of a home and home series. The Mayflowers took all points against Peterborough ladies here at the "Y" and won by the odd point in the return game yesterday.

The members of the Mayflowers—champions of the ladies' bowling league at the Y.M.C.A. are—Mrs. Heal, captain, Mrs. Johnstone, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Orme and Mrs. Ward.

Twelve Cases And Two Motions Down For Trial

Twelve cases are listed for trial and two notices of motion are included on the docket entered for trial at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario to be held in Belleville before the Honourable Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, commencing Monday.

Four actions for divorce, Lang vs. Lang; Shaw vs. Shaw; Moore vs. Moore and Robertson vs. Robertson being these notices now in the hands of the Clerk of the Court, Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn. The case of the Commissioner of Agricultural Loans vs. Wilson, with R.G.M. McDougall for the plaintiff and K. J. Smith for the defendant, is a claim to recover an alleged amount on a Government Loan mortgage.

The Capital Trust vs. the Public Trustee et al, with the firm of Dorland and Butler representing the plaintiffs and Porter, Payne and Arnott the defendants, is a dispute over the declarations of trust executed by the late Rev. Father Thomas McCarthy, Read.

The case of Howe vs. the Town of Trenton, with the firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott representing the plaintiff and G.H. Hemmings the defendants, is a damage for injuries allegedly received when the plaintiff fell on the icy sidewalks in that town last winter.

A land dispute of Howe vs. Howe and a partnership case, Phillips vs. Wylie constitute the remainder of the docket, which is one of the heaviest in recent years, Sheriff O'Flynn announced.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE

Kirkland Lake, Ont., May 7 (CP)—Tom Romanchuk, alias Roman, was committed for trial on a charge of murder yesterday after a preliminary hearing by Magistrate R. Attinkah. He will be tried in the next Assizes at Haileybury.

Evidence heard in police court indicated Romanchuk and his wife, Annie, engaged in an altercation during a prolonged drinking party celebrating the Greek Orthodox Easter.

Dr. A. M. Shipley testified he was called to attend the woman several hours after the affair but found she was dead and notified the police. An autopsy disclosed severe body injuries, he said. Her heart was ruptured by blows, which also fractured all her ribs but one. Her collarbone was broken in two places.

Local Coronation Celebration To Be Held at Agricultural Park

The venue of the Coronation ceremony to be held in Belleville on the morning of May 12th has been changed from Victoria Park as was formerly planned to the Agricultural Grounds, it was announced late yesterday by Joseph Short, Chairman of the General Committee in charge of the coronation.

The decision was reached following a special meeting of the committee held yesterday morning. The unfavorable soil and difficulty of approach to Victoria Park, engineering difficulties in translating guns, the dangerous element of the sea-wall, besides the fact that seating arrangements presented a difficult problem, were given as the reasons for the change of locale.

Guns of the Field Artillery Unit here will roar in the Royal Salute and the rifles of the Argyll Light Infantry (tank) will add their stoccato in the feu-de-joie, it was further decided at the meeting yesterday.

In accordance with the change of plans, Chairman Short added that sections of the parade from the outer districts will converge on the Upper Bridge, and will leave that point as a whole at 9:15 sharp. The parade will march down Front street to West Bridge street and from there direct to the Agricultural Grounds. Grandstands and bleachers will be reserved for the school children participating in the parade and in the various school choruses. Speakers' stands will be erected directly in front of the grandstand.

The order of march is still in its tentative stages and will be published in this paper with the revised program as soon as a decision is reached by Chairman Ross Hunter.

SHOE COMPANY CLOSES PLANT

Perth Shoe Co. Unable to Arrange Settlement With Workers

Perth, Ont., May 7.—(CP)— All operations of the Perth Shoe Co. Ltd., have been suspended the company announced last night following the failure of negotiations with officials of the Canadian Shoe Workers and Allied Trades Union who have been conducting a strike for the past two weeks.

Joseph Carter, Union Organizer, said the company's move was an effort to demoralize the Union Workers.

When the strike began the Union asked recognition, a closed shop and wage increase. In negotiations this week it modified its demand to wage increase and a shop committee to represent Union members only.

YOUNG GIRL PLACED IN MENTAL HOSPITAL

Hamilton, Ont., May 7 (CP)—Screaming "I wonder see my guy. I wonder see my guy", 18-year-old Carole Logan, New York, was ordered detained in Ontario Hospital by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge yesterday after conviction on charge of vagrancy. She was arrested Wednesday night when police found a bottle of drug and a hypodermic needle on her person.

Questioned about her past life, the girl said she had once served three months in jail. Crown Attorney Bell asked what the charge was.

"Oh, it was only an attempted murder charge," the girl said.

"A drinking matter," Mr. Ballard said. "Who did you attempt to murder?"

"My real husband," the girl replied. "He was running around with other dames."

COMPLAINT LODGED

Toronto, May 7 (CP)—Mrs. B. Coomby has lodged a complaint with the Toronto Board of Education charging a teacher at Withrow Avenue Public School refused to believe the explanation offered in a note for her daughter's absence. Mrs. Coomby wrote the teacher saying her daughter had been downtown with her to purchase a pair of shoes. She charges the teacher called the girl to the front of the class, and the shoes were not new, took them off and marked them with chalk.

PERMANENT INJUNCTION AGAINST PICKETTING

Winnipeg, May 7.—(CP)—Employers affected by the nine-months-old Winnipeg fur strike today obtained a legal victory over the strikers following judgment awarding Reinhart Fur Company $2,869 damages and costs against officials of the International Fur and Leather Union granting permanent injunction against picketing of the company.

Mr. Justice J. E. Adamson, handing down his decision in the King's Bench, terms actions of strikers "intimidation, violence and picketing" "nothing more or less than mob law."

Claiming the actions of strikers and Unionists was directed by himself, Mr. Justice Adamson assessed by $30,000 or $40,000 "supplied by a foreign organization", his judgment said it was not understandable why authorities had permitted its continuance.

Several companies were affected when employees walked out in August, demanding higher wages, improved working conditions and Union recognition. None of the companies were forced to close, however.

MELROSE

Melrose—The W.M.S. held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Davis on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance.

The Young People's Society held their meeting on Friday evening with a large attendance. The Missionary convener was in charge of the meeting. After the programme a social half hour was enjoyed with Miss L. Wesse as leader.

Melrose cheese factory opened on Monday for the season with Mr. S. Anderson as cheesemaker.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Anderson and Miss Reine have returned Melrose for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hill, Belleville, were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. F. Simpkins.

Rev. Mr. Hore of Deseronto was in charge of the service in the United Church on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith entertained Rev. and Mrs. Hore and Mrs. W. H. Clarke to dinner on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley and Mr. and Mrs. C. Haight attended the Armitage-Knapp wedding in Picton United Church on Saturday. The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley. Mr. and Mrs. Haight also called on Mrs. F. Dingman.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sheaman and Mrs. Chas. Macfarlane attended the funeral of the late Mr. George Sherman, Hay Bay, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Marshall, Plainfield.

Mrs. J. Symington, Napanee, and Mrs. Chas. Simpkins were Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Simpkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stafford and Mrs. H. Stafford, Belleville Road, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Haight.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Young spent over the week-end with relatives at Bath and Napanee. Mrs. Young, Bath, accompanied them home to spend several days.

Mother's Day will be observed in the United Church on Sunday morning.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg—Mrs. H. B. Herrington spent a few days last week at Kemptor attending the biennial meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch of the Women's Missionary Society, at which Mrs. Herrington was named head of the Peterborough district.

Mr. Athol Dudgeon left recently to resume his duties as cheesemaker at Fort Stewart.

Dr. Henry Bateman of Guelph General Hospital was a week-end guest at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Geen and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Irvine of Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Fuller and Mr. John McCarthy and little Dorothy Bishop of Belleville were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter.

Several of the local C.G.I.T. girls attended the concert given by the C.G.I.T. group of Tweed at the United Church recently.

Friends in this community were sorry to hear of the sudden passing of Mr. Frank McMaster of Belleville on Friday afternoon. Mr. McMaster was well-known to many in this vicinity, having had charge of the Red and White Store here for a time—the sympathy of this community goes to Mrs. McMaster in her sad bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McTaggart of Tweed spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Willard McTaggart and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dudgeon and Dorothy of Belleville, were guests on Sunday of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dudgeon.

Several members of the local I.O.O.F. lodge visited Tweed on Monday evening of last week when a number of candidates of that lodge were initiated into the degree work being done by the visiting lodge.

Thomasburg Anglican Young People presented their play, "April's Fool" in the Empire Theatre at Madoc on Saturday evening under the auspices of Caledaia Rebekah Lodge.

The Moira Valley Cheese Factory has opened for the coming season with Mr. J. Dudgeon as cheesemaker.

United Church ministers and laymen in the surrounding district gathered at the United Church here on Tuesday for the meeting of the Presbytery. The annual dinner of the church served dinner in the Oddfellows' Hall.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma went out to do the marketing and I went with her by request to help carry things, and I had my stick and I was hitting different things with it on my way passed, especially iron fences sounding like machine gun fire, and ma said, Now that's enough, throw that stick away.

Aw G, ma, holey smokes good sole, that's my favorite stick, look at the handle I carved on it, I betcha, and ma said, Then carry it in a gentlemanly manner.

Well G winnikers, ma, what are sticks for? I said, and she said, That one will be for throwing away if you don't keep it quiet.

Well Jumminy, ma, it dont hert the trees and things, does it? I said, and ma said, it herts my nerves, and it doesn't matter what it herts, I told you not to do it and that should be sufficient without any whys and wherefors.

And we kept on going, me thinking, I'm just going to hit one more thing, and if she dont say anything I'll be satisfied.

And I hit a fireplug without me seeming to notice it, me thinking, Heck, I hit it so easy she probely didn't even hear it, so that don't count, I'm going to hit just one more thing.

Wich I did, being a mailbox, and ma said, Now that's twice after I told you, you've had fair warning, give me that stick, and I said, Aw G, ma, that was the last one. If I hit one more thing I'll throw it away by myself, honest and true, ma, I said.

All rite, you'll throw it away, but not before I use it first, ma said. Meaning me me, wich she didn't get a chance, proving everybody has to obey the law sooner or later.

SAYS BOMBINGS CALLED BUTCHERY

Washington, May 7 (AP)—An Italent United States Senate heard Senator W. E. Borah attack Fascism and its methods yesterday in language that has seldom been used in congressional debate on foreign developments.

Referring to reports of mass killings in Ethiopia, and bombing of civilians in Spain, the Idaho senator said that "this is not courage but cowardice, not government but brute savagery, not war but butchery."

MARKET COMMENT

Yesterday was indifferent day in London and the fact that the market there acted well alliests to the fact that no difficulties were encountered. A number of London houses earlier in the week created a fund of £70,000 for the sole purpose of aiding any firms that may find themselves unable to meet settlements.

At the present time, Canadian investors are watching developments in London much closer than at any time in years and the trend in the London pas an important influence locally. Wall Street seems to have more of its influence and even the market across the line takes its cue from London.

The local list is acting according to expectation. The next few weeks are expected to witness an indiscriminate selling of the recent sharp break with most stocks consolidating their position somewhat current levels preliminary to another forward move. The advice in many conservative quarters is to accumulate the better grade issues on all reactions from current quotations.

WAGE INCREASE BY TIP TOP CO'Y

2,500 Union Members Affected by New Agree-

The concession in wages made in the agreement signed, over the week-end, with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, was made in step with the generally improving conditions in the U. F. P. MacKechnie, President of the Clothing Manufacturers Association, stated.

As general manager of Tip Top Tailors, largest industrial employers of labour in the clothing industry, Mr. MacKechnie acted throughout as negotiator with the Union, which was one of the originating organizations in the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"We had no serious difficulty in reaching an agreement," Mr. MacKechnie stated. "It has always been our policy to recognize the fairness of the demands of labour and we found representatives of the Union equally ready to adopt a 'live' and let live' policy.

Speaking for his own firm, Mr. MacKechnie stated that agreements with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers have been in effect for the past 19 years. During the whole of that time the relations have been on an amicable basis. Both sides, he said, have always been willing to stretch a point.

"The same spirit characterized the negotiations which have just been concluded," Mr. MacKechnie said. "There was never any threat of trouble and the principal object was to reach a common ground which was fair both to employer and employee. Both sides were willing to stretch a point to reach this common ground and once reached there was no difficulty in completing the negotiations."

Under the agreement, which provides a 7 1-3 per cent. increase to all union employees, about 2,500 members of the company are affected. The agreement will be in force for three years.

News of Disaster Shock to London

London, May 7 (CP-Havas) — News of the loss of the Hindenburg was a profound shock to Londoners coming as it did during the gaiety of the coronation season. The probable causes of the accident were debated in many quarters. Sir Dennistoun Burney, designer of the R-100 which flew the Atlantic to Montreal, Ottawa and back, said the conclusion the use of hydrogen had been proved by the Hindenburg's safe airship transport.

"Helium has been offered as a potential substitute but not at present it is too expensive for economic use," he said. "Nobody would forget away from hydrogen I find it difficult to retain confidence in the future of airships.

SPECIAL SPRAY FOR TENT CATERPILLARS

Warning that the coming summer may be one of extensive tent caterpillars whose destructive inroads on orchards and vegetation could completely ruin many sections district agriculturists last year, is being issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. A recommended spray for the pests now in egg form issued by the government is a arsenate of lime, one pound to thirty gallons of water, or arsenate of lead, one and one-half pounds to forty gallons of water. "Last year and this year may be high cycle years for the pest," it was stated by Mr. A. B. Baird, in charge of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory.

DISASTER CAUSE

What Caused the Crash?

On the lips of everyone was the question—what caused the crash, what was the matter? Twenty times had the Hindenburg crossed the North Atlantic safely.

Simultaneously the Hindenburg was allowed only in a spark-proof compartment.

Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, commandant at the naval station, said the fire originated at or near the stern of the ship.

Fred D. Fagg, director of the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce, was on hand preparing for the government's inquiry to hold public hearings. The secretary said they would probably begin during the afternoon and not later than tomorrow morning.

Navy Inquiry Forecast.

A naval inquiry was regarded as a certainty, since the probable crash-ed on a naval reservation.

At Washington Chairman Copeland (D., N.Y.) of the United States Senate Commerce Committee said a make purpose in ordering a thorough investigator to the scene of the disaster was to determine if "sabotage" had played any part in the accident.

Vienna, May 7 (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener enroute to Berlin, said today the possibility of sabotage must be considered in investigation of disaster to the Hindenburg which he designed, but he considered such explanation most unlikely.

"Mind, I did not say sabotage was responsible but that it must be considered as a possibility, especially in view of many threatening letters received by our firm," he asserted upon his arrival from Graz, Austria. "In this unhappy moment I find some comfort in the thought that a natural and explainable cause brought about destruction of the ship."

Woops at First News.

Dr. Eckener, who wept when he first heard of the Hindenburg's "proud pride", declared he would insist to the utmost of his power that this must be an end to the use of hydrogen—we must use helium."

As for the chance of sabotage, he said:

"I should say that if this disaster was caused by sabotage, only the firing of a burning bullet into the bags from a distance could have accomplished it. That seems highly unlikely.

Other Possible Causes.

He outlined other possible causes of the explosion, "from this distance and on the basis of incomplete information":

1. "When the ship is lowered, some hydrogen usually is released. When free hydrogen in the air might have been sufficiently concentrated to be ignited by lightning or a spark. It would not necessarily have to be a great flash of lightning perhaps it wasn't seen by the observers.

2. "When landing, the water ballast is released from the tanks. A stream of water, connecting with the earth, might have been an electrical conductor to bring a spark up from the ground. This would cause electric charge, so to speak, stabbed the Hindenburg from the earth.

3. "Someone aboard may have made a fire; a spark, possibly from a cigarette lighter, or matches, also as unlikely, for the conduct of the passengers and crew is watched carefully."

May Never Be Known

New York, May 7 (AP)—Cause of the disaster that befell the zeppelin Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N.J., may never be known.

Tiny theories ranged from touching off of the dirigible's hydrogen filling-load by a spark of static electricity to sabotage.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, modern "father" of lighter-than-air craft, said the possibility of sabotage must be considered.

The New York Herald-Tribune reported a "suggestion" that as Germany is the land of the Nazis" old toward her mooring mast, "an explosive bullet was fired into the ship by an enemy using a rifle with a silencer."

Despite the Depression!

Even during depression years, the total resources of Investors Syndicate continued to increase substantially. Now, they total $90,989,855 — a tribute to the stability, strength, and conservatism of an institution that has helped thousands to achieve financial independence.

In Canada, the LIVING PROTECTION plan of Investors Syndicate is being used by thousands of Canadians throughout the Dominion to build up a financial reserve for their future years. The Dominion is their plan, a little set aside each month — regularly — returns a sizeable little fortune in 180 months.

During the past seven years of depression and recovery, Investors Syndicate has paid out to its contract-holders no less a sum than $55,352,834.

Our booklet "A New Plan for Life" tells you all about the plan. Your copy awaits your request.

MONARCH MEETS

There were Princes from India, Socialists, from the industrial districts of Britain, from the mother of parliaments herself, from the Dominions, India, the colonies — the envoys of 600,000,000 people assembled in loyal greeting to the king-emperor.

Historic Occasion.

"This is an historic occasion," said the king to the throng of the assembled guests. "It is the first time a sovereign has been present at Westminster Hall to meet those who represent the parliaments of the empire.

The king's appearance "belied rumors of ill-health. His face had a ruddy tinge, but his voice was firm. An unusual pause between phrases almost indicated his hesitancy of speech.

Memory of George V.

A little trick of nervously fingering his necklace betrayed the memory of another George. For more than 26 yat two years ago, George V came to receive the fervent wishes of the British and Commons in celebration of his silver jubilee. One recalled how George V lingered for a moment, standing on the spot where his son sat today—lingered as though loath to leave.

Even old Westminster Hall lost something of its grey grimness, shorn of its heavy wood stools and tiered galleries and transformed into a vast chamber with the throne at one end and the royal family and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Cosmo Gordon Lang, and the Archbishop of York, William Temple, arrayed in purple and ermine.

It was 12:00 p.m. A fanfare by trumpeters of the Life Guards echoed through the hall. At the head of the staircase leading to Westminster Hall stood Stanley Baldwin, Prime Ministers of the Empire — Stanley Baldwin of the United Kingdom, Mackenzie King of Canada, Joseph Lyons of Australia, Michael Savage of New Zealand, and D. F. Malherbe of South Africa.

Presidents Welcome to the King.

Nearby stood the leaders of delegations to the Empire Parliamentary Association conference, Premier Duplessis of Quebec, Premier Hepburn of Ontario, and Norman Rupel, Speaker of the Ontario Legislative Assembly.

As His Majesty quietly moved among them they were presented in turn.

Viscount Hailsham, proposed the King's health. He spoke of Westminster Hall as the birthplace of the British Parliamentary system. In early days the King was wont to address the men of the empire.

"In the slow process of centuries, the Throne, because it is not the symbol of arbitrary powers but the expression of liberties, has come to be the connecting link of free commonwealths.

Royal Health is Drunk

"I thank you," His Majesty replied, "sincerely for the kind words in which you have drunk my health.

"It is a great pleasure for me to be here today. I am the first United Kingdom Branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association. It also is the first time that the parliaments which I am very pleased to have, which I regard as the mother parliaments of the Empire.

"This is a historic occasion. It is the first time the Sovereign has been present at a lunch in Westminster Hall to meet those who represent the parliaments of the empire.

"What worthier setting could be found for this meeting than that which has been at once the scene and the silent witness of so many of the stirring events in the history of parliaments in this country.

Symbol of Heritage

"In this place have grown up the principles which form the foundation of the system known to us as parliamentary government and these principles have been carried by our people to the ends of the earth. They are now the heritage and pride of all parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"I offer you my best wishes for the success of your deliberations. I pray that the strength and health from meeting one another may be a source of help to this country will be a very happy one."

Speaker Pitzroy of the United Kingdom Branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association had His Majesty "for your gracious speech."

Hearts Beat As One

"Your presence here today" said Captain Fitzroy, "demonstrates more clearly than ever that your heart beats as one with the hearts of the people over whom you rule."

Speaker Fitzroy said no honor could be prized more than that of being asked, on behalf of the Empire Parliamentary Association of the Empire, to express the feeling of all His Majesty's subjects "in extending to His Majesty, our beloved sovereign, our sincere and heartfelt thanks for having been graced by his presence at the lunch of the Empire Parliamentary Association."

"It is a high privilege to members of overseas branches of the E.P.A. to be so cordially welcomed to England by members in the United Kingdom," Casgrain declared.

At Beatthatone of Empire

It gave special pride, he proceeded, to be welcomed in Westminster Hall at the very heartthstone of the British Empire. The Coronation celebrations afforded opportunities not only for expressing for ideals which formed part of the great traditions of the British people.

"It enables us as well," he added, "to guard against stranger creeds which today are abroad in the world, but which are repugnant to and alien to British ideals.

The Ancient Throne Through Hall

"I join the speaker of the House of Commons of the United Kingdom," Casgrain concluded, "in offering to Your Majesty on behalf of your parliamentary overseas the heartfelt good wishes of their members, for your personal happiness and that of Her Majesty the Queen."

Silver trumpets echoed through the hall. And the King, as his father had done two years ago, passed slowly between the two long rows of assembled guests, bowing slightly as he went.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN
that the gap left by the Hindenburg will be filled as soon as possible."
Air Minister Goering telegraphed: "Airship building Germany must not be discouraged by this blow of fate, but must continue with a spirit of sacrifice to carry out our unique task."

New York, May 7 (AP)—Most of the 54 prospective passengers booked for the return trip of the Hindenburg last night will sail to Europe on the Italian liner Rex, leaving tomorrow, the Zeppelin Company announced here today. Travelers expected to witness the coronation in London will be disappointed, however, as the Rex is not scheduled to reach its first European port, Gibraltar, before May 14.

Akron, O., May 7 (AP) — The Goodyear Zeppelin Corp., refused comment on what effect the crash of the Hindenburg might have on the future of the lighter-than-air craft industry in the United States, but engineers here said the ship's fate said in the tragic situation at Lakehurst, N.J., figures in the lighter-than-air industry were known to realize the limited degree of safety provided by any well have sealed the doom, at least temporarily, of lighter-than-air craft as a commercial passenger carriers and as military or naval weapons.

Cleveland, O., May 7 (AP) — A flash of lightning as the dirigible hovered above its cradle stood on ground might have caused the disastrous explosion, Professor Dr. Lynch, of Case School of Applied Science said today...It would have struck at the highest point on the giant bag and probably would have not been noticed in the confusion, he said.

Dr. Albright, a professor of Physics and meteorology, has been making special studies of lightning and its behavior.

Galveston, Tex., May 7 (AP)— Adolf Hitler sent a message to President Roosevelt today thanking him for his expression of sympathy over the Hindenburg disaster.

Made public at White House headquarters here, the message said:

"I thank your excellency sincerely for the heartfelt words of sympathy which you have expressed to myself and the German people with regard to the disaster in which the airship Hindenburg was the victim."

Lakewood, N.J., May 7 (AP) — Dr. Hans Luther, retiring German Ambassador to the United States, said today "no one knows what caused the Hindenburg disaster." He said he was expressing the attitude of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Dr. Luther made a farewell speech, part being in German for broadcast in Germany, after he had interviewed a number of survivors at Paul Kimball Hospital here.

Asked if he had heard from Chancellor Hitler about the airship crash, Dr. Luther said he had and

"his attitude is just what I have said. No one knows how it happened."

POLICE BLOTTER

Local motorists, who persist in violating the one hour parking by-law in this city, continue to be delinquent in the matter. Yesterday six motor vehicles were "ticketed" by police for parking much over the allotted time.

Two automobiles, found parked inside of the fire hall zone opposite No. 2 fire hall last night, were removed by the police and parked in nearby garages from which the owners had to redeem them by paying a dollar each. Both cars were parking automobiles inside of the fire hall zone restricted area must be curbed. Chief Lynch announced today. "We mean drive our trucks out in safety, especially when answering a hurry-up call when cars are parked opposite No. 2 hall," explained Fire Chief Lynch.

Local police found the rear door of a local grocery store open last night, but subsequent investigations by the authorities and store management revealed nothing to be missing.

Made public at White House headquarters here, the message said:

"I thank your excellency sincerely for the heartfelt words of sympathy which you have expressed to myself and the German people with regard to the disaster in which the airship Hindenburg was the victim."

Lakewood, N.J., May 7 (AP) — Dr. Hans Luther, retiring German Ambassador to the United States, said today "no one knows what caused the Hindenburg disaster." He said he was expressing the attitude of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Dr. Luther made a farewell speech, part being in German for broadcast in Germany, after he had interviewed a number of survivors at Paul Kimball Hospital here.

Asked if he had heard from Chancellor Hitler about the airship crash, Dr. Luther said he had and

Ellen gets Her Man

PAS

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

A tremendous, smoldering rage grew in her heart against the man responsible for all this. . . . Some secret, all her earlier goodness, submerged completely in the tawdry horror of what she had seen, flared up and over, to herself.

Impulsively, Ellen made it at the time she had virtually forgotten her own dilemma. Her thoughts were only for those helpless, apathetic children, bewildered, dumbly protesting, doomed to slow, terrible death in the winter. And then, as soon one day, she came upon a camp of Cree on the border of Mink Lake.

Even as the prow of her canoe slithered upon the shingle beach before the camp she sensed the indefinable excitement with which the camp was being swayed. There was a jumble of movement about the tepees, the shrill yammering of squaws, the whimpering of children, and the hoarse, guttural exclamations of the men. Not far from where Ellen landed, there was a York boat, piled high with cargo, pulled up on the shore.

Her sensing stirring with a strange trepidation, Ellen made straight for the centre of the camp. In an opening among the tepees she came upon a strange scene. A knot of Indians were swaying back and forth in fierce struggle, and in the centre of them loomed the tall figure of —John Benham!

Benham bent them back with short, driving blows.

For a moment things seemed to whirl about Ellen. Then she steadied, calmed by a cold, triumphant satisfaction. At last she had run the despoiler to earth. She pushed closer to the centre of the conflict. She saw John Benham lash out with one fist and drive a short, powerfully built buck to the ground. Others closed in, but Benham beat them back with short, driving blows, knocking many of the maddened bucks down to the ground. Finally, the melee began about him broke, and, rearing about him broke, and, rearing up over and swept something from the earth before him. When one straightened up again Ellen could see what he held. It was a full, unopened bottle of whiskey!

Hardly realizing what she was doing, Ellen forced her way through the jam and bedlam and faced him, where she drew herself up proudly and looked the astonished trader in the eye.

"You!" he gasped. "Ellen—Miss Mackay!"

"Yes," she answered, her voice trembling with cold contempt; "it is you — contemptible hound! I've been following evidences of your unspeakable activities for nearly a month now, and at last I see you in all your true, gutting glory." She pointed at the bottle he held. "What is the matter? Wouldn't these poor unfortunates pay you enough in furs for that paltry?"

For a moment Benham looked at her incredulously. "This!" he muttered, almost stupidly. "This? Do you mean to say you think I have been trading whisky to the Indians?"

"I don't think—I know. I have been in a dozen camps and I have seen them, and what you have left in them. I hope the picture will be with you always, John Benham. I hope those poor, innocent babies and children, doomed to die of famine this coming winter, will haunt you to your graves. You—you—oh, you greedy, treacherous dog!"

Ellen was white-faced and trembling when she ceased her tirade of accusation, yet her eyes flamed with the fervor and light of a Crusader. Benham was silent, his face white, the muscles of his jaws bulging like balls of iron. His eyes took a again, with biting scorn.

"You—you half-breed! And you brutalize and starve your own blood-brothers."

"Stop!" The word burst from Benham in a tortured cry. The muscles of his face seemed to writhe, and into his eyes flamed something which caused Ellen to unconsciously give back a pace. For a fractional moment she thought he was going to strike her. Then, suddenly, he grew quiet. His face hardened, his eyes grew cold. A cruel, harsh laugh broke from his white lips.

He turned away, and with a drive of his arm sent the bottle hurtling against the bole of a nearby spruce, where it crashed to a thousand pieces, its contents running down the rough bark of the tree in an amber flood.

Without a backward look he strode off, and Ellen followed, scarcely aware of her own scorn and anger. For he had had his innings. He had brought her father to the verge of ruin, and she was determined that he should know what her method of retribution would be. He should know in advance that before the season was over the white coats from Regina would be on his trail.

She followed him beyond a taper, then halted in surprise. An old squaw had stopped Benham and was facing him. The squaw was gnarled and bent, a wrinkled, shrunken old crone.

"Thank you," the old crone was saying. "The Great Spirit will bless you, my son."

Benham patted the squaw upon one bowed, shrunken shoulder. "It is nothing, mother," he said slowly. "And the dog responsible for this shall answer to me."

Then, before Ellen could face him again, he had swung off into the forest.

Ellen went slowly back to her canoe where Moosnc awaited her, emotionless and stoic. Somehow the triumph she had imagined would be hers had gone flat—dead and tasteless. She was weary, weary body and soul. Two words kept ringing in her ears' "Son." She squaw had called him. And "mother" he had answered. And yet—disgusting double, which she could not discard, haunted her mind—apparently he had fought with the Indians to take the whisky from them, and then he had crushed the bottle to pieces against a tree. Of course, this last could have been merely a gesture to mislead her. Yet, why should the old squaw have thanked him? And why—oh why—had she called him "my son?"

Three days later Moosnc beached the canoe on the shingle below Moose Factory. Another canoe was there, a strange one, with an official insignia upon the bow. Ellen paid scant attention to it. It seemed as though all the fervor of her campaign had left her. She only knew that she was very kind and very discouraged.

When she came to the door of the cabin she heard voices within. That of her father and another, a brisk, authoritative voice.

In the slight gloom of the interior Ellen did not at first see the stranger. She saw only her father.

"You—you found the proof you sought, last?" her father asked.

Ellen nodded. "I found it."

"You see." Angus Mackay turned to his visitor triumphantly. Then he remembered. "Ellen lass, this is Trooper Whitlow, of His Majesty's Mounted Police. I have been trying to convince him that John Benham is trading whisky to the Indians. Rumors of such trading had leaked to the outside and Trooper Whitlow has been detailed to run these rumors down. He—he seems a bit hardheaded, but perhaps you can now convince him where I have failed."

Ellen looked at the red-coat quickly. She saw a sturdy man of middle age, already greying slightly about the temples. Whitlow's eyes were keen and blue, his jaws wide and stubborn.

"I am glad to know you," said Ellen. "And I believe I can prove John Benham's guilt."

Whitlow bowed. "I'm sorry to hear that, Miss Mackay," he said crisply. "I have known Benham for a long time and such activity as your father charges him of does not coincide very well with my previous knowledges of the man. However, that is beside the point. If he is guilty, he shall answer to the law. I see that you are tired, but if you can spare me a few minutes and will be ready to go. I have found out I shall be obliged."

Ellen nodded and sank into a chair. For an hour she listened. She told of all the Indian camps she had visited and what she saw there. She told of brutalized elders and starving children. It was not a pretty story and before she had finished her father was muttering in anger and Whitlow's eyes had grown dim.

When she finally ended, Whitlow stared at the floor in thought. Then he nodded in quick decision.

"There appears to be little doubt, Miss Mackay," he stated. "You have piled up some very damning evidence, which upsets all my previous knowledge of John Benham. You see, as I said before, I have known Benham for a long time. And I don't mind saying that I am disappointed. For even a relentless cog in the machinery of the law is susceptible to many human emotions. I admired John Benham. But human nature is not infallible. And greed functions in queer and powerful ways. The final straw is that Benham would use such tactics in a tribe of which he is an adopted member."

Ellen stiffened. "Adopted", she exclaimed, a slight tremor in her voice. "Adopted? Why should they adopt him when he is a—a half-breed?"

Whitlow stared at her. "A half-breed?" he demanded with a short, brusque laugh. "Whoever told you that fairy tale?"

"Why — why — isn't he?" stammered Ellen.

"He is not. Anyone who claims he is, is guilty of vicious gossip. John Benham's parents were of the finest British stock. They were missionaries. They died when he was but a child, taken off by scurvy during one of the famine winters. The finest tribute in proof of the affection by which they were held by the Indians is the fact that this certain chief of the Adopted the boy and raised him."

Ellen and Angus Mackay sat in stunned silence. Ellen's thoughts were so kaleidoscopic she was utterly at a loss for expression. Yet, enough it seemed, a black shadow had been lifted from her world. There was no reason for this emotion, but it persisted and filled her with a growing thrill before her listless weariness immediately dissipated.

It was the old factor who found his voice first. "But—but—Bernard Deterour, of our company, claims he have proof that Benham is a half-breed."

"Then Deterour is a liar!" stated Whitlow quietly.

Angus Mackay was a scrupulously honest man. Even what few enemies he may have had, had to admit this. That honesty came to his rescue.

"In that case," he muttered, "I'm afraid I've done John Benham a grievous wrong.

Whitlow, with a man, factor," nodded Whitlow.

He rose to his feet. "I must leave immediately. Benham's trail should be easy to pick up, seeing that he was at the Cree camp on Mink Lake when you left, Miss Mackay." He smiled slightly. "For official reasons I wish you might be a man for the next week or two, Miss Mackay. Another canoe was there, a strange one, with an official insignia upon the bow. Ellen paid scant attention to it. It seemed as though all the fervor of her campaign had left her. She only knew that she was very kind and very discouraged.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

Ellen rose to her feet also. "That need not worry you, Trooper Whitlow," she stated quietly. "I had already made up my mind to remain immediately. I will be ready to leave in an hour."

Angus Mackay began to object. "But, you are weary, lass, You—" But Ellen's eyes as weary as they was," broke in Ellen with a queer smile. "In an hour, trooper."

There was a vast difference in the trip back to Mink Lake for Ellen. Coming out, she had travelled through a crab, lowering world, in which not one iota of worthiness existed. She had heard nothing seen less. Her spirits had plumbed the depths and remained there. It seemed there was no brightness, no beauty, no truth in all the universe.

Now, however, it was different. The sheen of sunlit water, the whispering breeze of the forests, the gay laughter of the birds, all were responded to a kind by a thrilling inner consciousness.

Ellen made no further attempt to bind herself to the reason for this change. She knew, and found excess joy in the knowing. Ellen Mackay was honest with herself. John Benham was not a half-breed!

This knowledge rang through her mind like the chiming of some brilliant tongued bell. Over and over the words formed, and she clung to them as to something precious and incredible.

There was a reason for this and that reason too, Ellen admitted to herself. She loved John Benham. She loved him through the ages it seemed.

From the first time he had been close clear, flawless eyes upon her he had taken her heart though she had not realized it until he had turned away from her in the Indian camp and crashed the damning whisky bottle against a tree.

Then she had known, and the knowledges had exacted a bitterness of thought and feeling that had borne down upon her with a crushing, resisting weight.

It mattered not, now, that she was responsible for the information that had set this cold, brusque man in the bow of a canoe on Benham's trail. If he were guilty, then she would battle side by side with him to do what she could to brighten whatever exactness the law might impose. If he could, by some Divine aid, prove his innocence, then she must be there beside him and ask forgiveness for her part in his accusation.

She never thought that her utter change in spirit might be noted by Trooper Whitlow, and noted it, and knew that it dated from the moment when he had told of John Benham's parents. There were times, now, as he sent the burning spirits of the girl, when just the shadow of a grim smile flickered across the set face.

In the stern of the canoe, stoic and still of feature, old Moosnc looked at her with steady, undying dog-like adoration.

For two days they pressed northward towards Mink Lake, and the trooper and Moosnc paddled from before dawn until long after dark. Their camps were swiftly and carefully prepared. The policeman and the old Indian ate quickly, and sought their blankets to combat the weariness of their ceaseless paddling. So it was that Ellen had long hours to herself through the day and beside the tiny fire at night in which to think.

"Where did you get this whiskey?" snapped the trooper.

These were times when these thoughts frightened her, and where as the start of the trip, she had been consumed with indignation, her heart would fall her and she dreaded the moment when she must again face John Benham and steel herself to the scorn and reproach that she would behold.

And then, on the morning of the third day, there came an interruption in their steady progress.

It was a sharp turn of the river they met four heavily-loaded York boats manned by a motley crew of half-breeds and Indians under the Hudson Trooper Whitlow studied the boats and cargoes keenly and suddenly just as the last boat was about to pass them he signalled Moosnc, and swiftly whirled the canoe about in pursuit.

At first the boat crews bent to their oars heroically, but when they saw the swift ease with which the feather-like canoe overhauled them, they ceased rowing and crouched back, sullen and angry.

Whitlow guided the canoe to the rear boat and stepped aboard with hardly a look at the crew by using back the tarpaulin covering the cargo to disclose several small oaken kegs and numerous cases of bottles. Catching up one of the bottles, he smashed it against the gunwale of the boat and sniffed the shattered remnant he held in his hand. Then he turned on the crew sternly.

"Who did you get this whiskey?" he demanded, his voice harsh and uncompromising.

Ellen crouched in her canoe, her eyes wide, her heart thundering in her breast. Moosnc's beady orbs were gleaming in ferocious joy.

"Hurry up," snapped the trooper again. "Where did you get this whiskey?"

The crew squirmed in their seats and bent a common gaze upon a surly-looking breed member. This individual cleared his throat several times before his spirit broke under the boring scrutiny of the policeman.

"Dat wikkee—she's John Benham's wakee," he stuttered finally.

Ellen who had been leaning forward, lips and breathless, sagged back, shaking and heart-sick. Something seemed to have snapped within her. She knew now that all along she had been hoping against hope that John Benham was innocent. But here was proof irrefutable.

Then she straightened again. Whitlow was speaking, and his voice had grown peculiarly comfort.

"I think you are lying," snapped the trooper.

Then old Moosnc stirred. "I know for sure that he lies," stated the old Indian calmly in his mother tongue. "That man is Deterour's man. I have seen them often together. Yes—he lies."

"What's that?" Whitlow turned on Moosnc sharply. "Speak English. I don't understand you."

"He—he says that man is Bernard Deterour's man," interpreted Ellen, scarcely able to speak for the sudden tumult which broke within her.

"It that true?" growled Whitlow, whirling back on the breed. "Tell the truth, or you'll answer to the law. Speak up."

The breed paled visibly. But his sullen features grew obstinate and he shook his head, raising his fingers working. "Speak up," he growled. "Answer me or I'll mishandle you."

Plainly the breed was torn between two fears—one that he should not speak the truth, the other of this red-coated number of a force feared even the most ignorant savage in the north knew was infallible and omniscient.

It was the fact that one threat was present while the other was absent which decided him. He gave a grudging nod.

"Oui—oui, Mateu. I am Deterour's man."

"Ah!" Whitlow straightened and found time to flash a triumphant glance at Ellen. Then he turned back on the breed again.

"Where are you taking this whiskey?"

"Down to dat Great Slave Lake", muttered the breed. "Mista Deterour, she's meet us then, an' she's head for dat Yellow Knife Revair."

Whitlow nodded. "Land this boat on the beach and have the rest follow suit," he commanded crisply.

Guttural orders followed, and the boat was presently beached. Then with deft aureness Whitlow examined the cargoes. Only one boat contained whiskey, and these were loaded with baled furs. Whitlow nodded as though some unspoken conjecture had found substantiation. He pointed at the whiskey.

"In the river with it," he commanded. "Every drop of it."

The now thoroughly frightened and subdued breed set to work with a will. The bottles were smashed across the gunwale, and the heads of the furs were pounded in with a hatchet and their contents poured into the facing green water. The sweet, strong odour of raw alcohol ran through the air. When the last drop of the stuff was gone, and the headless kegs floating down stream, Whitlow turned to Ellen. His face was glowing, glowing with the vindication of a friend.

"You see where your evidence points, now, Miss Mackay?"

Ellen nodded soberly, but her eyes were brilliant. "You can't guess how happy it makes me," she answered.

Whitlow grinned broadly. "I can guess better than you think. There is a reward for Benham. But you owe John Benham a real apology."

Ellen's gaze was unwavering. "I intend to give it—fully.

"Fine. I knew Benham was clean stuff. But Deterour, he'll answer and answer plenty for promiles you. He's been playing a deep game. Under the pulse of a Hudson Bay employe he has been robbing the men who trusted him.

"Thinking of it now, it was simple enough. His job was to confiscate the furs. He could trade them to every lake and river in the Dominion, and no one would question his ragged accept on a long chance like this which he was prepared to gamble on.

"He knew the weakness of the Indians. He traded the whisky to them for their choicest furs. The poorest of the lot he left them to get what they could from your father at Fort Edson.

"And—and I have heard of your father's dilemma. This evidence will no doubt give him complete exoneration. I'll see that my version of it gets to Hudson Bay Headquarters."

"You are very kind" murmured Ellen. "It —it means so much to father."

"I know", nodded Whitlow. "But Deterour—the filthy swine! What a rotten game he's been playing. And he knew the poor devils of Indians would not dare breathe a word of this nefarious trade. I'm afraid of what the law might do to them. The reputation of my organization does not always work as it should, Miss Mackay. Well, I'm much in debt to you."

He was thoughtful for a moment then he turned with sparkling eyes. "I'm going to make a present of furs' directly to Fort Edson. Your father and Benham will put down a blanket credit on the books. Then it will be up to him and yours truly to see that the starving tribes you have visited are carried through the coming winter with food and proper supplies. These supplies can be charged out against the fur credit.

"And no doubt there are other tribes that Deterour has not been able to reach yet. When he fails to show up they will come sniffing in to the fort with their furs. They won't dare wait too long. What do you think of the scheme?"

CANADA DOES NOT SIGN CONVENTION ON SUGAR

(By I. Norman Smith, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7 (CP Cable)—The International Sugar Conference attended by delegates from 21 nations, was concluded here with the signing of an agreement covering exports and production.

Canada did not sign the convention, but assured the delegates she would not increase her production. This was tantamount to signature as, in fact, it is what was sought from Canada.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Spill

By Hal G. Vermes

"So you had better wire your pop", suggests Mudder McNosh, "that you are coming home immediately."

"My father does not know I am here" says the boy on the big bay stallion.

"How is this?" he ask.

"I come from a family of boosters," the boy explains. "All us Jepsons has been pookers since way before my time. But when I was a youngster, my mother's brother got killed in a steeplechase and ma got so scared she told dad that he would have to give up riding the horses forever. And when my father would not do this, my mother took me away."

"Then how is it," I inquire "that your mother let you be a booker?"

"She did not want me to have be anything to do with the turf," the boy explains, "but I have the racing fever in my blood from my father and I could not help it."

"That's an easy understand," says Mudder. "But still and all, like I already told you, you cannot win the Steeplechase. And the reason is that King Pin, the famous jumper entered and riding him will be Harry the Pinhead, the best steeplechase Joak from anywhere."

"Nevertheless" states the boy, "I have got to win!"

"And why," I ask, "is this so terrible important?"

"Because my mother," the kid replies, feels different after so many years since her brother died. And now I have got her to promise that if I win this steeplechase I can book for my dad and bring him home."

On the day of the Steeplechase me and my pals are assembled at the water jump to watch the free show. Standing on the roof of a taxi, we can see the start and then we follow the pack through our field glasses as they go over the hurdles. The whole field makes the first couple of jumps which are not so tough. But at the third, which is a high brush hurdle, four horses go down. A woman fainits as the valets run out and drag off a jock who has been hurt.

Now with my glasses I have picked out Harry the Pinhead on King Pin. He is with the last half dozen bangtails but Harry is no fool. He knows test when a horse and rider are done they are out, and that the most important thing is to clear the carriers carefully so that man and horse will be in perfect shape to go over the dangerous last water hazard and can make the final sprint to win.

And still taking his head when Harry comes toward us with the Jepson filly right behind him he goes for the oxtake where there is plenty of room and lifts the King Pin neatly over the water hole in a beautiful jump which it is a pleasure to see. But when his mount's forefeet hit the other side Harry suddenly flies from the saddle lands hard on the turf and lays very still.

As soon as the pack sweeps by the boys and me are out there with Harry to the mob. We rushes him to a hospital and then waits half the night till the medico lets us in to see him.

"When you are on your feet again," Jepson says, "in case you couldn't want to ride no more, my pals and me would like to have you for our trainer. We got a little string of stakers and we share and share alike."

"Okay," says Harry the Pinhead, trying to smile through his bandages. "But what I want of know is who won the race."

"A bay stallion," nobody ever heard of" says Mudder, "which was ridden by a young apprentice from the South."

"We was talking with him the other day and he sure wanted to win this Stokes Steeplechase. I inforem him. "On account of something about his mother and father he says he needs to win awful bad."

"Awful bad, eh?" Harry repeats. "Well, so he did."

"But you would have won," I point out, "if you did not take that tumble. And as you never fell off a horse before it seems very peculiar."

"Yes," says Harry slowly, "it is very peculiar, indeed."

As he says that I remember that I saw him sliding quickly in back of us in the stand the day the Jepson kid told us on story; but when I turned to speak to him after, he was gone. And when the doctor bangs open and I see young Jepson standing there I also know why Harry took the spill.

"Come on, on cooks," I says to bladder and Bertie, giving them a shove; "I think this boy here has got a terrifically important message he wants to deliver to his dad."

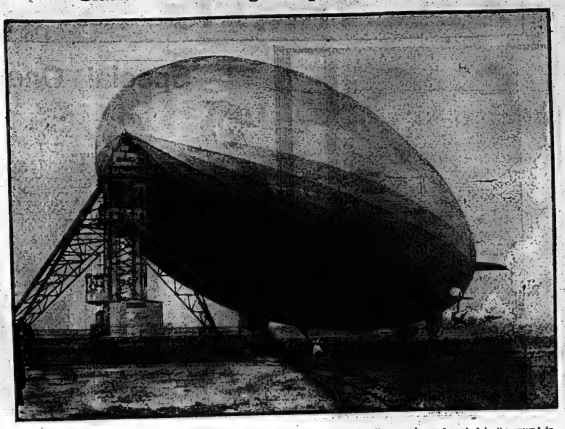
Thick night descended on the jungle, and the two men had to abandon their search for Jane. A lion's roar rumbled in the forest.

"Let's climb a tree and wait for daylight," Brown suggested. "It don't look like it's going to be healthy sleeping on the ground."

"Hindered" the Englishman nodded seriously. "My father always said it was most unhealthy. "If you rheumatism something terrible sleeping on the ground when y' was a soldier."

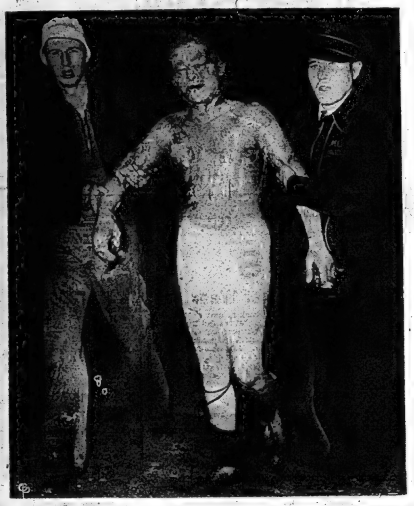
"Then by all means let's climb," said Brown. "I don't want to get rheumatism."

As she had followed Brown and Tibbs that afternoon, Jane was thinking of that strange demi-god of the forest, Tarzan of the Apes, who was her mate. Perhaps the fact that he was speeding toward her established some unique telepathy between them.



She longed for the sanctuary of those mighty arms. For the peace and safety that his strength and jungle craft afforded. But her longing was to prove fruitless, for now the savage stalker in the trees saw his opportunity and prepared to seize it!

The Wreckage of Germany's Air Queen



A few moments after the great dirigible Hindenburg exploded this picture, showing the wreckage still blazing, was made at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J.

Giant Hindenburg Explodes at Lakehurst

At the end of her first east-to-west Atlantic crossing of the season the huge German dirigible Hindenburg, carrying an estimated 100 persons, exploded at Lakehurst last evening as her ground crew was hauling her to the mooring mast. The great shining queen of the skies immediately crumpled and crashed to the ground in a mass of flames.

Critically Burned in Crash

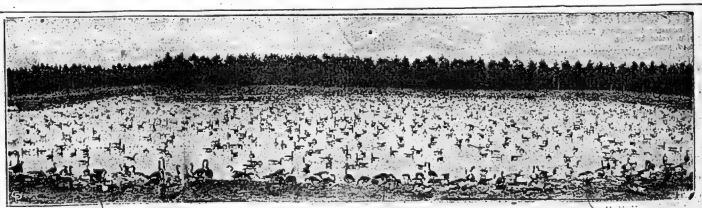
This survivor of the explosion of the dirigible Hindenburg had every stitch of clothing burned off, and the skin of his face, legs, arms, chest and shoulders is hanging in shreds from the intense flame which followed the blast.

The Hindenburg Explodes in Mid-Air at Lakehurst

The giant dirigible Hindenburg exploded and burned in mid-air over Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N.J., at 7:30 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, Thursday. This remarkable picture taken by Samuel Shere, Central Press Staff Photographer. The ship had thirty-one passengers and a crew of sixty aboard. Her lines had been dropped and she was 300 feet off the ground when an explosion shattered her aft as she approached the mooring mast.

FORMER SKIPPER SURVIVES

Captain Ernst Lehmann who commanded the dirigible Hindenburg last year was one of the survivors of the Lakehurst disaster. Lehman was aboard in an advisory capacity, and stumbled from the flaming wreckage a moment after it struck the earth.



HINDENBERG'S COMMANDER

In charge of the Hindenburg on her last tragic flight was Capt. Max Pruss, veteran dirigible expert who was commanding the ship for the first time on a transatlantic flight. Capt. Pruss was injured but survived.

CAPTAIN HUGO ECKENER

Designer of the Hindenburg and her commander on her early flights is Captain Hugo Eckener, (above), ranked as the world's greatest lighter-than-air expert. He was not aboard on the disastrous flight.

THOUSANDS OF GEESE HALT NORTHWARD FLIGHT AT FAMED ONTARIO BIRD SANCTUARY

Here is a panorama view of one of the many ponds on the Jack Miner bird sanctuary at Kingsville, Ont., where every day thousands of birds halt on their northward trek. Miner, well known bird authority catches many birds and tags and liberates them in an effort to study the migration routes of the birds. The birds shown in the photograph are geese, huge flocks of which stop twice a year at the sanctuary. While not a religious fanatic, Miner puts a verse of Scripture on the back of each tag placed on a bird. This, he claims, spreads the gospel to Indians and Eskimos in the far north who kill the geese for food.

ITALY RECALLS CORRESPONDENTS FROM ENGLAND

All But 3 British Papers Are Banned From Italy; Libel on Italy is Claimed

Italian Newspapers Will Disregard Details of Coronation

PICTURES BANNED

Report Says Italian Newspapers Signed Joint Protest

Rome, May 8 (CP-Havas) — All Italian news correspondents have been recalled from England, it was officially announced today.

In addition, all but three British newspapers were banned throughout Italy.

The communique disclosed these steps had been taken as a result of an alleged anti-Italian campaign in the British press.

(The move was anticipated earlier in the day by German news agency reports in Berlin, which said British newspapers had signed a joint protest against "the slanderous attitude of the British press concerning Italian volunteers in Spain.")

Mail, News, Observer Exempt.

The only newspapers exempt from the ban were the Daily Mail, the Evening News and the Observer.

The communique described the alleged British press drive as a libel on Italy and the Italian army.

Several London papers, including the Daily Herald and the News Chronicle, have been banned for several weeks because their liberal policy is considered hostile to the Fascist state.

Even before the official order, several Italian newspapers which had planned to send correspondents to the coronation had cancelled the arrangements.

Newspapers here as a whole will disregard details of the coronation ceremonies and print only what items are made available by the Stefani (semi-official) News Agency.

Photographs of the coronation are banned.

Cab-Driver Group Want Longer Day

London, May 8—(CP Cable)—An east London group had a novel strike on its hands today.

While business remained out to enforce demands for shorter hours, this small group of cab-drivers want a longer working day. They are insisting "on the optional right of working 16 hours on each of the seven days of the week.

Explosion Due To Act of God Goering's View

Duesseldorf, Germany, May 8 (AP) — Air Minister Hermann Goering today ascribed the Hindenburg explosion disaster to an act of God.

"A higher power, in a few seconds, destroyed what human hands by infinite care had constructed," he said. "We bow to God's will, and at the same bad time we face the future with an unbending will and passionate hearts to continue the work for expansion of the air."

Asbury Park, May 8 (AP)—The Asbury Park press today quoted Kenneth W. Heinrich of Keyport, a former United States naval officer, as saying he had told Lieut.-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl of the Lakehurst Naval Air Station he saw a motor of the dirigible Hindenburg back-fire as it flew over New Jersey before it crashed.

The press said Heinrich, now a marine architect, made the private concern, was about 20 miles from Lakehurst as the Hindenburg flew overhead.

Lakehurst, N.J., May 8 (AP)—Lakehurst Naval Air Station's Hindenburg disaster stand today as follows:

Known dead: 35—13 passengers, 22 crew, one spectator.

Known survivors: 65—24 passengers, 39 crew.

The Zeppelin Company said the airship carried 35 passengers and a crew of 61 on its last flight.

Lakehurst, N.J., May 8 (AP)—There'll be no "next time" for Ernst Lehmann, commander of Zeppelin commander.

Mrs. Lehmann said he talked of just before he died yesterday, a victim of the Hindenburg disaster. He spoke of bringing a new zeppelin over the North Atlantic to America.

"I hope the next time we come across we'll have (non explosive) helium," he said. "I'm going to make it—I'll be all right," he said with feeble determination.

A short time later he died.

New York, May 8 (AP)—Death toll of the dirigible Hindenburg disaster was raised to 35 today when Herbert Morrison, radio news officer, and Erich Knocker, a passenger, succumbed to injuries suffered in the aerial pyre. Knocker, 38, was a German importer.

Berlin, May 8 (AP)—Sorrowstricken Germany ordered full speed ahead today on reconstruction of a giant sister ship of the Hindenburg while Dr. Hugo Eckener said Graf Zeppelin II would not be halted pending inquiry into the Hindenburg disaster.

Eckener, designer of the Hindenburg, said the Graf, returning from a regular trip to South America, "will make no more trips until the Hindenburg inquiry is fully cleared up."

As Air Minister Goering mean-while ordered builders at Friedrichshafen to continue work on the LZ-130, Eckener, as a sister ship to the Hindenburg's officials estimated the new airship might be in service between Europe and North America within three months.

Freighter Emperor Released From Shoal

Hamilton, Ont., May 8—(CP)—The C. S. L. freighter Emperor, released from a shoal at Bronte late yesterday, was tied up at the Hotel Company of Canada, docks here today. Full extent of the damage to her plates will not be learned until she goes into drydock after discharging her cargo.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR CELEBRATION CORONATION DAY

Parade Will Move From Upper Bridge to Agricultural Grounds

FIRE ROYAL SALUTE

Confederation Flag of 1867 Will be Carried in Procession

When the Coronation ceremony parade leaves the Upper Bridge here on Wednesday it will remain to the services to be held in the Agricultural Grounds, fluttering bravely in the breeze as its head will be a veteran of the 1867 parade. Seventy years of age this month the Confederation Flag, which was made in 1867 for Mrs. G. F. Stewart's uncle, Mr. William Forrester of Hampton, has aired its capacious folds on many a patriotic occasion. Proudly it flew in 1918, when the bugles of the Allied Forces sounded the Cease Fire Call, and the armistice was the world has ever known. The only known flag of its age in Eastern Ontario it was carried proudly by Mr. Stewart Anna, a grandson, Bob Anna will be the flag in the Coronation parade here.

With arrangements practically complete everything is in readiness for Belleville's ceremony. As has been previously stated the service will be held in the Agricultural Grounds instead of Victoria Park, as was formerly planned.

School children taking part in the parade from the school choruses will be placed in the grandstand in the Agricultural grounds while ample space will be available for the general public.

Following is the official program as outlined by the General Committee in charge of the service and parade.

"Wallis Blue" Especially Dyed, Will Be Worn

ALL CLEAR BLUES

Paris, May 8 (AP)—Sentimental blues stand out in Mrs. Wallis Simpson's wedding clothes. Her wedding gown, which she will try on a second time today at the Chateau de Candé near Monts, is of "Wallis blue."

Between Wallace and Prince.

That is the name given by the dressmaking firm of Maimbacher, for a shade, especially dyed, described as having a soft tone between medium and pastel, "a very soft yet an individual blue."

London's Pulse Beats Faster as May 12 Nears; City Fairyland of Color

Rehearsals Conclude Monday — Imitation Crowns And Paraphernalia Used in Rehearsal of Coronation Rituals—200 Canadians Will be in Abbey.

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON, May 8 (CP)—The pulse of an Empire beats faster today and a spirit of joyous expectancy pervades the great metropolis as the time approaches for the Coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The stage is set and a world-wide audience awaits the rise of the curtain Wednesday, revealing an empire united in a demonstration of devotion and solemn homage. Months of preparation find almost everything in readiness for the historic event.

Weeks of rehearsals will be brought to a close Monday, when a full dress ceremony drill will be held in Westminster Abbey, with all the participants except the king and queen filling their proper roles.

Understudies will act for their Majesties and the actual ceremony of coronation will be rehearsed with imitation crowns and regalia.

The king and queen have visited the Abbey on several occasions and been made thoroughly acquainted with the coronation procedure by the Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, in charge of all arrangements. They have also rehearsed the coronation ritual in private.

TERRIBLE SCENES IN AIR FILMS

Women Scream And Men Groan as Horrors of Tragedy Unfold

New York, May 8 (Special)—Women screamed and men groaned as the horrors of the Hindenburg tragedy were unfolded before their eyes in news reel pictures flashed on the screens of Broadway theatres Friday.

Theatres were crowded two hours before noon with persons drawn by posters in the lobbies vividly depicting scenes of the disaster taken by cameramen.

Several patrons, unable to continue witnessing the scenes, got up and left without staying to see the feature pictures, it was said.

The films showed the dirigible transformed from a magnificent silver air liner into a seething inferno by the flames. They pictured men and women blown out of the cabin windows by the explosion or jumping to safety. They depicted the blackened, seared faces of those ed survivors and the frantic efforts of volunteer rescue crews to succor the victims. They showed the fabric of the giant ship being destroyed by fire and the twisted metal skeleton remaining after the fire had burned itself out.

NAZI PROPAGANDA ALLEGED IN AUSTRALIA

Canberra, May 8—(CP)— The Australian Labor party postponed in the Commonwealth Parliament today against Nazi propaganda activities being disseminated by Count Felix Von Luckner during his cruise through the Antipodes.

Thomas Patterson, Minister of the Interior, replied that the government had no intention of preventing Von Luckner or his crew from coming ashore in Australia.

FIND BODY OF GIRL IN HARBOR

Police Probe Possibility of Foul Play in Death of Collingwood Girl

Collingwood, Ont., May 8—(CP)—Police were today investigating the possibility of foul play in the death of Marjorie MacMurchy whose body was found in the harbor here last night.

Miss MacMurchy, Associate Editor of the Collingwood Enterprise, disappeared from her home the night of April 15. Her father, J. Mac-Murchy, the following day had police start a search for the girl throughout the district, 85 miles north of Toronto in Simcoe County.

No Water in Lungs

An autopsy, it was stated today, revealed there was no water in the girl's lungs. Authorities also said a woman, whose name was not divulged, said she heard a cry and scream the night of April 15th from the direction of the waterfront where the body was found.

Miss MacMurchy, whose hat was found on the shore two days after she disappeared, left her home at 10 o'clock at night, her father said.

"She came downstairs and asked if I had heard a knock at the door," Mr. MacMurchy said. "I told her I had not and she went to the door. A few minutes later she put on her hat and coat and went out. I thought at the time she was going to see her sister next door.

Chief Harold Hugh organized a search with 100 men combing the district when the young woman failed to return home the next day. When the hat was found two days later fishermen started dragging the harbor.

Franco at Toledo Seeks To Dislodge Loyalists

Bilbao, Spain, May 8 (AP)—Three French merchant-ships arrived today to evacuate 2,000 women and children from the refugee-crowded city while three French warcraft stood by in the Bay of Biscay to protect them on the return to France.

The cruiser Desaix Bertin and the destroyer Terrible and Bestaeque hailed at the three-mile limit off the mouth of the Nervion river which leads up to Bilbao while the steamships Carimare, Chateau Margaux and Chateau Palmer moved to take on the refugees.

In Jean de Lux, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 8 (AP)—Defenders of Bilbao, Basque capital, fought Gen. Francisco Mola's insurgent invaders today at the barricades of the city, driven back to their last line of defence by the month-old offensive. Desperately, 30,000 Basques sought to hold their semi-circular line of entrenchments of steel and concrete protecting the city on the east, north and south.

In a hand-to-hand struggle with grenades and bayonets on Monte Solube, a Basque force was routed from its position by insurgent reports said.

Deserted, May 8 (AP)—General Francisco Franco's army at Toledo today declared the government forces which have threatened to surround the ancient imperial city had cut the Zocodover road, south west out of Madrid. After almost complete inactivity since Toledo was captured and embattled insurgents and Loyalist detained from government besiegers October 27, Franco's men launched the attack.

Official reports said the personal were killed in yesterday's shelling of Madrid.

Perpignan, France, May 8 (AP)—Several score of Fascists were shot down today after four days of Anarchist riots but official reports from the Catalonian capital said small bands of Anarchists still held out in some districts.

Premier Francisco Largo Caballero of the Loyalist government has arrived to attempt pacification of the Civil War's situation and to weld the autonomous factions under the Socialist government's regime.

TWENTY-TWO OF CREW RESCUED

Remainder of Thirty-Five aken Off Steamer But Whereabouts Unknown

Hoquiam, Wash., May 8.—(AP) —Unofficial reports said 22 men of the grounded lumber Schooner Trinidad of San Francisco had been rescued as a heavy sea pounded the ship to pieces on the bar off Harbor today.

The ship carried a crew of about 35 but search guardsmen at the North Cove station on the harbor said they believed all but one or two of the men had been saved".

Rescue by the Trinidad left the two coast guard boats that went to the rescue had wireless sets.

First reports said the 22 men were taken to South Bend, Wash., near Raymond.

Bennett to Consult Heart Specialists

Plymouth, May 8 (CP Cable) — R. B. Bennett, arriving here today enroute to London to attend the coronation, said his future as leader of the Canadian Conservative party depended entirely upon his health.

"While in London I shall consult heart specialists," the former Prime Minister said. "If they say my heart is strong enough to stand the strain of another general election I may not retire."

Asked if he thought a general election imminent or thought the Conservative party might be returned to power, Mr. Bennett said the Liberal government seems to be strongly entrenched on the freaks and idiosyncracies of the electors are beyond human understanding.

Coronation Smatterings

Liverpool, May 8 (CP)—Thrilled by the prospect of participating in the coronation festivities and seeing the Duchess of Kent, a child for the first time, 148 excited Canadian sailors arrived in the Duchess of Atholl from Montreal today.

"We are terribly happy and looking forward to the sights of London," one said. "Believe me, we are going to see the king and queen a couple of real Canadian cheers."

The ship was among the Duchess of Atholl's 900 Canadian passengers from Canada and the United States.

Gibraltar, May 8 (CP-Havas) — Ships of the Mediterranean fleet steamed out of the harbor here today for England, where they will participate in the royal naval review off Spithead May 20.

London, May 8 (CP-Havas)—The British Canadian Society left nearly 1,000 carnations in 100 varieties of red, white and blue for the Abbey at Buckingham Palace today.

London, May 8 (CP-Havas) — Queen Mary, accompanied by Lady Cynthia Colville, visited Covent Garden today to take part in rehearsals of the Coronation ceremony today in Westminster Abbey.

She was cheered by the crowds outside the Abbey. She remained in the Abbey an hour.

Buckingham Palace (CP Cable)—Scotland Yard operatives began a search today for the coronet the duchess of Hamilton planned to wear Coronation Day.

Duchess Hamilton threw the coronet at the crowning of King George V. in 1911 when she went to Scotland for her robes the coronet could not be found in the palace today.

"It seems it must have been stolen or mislaid, although we do not think it was stolen," a member of the Duchess' household said.

Another coronet is being made.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Tilleson Science Service, Washington

Early American meteorologist! If one does not know of him he should. For, in reality, it is hard to believe that all storms move toward the east. This difficulty is increased when one is confronted by strong cyclonic wind from the east. Wm. C. Redfield, an American, worked out a theory, 90 years ago, studied storms, and in his studies he reflected data on the direction objects thrown down by the wind had fallen. He plotted them and deduced that the winds in an area moved in a counter-clockwise direction around the storm's centre. He then found that the storm as a whole moved in a general easterly direction. He published his findings in 1831, and these gave form to most important foundation stone of meteorology.

Strength by Cooperation Canada's Defence Policy

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

LONDON, May 8 (CP Cable)—Canada's policy on Empire defence at the coming Imperial Conference will, it was understood today, be based on the principle of strength by co-operation as against the old idea of strength by centralization.

It is the policy accepted by the Imperial Conference of 1923, at which Prime Minister Mackenzie King was Canada's chief delegate, and confirmed at subsequent conferences.

It "expressly recognizes" that "it is for the parliaments of the several parts of the Empire, upon the recommendations of their respective governments, to decide the nature and extent of any action which should be taken by them."

The Australians, it is stated, are against assumption by the Dominions of any European obligations additional to those assumed under the League of Nations covenant. This is in line with Canada's traditional policy.

PICKEREL FISHING OPENS MAY 15TH

Announcement was today made by the Department of Game and Fisheries to the effect that the opening date of the season for yellow pickerel (pike-perch or doré) and pike in Ontario will be as from Saturday, May 15th, for this year instead of May 1st, as prescribed by the regulations.

This change will not be effective, however, in the districts of Kenora and Rainy River where the opening date of the season for the taking of yellow pickerel (pike-perch or doré) will be June 1st.

MAYOR PRAISES CONCERT PLAN

Sees Value of Culture in Possessing Branch in Belleville

Mayor Arnold today made the following tribute to the work of the Canadian Concert Association:—

"As Mayor of Belleville, I desire to give my endorsation to the work of the Belleville Canadian Concert Association because I believe that through it we are given an opportunity musically, educationally and culturally that we could not otherwise come our way.

"I am informed that the Canadian Concert Association is now very widely spread throughout Ontario and that plans are under way whereby Western Canada will have the privilege which this province now enjoys. It would thus appear that we, in Belleville, are a part of a national movement that will undoubtedly become a very important factor in the musical life of Canada.

"I believe that it would be worth our while to make positive efforts for continuance of the Canadian Concert Association in Belleville if for no other reason than that the youth of this city is given an opportunity to hear artists who would, under ordinary circumstances, not be heard for at least many years to come and I am told that during this month season, nearly 1,000 boys and girls of high school age have heard some of Canada's finest concert artists, nearly 1,000 without charge.

"This is something that the citizens of Belleville should, heartily support, whether they are themselves musicians or not and I will be very happy if at the close of the membership campaign, which comes to an end next Monday evening, it is found that the objective of 600 members for this city, has not only been achieved but surpassed.

Obituary

LATE SEPTIMUS W. ARMISTEAD

Many friends were present at the funeral of Septimus W. Armistead a well known and highly respected resident of Huntonville, Peel County, who passed away at his home on April 3rd.

Mr. Armistead was born in England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Armistead. Thirty years ago he came to Canada and settled at Mountain View, Prince Edward County and from there moved to Huntonville, sixteen years ago.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife, (Grace Thrasher), one son, Thomas of Huntonville and three daughters, Mrs. Jack Pyke of Belleville and Mr. E. R. Barrar of Belleville and Miss Gene of Brampton.

Funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Pierce on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30.

Burial was made in Page's Cemetery, Huntonville.

LATE MRS. ELIZABETH THRASHER

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Thrasher, widow of John Gilbert Thrasher, took place Friday afternoon from her late residence, 113 Canniffon Road. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. E. Farnsworth.

The bearers were Messrs. H. ePtle, L. Petris, A. Summers, G. Carson, D. Osbourne and F. Hailey.

JACOB WANNAMAKER

After a lengthy illness Jacob Wannamaker, resident of Canniffon, Quinte, passed away at Kingston, Ont., on Friday, April 30th.

The late Mr. Wannamaker, who was in his 78th. year, was born near Marlbro, Ont., his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wannamaker. For some years he resided in Carlow Township and for the past fourteen years he had made his home at Canniffon. When age and health permitted he followed the vocation of a farmer. By all who knew him he was well esteemed.

Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. Robert Van Dusen, Wellington, Ont., and Mrs. Kenneth Craig of South Bay, Prince Edward County; four sons, Morley Wannamaker, Hamson, Ont.; Oliver Wannamaker, Wellington, Ont.; Charles Wannamaker and William Wannamaker of New Liskeard, Ont.; one brother, Robert Wannamaker, of Boulter, Ont.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

TRENTONIAN FINED TOTAL OF $61.95

William Woods Convicted of Three Charges Under H. T. A.

Trenton, May 8.(Special)—William Woods of Trenton was fined a total of $61.95 in Trenton police court before Magistrate Butler on three charges, when he was convicted of "driving an automobile while his operator's permit was under suspension," "defective brakes" and "reckless driving."

The young man was given one month in which to pay the fine assessed. Traffic Officer Sam Ervine investigated the incident leading up to the charges and was responsible for the charges being laid in court.

The young man was driving on Highway No. 33 between Carrying Place and Trenton and coming to the bridge crossing the Murray Canal found the attendants in the act of swinging the bridge to allow a boat to pass up the canal. Ervine, it is alleged by the bridge attendants, were in position and the bridge was partly swung. Woods, it is alleged, broke through the barrier and proceeded across the bridge at a rapid pace and then broke the barrier on the opposite side. The attendants are reported to have been nearly run down by the motorist and only escaped by their quick movements from the path of the approaching car. After the incident, the police were reported to the police and after investigation by Sam Ervine, traffic officer, the above charges were laid and a conviction registered in all cases.

BELL TELEPHONE HONORS MEMBER

Mr. And Mrs. Jack Norris Given Electric Clock by Staff Members

Appreciation of years of faithful service in this district and evidents of an outstanding popularity among his colleagues was shown in a tangible way last night at the office of the local branch of the Bell Telephone Company, when forty members representing the staff of the Belleville, Picton, Trenton, Stirling and Ottawa branches presented Mr. and Mrs. Jack Norris with a beautiful electric clock on the eve of their departure for their new home in Ottawa.

Mr. Norris who has been connected with the local branch as Senior Central Office man has been transferred to the Ottawa branch of the company and leaves for that place on the fifteenth of May.

What is usually a hive of business activity and quiet efficiency in the daytime was turned into the scene of a happy enjoyable occasion as the guests under the capable direction of Mr. Ed. A. Goodier enjoyed cards and a social hour. Following the delicious refreshments which were served to the guests by the feminine members of the local staff, the formal presentation was made to Mr. Norris by Mr. Goodier.

"It was with extreme regret" he said, "that we heard of the transfer to the Ottawa branch. You have always associated yourself with us in a happy way not only in the performance of your various duties, but in a social capacity, which will indeed be hard to fill. Your genial personality and pleasing manner will be greatly missed not only by the members of the staff but by all with whom you came in contact and your sincere wishes are that in your new surroundings you will enjoy the same happy associations, that you have had—here's presenting this clock to you and Mrs. Norris, we, the members of the staffs of the various offices, wish you all the success and joy, that comes of a thorough knowledge of your work and the thought for the well-being of your fellow workers, which has always characterized your presence while here."

Mr. Norris was visibly moved by this expression on the part of his fellow workers and in a few words of appreciation thanked his hosts for the fine gift which was given him while here, and assured them that the happy connections made here would live long in his memory.

ZINC SLOWS UP INSULIN ACTION

Pittsburgh, May 8 (CP)—Sir Frederick Grant Banting, University of Toronto, discoverer of insulin as a remedy for diabetes, said last night laboratory scientists here for dedication of Mellon Institute's new building, that zinc is being added to insulin to slow down its action.

Sir Frederick explained that pure insulin is too quickly absorbed by the body necessitating in some cases, several doses daily.

The zinc treatment, he said, slows the action, but added:

"It is too early to speak of the clinical value of this form of insulin."

Diseases of Civilization

Asked if he could vision a world free of disease, Sir Frederick replied:

"Free of infectious disease, yes. But as we conquer them new diseases of an organic nature come to light. Heart trouble, for instance, and many others brought on by our complex civilization."

The biggest task confronting the medical profession, he said, is "to find the means to enable folks to train them thoroughly in the laws of health, and then to help them to turn them to account, and to let them work, work, work."

CORONATION ANTHEM COMPOSED IN CITY

A number to be heard over the radio on Sunday afternoon from station CROC, Ottawa, by the Boys' Band of the Capital will be of special interest to listeners in this city for the words and music of this number were composed by Belleville residents and members of the Collegiate teaching staff. The Coronation Anthem to be sung by the massed choir of Belleville schools at the Coronation celebrations to be held on Wednesday morning will be composed in the city. Miss Jessie Prist, teacher at the Collegiate, wrote the words and Noel Hunter, musical "director at the same school composed the music.

The Boys' Band of Ottawa is under the direction of Lieut. W. B. Finlayson and in his letter to Noel Hunter stated he would be very pleased to include the anthem on his radio hour on Sunday. The program comes on at 1.30 p.m. Daylight Saving Time. The Coronation Anthem is as follows:

One with our sister states,
One Britain's conquering wealth,
We pledge our loyalty
Unto the King;
God grant a peaceful reign:
Give him long life and health,
Glad to rule over us,
Strong and unfaltering.
This be our mighty boast;
This be our highest pride—
Justice and peace and right
On Britain's sod:
Over the Empire vast

On 50th Anniversary Attends Son's Wedding

An unique record was set this week when Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Mifflin of Chatham observed the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding by attending the marriage of their son, Orley, to Isabel MacLean of Melbourne, Que.

The auspicious event was attended by Mr. Wm. E. Mifflin of Belleville, also a son, and by Mrs. Mifflin.

At the family dinner held following the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Mifflin were host and hostess to nearly seventy guests, including four sons and four daughters and families.

The elderly couple are in perfect active health and were the recipients of many expressions of good will and best wishes from throughout the Province.

Coronation Plans Related by Radio

Vernon Bartlett, famous British editor and radio commentator will present a vivid description of the coronation preparations in London on "Canada 1937", Sunday, May 9, 5.45 to 6.30 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time. Victor George is devoting the entire ten minutes of the trans-Atlantic hook-up to this purpose. Lionel Shapiro of New York, will be heard reviewing the stage and screen in his usual racy and informal manner.

The musical programme from Montreal, under the direction of Leo Le Sieur, will feature selections from "The Bohemian Girl" by the orchestra and choir.

This broadcast will be the last in the Spring series of "Canada 1937".

QUEEN'S HONORS PRINCIPAL HOWARD

Honorary Degree of Doctor of Divinity Bestowed at Convocation

Rev. Bert Howard, Principal of Albert College was one of the men given honorary degrees at the 93rd Convocation of Queen's University on Friday. Principal Wallace presented the recipients of these honors to Chancellor Richardson and in presenting Principal Howard read the following citation:

"The private school, under church auspices has held a place in Canadian life, the importance of which has been demonstrated by the quality of the men which it has educated. The influence of such schools is, more frequently than not, to be ascribed to the personality of those who are responsible for their direction. Albert College, an institution with which Queen's University has some direct contact, has given forward to greater things under the founding principal, Bert Howard, who came to the work with a training in Medicine, Arts and Theology, and with long pastoral service in Western Canada. He has already accomplished much for the institution and its students. Mr. Chancellor, I present to you Bert Howard for the honor of Doctor of Divinity, honoris causa."

230 students were granted degrees in various faculties.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Toronto May 8 (CP)—Wartime fliers from all parts of Canada and the United States will gather here in reunion May 31, Coronation Day. Plans for the first gathering of its kind in Canada were completed at a meeting of the Royal Air Force Reunion Committee here last night.

Waterloo, Ont., May 8 (CP)—A dentist here doesn't know it if he's on the verge of a large mail-order business or if some wag has a distorted sense of humor. However, he answered the following letter:

"Dear Dr.—I've heard tell of your skill as a dentist and I would like some of your teeth. As I'm not with my front tooth, I will give you the measurements. My mouth will be three inches across, five eights of an inch through the jaw and some hammer shaped in edges. Hope this is more particulars I will have to come that."

Milwaukee, Wis., May 8 (AP)—A 60-year-old woman whose husband home was discovered by officers in a cave in Lincoln county, Wis., Owen, Belleville. Both vehicles had negotiated the turn on the highway and came upon each other, the drivers considering that glaring headlights coming from opposite directions. The vehicles sideswiped, with Mr. Hay's car turning over in the ditch.

Hay and Carl Castlereigh, of New York City, escaped uninjured when the former's car turned over in the ditch. Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine investigated and stated today no charges had been laid in view of the fact that although subsequent investigations would be necessary. The damage to Hay's car was estimated at $175.00, while the damage to the other vehicle was slight.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville last night, leaving the police blotter still waiting for the seven instances which appeared in search of lodgings.

In the absence of Sergeant Arthur Harman, who is confined to the hospital with an attack of flu, William Evans was in charge of the police house last night.

POLICE BLOTTER

Trenton police today reported the theft of a 1936 model Lafayette coach, stolen in that town early this morning. The vehicle was black in color and carried Ontario license plates number 233-U-8.

Bert Mason, 13 Geddes St., reported the loss of a radiator cap from his automobile. To was practically a new accessory and would be useless to any other person as it was the remainder of the equipment attached to my car," explained Mr. Mason.

Following a collision between two automobiles at Foxboro late last night, one of the vehicles turned over in the east ditch and was considerably damaged but no personal injuries were sustained.

Proceeding in a southerly direction was Norman Hay, R.R. 6, Lindsay, while travelling in the other side direction was an automobile driven by A. Owen, Belleville. Both vehicles had negotiated the turn on the highway and came upon each other, the drivers considering that glaring headlights coming from opposite directions. The vehicles sideswiped, with Mr. Hay's car turning over in the ditch.

Trenton and District

Trenton, May 7 (Special)—Following is a list of officers chosen to govern Trenton Chapter, No. 118, Order of the Eastern Star for the ensuing year. Installation was made on Monday night in the Eastern Star Hall. Front Street, now are: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Edith Embury; Worthy Patron, David MacDonald; Associate Patron, Mrs. George Cobby; Secretary, Mrs. Otto Sweatman; Treasurer, Mrs. Hilda Campbell; Conductress, Mrs. Myrtle Burrows; Chaplain, Mrs. Gladys Hendricks; Marshal, Mrs. Margaret Pendington; Organist, Mrs. Margaret Chambers; Adah, Miss Geraldine MacMillan; Ruth, Mrs. Viola Dixon; Esther, Mrs. Mary Martin; Martha, Miss Bessie McKibbon; Electa, Mrs. Alma Hendricks; Warder, Mrs. Constance Cobley; Sentinel, Murray Dixon.

Believed to have crawled under the wheels of Riverside Dairy Milk wagon while the driver, Jack Addison was carrying out his duties, Kenneth Jones 3 year old son of Mr. Henry Jones, Queen Street, suffered a severe fracture of the right leg above the knee. Driver of the wagon picked the infant boy off the road. He was taken to a doctor's office where an examination revealed the extent of the injuries. Police said the lad was riding with the milk driver going to the mishap and apparently crawled beneath the wheels of the wagon while the driver was delivering his order. No blame was attached to the driver.

Baker's Bowling Tilliate

Climaxing a season of stiff competition Baker's mixed double six captured the Trenton Academy Mixed Bowling honors for 1937 by garnering a close decision from Taylor's quintette, the victors took two of the three sets but found it no easy task to do so with Taylor's staged a last minute rally. Teams were: Baker's: Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Saxe, Mrs. A. Hagg, G. Shakespeare, F. Magicane, S. Taylor's: Mr. and Mrs. Dunham, Kay Dadswell, Bright Bernard, Horace Ormshaw and Mrs. E. Williams.

Madoc and District

Madoc—On Monday evening the Young People's Society of Trinity United Church held their meeting. After the business period conducted by the president Miss Pergeau the devotional period was taken by Rev. Mr. Hawthorne of the Christian Fellowship department. Hymns were sung and the Scripture lesson read in unison. Mr. and Mrs. Manly Yarwood rendered a vocal duet followed by a piano solo "Moonlight Sonata" by Miss E. Salsbury. Misses Helen Wellman and Madeline Bailey sang a duet. The feature of the evening was an illustrated travelogue by Mrs. Yarwood on her trip to the Bahamas and Bermuda during Easter week. The mainly colored slides and interesting descriptions of the land and its people held the attention of the audience. The Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting.

On Tuesday evening, May 4th, the Presbyterian Young People's Society of Madoc held an open meeting in the Sunday School rooms of the church. The purpose of the meeting was to raise funds to contribute towards the Missionary work in the Peace River district. After the usual devotional exercises a set of lantern slides was shown on the screen and the accompanied lecture was read by different members of the Society. The slides proved very interesting and clearly depicted not only the hardships and trials, but also the achievements of the missionaries at work in that district. This work is given a financial backing by the Young People of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

On the evening's programme were Mr. Stanley Herrington who played a delightful piano solo and Mr. William Hawthorne who displayed his talent at cartoon drawing. After the singing of a hymn the meeting closed with the Benediction.

On Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian Church a joint meeting of the two local C. G. I. T. groups was held. Nearly forty girls were present from Miss Loreen Connor's group of the Presbyterian Church and Miss Grace Garrett's group from the United Church. The meeting opened with a hymn. A set of slides on camp life with explanations of the pictures given by Miss Tennent of the Girl's Work Board, Toronto, was shown. Miss Tennent then led in community singing. A talk on the work of the C. G. I. T. in camp, of their attitude toward their group and their leader and a plea to keep up the group that was capably given by the guest speaker from Toronto. A piano solo was given by Kathleen Phillips. Laura Stortings sang a song. The girls enjoyed some games. Lunch was served by the Presbyterian group, assisted by Miss MacIntosh.

Marmora and District

Marmora.—"Wonders of California and Hollywood" was the subject of an absorbing talk given by G. M. James, B.A., L. L. B., of Belleville at the regular meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association, held in the parish hall on Wednesday evening with a good attendance. Mr. James held his hearers in rapt attention as he vividly portrayed some of the scenic beauties and agricultural and horticultural products of the famed state, as well as in his description of the wonderful homes of the movie artists at Beverley Hills. Referring to the frequency of divorce at Hollywood the speaker said that it led to one conclusion, that happiness does not come from without, rather from within. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the guest speaker on motion of G. A. Gordier, B.A., seconded by H. B. Smith. In response, Mr. James expressed his pleasure at meeting the members of the association and wished it success. Charles Bradtcher, a member of St. Thomas' Laymen's Association, Belleville, who accompanied Mr. James, was called upon for a few remarks by the president. W. J. Cottrell, and referred to some of the activities of the Belleville organization. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served and a social hour was spent. In the business period, which preceded the program, the president thanked the members for the support given in the recent sponsoring of "Clearing Skies" put on in Marmora Town Hall by the B.Y.P.U. of Belleville.

A late congregation assembled at St. Paul's Anglican Church on the evening of Ascension Day when Right Rev. John Reeve, D.D., Lord Bishop of Ontario administered the Apostolic rite of Confirmation to twenty candidates who were presented by the rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, in the following order: David Crawford, Kenneth Bryan, Geoge Rice, Gordon Jones, Joyce Smith, Gertrude Gray, Irene Kilpatrick, Helen Regan, Doris Smith, Francis Leal, Barbara Crawford and Muriel Simmons. The Bishop in his address referred to portions of the Apostles' Creed and Scriptural account of the Apostolic laying on of hands and towards the end of his discourse dwelt upon the position of the Church of England with regard to Confirmation. During the offertory Mrs. P. Gray rendered "Father in Heaven."

Messrs. W. Gould and C. Shankland spent Thursday in Toronto.

PRE-CORONATION DAYS

Coronation thought is filling the minds of the people as the great symbolic event draws near. Through the agencies of the press and moving pictures, preparations which have been made have been brought home to every fireside and hearth throughout the Empire and the rest of the world. With that thoroughness which is real inspiration the chief figures in the great event even the King and Queen, the Queen Mother and the little princesses, the Empire statesmen, the soldiery, the guards, the horses drawing the golden royal coach and everyone taking a part in the procession or the coronation ceremony within the Abbey of Westminster have all passed through rehearsals, so that on May 12th, the scene will appear flawless and perfectly natural. It is the English way of thoroughness. Crowds have seen the street rehearsals and know that this is but the introduction and preparation for the crowning. But in a characteristically English way the rehearsals do not remove the sense of naturalness in that ceremonial.

In the churches of the Empire on Sunday pre-coronation services will be held, wherein the state and religious importance of the ceremonies at Westminster will be impressed upon the millions of worshippers in majestic fane and temple, in small city church, in the little unpretentious meeting place where a few devout persons meet in adoration of and gratitude to God. This service will be a satisfying preparation for the day of May 12th, which will be so crowded with events that some of its significance may be overlooked in the complexities of the ritual and symbolism and the associations with the formal crowning and investiture of the King and his Queen. The prayers, hymns and messages in thousands upon thousands of sacred edifices will inspire to greater devotion to the land and the ruler in whom every British subject is blest, for all, that, we as a people have within the Empire is summed up in that ritual, which has come down the ages of history with a thousand strains all merging in this one event. There have been influences working upon the British constitution from within and without and the impact of those influences from without is of course colored by the characteristics of the people, personality and the British constitution.

These pre-coronation services should mean a re-dedication of all the people to the great principles of British justice and liberty and sympathetic and appreciative of all the blessings which Great Britain and the monarchy have meant to four hundred millions who owe allegiance and fealty to King George Sixth.

MOTHER'S DAY

In many churches Mother's Day will be observed on Sunday. This day never loses its appeal, set in the month when early flowers are in bloom. The day comes at a time when the human soul is receptive to all the beauty of outward nature and of human life and character and among the most beautiful and wholesome impressions which enter the heart are those about mothers, whose great task in the world can only be appreciated but never fully expressed except in kindly deeds or tender memories.

Mother's Day is a tribute the mothers do not seek. But as it is a natural outpouring of feelings of gratitude to motherhood in general and to individual mothers and as such recognition is in itself a blessing and an incentive to noble living, they realize the day has its importance. On that day some of the loveliest and most touching and heartfelt tributes are paid to the living mothers by the children and older members of families, while the silent tribute is given by those who meet at the shrine of memory with the determination to do nobly for the sake of their mothers.

THE AIRSHIP TRAGEDY

The Hindenburg disaster in which many persons lost their lives as the gigantic queen of the skies exploded while she was preparing to land at Lakehurst, New Jersey, on Thursday evening shocks the world. No one wants to hear of such untoward events for every human being senses a danger to himself in the tragedy of such an airship and her crew and passengers.

What place the airship will have in the future, what caused such a disaster and whether hellium should be used instead of hydrogen gas, are questions that will be discussed in the investigations. At the moment the chief thought is of the unfortunate victims of the disaster and the shock that their relatives feel in their loss.

Such tragedies unerringly lead to discovery of means to make safer such means of transportation. That is the only consoling thought in this fatal event.

EQUANIMITY

Could we accept life's baffling mysteries
As childlike faith embraces fairy lore,
And sing our lifesong as a troubadour
Who nonchalantly lifts his melodies,
In tune with Nature's two-toned harmonies,
We'd find more pleasure in its minor score:
More laughter in each lachrymose encore;
More color in its lyric symphonies!

What if the laughter catches in our throats
To see the flower cut down before its prime,
The wisp of fog dissolve the well run dry?
The perfume lingers on; fresh rain connotes
New life within the well; while there, sublime,
The sun that claimed the fog shines in the sky!

—Gordon LeClaire.

WE HAVE WITH US AN INTERESTING CHARACTER in the person of Sam H. Harris, who has become a citizen of Belleville. Sam has several claims to fame, including that of an entertainer, and when he appeared several years ago on the program of the Rotary Minstrels he made a hit. He has also appeared on public programs in Peterborough and elsewhere. Another claim to fame consists of being a long distance walker, having walked from Toronto to San Francisco and back on the occasion of the Shriners International Convention, 1922, delivering a letter to the Imperial Potentate of the Mystic Shrine at San Francisco. He left Toronto April 6, 1922, and returned to Toronto late in August, the same year. Another hike took him from Kitchener in 1923 to Washington, D.C., 1600 miles in 64 days, delivering a letter from Mayor Greb, of Kitchener, to President Warren Harding of the United States, making expenses by singing at theatres en route. Sam Harris is a veteran of the Great War, having served with the 21st Battalion overseas. After the Armistice being connected with Y.M.C.A. concert parties in England at demobilization camps. Sam has engaged in the confectionery and ice cream business with a store on Front Street, and has also taken over the refreshment concessions at Victoria Park, which will be officially opened Coronation Day, next Wednesday. Sam says he is spending a dandy program of entertainment for that day with much music and a program of sports. In connection with Sam's long hikes he treasures a book containing the signatures of many prominent people on the line of march across the continent, also many press references to his walks and his entertaining.

SATURDAY THE HISTORIC KENTUCKY DERBY WILL BE RUN, and all sporting roads have been leading to Louisville this week. Although Louisville was badly battered by the flood waters, it is ready and anxious to entertain the thousands of visitors which the Derby always brings. Pompoon, featured favorite to win the Kentucky Derby, has thrown a decided scare into his supporters by his bad race in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Jamaica last Saturday. However, Derby winners have been known before this to make a bad race just before the big event, and perhaps there is method in this madness—either the owner, trainer or jock having horse sense, or the horse itself. Like the trotting racers where such a thing has been known as "laying up a heat."

BIG NEWS

"We better make a front-page story of this wedding," remarked the editor.

"Why?" asked the society reporter in surprise. "They aren't very prominent people."

"That may be," he replied, "but this is the first account of a wedding you have turned in for ages that hasn't had as a last line, "They will reside with the bride's parents."
